Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

It esems as though Klemme folks have broken out in a rash of car accidents . . . none of which have been fatal, thank goodness. Junior Roths had his car demolised in an accident in Texas, the cars of Elmer Larson and Harold Albers appear to be damaged beyond repair in the accident southeast of town last week, Lee Ridder's station wagon received slight damage in a mishap north of town last week, we hear that Mayor Cook's car was damaged in an accident in Minnesota last week, and Harry Anderson's car is junk following his accident Monday.

Makes a person wonder if it's safe to leave home in the family car. Only good part about all these accidents is that no one has been killed. Some of the folks involved have had to put in some hospital time, and a couple of them are still hospitalized, but they are all getting along alright.

We imagine that Mr and Mrs Elmer Anderson were about the most relieved parents in the state of Iowa when they found out that Harry had not been hurt in the accident. Due to a mix up in identities, the information came to them that Harry was the one who was seriously hurt. They immediately went to Waverly, filled out necessary papers for the supposedly injured Harry, and then went to his room to see him.

They had been in the room for some minutes looking at the bloodied person in the bed, when is walked Harry. Imagine their surprise and relief. Of course, they felt bad because the injured boy was Roger Treu, who had been riding wih Harry, and they immediately called Roger's parents to notify them of their son's injuries.

Reason for the mix up in identity was that while Harry was gone with a trucker to get a doctor and an ambulance, another car stopped and the driver talked to Alice Anderson, who was in a dazed condition. She thought that it was Harry who was hurt and Roger who had gone with the trucker. She asked this man to get news to Klemme, and he of course acted on what she told him, not knowing that she was in such a state of shock.

No One Injured In Accident North of Town

At 2:15 p m Friday, at a point about three miles north of Klemme on Highway No. 69, a 1954 Ford Station Wagon going north driven by L A Ridder, was struck in the rear by a 1955 Chevrolet driven by Billie Strong of Arlington, Texas. Strong was attempting to pass the Ridder station wagon when the accident occurred, causing both cars to leave the highway. Damages were estimated at approximately $500. There were no injuries to occupants.

Strong was later charged with failure to have his vehicle under control and was fined $50 and costs in the Justice Court of R J Fritsch at Garner, with $25 of the fine suspended on good behavior.

The office manager also reported that producers have until January 31, 1956 to obtain price support loans and purchase agreements on 1955 oats and soybeans. Producers are not required to be in compliance with corn allottment to be eligible for price support on oats and soybeans.

Miller Youth In Iowa City Hospital After Anderson Car Crashes

Roger Treu of Miller is in the hospital at Iowa City following an accident about noon Monday on Highway 3 near Clarksville. Treu was riding in a car driven by Harrry Anderson, son of Mr and Mrs Elmer Anderson, when the car struck an icy curve, left the road and rolled several times. He received severe head injuris, but Harry was not hurt.

Alice Anderson, daughter of Mr and Mrs Jennings Anderson, was also in the car at the time of the accident. She was badly bruised and shaken up, but was to have been returned to her parents home here today (Wednesday), from the hospital in Waverly.

The group was on its way to Chicago where Miss Anderson is employed by the Methodist Publishing House, and where Treu and Harry were to enter an electronics school on Tuesday.

X-ray examination at the Iowa City hospital showed that Treu received no serious damage to skull or brain, and Tuesday he was beginning to respond to questions. Doctors said that in a few days he should be alright.

Harry's 1951 Oldsmobile was demolished.

Shamrocks Roll Over Rockwell 70-35 After Long Holiday Layoff

Playing their first game since December 16th, the Klemme Shamrocks rolled up an impressive 70-35 score against Rockwell here Tuesday evening. The victory is the tenth of the season for the Shamrocks and gives them a perfect record of six wins in North Star Conference play.

Leading by 39-8 at the half the Shamrocks came back in the third quarter to run the score to 52-11. Then with four minutes remaining in that period, Coach Westberg inserted his reserves into the game, and they took it from there.

Westberg said that he thought Tuesday's game was one of the best defensive efforts for the Shamrocks in the current season. In addition to the good defense, the Shamrocks shot 52% in piling up their victory margin.

Nearly every member of the squad broke into the scoring column for the Shamrocks with Kramer and Haefner leading the way with 14 and 12 points, respectively. Sturges was high man for the visitors with 9 points.

The Little Shamrocks had a rougher time in winning 30-29 over the Rockwell reserves. They trailed by two points at the half, 17-15, built up a 28-21 lead by the end of the third quarter, and then had to hang on to squeeze out the narrow one-point victory.

Nuehring paced the Little Shamrocks with 17 points.

Next action for the Shamrocks will be at Dows on Friday night, January 6th The Dows team fell before the locals 58-32 early in the season and the Shamrocks will be looking for a repeat victory in this conference affair.

The evening began with group singing and then games were played. Lunch was served at the close of the evening with Mrs R W Elder helping Mrs Miller.

Dr Baker and Garner Veterinarian Form New Partnership

As of January 1, 1956, a new partnership was formed by 2 veterinarians of this community—they are, Dr J D Baker of Klemme and Dr K. D McMartin of Garner.

Dr Baker has made his headquarters in Klemme with his office in the basement of his home and Dr McMartin will continue in his office in Garner, which will function as a combination office and veterinary dispensary.

A full time office assistant will be on duty at Garner for the regular office hours of 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Mrs Baker will be in attendance of Dr Baker's office while he is making calls. Office phones for the partnership are 63 in Garner and 65R3 in Klemme.

These two veterinarians will have two-way radios installed in their offices and their cars—so that prompt communication can be had between the two offices, or either, or both of the cars at any time.

The purpose of these two-way radios is to make it possible for one of the veterinarians to be reached at any time, particularly in case of an emergency. They will also enable the veterinarians to provide better and more prompt service for their clients—cutting down the time needed to make calls, etc.

This new partnership will facilitate 24 hour service and seven-day week service for the ones needing veterinary service in this vicinity. One of the doctors may be reached at any time, as one of them will be on duty. At no time will both of the veterinarian be away.

cerned, but it is a relief on fuel consumption. The old furnace really worked during those cold days.

Iowa has lost their last three basketball games, Iowa State has jumped into the first ten in the country on all the polls, the Shamrocks are going great guns, coaches are developing ulcers, and the fans are "living it up". We are right in the middle of the basketball season, and from now until after the boys state tourney in March, basketball will be the main topic of conversation for sports fans.

We hope the Shamrocks and Iowa State continue in their winning ways, and we hope that Coach "Bucky" O'Connor get his highly touted Hawkeyes back on the winning trail. Basketball is unpredictable, fast and furious, and a barrel of fun. We wish we could turn back the calender a few years and play some more ourselves.

With push-button, power steering, split-second pickup and all the other gizmos and gadgets that add up to the comfort and ease of the driver of today's car, I predict that eventually somebody will come out with a revolutionary new drive-it-yourself model.—L C Cooley, Altoona Herald.

VET'S EXEMPTIONS

Iowa war veterans, beginning in 1956, must make application each year for their veterans' property tax exemptions.

The last legislature changed the state law which required that veterans only needed to register once to obtain the exemption on their property. Under the amended law, application must be made annually, same as in homestead exemptions.

City and county assessors handle the exemptions in Iowa.

SPEED LIMIT

While Iowans informally are discussing speed limits another state has passed maximum speed limits for its highways.

Michigan legislators, in a special session called for the purpose, adopted new speed restrictions which put a 65 mile an hour limit on daytime driving and a 55 mile an hour speed at night.

IOWA PORK PRICES

Wilbur Plager, field secretary of the Iowa swine association, told the Fair Managers association at their recent state convention, that pork prices have generally been lower on both the east and west coast than they have been in Iowa.

He said not until recent weeks has the marketing public been able to do a real job of bringing the retail price of pork into line.

Plager said that Iowa fairs can help farmers solve some of the swine production problems by encouraging displays of meat-type hogs.

LIQUOR-BY-DRINK

Will liquor-by-the-drink be an important issue in the next session of the Iowa legislature?

State temperance leaders seem to think so and are mapping lobbying tactics accordingly.

State Sen Samuel Burton of Ottumwa said he will propose such a measure in the next session, and has been influential in organizing the "Iowans for moderation" group which will support such legislation.

The "drys" are worried somewhat because of the surprising strength a liquor-by-the-drink bill demonstrated in the house during the last session. However, the measure was stymied in the senate, probably according to a pre-arranged plan.

The "wet" forces are basing their hopes on selling liquor-by-the-drink legislation as a state revenue producing item. The liquor proposition has been placed formally before the special state tax study committee as a means of increased revenue and decreased taxes. Burton presented the report.

Chairman of the tax study committee is Sen X T Prentis of Mt Ayr, an out-and-out dry who definitely looks with disfavor on the proposal. Prentis has said that he doesn't control the tax committee, but has indicated he will make a strong personal fight against the liquor-by-the-drink proposals.

IOWA POLITICS

With the election year now officially here many Iowans are expected to announce in the next few weeks, some in a few days, their 1956 political plans.

Gov Leo A Hoegh, in his first term, told newsmen he would hold a "family conference" with his wife and two young daughters shortly after the "first of the year" to make a decision on his future political plans. He didn't say when he would announce them.

Two Republicans have entered the race for lieutenant-governor since Lt Gov Leo Elthon said he will not seek reelection. Wendell Pendleton of Spirit Lake, a state representative, and former lieutenant-governor, W H Nicholas of Mason City, are already running. State Sen Alan Vest of Sac City is giving "serious consideration" to such a contest. His decision will come this month.

In the Democratic ranks, Clyde E Herring of Des Moines is expected to announce shortly that he will again seek the party nomination for governor. He may have a battle in the primary from Lawrence Plummer of Northwood, the Democrat's candidate for attorney general two years ago, who reports he is seriously studying the governorship possibilities for himself.

FIRE ESCAPES

Fire hazards in some state institutions were pointed up in a recent annual report of the state fire marshal.

The report recommended removal of all beds now located in hallways at the Cherokee mental hospital, and declared that attics over two wings of the main building at the Mount Pleasant mental health institute are a "serious" fire hazard.

The state fire marshall said that the 14 institutions under the Iowa Board of Control need a total of more than 60 new fire escapes. Some of the escapes in some buildings, the report asserted, are kept padlocked.

ADOPT NEW RULE

Iowans can now call on the Iowa liquor control commission as liquor salesmen. The commission has adopted a new rule permitting such procedure after several years in which liquor salesmen who resided in Iowa were barred from calling on the commission on official sales business.

The regulation, which has just been revised, was placed in effect during the Beardsley administration. When it was placed in effect about 30 to 40 liquor salesmen moved from Iowa to represent their companies elsewhere.

There is a "joker" in the new reports it will deal with a sales-rule, however. The commission man only if he is a "corporate officer, owner, partner, sales manager (or assistant), monopoly state manager (or assistant) or regional sales manager (or assistant) of his firm.

Also the salesman cannot call on the commission more than four times a year, once in each quarter, unless specifically called in by the commission.

MEET FOR ADLAI

Iowa Democrats are being urged to participate in a meeting in Des Moines Saturday to form an organization to promote the candidacy of Adlai Stevenson for the party nomination for president.

A "Kefauver for president" committee has already been launched in this state.

The meeting for Stevenson has been called by Lex Hawkins, Polk County Chairman, and Arthur Sanford of Sioux City, a prominent Democrat. The meeting starts at 2 p m.

Officers will be elected and plans prepared for the 1956 primary contest.

WILL NOT RETURN

At least three veterans of the Iowa Senate, all Republicans, have reported they will not seek re-election this year.

The trio includes State Senators DeVere, Council Bluffs; Herman Knudsen, Mason City; and G. E. Whitehead, Perry. Watson was president pro tem of the senate during the last session, and Knudsen is secretary of the special state tax study committee.

GOP FUND EVENT

Iowa Republicans will participate in the national fund-raising dinners project launched this year by the party national committee.

GOP faithful in this state will contribute $25-a-plate for their event which will be Jan 20th at KRNT theater in Des Moines.

Principal speaker will be U S Sen Bourke B Hickenlooper.

RAIL LINES LINK

The interstate commerce commission has approved purchase of the Fort Dodge, Des Moines and Southern Iowa Railway Company by the Des Moines Central Iowa Railway Company.

The Fort Dodge line has 138,950 shares of stock outstanding. The proposition approves purchase of 54,977 shares of the stock by purchaser for a total of $687,500.

TOP PATRONAGE

Iowa's network of state parks attracted a record throng in 1955.

Attendance at the parks in 11 months totaled 5,695,000, an all-time record, and nearly a million more than in 1954.

Those parks with boating and swimming facilities were the biggest crowd-getters.

1955 Dry Year But Normal Temperatures

December 1955 continued the weather pattern set by November and went into the records as a comparatively cold and dry month, according to weather records kept by Earl Henschen, Custodian at the Hancock County Courthouse. The month was the coldest month of 1955 with an average temperature of 14.28. The average minimum temperature was 4.71 degrees and the average maximum was 23.84. The month was the coldest December since 1950 when the average for the month was 12.37.

The lowest temperature recorded during the month was 19 degrees below zero recorded on the morning of December 19th, and the highest temperature recorded during the month was 43 on December 23rd. On fifteen days of the month, the temperature dipped to zero or below. December 1954 failed to register a zero or below temperature with 2 above being the coldest recorded for the month last year. The average December temperature in 1955 was 24.41.

Precipitation for the month just ended was .42 inch compared to .26 inch for the same month last year. A total of five inches of snow fell during the month. The heaviest amount of precipitation recorded during the month was .12 inch which fell in the form of rain and snow during the twenty-four hour period ending 7 a. m. on December 2nd.

The year 1955 went into the record as a year of normal temperatures and below normal precipitation. The average temperature for the year was 46.40 degrees compared with 47.34 in 1954 and 47.14 in 1953. Temperatures averaged above normal the greater part of the year but the months of February with a 15 57 average, November with a 26.74 average and December with a 14.28 average, made the year end with about normal temperatures.

Precipitation during the year totaled 22.02 inches which is approximately eight inches below the normal precipitation for this area. Precipitation in 1954 totaled 42.04 inches and in 1953 measured 29.41 inches. Crops in this area were relatively good in spite of the moisture deficiency due to the fact that most of the deficiency came during the fall and winter months.

Of the total precipitation recorded during the year of 1955, 13.89 inches fell during the months of April, May, June and July, thus affording sufficient moisture for growing crops. The drouth began in July and continued through August with only .91 of an inch of precipitation recorded during the month. Above normal temperatures during May, July and August also hastened all crops to maturity ahead of the seasonal average.

Twin Lake Go Getters

The Twin Lake Go Getters met at the home of Josephine Dominy and held their Christmas party. Theresa Lowenberg told us the story and history of one of our listening numbers. Marilyn Pals gave a talk on picture study. The president called the meeting to order and the treasurer's report was given by Judy Eliason.

The club voted to help purchase a demonstration table with mirror for use at the County Fair. Miss Dominy demonstrated the correct way to make beds with square corners. A color coordinator was used and each girl planned a room.

A gift exchange was held. Miss Eliason was presented a gift of luggage which she plans to use on her trip to Norway this summer.

(No grinding, No mixing)

Just put Bolson's 26% Grain Balancer in ⅔ of your feeder space, put whole oats in the remaining ⅓; then, give 8 lbs. of shelled corn per 100 birds or 15 lbs. of corn on the cob. In the evening, clean water, use lights if you have them, a 13 or 14 hour day is better than an all-night light. Your pullets should eat about 25% Grain Balancer and 75% whole grain. A good way to find out who makes the most palatable grain balancer is to put Bolson's in ½ of your feeder space and another balancer in the other ½, let the pullets decide—you be the judge. Oh, by the way, "don't forget hard grit and oyster shells". Bolson's is not the cheapest 26% on the market but Bolson's says, "It will produce the cheapest eggs". All it takes is a comparison test. Be sure your pullets have 4 inches of feeder space per pullet. Buy Bolson's from

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

What does it mean when you kill 13,700 people in traffic accidents as we have in Iowa since 1930?

It means we've filled nearly 16 miles of graves if you allow each victim 6 feet and calculate in a straight line.

It means we've made one grave for every mile of our primary highway system with enough left over to get an impressive start on the secondary system.

It means we've set a death record that could completely wipe out the total population of any one of 83 of our county seat towns.

And it didn't actually take us 25 years to accomplish this slaughter. Probably it didn't take much more than 25 hours.

If you allot 10 seconds for the actual time it took for each victim to be killed or fatally injured, and allow for the multiple deaths, you'll come up with something close to 25 hours total elapsed time for the deaths of the 13,700.

You could go on for pages, drawing terrifying statistics from this death record, but it would never be more than a glimpse of what price we've paid for indifference and carelessness.

There are no adding machines that total up grief. There are no calculators that can tell us what the survivors have lost.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

The current supply of 27 legume and grass seeds in this county is 16 percent larger than a year ago.

Four-fifths of the supply came from 1955 production, according to Stephen P Hiemstra, Iowa State College farm economist. Last year's small carryover has been offset by increased production this year. For the most part, Hiemstra says, seed growers are receiving prices considerably below last spring's offerings.

A record supply of alfalfa seed, including large amounts of improved varieties, is available. Record acreages and yields and a large carry-over from last year caused this. Hiemstra says alfalfa prices are considerably below a year ago and compare favorably with other legumes.

Although the current red clover supply is 15 percent larger than last year, it is still 23 percent below the 5-year average. Exports also have been large Consequently prices, even though lower than last year, are relatively high when compared to other legumes. Substitution of some other legume for red clover may be profitable, comments Hiemstra.

Our current supply of alsike seed is below average. Canadian production, however, is 50 percent above average and imports will supplement the supply. But an increase in the import tariff will keep prices high Hiemstra says.

The quantity of lespedeza seed is more than double the amount sown last year. Hiemstra reports that prices are sharply reduced from the high levels of the last 3 years.

A combination of reduced acreage and drouths cut smooth brome grass seed production nearly 50 percent this year. Hiemsta says it will be necessary to import seed to maintain present seeding levels. Prices average above a year ago.

Available supply of timothy seed is larger than last year, and Kentucky bluegrass seed supply is about like last year's prices of both these seeds are considerably lower than a year ago.

A better crop in Europe has deceased the amount of seed which will be demanded for export. This also tends to reduce prices. Assuming a normal demand for these seeds, Hiemstra states that prices should average below a year ago. He adds, however, that a large increase in conservation seeding could stimulate prices.

Now's the Time—

Devise Good Linen Storage Plan

Store linens and remove them from storage with speed and ease. This can be done with some careful planning on your part.

Does your home have a special place to store household linens? Every home should have. And, the smaller the home or apartment, the more important it is that you have a good linen storage plan, according to Naomi Shanks, extension home management specialist at Iowa State College.

SPACES TOO SMALL

Of course, it's not always possible to have a special closet just for storing linens. However, with good planning, storage for linens can often be built into spaces too small for many other uses, just as the deep cupboards so often found in old houses can be made more convenient.

DOUBLE ROW STORAGE

Double row storage is one of the best ways to use narrow and deep spaces. For example, fold your linens compactly; then place them with their short sidse at the front edge of shelves, unless they are in very long, narrow folds.

In double row storage, everyday articles can be placed conveniently in front, giving a back seat to out-of-season, reserve, seldom-used or guest supplies. This storage plan puts everyday linens at fingertip reach for your family's use. You'll find that compact folds are easy to handle and they use more vertical height and less shelf space. remember, you'll need at least 3 inches at the top of your stacks to get linens on and off shelves.

ROLL SMALL ARTICLES

Even though rolling your smaller articles, such as doilies, dresses scarves and table mat, on tubes for storage takes some time and patience, it will prevent creases and utilize the deep, narrow shelf space.

TRY HALF SHELVES

Sometimes shelves are placed so far apart that there's plenty of room between them for half shelves. These can be portable or fastened at the back or along the sides of the closet, where they won't interfere with the visibility of the linens on deep shelves.

SMALL LINENS

Some of your smaller linens such as folded pillow cases, napkins, dish towels, wash cloths, dish cloths and potholders will fit on a shallow 8-inch-deep half shelf. On shelves which are this shallow, linens are stored in a single row so they're easy to see—and easy to get in and out of storage.

TRAY DRAWERS

Tray drawers can also help the storage problem. Make the drawers of lightweight building materials. Be sure they are not over 4 inches deep. Fasten glider strips to the sides of cupboard spaces between those shelves which are too far apart.

Perhaps you have some drawers which are too deep. If so, add a second drawer by putting a lift out tray drawer on glider strips mounted to the interior sides of the drawer.

MANY REWARDS

Now—you'll discover that efficiently planned storage for your household linens will not only help to conserve your dollar investments—but it will also reduce the time needed for care and repair and help give you longer years of good use.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

There has been a great deal said and printed with regard to the ever increasing amount of vehicles making use of our highways and rendering them daily more obsolete. All one has to do to realize that all these spoken and printed words are not just so much hot air, is to take a short trip on the highway.

It's not too far in the past that a trip to one of the nearby neighboring towns involved becoming entangled with very little traffic . . . but look at it now! Just the trip from here to Garner requires you to get into a great deal of traffic . . . and it doesn't make much difference what time of the day or night you make the trip.

The chances of getting anything done in the near future to alleviate this situation are pretty slim. Sure, we know that they are going to widen the highways a little and lessen the chances of accidents from slipping off the paving or from side-swiping another vehicle, but we're still going to be stuck with the same two-lanes.

Two nice wide lanes gives plenty of room for everyone on the highway and with the application of a little common sense to driving habits, the rate of accidents could be cut considerably. Those two lanes, though, make it possible for some speed-happy, thoughtless driver to zig when he should have zagged and cause a serious smashup.

Those two lanes also make it possible for some 35 mph driver to pile up traffic behind him forcing everyone to drive at his idea of what is a proper speed. Probably some of those people behind him have some place to go and would like to get there. His low speed holds them back, and although, normally they may be good careful drivers, too long a time behind one of these slow pokes will cause them to get irked and take a chance in trying to get around . . . another accident . . . and caused almost directly by the driver who refused to drive up to a normal or reasonable speed.

There is a lot of talk about legislation in our state to regulate speed, but they only talk about regulating the maximum. We think that slow poke on the highway is just about as much of a danger as the 70 mph driver, and we think that if our legislature gets around to passing speed limit laws, they should also include a clause setting forth a minimum highway speed.

Of course, if all our highways were 4-lane affairs, the slow poke wouldn't make so much difference, but we can't see many Iowa 4-lane highways being constructed very soon.

To further add to the congestion on our highways, we read now that more and more families are becoming two-car families. This cannot help but mean more cars on the road. Already some 5,000,000 American families own more than one car, and the trend is toward an even greater number.

Shamrocks Win Two But Have Tougher Going Than Usual

The Klemme Shamrocks took two more wins in North Star Conference play the past week, but had more trouble than usual in getting the job done.

Friday night they journeyed to Dows and after trailing 22-21 at the half, came on to win 52-39. Tuesday night they were hosts to the Sheffield quintet and after a rugged battle finally won out 52-47.

These two victories give the Shamrocks an 8-0 record in conference play and leave them in first place. Ventura is now in second place, having lost only two conference games.

The game at Dows, Friday night was close until the end of the third quarter with the Shamrocks holding a slim 33-29 lead at that point. In the fourth quarter they outscored the Dows cagers 19-10 to finish with their 52-39 victory.

Tuesday night's game with Sheffield was hard-fought all way, and although the Shamrocks led by 14 points at one point in the fourth quarter, still the Claydiggers did not give up. In a two-minute scoring spree they rang up 10 points to close the gap to four points, but the Shamrocks were able to stave them off for the last 2½ minutes and go on to win 52-47.

Haefner led the scoring in the Dows game with 21 points, while Kramer had 18. In the Sheffield game, Brinkman came through with a good performance and turned in 21 points to lead the locals, while Haefner contributed 17.

The Little Shamrocks had their troubles at Dows and lost 38-29, but they were easy victors over the Sheffield reserves, 42-21.

Nuehring banged in 13 points at Dows while Gordon Johnson came through with 9. In the Sheffield game, Nuehring contributed 12 points, and Lenz 11.

Next game for the Shamrocks will be at Rockwell this Friday night, January 13th, when they try for their ninth win in conference play. Then next Wednesday night, they tangle with Corwith in the second game of the county tournament. Action in that one gets underway at 8:30.

One more game has been added to the schedule for the Shamrocks and the game should be a nament in February. They will play Northwood on the Northwood floor on Tuesday, February 14th. This game was added to the schedule to avoid too long a layoff between the last scheduled game and the sectional tournament.

Northwood has a good record for the year as do the Shamrocks and the game shold be a good one.

Meeting Postponed

Due to the fact that the Klemme Shamrocks will be playing in the county tournament at Garner next Wednesday evening, January 18th, The Klemme Lions will not hold their meeting on that night. They will meet instead on Wednesday evening, January 25th.

● RANDOM THOUGHTS

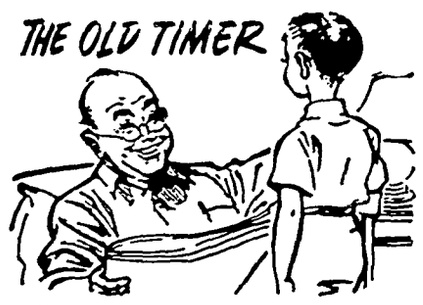
The Democrats and the Republicans both have huge highway plans in mind, we hope that between them they will be able to get something done. In the meantime, hang onto your hat, use your head, and when you drive, drive with care. The life you save may be worth it.

A guy by the name of Johnny Lockwood says, "She's the type of girl who makes men jump in rivers and climb mountains . . . a woman driver!"

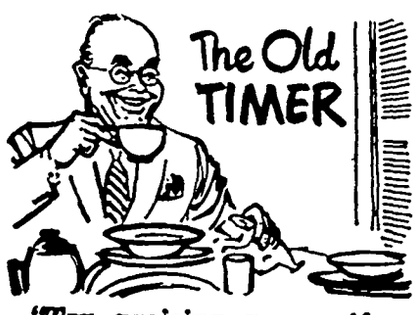
We would like to make a plea for help. Rather, we should say, we feel that we need to make the plea. It's a physical impossibility for us to know about all the newsworthy happenings in the community . . . unless someone tells us about them. Sure, we hear about a certain amount of the social get-togethers each week, but we imagine that the amount we learn about is only a small percentage of the total. We would like to ask you to please phone your news happenings to The Times, or drop a card or note in the mail.

We would like to print your news, but first we have to learn of it. Even though we try to keep one ear to the ground, we feel sure that we don't gather and publish near all the local happenings that could be in the paper We would appreciate your help.



"Some people get credit for being good, when they are only becoming old!"

D O Flynn says, "Maybe the kids could keep on the straight and narrow better if they got information from someone who's been over the route."



"Try praising your wife—even if it does frighten her at first!"

This year's Hancock County Tournament begins to take on the aspects of a "barn-burner". The Shamrocks have a fine record for the season so far, Woden has a mighty good team, Britt is capable of some surprising action, Garner cannot be counted cut, and Hayfield is undefeated.

We're not going out on any limbs on this tournament, but our sympathies are with the Shamrocks . . . and if we had any betting money, we would put that on the Shamrocks, too. We think their chances of being county champs this year are just as good as the next guy's . . . and maybe a little better.

Then there is the chap who says that you can't get rid of a bad temper by losing it.

It was probably the same fellow who said that if you want a place in the sun you must expect to get blistered.

Another chap . . . also wise . . . says that for every man who lives to be 85 there are seven women . . . but by that time it's too late.

Which reminds us that we just had another birthday . . . and where in the heck do the years go? Seems like just the other day that we got out of the army, and that was 10 years ago.

CAMPAIGNS AHEAD

Looking ahead to the June primaries and the November general elections this year, most political observers report that the Democrats will have a contest over nominations for U S senator and the governorship, whereas the Republicans are likely to see a contest only for the lieutenant-governor nomination.

Early prospects indicate that Sen Bourke Hickenlooper will be unopposed for the Republican nomination for U S senator, and Gov Leo A Hoegh isn't likely to draw opposition in his bid for a second term. Neither has announced formally for renomination, but both are expected candidates.

Two Republicans have already announced for lieutenant-governor, William H Nicholas of Mason City and Wendell Pendleton of Storm Lake.

Lawrence Plummer, a Northwood attorney, is the first announced candidate in either party, for governor. A Democrat, Plummer expects to oppose Clyde Herring for the nomination. Herring, who ran in the last campaign, hasn't yet announced his plans.

R M Evans of Arnolds Park, who will seek the Democrat's nomination for U S senate, is expected to have opposition.

Both parties may have contests for the attorney general spot on their respective tickets. The Crusading Atty Gen Dayton Countryman will likely seek renomination and reelection.

TAX REVENUE

Cigarette and beer revenue from tax collections and state permit fees totaled $3,220,888 in 1955, H E Evers, director of the division of the state tax commission reports. The 1955 receipts exceeded the 1954 collections by $53,938.

Total revenue from tax collections was $3,167,762; permit fees, $52,924; penalties, $202.

The December revenue both from cigarette and beer sources was below the 1954 receipts. Beer revenue receipts in 1954 were down $14,128 from the previous year, and cigarette revenue was $38,011 below 1953 collections.

NEW CAPITOL FLOOR

Main corridor in the Iowa state house will be renovated this summer under a $25,000 project authorized by the state legislature.

Bids will be let soon for retiling of the main floor of the Capitol building with a heavy clay tile, and a new foundation will be constructed under the new floor to offset buckling that occurs during seasonal weather changes.

The present tile floor, on the main corridor of the building, was placed some 75 years ago.

NEW EMPLOYEES

Several personnel changes have been made in the Iowa department of public safety by the commissioner, Clinton H Moyer. New staff appointments made in recent weeks by Moyer include:

Russell Brown, director of safety education division; Edward J Herron, state fire marshall, succeeding Zack Cook; Donovan H Day, director of dealer's license division; Robert Hullihan, as director of publicity in safety education division, succeeding Mrs Nelle Kenison. Hullihan has accepted the assignment for only a 90-day period until a fulltime appointment can be made.

ANOTHER TRY

B M Richardson, an auditor under the state auditor's department, has taken out nomination papers for the Iowa commerce commission. Richardson, a Republican, was a member of the commerce commission 20 years when he resigned in 1951 following an arrest and conviction on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Richardson, formerly of Cedar Rapids, was defeated in a try for the commerce commission nomination in 1954.

NAME LABOR HEAD

Joe Brill, state conservation officer, has been named to direct prison labor in Iowa's state parks.

He will coordinate prison labor projects and supervise the work. Brill was formerly at Lake Manawa.

Inmates of Fort Madison's state prison will soon begin to work in Goode and Shimek state parks. Inmates of the state reformatory at Anamosa worked on a project at the Marshalltown soldier's home last year, and have for several years worked in the Wapsipinican state park at Anamosa.

PATROL PLANES

Two airplanes will be bought by the state for law enforcement work with the Iowa highway patrol and in the department of public safety.

The state executive council has authorized purchase of the planes for which bids will be asked by the Iowa commissioner of public safety, Clinton Moyer.

Moyer said the aircraft will be used for highway patrol work and for assisting in other enforcement duties such as manhunts.

At least 14 other states use airplanes in patrol work, Moyer said, including: Delaware, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma, Virginia, Washington, Indiana, and Illinois.

RED BOOKS OUT

The Iowa Official Register, 1955-56 edition, commonly known as the "red book", is out. State Printer Sherman Needham has already begun distribution of 31,500 copies.

The book contains pictures and biographies of state officials, election information, data on state departments, and much other material on state government and its operation. The latest edition contains 504 pages, about 20 more than the previous edition two years ago.

New features this year are pictures of all Iowa governors and U S senators; the popular vote in Iowa for presidents, senators and governors since 1846, and maps showing variations and growth in congressional districts since 1847.

Needham says the books are issued free by the state printing department.

SPECIAL YIELDS

Iowa's 12 special taxes and liquor receipts yielded a record $214,718.026 in the 1955 calendar year, exceeding the 1954 receipts by $12,286,475.

A boost in the gasoline and sales tax collections, approved by the last legislature was a major factor in the increased collections last year. The gas tax increase was one-cent or a total of six and the sales tax was increased a half-cent, or a total of two-and-a-half cents on the dollar.

Six of the special taxes reached all-time highs during the year and they included motor vehicle registrations, insurance premiums, income, gasoline, sales and use taxes.

Most of these taxes indicate pretty well the business barometer in the state. The special taxes include, in addition to those mentioned, beer, cigarettes, inheritance, motor carrier, chain store, freight cars, and liquor sales.

AG REVENUE

Collections by the state department of agriculture in 1955 totaled $559,999, or $72,620 more than in the previous year. The income is from licenses and fees collected by the department.

Nearly all the increase was gained from license fees from the new egg law passed by the last legislature. Under the old law egg dealers paid a $1 fee, now they vary from $12.50 to $50.

All department income, except $193,669 in the commercial feed fund and $35,370 in restaurant inspection fees, reverts to the state general fund.

BOTH WILL WIN

Iowa's two state party chairmen have made "new year" statements. They have said just

DO IT RIGHT

How many times have you heard someone say, "I never seem to have time for writing letters"' If a count were made, people who don't have time to write would outnumber those who do by about ten to one.

It is easy to put off writing letters. Few things are easier! But what are the consequences?

Aunt Samantha decides you did not care for the Christmas gift she sent and probably should not have bothered. Your friend, Tim, figures his last letter must have bored you stiff. Grandmother sighs and thinks that young people have so many interests that they don't care much for old folks.

When you next see any of the three again, you look guilty and stammer out the lame excuse, "I haven't had time to write." The other person looks sympathetic and changes the subject.

On the other hand, the good letter writer reaps his reward. He has made it easy for friends and relatives to understand him. They know they aren't forgotten—he doesn't have to apologize or try to make amends. The time he found for letters was time well spent, and he knows it.

If you still have "thank you" letters to write for Christmas gifts, delay no more. By writing now, you can skip excuses and your thanks will sound sincere.

Cackles from the Coop

The Hancock County Vocal Music Festival will be held at Crystal Lake on the 13th of January. As yet, music and a director have not been selected, but we will keep you posted on developments.

After vacation of two weeks, you can tell who has practiced. Whether this is good or bad is questionable, depending upon whether you practiced or not, but it is an irrevocable fact.

If some of the band members start going around looking like they had lost their best friend, don't be too alarmed, they merely have been demoted. Mr Whitford is going to start giving tests shortly, and he says that there aren't going to be as many people getting as good scores as in the past, so look out.

Jokes

Priscilla: "My famliy can trace its ancestry back to William the Conqueror".

Bob: "I suppose you'll be telling me next your ancestors were in the ark with Noah."

Priscilla: "Certainly not. They had a boat of their own."

THAT'S A HELP

Advice in a folder put out by a maker of household appliances:

"Make sure your kitchen range is level. If not, foods cooked in the oven will not burn as evenly as they should."

OLD HOMESTEAD

First G I (sightseeing in Germany): They tell me this castle has stood for 4,000 years. Not one stone has been touched, nothing altered, nothing repaired.

Second G I: "They must have the same landlord we've got at home."

YOU'LL BE SORRY

When it was rumored that Roy Rogers was going to sell Trigger, he received thousands of letters of protest. Among them was this one from a seven year old boy:

"I have always played cowboy and I have always played you. But if you sell Trigger, I'll play Gene Autry."

Misfortune spins her spiderweb
For your entanglement in

Remember, one is due in

Its ten to one some foolish japer
Will maim you on the first of

Beware the mild, deceptive day!
You have a hint of that in

Hayfever time is coming soon;
You'll have a hint of that in

No saving breeze will gently cool
The hot humidity of

Though one may taste the tough quahaug,
No oysters in the month of

Senior Class News

After finishing the Hunter practice set in bookkeeping, we had a test over all the practice set. Now we are on the chapter about the combined journal and the petty cash book. The combiner journal takes the place of the five special journals. The petty cash book is a memorandum book for keeping record of payments from a small fund that is kept on hand to provide the money needed for making payments for which it is not desirable to write checks.

In American history we are now on the chapter on the reconstruction of the South. There were may advantages and disadvantages gained though the war. The North gained almost all the advantages and the South gained almost all the disadvantages. Both the South and North lost many men, but the economy of the North increased and the economy of the South decreased.

In sociology we are on the last part in our book. The rest of the book has to deal with new goals for our democratic society. The first chapter in the third part deals with good health. In class we have been discussing the many different types of diseases.

The advanced algebra class has been studying negative exponents and radicals, in other words, roots.

In chemistry we have discovered that the U S government has donated some time in the dim past, 100 cans of fuel for heating army field rations, to K H S. As yet we have not discovered a use for them, but give us time and we will (we hope). In the meantime all suggestions will be appreciated.

Gossip Around KHS

Does anyone know who Joyce T and Rosalie were with on New Years Eve?

I wonder if Gary is trying to go with Joyce T. New Years Eve we saw them in Mason City with another couple, who were Rosalie and Val, which was another surprise to us.

I guess Rosalie was really rather surprised Sunday night when she answered the phone and Merle M asked her to go to the show.

I wonder if Anita K is still going with Roger from Alexander? We don't hear much about them anymore.

It looks like Gracka is going to go with Lee again. It seems that he is around almost every noon to give her a ride home and back again. I wonder what happened to the other fellows? How about it, Gracka?

Avery Sunbeams Met

The Avery Sunbeams held a Christmas party at the home of Dorothy Ostendorf. The president, Darlene Ostendorf, conducted the meeting.

We girls had lots of fun with the color chart Mrs Ostendorf brought from the Extension Office. We all used the colors and made up three rooms we would like to have in our homes. After some discussion, we learned colors can beautify our homes if used correctly.

We had a gift drawing after which we sang our songs for this year. Lunch was served by Dorothy.

A $65,000 blaze destroyed the Bellevue Legion building, following one of the worst fires in Bellevue's history.

Liberty 4-H Clubs Hold Christmas Party

The community building in Liberty Township was the center of Christmas activities as the Liberty Busy Bees and Liberty Go Getters entertained the 4-H members and families to a Christmas party and games.

Accordion and cornet music was played by Cora Stites and Mr Frank and Donald Hrubes. Mrs Richard Farquhar led the group singing of Christmas carols. Winola Zwald accompanied on the piano. Allan Jass, Eugene Zwald, John Farquhar and Gordon Pringnitz were in charge of recreation with the assistance of Walbert Mayland and Lloyd Pringnitz, their leaders. The exchange of gifts of both clubs were handed out.

The Liberty girls had a meeting before the party was over as they had a few things to be discussed.

The Liberty girls served the refreshments at the close of the party.

The regular meeting of the Liberty Go Getters was held at Donald Kopacek's, January 2nd.

The club decided on fifty cent dues plus a chili supper for our dads at our next meeting.

A discussion on "Keeping Physically Fit" was given by Maynard Weisbrod. Some time was also spent on discussing ways in which the club could earn money for their treasury. After the meeting adjourned, we filled out our entry sheets for our projects.

The big laugh, the big slap on the back, the bone-crushing handshake—that was Jay. Big, everything about him, big, bluff and, sometimes, a little brutal when he was carried away with his own strength.

But Jay was liked, for the most part. People knew there was a wild sort of kindness in that giant frame, an intense desire to be a well-loved man, and they responded to it.

Jay was a traveling salesman. The sight of him shoving through a door with his sample cases, the sound of his booming voice in the lobby, were familiar to a dozen clerks in small hotels in Iowa towns.

The clerk in a northeast Iowa hotel was the last to talk to Jay. "That night was the first time I ever saw him look tired," the clerk remembers. "He was even a little nervous and Jay was never a jumpy sort. Told me he'd had a hard day and still had 200 miles to drive."

"I tried to get him to stay over. Not just for business. He needed a rest."

A motorist saw another part of the story. "I followed his business coupe for about 10 miles. Twice it went off the road and a couple of times clear to the wrong side. I was afraid to pass because I thought he was drunk. I saw his head keep falling forward."

Twenty minutes later a highway patrolman looked at Jay and said: "A big man like that's hard to get out of a wreck. But I guess there's no hurry now." Fatigue is a quiet killer.

(No grinding, No mixing)

Just put Bolson's 26% Grain Balancer in ⅓ of your feeder space, put whole oats in the remaining ⅔; then, give 8 lbs. of shelled corn per 100 birds or 15 lbs. of corn on the cob. In the evening, clean water, use lights if you have them, a 13 or 14 hour day is better than an all-night light. Your pullets should eat about 25% Grain Balancer and 75% whole grain. A good way to find out who makes the most palatable grain balancer is to put Bolson's in ½ of your feeder space and another balancer in the other ½, let the pullets decide—you be the judge. Oh, by the way, "don't forget hard grit and oyster shells". Bolson's is not the cheapest 26% on the market but Bolson's says, "It will produce the cheapest eggs". All it takes is a comparison test. Be sure your pullets have 4 inches of feeder space per pullet. Buy Bolson's from

Farmers Urged To File ACP Requests

Requests may still be filed at the Hancock County ASC office in Garner for government cost-sharing on authorized soil and water conservation practices to be carried out in 1956 under the program commonly known as ACP. The program is administered on the local level by the county and community ASC committeemen.

In reviewing ACP plans for 1956, Chairman Jesse Smith of the county ASC committee declared that this is an ideal time of the year for owners and operators to give serious thouhgt to their individual farm conservation problems and to make up their minds as to what they intend to do about them.

He especially urged farmers to study their conservation needs in relation to practices for which the government offers to share the cost through ACP. Complete information on practices offered in Hancock County may be obtained at the County ASC office or from any county or community committeeman, he said.

Hancock County has been allotted $77,600.00 in ACP funds for 1956 and there is a possibility of additional funds being granted if needed to meet acceptable farmers' requests for participation in the program.

Quite a few requests were filed during the advance sign-up conducted at township or neighborhood meetings in December, Chairman Smith reported, but funds are still available to handle more requests. He stated that a number of farmers delayed filing requests at the sign-up meetings because of their desire "to wait until after the first of the year" and they should now be in position to file. He urged them to do so at once so that the county ASC committee can review the requests at an early date.

Chairman Smith pointed out, however, that under present ACP rules farmers have the privilege of filing cost-sharing reqhests at any time during the year, but he emphasized that early filing has definite advantages.

For one thing, the farmer who files an acceptable request early in the year, while funds are ample can expect favorable and prompt consideration. In the past, cost-sharing was not paid if the proposed practice was started before a request was formally approved. Under a new rule, cost-sharing will apply even if the work is done before the formal approval is given, providing a request is filed before the work is started. This means that the farmer filing an early request of an acceptable nature can go ahead with his practice with resonable assurance of cost-sharing being granted. Of courses, if the practice is one calling for technical services, requirement must be met before any work is started.

Still another advantage of early filing is that it helps the county ASC committee make better plans for the year such as arranging for necessary technical services and needed machinery.

Chairman Smith called attention to the rapidly growing use of pooling agreements in Iowa the past two years and urged Hancock County farmers to study their needs of this type of ACP service. Under a pooling agreement, two or more farmers having a common conservation problem apply for cost-sharing on authorized practices required to help correct the situation.

Pointing out that several cost-sharing practices offered in Hancock County call for soil test, the ASC chairman emphasized that such tests should be made as soon as possible. He said that farmers comtemplating such practices may obtain complete information on soil testing from the county ASC office.

what they would be expected to say. Hear this:

"Democratic chances are the best they have been in Iowa since the 1930's. We expect to elect a president, a U- S senator and capture the statehouse," says Jake More, state Democratic party chairman.

"President Eisenhower will lead the party to a sweeping victory. The margin this year will be even bigger than in 1952." That's the report from GOP state chairman, Don Pierson.

HOW TO PAY

The Iowa tax commission has a reminder for Iowans who pay their state income tax on the installment plan, or half-payment each six months.

The last legislature changed the rules. This year Iowans can't split their income tax payments unless the total owed the state is $50 or more. Under previous law the total needed only exceed $10.

About 47,000 Iowans divide their state payments.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

The 1956 Hancock County Boys Basketball Tournament is now history and the Shamrocks brought home the championship trophy to add to the ever-growing number of awards the school has won. The trophy case in the downstairs hall of the high school building is getting to be quite an impressive sight, and a look at some of the dates inscribed on the various pieces will bring back memories of other good Shamrock teams, and call to mind some of the battles in which they were involved.

Take some doing, though, to call up a game that was much more of a thriller than the one between the Shamrocks and Britt in the semi-finals Friday evening. The Shamrocks led most of the way only to have Britt close the gap in the closing minutes of the game. However, the locals were not to be denied and went on to win 61-57. Coach John Holman of Britt said that his team played their best game of the year in losing to the Shamrocks.

Pandemonium reigned on the floor at the Memorial Building in Garner after the Shamrocks had defeated Garner in the finals and had been presented with the championship trophy. Everyone who had been supporting the team broke onto the floor trying to congratulate both the members of the squad and Coach "Bill" Westberg.

Not only were the members of the squad receiving congratulations from everyone, but a group of the high school girls were rewarding the happy victors with some of the most enthusiastic hugs. Plenty of school spirit!

We went down into the locker room to take the picture of the squad which is printed on this page, and it was not until several people had looked at the picture that it was discovered that Warren "Butch" Terhufen had already taken one shoe off in preparation for his well-earned shower. Tain't everybody get's their picture published minus a shoe, "Butch".

After the squad members had their showers, they were taken to Costa's at Mason City for a big feed. Accompanying faculty members, were Supt E F Kirkpatrick, Coach and Mrs "Bill" Westberg, Assistant Coach and Mrs Francis Johnson, and Principal and Mrs R C Andreae. Coach Westberg's mother from Ames, who came up to see the finals, also accompanied the group.

Now the Shamrocks and their fans can look forward to the sectional tournament which will be held at Mason City, February 20-25. We hope they do as well there as they did in the County Tournament.

These 15 and 20 degree below zero mornings we have been having are not the best aid to starting cars that are out all night. The push cars do a rushing business. The fuel oil men, coal dealers and the gas company are doing alright, too. The old furnace runs just about constantly. Oh well, we're glad somebody makes out with the cold weather. Personally, we can't see where we gain a thing by it. Nothin' but an expense.

Shamrocks are Hancock County Champs for '56

Down Garner 58-40 In Finals Saturday

The Klemme Shamrocks are the 1956 Hancock County basketball champs. They earned the title by downing Corwith, Britt and Garner in last weeks County Tournament.

In their first game of the tournament, they downed Corwith 61-38 with reserves handling most of the fourth quarter. Kramer led the Shamrocks with 20 points, while Haefner had 18, and Brinkman 11. Kraft gathered 14 points for the losers.

Their second game was much closer and had Shamrock fans with their hearts in their mouths before it was over. The Britt Eagles, who had been swamped 60-32 earlier in the year by the Shamrocks, rose up and made the locals really work before they could win 61-58.

Nielson of Britt was high scorer for the game with 26 points, while his team mate Schutzer had 15. Kramer and Haefner each had 19 for the Shamrocks, Brinkman had 13, Terhufen 8, and Larson 2. Larson's 2 points came on a tie-breaking field goal in the final seconds of the game.

Saturday night's championship game was a bit ragged with Garner showing the effects of two tough games in a row and Klemme showing the effects of their battle with Britt the night before. Garner had to come from behind in both their previous games. They downed Woden 60-52 in the first round on Thursday, and then downed Hayfield 68-63 in the semi-finals.

Even though the game was a little on the ragged order, the Shamrocks were not long in taking command and led 27-12 at the half. They led 40-28 at the end of the third period and went on to win 58-40, and become the 1956 champions.

Kramer hit for 18 points in the championship game, while Haefner had 15, Larson 10, Terhufen 8, and Brinkman 7. Baskerville led the losers with 10.

Hayfield took the measure of Britt in the consolation game 69-55. In the first round of the tournament they downed Kanawha 66-39. Britt beat Crystal Lake in first round play 61-54.

Riehm Announces For Second Term

Was Active in First Term as Representative

Curtis G Riehm, who has served one term as State Representative from Hancock County, has announced that he will be a candidate for a second term in the office on the Republican ticket in the June primaries.

Riehm, who is 41 years old, is married and has three children. He was born and raised on a farm in Hancock County, attended country scool, Britt and Garner High Schools, attended the University of Iowa six years, and is a World War II army veteran with four years of service, after which he was in the Reserve for seven years. He was County Attorney for Hancock County from 1947 to 1951.

During his first term as State Representative, Riehm sponsored and secured the passage of many school bills correcting school laws, one of which makes the name "Community School District" a legal name to be used by reorganized districts. He rewrote the bill on Soldier's Relief in the counties by amendments and when it passed it had the approval of the Taxpayers Association and all the legislative representatives of the various veterans organizations. He also rewrote the absentee voting law by amendment and now the Civil Service and religious workers serving with our armed forces overseas can vote.

Riehm was active in all farm legislation, including the "Agricultural Land Tax Bill", and did not hesitate to speak out either for or against any Bill that came before the House. He was also one of the two members of the House of Representatives to act as an official observer at the atom bomb test near Las Vegas, Nevada.

At the close of the session he was a member of the important steering committee which determines what bills the House will consider.

Riehm states, "I have always felt that economy should not only be practiced by the family, but by all taxing autorities, the Town, the County, and the State, and I followed this principle in debating and voting in the House of Representatives.

"I would consider it an honor and a privilege to be your elected State Representative for a second term and would try to be worthy of your trust and confidence."

Senior Class News

We are discussing the different types of problems relating to purchases and sales in bookkeeping. Such things as sales returns to purchase returns are only a few things that we have to contend with. In our workbocks we are working on combined journals.

We are studying in English the difference between sentences and sentence fragments and how to recognize them. We are also studying the different kinds of sentences which are declarative, interrogative, imperative and exclamatory.

The speech class, made up of twenty-one juniors and seniors, have been having some fun listening to their own voices. In order to learn the meanings of various tones used throughout a speech course; we have listened to our own voice raise and lower in pitch, emphasizing various words in a sentence, and speeding up and slowing down for clearer understanding. Our class room may be renamed the "Chicken Coop" as we are a noisy group!

The business law class, which consists of twenty juniors and seniors, has been discussing contracts and how contracts are made up.

In American history class we are studying the reasons for the rise of industry after the Civil War. We have also been discussing in class the different kinds of monopolies and cooperations and what they meant to the rise of industry.

In typing we are still working on our office practice sets. We have also been typing library cards for Mrs Andreae and typing on the annual.

In geometry we are constructing segments, bisecting segments and drawing different types of figures.

In chemistry we are studying the quantitive aspects of chemical compounds and how to figure them.

Gossip Around KHS

What's this we hear about Ginger K wanting to go with a couple of senior boys? Are their names Don K and Denny H, Ginger?

Marcia tell us, quick! When are you going to hire a secretary to answer all your letters for you? If she's a good one, give us her name.

What kind of a party did you have down at Belmond Saturday night, Maynard?

We heard that Larry W and Jeanne were together again Saturday night.

I wonder who Roger B took home after the ballgame Tuesday night? It wasn't Dorothy W, was it? (We thought she was going steady.)

Whose ring did Mart B come to school with Wednesday morning? It couldn't have been a result of Tuesday night, could it?

I think Eva T had better be a little careful or she is going to be getting into trouble with the Belmond girls. It is going around that she was with Dick G who is going steady with a girl from Belmond.

It looks as though Myrna B has been making quite a practice of sitting with Jerry L on the bus after the games. How about this Myrna?

Cackles from the Coop

Today (January 18) the band members tried on uniforms. It's a good thing we did or John Abele would be playing the bass horn in the spring concert with at least four inches of bare leg between sock top and pants cuff. Every time we try on uniforms, we wonder how the uniform committee manages to keep a uniform that fits reasonably well on everyone and still retain their sanity, but they do, and we certainly appreciate it.

This week we would like to have you meet the trombone quartet.

A trombone quartet from our school has received a one rating at contest every year since Mr Whitford has been here, and we think that this group can keep up the good record.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

Experts on love will say that a man is easily caught on the rebound. Experts on highway safety will say that a man is easily killed on the rebound from one mistake.

An accident illustrating this began one night recently on an Iowa highway when a slow-driving drunk nosed his car into a ditch, got out and passed out.

A few minutes later another driver approached from the opposite direction and saw the ditched vehicle. He stopped his car squarely on the highway and ran to give help.

In his excitement, the "helpful" driver mistook the dozing drunk for an accident victim suffering internal injuries. He climbed a fence and ran across a field to the lights of a farm house where he told the farmer his story and asked him to call an ambulance.

Then, halfway back across the dark field, the driver must have remembered his car sitting there on the highway. In any case, study of his footprints in the snow next day showed that he began to run.

He was going to be just in time.

For out of that night was coming another car at terrific speed; speed well beyond the safety range of headlights. Its driver saw the ditched car so abruptly, so suddenly, that he swerved to the left instinctively.

He side-swiped the standing car, rebounded across the highway and smashed down the fence and the "helpful" driver who had just arrived back on the scene.

When the ambulance arrived, it took back one sobering drunk and one dazed driver and one dead driver—the "helpful" one, killed on the rebound of three deadly mistakes on the highway.

EXPLANATION

Everyone here in Klemme should be proud of the basketball team after last week's tournament.

We are indeed sorry that we won't be able to be in the county tournament next year.

Many people have asked why we are dropping the county tourney

It is not of our own that we have arrived at this decision. We are forced by circumstances. All schools are limited by state, county and conference rules and we can't always do what we want to.

The North Star Conference adopted a rule requiring all teams to participate in the North Star tournament and we are not allowed to enter more than one tournament in addition to the state series.

All schools are limited to 18 games next year and are reducing the number of teams they will play. If we were not in the North Star Conference we would have trouble getting a full schedule.

So we have made the choice and are sorry it has to be thus.

Biggest Deer of '55 Killed Near McGregor

The largest known deer killed during the 1955 Iowa deer season was recently reported by Tom Berkley, Area Game Manager of the State Conservation Commission.

Joseph Martin, a Maquoketa auto dealer, killed the huge buck on December 4 near McGregor in northeastern Iowa.

According to Berkley the buck weighed 265 pounds field dressed, and was weighed in a Maquoketa locker plant in the presence of reliable witnesses.

By a mathematical formula the live weight of the deer was estimated at over 330 pounds.

It is not uncommon for Iowa whitetailed deer to weigh well over 200 pounds, but animals going over 300 pounds are quite rare. In 1952 a conservation officer reported a buck deer that weighed 300 pounds field dressed! There have been a few records of whitetails from northern states that wighed 400 pounds, but such reports are questioned by many scientists.

Community Contributing Sectional Broadcast Fund

E A Gerardi and a few other Klemme sports fans got their heads together and are giving all fans in the community a chance to show how much they are backing the Shamrocks. "Ernie" is taking contributions toward a fund to broadcast at least one of the Shamrock sectional tournament games. As of Tuesday evening he had $38 toward the $125 necessary to carry one game.

The sectional will begin February 20th at Mason City with Swaledale and Rudd playing the first game at 6:30 Monday evening, and Rockwell and Rockfalls tangling at 8:00.

The lower bracket begins play on Tuesday, the 21st, with Plymouth and Orchard playing the first game at 7:00 in the evening and Mitchell and Klemme meet-meeting at 8:30.

Semi-final games will be on Thursday, February 23rd, and the finals will be played on Saturday evening, Febrtary 25th.

It is hoped of course, that the Shamrocks will be in the finals in the sectional, and local merchants will probably see that the other two games are carried on the air.

Those who had contributed to the broadcast fund by Tuesday evening were Roy Jacobs, Layton Sonerholm, "Coonie" and Grace Quandt, Mayor Cook, Herman Schmidt, Byrnes Lemke, M R Hall, Albert Eichen, Graydon Back, Herbert Pearson, "Stub" Lewis, Joe Burgess, A. Friend, Glen Terhufen, "Doc" Baker, Howard Gannon, Gracka and Anita Gerardi,, Marie Blank, Wesley "Pat" Patterson.

Shamrocks Suffer First Conference Loss 78-70

The Klemme Shamrocks, fresh from winning the Hancock County Tournament at Garner, tangled with the Fertile Indians, Tuesday evening on the local floor and got scalped. The Fertile Club was definitely up for the contest and went home with a 78-70 win, handing the Shamrocks their first defeat in conference play and their second of the season. They lost an eight-point decision to Luverne earlier in the season.

During the first half, the Shamrocks played their usual good brand of ball and held a 44-33 lead at the intermission. However, the story was different in the second half. Fertile switched their tactics, and before the Shamrocks knew what had hit them, the Indians had rack-up 27 points in eight minutes while allowing the Shamrocks only eight. This left the locals down eight points at the end of the third period, 60-52.

The Shamrocks tried hard to come back in the last period and although they managed to score even with the Indians for the period, each team getting 18 points, they were unable to get back up enough to overcome the lead piled up in the third quarter.

Both teams were hot in the shooting department for the game. Fertile shot 54% and the Shamrocks shot 52%.

Haefner led the Shamrocks scoring with 27 points, while Kramer had 23. Brinkman hit for 10, Larson for 6, and Terhufen fo 4. Rodberg was the big gun for Fertile with 27.

The Little Shamrocks were outclassed by the Fertile reserves 48-29. Lenz and Nuehring led the scoring for the locals with 10 and 8 points, respectively.

The loss is the only one for the Shamrocks in North Star Conference play, but since all other teams have lost at least three times, they still lead the conference. Friday night they journey to Franklin for a conference game, and then Tuesday, Ventura is here for the last conference game of the season. A win in either of these contests will give the Shamrocks undisputed first place.

Ogg to Discuss Value of World Trade at Garner

Wallace Ogg, Iowa State College Extension Specialist will discuss the "Value of World Trades" (Foreign markets) to the Iowa farmer at a county wide meeting Monday night, January 30th, at the Garner High School at 8:00 p. m. This is a very important subject at the present time. Low prices on farm products point up this type of discussion. Mr Ogg will touch on some of the key things involved in the present price squeeze situation and how some of it might be relieved by an increase in World Trade. Both men and women and invited to attend this county wide diiscussion.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

We imagine that Gordon Beier will have a soft spot in his heart for Carl Young, Garner mail carrier. Gordon had passed out this morning (Wednesday) from fumes from a plugged chimney at the service station where he works in Garner, and Carl found him when he stopped to deliver mail. Gordon was revived and then taken to the Belmond Community Hospital where oxygen was administered. He was to come home Thursday morning.

Good thing that mail carrier came along when he did.

THE OLD TIMER

"It's a wise man who won't let yesterday use up too much of his today."

Klemme Shamrock boosters should be proud of their basketball team, and apparently they are. By this morning (Wednesday) they had kicked in $123 toward broadcasting Shamrock games in the sectional tournament at Mason City, and the fund continues to grow. It costs a hundred dollars per game to broadcast from Mason City which is $25 cheaper than broadcasting from Garner. Reason: there is no wire charge when the game takes place in Mason City. We are hoping that the Shamrocks will be in three games at the sectional.

When all contributions for the broadcasts are in, The Times will publish the names of all the contributors.

Lots of snow! We must have 8 or 10 inches of the stuff on the ground. We've been lucky, though. So far, we haven't had any high winds, so roads have stayed in pretty decent shape.

Last Friday night brought on about the worst driving conditions of the winter. Fog gave way to rain, and then the weather got just cold enough to freeze. Put a nice glaze on the highways. Number 69 wasn't too bad, though, as salting crews were out, and there was enough traffic to keep it pretty well roughed up.

We were one of those who drove to Ames to appear on the program "Churches of Iowa" over WOI TV, and we don't much enjoy driving in such conditions. As we said before, Highway 69 wasn't too bad, but it was rather a strain, for you never knew whether the paving was slick or whether it just looked to be.

Mail service into Klemme is about back to normal now, but there were several days the last half of last week when it was "lousy". The "Hypo" usually does pretty well when road conditions are good, but boy do they get behind when the weather gets a little nasty.

Guess it wouldn't be right to blame the driver. We wouldn't care much about driving at a normal speed on bad roads, either.

Plan Fall Wedding

Miss Lois Ann Jacobs, a student at Iowa State College, is engaged to Marvin Schmidt according to an announcement by her mother. The bride elect is the daughter of Mrs Edwin F Jacobs of Clear Lake, Iowa and the late Mr Jacobs. Mr Schmidt attended Iowa State College and is now farming. He is the son of Mr and Mrs Fred W Schmidt of Garner, Iowa.

The couple is planning a fall wedding.

Engagement Announced

Mr and Mrs Orvel Bridges announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Sondra, to David L Pals, son of Mr and Mrs Joe Pals of Belmond.

Miss Bridges is employed at the First National Bank in Mason City and Mr Pals is serving in the Air Force and is now stationed in Syracuse, New York.

Gordon Beier Has Narrow Escape

Gordon Beier, son of Mr and Mrs Elmer Beier, works at the Pappas service station in Garner, and this morning (Wednesday) had a very narrow escape from death.

Gordon had gone to work at the station and was alone in the building. When Carl Young, Garner mail carrier stopped at the station, he found Gordon lying on the floor unconscious. Carl summoned help and Gordon was taken to a doctor's office and revived. He was then taken to the Belmond Community Hospital and oxygen was administered. He was to return to his home Thursday.

A blocked chimney had filled the station with fumes and Gordon was nearly asphyxiated.

Shamrocks Take Last Two Conference Games; Finish Season On Top

Winding up the basketball season as far as North Star Conference play is concerned, the Klemme Shamrocks downed Franklin 86-42 and Vestura 75-57. The two victories leave the Shamrocks at the top of the heap in the conference with only one loss and give them the championship for the season.

Friday night the Shamrocks were at Franklin where they took early command of the game and led at the half 40-18. The outcome of the game was never in doubt, and Coach Westberg made use of a number of reserves in the last period.

Haefner anl Kramer led the scoring for the Shamrocks with 28 and 26 points, respectively, while Sprau accounted for 10 for the losers.

Tueday night the Shamrocks were host to Ventura and in a rather rough game came out on the long end of a 75-57 score. They led 32-25 at the half and 57-40 at the end of the third period. Attesting to the roughness of the game was the fact that 46 fouls were called, 27 on Ventura and 19 on the Shamrocks.

Haefner and Kramer again led the scoring with 24 points each, while Terhufen had a good night with 13. Monson banged in 14 points for the losers, while Hollatz accounted for 11.

The Little Shamrocks had a tough time with the Ventura reserves but managed to eke out a 2-point victory. Nuehring led the way for the local reserves with 13 points, while Greimann looked best for Ventura with 14.

Next action for the Shamrocks will come on Friday, February 10, when Thompson comes here. Then on Saturday, February 12, they journey to Ringsted for a game with that unbeaten quintet. Ringsted has lost only one game in two years and that one was an upset in last year' sectional tourney. They boost two regulars who are 6' 3" and their whole squad will average right at 6'. Their offensive average for the year is 69.2 and their defensive average is 40.7.

The gym at Ringsted is quite similar to Garner's both playing floor and seating.

On the same evening that the Shamrocks go to Ringsted, the Ringsted and Rodman girls are to play, with the game getting underway at 7 o'clock. Both of these teams are better than average, and should play an interesting game.

Roy Schaefer Injured While Cutting Trees

Roy Schaefer was seriously injured Tuesday afternoon when he was struck in the face by the limb of a tree which he was trimming. He received fractures of the nose, upper jaw, left cheek bone, and skull, and a bad cut. It was first thought that there might be damage to one of his eyes, but examination shows that such is not the case.

Roy and Jeff Bell were working with trees on the Gordon Schubert farm when the accident happened. Two trees had been felled and the one had fallen across the upper part of the other. The top tree had been trimmed and the trunk was still lying across the other when Roy cut about a three inch branch with his chain saw. This branch was apparently supporting much of the weight of the trimmed trunk, and when it was severed the weight of the trunk caused it to fly up with a tremendous force.

Neither Jeff or Gordon were at the scene when the accident happened, but saw Roy falling over backwards. They picked him up and brought him to the office of Dr Dulmes, who called an ambulance and had him taken to Mercy Hospital in Mason City.

According to Roy's son, Don, he had a fairly good night, Tuesday, and seemed to be getting along pretty well this morning (Wednesday).

Klemme Cooperative Gets Felco Dividend

The Klemme Cooperative Grain Company this week received $1,752.20 as a savings dividend from the Farmers Elevator Service Company, headquarters cooperative of Felco feeds, seeds and many other lines of farm supplies. The dividend, which was one-half of the total 1951 savings, was accepted by M G Lemke for the farmer owners of the local cooperative. Presenting the check is Floyd Kreger of the Farmers Elevator Service Company.

The savings dividends, earned by buying cooperatively, were distributed during a convention held in Des Moines, January 23, 24 and 25. The Farmers Elevator Service Company, with headquarters in Fort Dodge, paid out more than $129,000 in cash savings dividends.

March of Dimes Fund Drive to Start Monday

According to word from Mrs David Schwichtenberg, the local chairman of the March of Dimes Fund Drive, the drive will get underway here on Monday, February 6, and will continue for two weeks.

There will be a house-to-house solicitation made and it is hoped that local residents will open their pocketbooks and join in the fight to help tens of thousands of polio victims who for years must struggle to walk again . . . and the many more who will be stricken before our homes are freed from the threat of epidemic . . . to discover new and better methods of overcoming disabilities and rebuilding lives broken by polio's ravages . . . to pursue March of Dimes research, which developed the Salk Vaccine, until total protection is a reality and the shadow of crippling polio is lifted from all our children . . . to continue the work of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis, that the hopes expressed by these voluntary contributions may be realized and our children may know a healthier, happier land.

Local workers are aiding in attaining the goals set forth above and Mrs Schwichtenberg says, "You can help the fight immensely by your generous contributions."

County Officers to Run

County Recorder Edith Sonquist and County Clerk Doris Young began circulating nomination papers for re-election to their respective offices and will be candidates on the Republican ticket at the June primary. This brings to four the present incumbents who will seek re-election. Coronor Kenneth F Boughton and County Treasurer Roy L McMillin, began circulating nomination papers earlier in the week.

In 1801 there were about 200 newspapers in the United States; in 1833 about 1,200.

DEMO STATE PARLEY

Now that the Iowa Democrats have set their presidential state convention dates, the big conventions for both major parties this year are set.

The Democratic state central committee has listed June 1 as the date for the party presidential conclave. The precinct caucuses will be March 26 and the county conventions April 6.

The Republican state central committee had previously set its Iowa presidential convention for April 6. The party's regular state convention will be July 20, and the judicial convention July 27.

The Democratic regular state convention will be July 31. Adoption of the state platform and election of state central committee members will be main items of business at this convention. The presidential conventions select delegates to the national party presidential conventions where the candidates for president are selected.

The Democratic national convention will start August 13 in Chicago, the Republicans will start August 20 in San Francisco.

IOWANS SERVE

Two men from Burlington are active in the Stevenson-for-president campaign. Ray Baxter of Burlington is state chairman of that organization which desires the Democratic nomination for president for Adlai Stevenson. Don Pryor formerly of Burlington and a graduate of the University of Iowa, is the new public relations director of the national Stevenson-for-president committee.

LIST GROWS

The list of "possibles" for the job of Iowa national committeeman in the Republican party continues to grow. Robert Goodwin, Des Moines banker, who has served since 1952 has announced he will retire as national committeeman in April.

Latest name added to the list of likely candidates as successor is that of Warren Rees, Anamosa attorney, and until a year ago, second district GOP committeeman. James Schramm of Burlington, former state party chairman, reported to be a candidate, said he is not interested.

Others being mentioned seriously as Goodwin's successor include State Chairman Don Pierson, Humboldt; Charles Wittenmeyer; Davenport; Allen Whitfield, Des Moines; Roscoe Jones, Atlantic; and John Loughlin, Cherokee. All are on the central committee.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

About 200 delegates will be in Des Moines this weekend attending the national executive committee meeting of the Young Republican Federation. Registrations are expected from 37 states, Alaska, Hawaii and Cuba.

Leonard Hall, national chairman of the Republican party, is to address the conference which is under the direction of Charles K McWhorter of New York, national YR chairman, and Joyce I Bovik of Denver, co-chairman.

Dan Gaynor of Sioux City is national committeeman of the Young Republicans, and Mrs Wylie King of Hancock is national committeewoman. Keith Richardson of Jefferson is state chairmann.

ON PROGRAM

Mrs Enid Robinson of Hampton, chairman of a delegation of Iowa Republicans who will attend a national conference for GOP women, will be one of the speakers at the parley.

The Hampton woman, state GOP vice-chairman, will discuss Iowa's part in the recent national poll to sample voters opinions. The poll, sponsored by the Republican women's group, provided the party's national committee with a cross-section of the opinion of the voters in both political parties.

The conference is slated for March 5-6-7 in Washington.

PROTEST TAX

Iowa railroad workers are protesting the change in the state's income tax law which now provides that payments under the railway retirement fund no longer are deductible.

"The railroad working man is being hard hit," W H Jeffries, West Des Moines spokesman for a group of objectors told the state tax commission.

He said a railroad workers salary of $4,000 a year will have to pay about $10 or more state income tax as a result of the change. He said other groups may be similiarly hard hit by the change in law.

Tax officials said they could do nothing about the law, that it was a legislative act.

McLAIN GETS POST

Marvin McLain, who farmed near Brooklyn, Iowa, has been nominated as assistant secretary of agriculture in charge of price supports and other farm aid programs.

Appointment to the $15,000 a year job still awaits final approval which is expected. Since August 1953 McLain has been head of the grain branch of the commodity stabilization service. Secretary Benson made the nomination of the Iowan.

Cackles from the Coop

Our band has been invited by the North Iowa Bandmaster's Association to play at their meeting on Saturday, March 24th at Mason City. This association is made up of all the band directors is this part of the state, and they picked the best band in each classification to play for them. Needless to say, we are very pleased to be selected, even though it will mean a lot of work.

The chorus has received new music for the County Festival on the 13th of February, and at present we are really making "hash" out of it.

The members of the mixed clarinet quartet are Joyce Thiemann, a freshman, first clarinet; Cozette Lau, a freshman, second clarinet; Eva Thiemann, a junior, alto clarinet; and Virginia Kudje a freshmann bass clarinet. This is a young group, but they are all good players and should be able to get a I rating.

Cub Scout Meeting

The pack meeting of the Cub Scouts was held in the Grade School basement, January 27th, at 7:30 p. m.

The theme for the month was "Pirates".

The boys opened the meeting by repeating the Laws, Promise and Motto. Then they presented a short skit, "Blackbeard's Trick."

We had a big map of the United States, and each boy read a short paragraph and showed on on the map, where the pirates buried treasure along the East Coast. Several boys made boats and they were on display. They told how they made them and what make of ship it was.

Lunch - Hot dogs, buns, coffee and orangeade.

Senior Class News

In English class we are discussing the difference between intransitive verbs and transitive verbs. We have found there are two different kinds of transitive verbs, which are transitive active and transitive passive, the same goes with the intransitive verbs. The two kinds are intransitive complete and intransitive copulative. In our workbooks we are classifying verbs in various sentences.

We don't have much time to loaf in bookkeeping class. We are now working on projects which include the combined cash journal and the petty cash book. So far we have completed the transactions, posted them to the general ledger, and proved cash.

In American history class we have been reading and discussing current events.

After thoroughly discussing the responsibility of the speaker in speech class, we discovered that the listener has responsibilities, too. In fast, it was pointed out that we are listeners more than we are focused as speakers. Toward the end of this week, we found ourselves running all over school looking for information. This will lead us right into making outlines and building a speech—the ultimate goal of the class.

In geometry we have been learning the basis of geometry and acquainting curselves with the different types of figures such as the different types of triangles, etc. We also have been continuing our study of advanced alegbra.

In chemistry we are studying the principle of chemical equilibrium.

By Bob Hullihan.

Ten times in two years Roy stood in front of that desk of local authority. Ten times in two years the official looked at Roy and shook his finger in routine warning.

First it was, "Now get out of here before I change my mind and watch that speeding from now on." Then it was, "You ought to be ashamed plowing through a school zone like that." Finally, "That stunt's going to cost you ten dollars, Roy. Too many people saw how you were driving."

When Roy's visits to the desk started costing him a few dollars each time, he lost the hangdog attitude with which he once listened to the little lectures and stared paying up briskly like a regular cash customer.

Seven times he was convicted of traffic violations and seven times he strolled away to drive as he had always driven—with habitual recklessess.

There is no reason to doubt that Roy would have made the eleventh visit to the desk except that he was killed one night while driving on the wrong side of the highway at high speed with only his parking lights burning. A 17-year-old girl died with him.

Frankly, no one in the community was too much troubled by the loss of Roy, though many were disturbed by the death of the girl.

Especially disturbed was the local official who knew that by simply mailing a record of Roy's convictions to the state safety department, Roy would have had his drivers license suspended or revoked.

Maybe he was waiting for the eleventh visit.

Question of the Week

How do you like your second semester schedule and are you adjusted to the new routine yet?

Keith: Oh, it's alright.
Joyce T: It's alright, but I'm not quite used to it yet.
Myrna B: The schedule is o k I guess, but I can't get used to it.
Craig: It's alright for some of the students but I liked the old schedule better.
Herb: I like it fine.
Gary Lenz: I guess it's alright. I am adjusted.
Jerry L: It's pretty good but I am not quite adjusted to it yet.
Roger J: I like it. (I'm never adjusted).
David W: I don't like it and I don't think I'll ever get adjusted to it.
Marcia W: I like it and I am just getting adjusted to it.
Lois: It is alright, although the afternoon is sort of jammed for me.
Anita: I like the schedule just as well as my last semester one.

Jokes

Two girls were, as usual, discussing men Stated one, "Men are all alike."

The other gal, from the deep South, replied, "Men are all Ah like, too."

New Barber: "Do you want anything on your face when I finish shaving you, sir?"

Irritated customer: "Yes, my nose!"

"What did the letter say to the stamp?"

"Stick to me and we'll go places."

Diner: "Waiter, there's a tack in my doughnut.'

Waiter: "Why the ambitious little thing!, He must have thought it was a tire."

"Why is the telephone company not going to make telephone poles any longer?"

"Because they are long enough.

Gossip Around KHS

It looks like Gracka's dream has finally come true. Dean B asked for a date Sunday night and Gracka has been getting a ride to school every noon.

It seems as though things are looking brighter for Bob L and Janan W This couldn't be the continuation of an old summer romance, could it? (I wonder if Barbara knows about this?)

We have come to the conclusion that Keith's car must have a cold back seat. Ginger and Keith and Joyce and Mart were all sitting in the front seat with the back seat empty.

It looks as though Don K makes a practice of taking Linda to the show every Sunday night.

It couldn't be because of Marie M that Dave always has to run to Garner after every ballgame, could it?

Why is it that all the boys were waiting for Jane R to have her 14th birthday.

Avery Sunbeams Met

The January meeting of the Avery Sunbeams was held at the home of Kathleen James. The meeting started at 2:00 p. m. by saying the flag pledge.

Roll call was "The First Improvement that I Plan to Make in My Home." It was answered by ten members.

We all enjoyed making booklets for our 4-H clippings and pictures.

Seventh Grade Visited Post Office Monday

On Monday the seventh grade visited the Post Office. Mr Kluckhohn, who is the Postmaster, told us about the services of the post office.

First he showed us the mail pouch and how they locked and unlocked it. Next we saw how they sort the mail coming into Klemme. Mr Kluckhohn told us about the different classes of mail. He told us that first class mail is letters, second class mail is mostly newspaper and magazines, third class mail is printed material like Christmas cards, and fourth class mail is packages. Then he showed us how they stamped mail and broke it down to packs going to a certain state, city, or part of the country. After that he showed us how they tied the letters together which would be going to the same place.

Mr Kluckhohn then showed us savings stamps and also the albums which we use, and also commemorative stamps, each of which has the picture of some famous person. We learned, too, about special delivery stamps, and stamps for certified mail.

Then he told us about air mail and a special envelope which you can use when sending an air mail letter. He also told us about registered mail and postal money orders. We saw a postal money order blank and an application blank and learned how they are used.

We were shown the boxes into which the local mail is put and were told about general delivery service. He also explained to us how they tie up ripped service.

Then Mr Kluckhohn answered any questions that we had. We learned many things from our visit to the post office and would like to thank Mr Kluckhohn for helping us.

Open House for Grade School Feb. 7, 8

By E. F. Kirkpatrick

The Klemme grade school classes are planning their open houses Tuesday and Wednesday, February 7 and 8. Parents who have children in grade school are invited to visit school on these days. Teachers and pupils have planned special projects and demonstrations. Parents will receive schedules so they may visit during the time a certain subject is being studied if they wish.

Methods of teaching have changed a lot since most parents attended school and the methods used by teachers of their children might be of interest to them. We hope all parents, both fathers and mothers, can visit on these days. We also hope they will visit at any other time they can and will talk over any questions they have about school with the teachers.

Parents are also invited to visit the lunch room. If the cooks know ahead of time, they will be prepared to serve parents the same meal their children receive. We are always glad to have your comments about any phase of the school program.

LANDMARK

At Oscelo, a familiar landmark is being razed; the old railroad water tower, near the station. No one is sure how old the tower is, but apparently it was built shortly after the turn of the century. The use of diesel locomotives made the tower obsolete.

Answer Questions On When Young Men Must Register for Draft

When must I register with Selective Service? Where must I go to register? Must I report in person or can I do it by mail? These are just three of the many questions asked of Earnest A Haes, Chairman of the Hancock County Local Board who today outlined registration requirements under the Universal Military Training and Service Act.

"The obligation to register," Mr Haes said, "is a continuing obligation and must be fulfilled. This obligation to register is imposed by the Act on every male person in the United States between the ages of 18 and 26, with the general exception of members of the armed forces and certain aliens."

To answer the first question, as a young man becomes 18 he is required to register at a Selective Service local board office. He must register on his 18th birthday or within five days thereafter. He is not permitted to register sooner and he may be declared to be a delinquent if he registers later than the specified time. He may register at his own local board office or if he happens to be away from home he need not return to register, which brings up the second question - a young man may register at the nearest local board office convenient to him and the record of his registration will be sent to his local board having jurisdiction over him, even though it is in another state. A young man must use his permanent home address in determining his place of residence.

Mr Haes said in answer to the third question, "The law requires that every young man must present himself for and submit to registration and this cannot be accomplished by mail or phone, all registration papers must be reviewed by the registrant and signed by him. He must verify the information thereon and make certain his name is spelled right, his address is correct and all other information is as it should be."

In general aleins entering the United States for the first time are required to register at a local board within six months following the date of their entry. Aliens are not excused from registration and ignorance of their responsibility under the Act is no excuse.

The Chairman pointed out that violation of any of the provisions of the Act, the maximum penalty is five years in prison or a fine of $10,000 or both.

State Safety Department Weeding Out Poor Drivers

A word of advice: The state safety department has turned a sensitive and searching eye on your driving record.

Milo Chalfant, director of safety responsibility division, said today records of approximately 200 drivers are being pulled from files for close examination each day.

The examiners are looking for patterns of accidents or violations that indicate the driver isn't doing a safe job on the highways.

Of the 6,510 drivers who lost their licenses last year, 1,409 were suspended as a direct result of this clerical hunt through the files.

That number is expected to increase about 25 per cent this year under the department's intensified driver improvement program.

Examiners are under orders to call in for reexamination or interview any driver suspected of physical incompetence or poor attitude.

"The decision to call in a driver can be made on the basis of a single accident if there is any evidence at all of poor performance," Chalfant said.

He said the program is part of the safety department's drive to "raise the standards of driving in Iowa by suspending or revoking licenses of those who can't meet requirements."

Pioneering in first aid instruction, the Red Cross began building its program during the early years of this country. Last year the Red Cross issued 680,000 certificates to persons who satisfactorily completed training in first aid.

Off for Florida and Cuba for Three Weeks

The following story was taken from the Sac City, Iowa newspaper:

Rev and Mrs E Morris Egeland left Thursday morning for Florida and Cuba, where Rev Egeland will join a group of one hundred Methodist ministers from across the country in an International Evangelistic Crusade. The group will meet in Miami for a training conference on January 31st and will fly to Cuba on the morning of February 1st.

The Crusade will conclude with a report meeting at Havana on February 9th, the participating ministers sharing experiences in the Churches which they served during the mission. Mrs Egeland will spend some time in Miami and then join Rev Egeland in Havana at the close of his assignment there.

The Egelands will return to Sac City on February 15th. During their absence the services at the First Methodist Church will be in charge of a Deputation Team from the Wesley Foundation at Ames, Dr E Earl Burgess and Dr Herbert D Temple, district superintendent of the Fort Dodge District.

Rev Egeland is one of two Iowa ministers to be selected for this Crusade.

Polio Benefit Planned; Family Fun Night

By Gracka Gerardi

As we all know the Salk Polio Vaccine wasn't discovered soon enough to prevent 30,000 cases of polio, plus the fact that no matter how much vaccine is in the bottle it won't do a bit of good until it is out of the bottle and into the bodies of thousands of boys and girls to prevent the dreaded polio.

Therefore, to help in this fight, the National March of Dimes has incorporated a teenage division. This division is being carried out in Klemme by the South Ell Tip Toppers 4-H Club.

We have decided that although you, the donors, are always willing to give toward the prevention of polio, it would be much more enjoyable for you to give in the manner we have devised. There is to be a Family Fun Night. It is to held Saturday night, February 18th at the Klemme High School gym. Games will be played and such old fashioned fun as a bingo game, cake walks, a fish pond for the children, and a box social will all go to make a very enjoyable evening for the entire family.

Reserve February 18th now and bring your best beau and a box full of good things to eat to be auctioned off in the box social. Coffee and home-made donuts will also be sold.

All the proceeds from this event will be given to polio so be sure and attend—have fun—and help in the fight toward polio.

To provide bingo prizes and gifts for the fish pool, the members of the South Ell Tip Toppers will solicit the town February 4th for white elephants or other donations you wish to give. Anything will be appreciated, so dig deep in those closets and trunks and help fight polio.

Can Spear Fish

Local sports enthusiasts, who are interested in spearing fish, can now do so in the Iowa River. According to Conservation Officer "Bill" Ayres, the Iowa River in Hancock and Wright Counties is now open to promiscuous fishing. Any kind of fish can be taken with spears between now and March 1st.

The maintenance of a standing corps of volunteer nurses ready to help local doctors and nurses cope with emergencies is one of the important jobs of the Red Cross. A total of 650 assignments of Red Cross nurses to major disaster duty were made this past year.

In 1765 about five percent of the families in the American colonies received a newspaper weekly, and these were passed from hand to hand and read by many persons.

Assessors at Courthouse

Hancock County field assessors will be at the courthouse until February 8th to assist taxpayers with the listing of personal property for the 1956 assessment. Applications for homestead tax credit and military exemption may be made at that time. Field men have completed a series of meetings in the several townships in the county and will begin work in the urban centers about the middle of February tic party primary.

Dan P J Ryan, Parkersburg publisher, will seek nomination and election to congress from the third congressional district. John Jensen, 31, Kimballton merchant has announced for congress in the seventh district, and Neal Smith, 36, a Des Moines attorney and Polk County farmer, has announced for the congressional race in the fifth district. Smith has just retired as president of the National Young Democrats Clubs of America.

GAS TAXES

There's some indication among highway commission members that Iowa's present six cents a gallon state tax on gasoline should be continued at least another two years.

Highway Commission Chairman Russell Lundy, on several occasions, had hinted the two cent temporary tax voted by the legislature, should be continued for at least another two years. Iowa's tax was four cents a gallon until the legislature added two cents for speedup in road construction and improvement.

Most recently, at a commission meeting, Commissioner Mel Graham of Audubon expressed himself as of the opinion that the six cent tax should be continued to enable the state to maintain its present moderization program.

WOULD BAR RIFLES

Iowa's state conservation commission has recommended to the legislative budget (interim) committee that legislation should be passed banning the use of rifles during the deer hunting season in the state.

NEW REGS

New selective service regulations providing for selection of persons with critical skills in the "ready reserve" programs have been announced.

Iowans enlisting under the program must join a unit of the ready reserves for eight years. Each enlistee would take a three to six months period of active duty training, plus other training duty during the eight year stretch. Person so enlisted, under the provision and under certain circumstances, may be relieved of training duty. After completing the enlistment a person is exempt from further liability for induction except in a national emergency.

OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER | KLEMME, IOWA, FEBRUARY 8, 1956 | VOLUME 61 | NUMBER 7

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

The political pot is really beginning to boil! County officers are announcing their intentions to again seek office, and announcements are also coming on the state and national level.

One of the announcements that has not yet been made but which is being eagerly awaited by Republicans and Democrats alike, is President Eisenhower's announcement of his decision as to whether or not he will again seek office . . . the latest word from him indicates that he should be able to make the decision by the first of March.

If he again seeks the office he now holds there will be glee in the Republican ranks and gloom among the Democrats. just because he runs is no sign that he will win, but he will be mighty tough competition for whoever wins the Democratic nomination, and Democrats are making their opening statements with regard to the campaign with his ultimate decision in mind.

If he decides that his health will not allow him to again run for the highest office in our land, there will be a wide open race in the Republican party to see who can gain control enough to get the nomination for that party.

In fact, such a decision will put the Republicans, nationally, in the the same spot that the Democrats are in, statewise. Their favorite choice as a candidate for the office of governor of Iowa, Clyde L Herring, recently announced that he would not seek the office . . . and after being defeated by only 25,000 votes by Governor Hoegh in the last general election.

This announcement threw Iowa Democrats into a "tizzy", for they were all quite certain that Herring would seek the nomination. Now, several names have been popping up as possible candidates, and they are probably going to have quite a hassle before they get organized.

Anyway, with all the uncertainty as to who's who, with all the dissatisfaction among farm voters, and with industrial workers apparently more properous than ever before in history, the months ahead should prove quite interesting politically.

We have just one wish with regard to what the politicians do in the immediate future. We wish that they would refrain from using the farm problem as a political football . . . a wish that we imagine is in vain . . . for regardless of how sincere they may intend to be, they usually wind up by kicking things around trying to make a few points for their party. Result: the nation's welfare gets somewhat trampled.

Some fellow has defined love as oceans of emotions surrounded by expanses of expenses. If this be true, then what we read and hear puts love and politics in the same category. for there are certainly lots of emotions

OFFICIAL BOY SCOUT WEEK POSTER

More than 4,100,000 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Explorers, and adult leaders throughout the nation will observe Boy Scout Week, February 6 to 12, marking the 46th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

Since 1910, Scouting has served over 24,500,000 boys and adult leaders.

Boy Scout Week observances will feature rededication ceremonies to be conducted by each of the nation's 104,000 units at their meeting places on February 8, the actual birthday of Scouting in America. Demonstrations and exhibits will dramatize the purposes of the Boy Scouts of America and its rich heritage.

$1,300 In Fines Paid To County Clerk's Office

A total of $1,300 in fines was paid into County Clerk Doris Young's office here Saturday, when three persons, charged with the operation of a motor vehicle on a public highway while in an intoxicated condition pleaded guilty to the County Attorney's information charging the violation.

Eugene Raymond Adams of Forest City paid a fine of $300 and costs and had his driver's license revoked for 60 days. He was arrested on October 29, 1955, by Highway Patrolmen near Miller. He was arraigned in the Justice Court of R J Fritsch and bound over to the grand jury.

John Marston Palmer of Britt paid a $500 fine on a similar charge. He was arrested by highway patrolmen on the streets of Britt on November 20, 1955, and was arraigned in the court of Justice of the Peace R J Fritsch in Garner and bound over to the grand jury.

Clifford Clark of Garner paid a $500 fine and costs on a similar charge. He was arrested by Hancock County Sheriff L M Brower on November 16, 1955, and arraigned in the justice court of R J Fritsch and bound over to the grand jury. The driver's licenses in each case were suspended for 60 days.

Palmer and Clark each pleaded guilty to a second offense.

The fines were assessed by District Judge Boynton, who presided over the Hancock County District Court on Saturday.

Local Teachers Attend Education Meeting

LaVon Montgomery, Carl Crawford and E F Kirkpatrick attended a meeting of the Hancock County Education Council at Corwith, Monday evening, February 6th.

The council is made up of representatives from all schools in the county.

The program consisted of reports by Mr Cataldo of Britt and Mrs Schlawin of Garner, who had attended the state delegate of the association in Des Moines, February 3rd and 4th.

Delegates chosen to attend the district meeting in Mason City, March 23rd were Melvin Heiler of Britt and E F Kirkpatrick of Klemme.

Other business was concerned with the spring banquet for all teachers in the county to be held at Britt in March.

Music Mothers to Meet

The Klemme Music Mothers will meet in the high school gymnasium at 7:30 p. m.. Wednesday, February 15th. Families of the Music Mothers will be guests at this meeting and there will be a program and lunch.

Election Will Be February 27th

Final hearing on the proposed Klemme Community School District was held on Monday afternoon, January 31st, but since no decisions were reached on that date, the meeting was adjourned until Saturday, February 4th.

At that time the County Board of Education ruled on all objections to the proposal and the final boundaries were set. These boundaries conform very nearly to those set by the Board two years ago, with the exception of small parcels of land in Twin Lake, Avery and Ell Townships.

A legal notice in this week's issue of The Times sets forth all the objections to the proposed district and the lands involved. The notice also gives the final ruling on the objections and lists the lands finally included in the district.

Now that the hearings are completed and the boundaries set, it will be necessary to hold an election to see whether or not the people residing in the territory involved want the proposed district. This election will be held on Monday, February 27th, and next week's Times will carry a list of the voting places and a notice of election.

This is the second attempt to organize a Klemme Community District. The first attempt struck a snag and was ruled out by the Iowa Supreme Court on a jurisdictional technicality.

Shamrocks to Play Four More Games Before Sectional

The Klemme Shamrocks, who are this year's North Star Conference and Hancock County champs, have four more games to play before they go into the sectional tournament at Mason City against Mtichell on Tuesday, February 21st.

First of the four games comes this Friday night when the Shamrocks are hosts to the Thompson cagers. Then on Saturday night, February 11, the locals back up and journey to Ringsted for a game that should be a good one. Ringsted has lost only one game this year, and that one was a 21-point lacing at the hands of Graettinger, Tuesday night.

A game that should prove interesting by way of comparison is coming up Tuesday night, February 14th, when the Shamrocks journey to Northwood. Northwood is leading the way in the North Iowa Conference and Klemme won the North Star Conference.

Friday night, February 17th, will be the last scheduled game of the season for the locals. That game will see them in action against Crystal Lake on the local floor.

From there on every game they play could be their last for the season, for once they get beaten in the state eliminations, they are through. Local fans hope they will be playing right on into March.

Eastern Star to Meet aroused during a political campaign, and any candidate will tell you that the expense is terrific.

Getting away from politics and going to a subject of considerable interest locally, we find that the fund sports fans have been making up to broadcast Klemme Shamrock games in the sectional basketball tournament has grown to $160. That's quite a pot full and shows that the Shamrocks have really got the backing of the community. Good deal!

And while we're talking about funds, don't forget that you have until the end of next week to help in the fight against polio by contributing to the March of Dimes campaign in Klemme. Of course you don't have to wait until the last day to contribute, and no doubt you have already been contacted by one of the volunteer workers. In case you get missed in the drive, you can still do your share by contacting Mrs Dave Schwichtenberg, local chairman. We are sure that she would be glad to accept any March of Dimes contribution that you would care to make.

And while we're on the subject of polio, don't forget the big fun night that the South Ell Tip Toppers are putting on Saturday night, February 18th, in the high school gymnasium. They are planning all sorts of things for your enjoyment, with all the proceeds to go to the March of Dimes. They are doing the work. All you have to do is enjoy yourself and let go of a little of that loose change that's jingling in your pocket.

Took a jaunt to Des Moines, Saturday evening and spent the night with the "Pat" Pattersons. In case any of "Pat's' old friends are interested, the family is doing fine, and the newest addition, 15-month-old Shannon, is just about husky enough right now to whip her old Dad.

We got a big kick out of an ad in the Publishers Auxiliary recently. It was an ad offering a newspaper for sale and started out as follows: Stomach Ulcer, cigarette cough, and nagging but loving wife force us to sacrifice . . .

Which reminds us of the guy who said that worry is like a rocking chair . . . gives you something to do, but doesn't get you anywhere.

We salute the Boy Scouts of America on its 46th birthday, now being observed during Boy Scout Week, February 6th to 12th. Scouting offers boys the chance to learn many of the good things in life and hopes to build them into good men for tomorrow. We think it is a worthwhile program.

Weatherwise, we wouldn't trade with usually sunny Texas. While our weather has been pretty much on the balmy side, they have been having a lot of snow and high winds, causing lots of damage. Makes us think that spring might come some day.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

IOWA PATROL

Clinton Moyer, state commissioner of public safety, recently polled (by secret ballot) Iowa highway patrolmen to determine not more than 60 percent were members of the same political party. This ratio is set by state law.

Moyer reports that the law is not being violated and that 17 additions to bring the patrol up to full complement will not unbalance the patrol with regard to that law.

Moyer has been critized for his action. However, at least one other commissioner made such a survey but did it secretly and through Republican county chairmen without the matter being publicly known.

TOO MANY

Dr Robert H Johnson, associate professor of economics at the University of Iowa, told high school superintendents and principals at a statewide meeting that Iowa has "too many teachers for the number of pupils being taught."

Iowa's average in 1951, he said, was one teacher for 18.2 pupils, and the national average was one teacher for 24.1 pupils.

He said Iowa has about 25,000 teachers and could get along with 3,400 fewer teachers if "pitched at the national level."

"We can save 1,500 teachers in rural one room schools alone." he declared. He believes the Iowa school system is uneconomically organized and operated.

Johnson is a member of the state special tax study committee.

ASKS MORE PAY

A 10 percent increase in teachers salaries is needed in Iowa, Mrs Dorothy Brazzle of the Iowa State Education Association reported at the meeting of the Iowa Association of School Administrators. She said Iowa still is 19 percent below the national average on teachers salaries, and ranks 33 in average teachers salaries as compared with other states.

BONUS CHECKS

World War II bonus checks are still waiting for some 130 veterans. These ex-servicemen, eligible for their bonus payments, had filed for their checks but moved and left no forwarding addresses.

MORE EFFORT PLEASE

All county and city assessors have been asked to exert more effort in collecting money-and-credit taxes.

The Iowa tax commission, in letters to all assessors, said there are indications that "some assessors are not assessing moneys and credits as required by law."

FLYING PATROLMEN

Iowa shortly will have at least two flying highway patrolmen.

The state executive council has approved purchase of two airplanes to be usesd by the patrol in traffic and enforcement work.

Several patrolmen can pilot aircraft.

WATCH THOSE FORMS

Take pains to avoid pain.

The Iowa tax commission reports that one of every four 1955 income tax forms now being filed are in error.

This year new forms are being used for filing returns on 1955 income. But of 2,839 reviewed by the commission, 731 show errors for a mistake rate of 28 percent.

That's too high a percentage of errors the commission reports. Most of the errors are in giving requested personal information.

TRANSIT STUDY

A nine-member committee has been named by Governor Hoegh to study problems facing transit compaines in Iowa. On the newly formed committee are:

Lawrence Touchae, Waterloo mayor; Charles Kinsinger, Dubuque councilman; Joe Van Dresser, former Des Moines mayor; Harold Travers, Des Moines bus driver; Robert Walker, Fort Dodge transit official; Ore Roe, Sioux City businessman; State Rep Don Petrucelli of Davenport, and State Sen D C Nolan, Iowa City, both Republicans.

REFUND GAS

The farmer may use some of the gasoline for which he had intended to apply for refund, in his car, truck or tractor to travel the highways. But he must not ask for a refund on that gasoline.

That's a report from Earle Smith, director of the Iowa treasurer's office gasoline tax division.

Smith thus corrects a report that it is illegal to take gasoline from farmer "refund barrels" and use it in cars, trucks and tractors for highway travel.

SCHOOL AID

Transportation aid checks totaling $3 million have been mailed to 1,818 school districts throughout the state. Payment of the claims, which totaled $4,206,696 was made at the rate of 71.3 percent.

COLLEGE STUDY

Three financial leaders have been named as a committee to make an independent appraisal of a proposal by the state board of regents to finance new buildings at state colleges from tuition fees.

The three are Robert B Patrick and W Harold Brenton, both of Des Moines, and V W Johnson, Cedar Falls. Patrick is a financial officer with an insurance company; Brenton is the owner of several banks, and Johnson is a bank president.

The board of regents proposes to borrow money for an estimated $68 millions worth of improvements in the next 15 years. The building loans would be paid off, over a period of years, with a portion of tuition fees paid by each student.

Gossip Around KHS

I guess there might just be a new romance starting between Margaret P and Chuck B. We were told that they were with Cozy and Val S. after the game Tuesday night.

We heard that Rosalie and Ruth P were disgusted with themselves because they backed out of what they wanted to do most after the game the other night. Towards the end of the night they were even more disgusted.

It seemed like Karen was worried that some one would walk in the door while she was dancing with Don K at the Soc Hop Tuesday night. You shouldn't let things like this worry you, Karen.

Hey, Sharleen, where were you found Tuesday night after the game?

I wonder who took Winola home after the game Tuesday night. It wasn't Don T was it?

I wonder what Kay B has been doing in Britt these last two Sunday? It couldn't have been to see Janice T, could it?

Girls' Sports

Although we are doing the same things in P T again this week, I think you will be interested to know that we are having volley ball tournaments. There has been only one game so far. Two of the classes played each other. There are three classes so the winner will play the third class and try to become the champs. The loser will most likely play the team that lost the first game.

Of course, we still have calisthenics and some of the classes had relay races this week. Plenty of exercise is in store every day P T rolls around. We played games of badminton today with two girls on each side. The other girls played a game with the basketball until the game reached 21 points. The winners then played two others until all the girls had played. It was a lot of fun and all the girls enjoyed it very much.

Senior Class News

After taking a test over intransitive and transitive verbs, we began a chapter over correct usage of pronouns. In our literature work book we are doing exercises that deal with pronouns. We select the right pronouns and then we give the reasons for our choice We find that a pronoun can go under 3 classes; nominative, possessive, and objective.

In bookkeepping we are learning how to keep payroll records. We first have to figure out how many hours each person works. After we get the total hours, we take the rate times the hours to get the total earnings. In our payroll register we take the total earnings minus the deductions, such as income tax, and social security to find net pay.

We are discussing in American history class the different types of labor unons that developed through the growth of the United States. We also discussed the reason why the Socialist party in 1900, grew extra strong and then took a back hill tumble. We also found that there were many christian oganizations that developed over the years to help people along.

In speech we have been making outline forms for speeches. At the first of the week we had to write out four introductions. They were suspense, refer to occasion, issuing a challenge and a quotation.

Geometry - We had our first test in geometry. It was over the basic fundamentals that we had learned so far. Little things like that help break the monotony?? In advanced algebra we are studying logarithms.

In business law we received a unit test over the five basic elements which make a contract enforceable. We are now studying different kinds of contracts and in class we are discussing which one have to be in writing and those that don't.

Chemistry: We have been proving that an acid mixed with a base, makes a salt through experiments. On Tuesdays and Thursdays we have chemistry in the library. This meets with much disapproval from everyone. We've also been making up different solutions from chemicals to uses in our experiments.

In history we've been studying about democracy in Great Britian and France and the Unification in Germany and Italy. We've had one test over this in which we didn't have such good results.

We now have spelling words in English such as your, where, flour, and piece. Real tough, huh?

"Herkimer" is with us again. "Herkimer" is a plastic torso model which we can take apart for study in biology. We find "Herkimer" very interesting.

In algebra I we've been factoring trinomials. We find this easier than "digits" which we've been studying.

This semester's drivers training class went to Garner and got their drivers permits. They start driving Thursday. Watch out for the blue Chevrolet with the cream colored top!

Question of the Week

If you found a SCIMITAR in a tree, what would you do with it?

Roger J - I'd throw it on the ground and step on it. Then I'd give it to the home ec girls.

Gary L - I would use it on Roger Johnson to make him behave.

John A - I'd shoot it and take it home for dinner.

Ron H - I'd let him have it with both barrels of a 12 gauge.

Marlin S - I'd ask him what he was doing up there.

Bob L - I'd keep it for a pet.

Craig L - I'd kill it and give it to Myrna Barz for lying to Keith N.

Jerry L - Catch it and send it to the zoo.

SCIMITAR - A curved sword used by Oriental people.

Cockles from the Coop

Don't forget the county festival concert at Crystal Lake on the 27th of this month. The program will consist of everything from a medley of spirituals to a hymn, and should be well worth your time.

This year we have two woodwind trios. The members of one are: Gracka Geradi, flute; Dorothy Kroehnke, clarinet; and Sharleen Swanson, saxophone. The other members are three Johnsons: Melva plays the flute, Maureen plays the soprano clarinet, and Gordon plays bass clarinet. This last group shouldn't have any trouble finding time to practice together because they all live under one roof.

Jokes

Jack: If a girl smashed a clock, could she be accused of killing time?

Judge: No, not if the clock struck first.

Bill: "What is the difference between a girl and a postage stamp?"

Merle: "I don't know."

Bill: "Well, one is female, the other is mail fee!"

Elevator Boy: Here's your floor, son."

Passenger: "Son! How dare you call me that?

Elevator Boy: "Well, I brought you up, didn't I?"

Pete: "While we are sitting sitting here in the moonlight, I'd like to ask you a question."

Beverly: (Eagerly) Yes!"

Pete: "Couldn't you move over? I'm sitting on an nail."

What did the big rose say to the little rose?

Fourth Grade Writes Letters After Trip

After our trip to Clear Lake, we decided to write thank you notes to the Clear Lake Bakery and Bell Telephone Company. The neatest and most interesting notes were sent. Here they are:

Klemme, Iowa
February 3, 1956

Dear Sir,

I had a very exciting trip. It was good to see all the things you have to work with. What I especially liked was to know how many wires run through a line and liked how the operators connected the telephones so people could talk. I am drawing something about what I saw for our bulletin board at school.

Thank you for our nice time and for the candy bar.

Klemme fourth grade,
Douglas Bertlison

Klemme, Iowa
February 3, 1956

Dear Sir,

We had a wonderful time at the bakery. It was very interesting when they made the bread. I liked everything but the most important thing I liked was how they rolled it and made it into loaves. I really had a wonderful time there. Thank you for letting us come.

Maico Audiometer now Available In County

Mr. Don Roe, chairman of the Hancock County chapter of the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and Adults, has announced the purchase of a new Maico Audiometer for use in our county. The purchase was made possible through the sale of Easter Seals in Hancock County during the past year.

An audiometer is used to measure a person's ability to hear. The instrument, purchased by this county is equipped for individual hearing tests and may be used for group screening. It is the second one, of a new type developed by Maico, to be purchased in the state of Iowa.

As in past years, the Division of Special Education, the Public Health Nurse, and the Hancock County Superintendent's office, in cooperation with the public schools, will be testing your children for possible hearing difficulties. This program has been carried on in the public schools for several years, with every child in the third, sixth, and ninth grades being screened this way, every child is screened every three years. Also, the teachers are consulted as to children whom they feel should be tested, and these children are included in the program.

Early detection of and immediate attention to hearing losses, injuries and infections may prevent future deafness. The audiometer is for the purpose of detecting these hearing problems.

After the examinations with the audiometer in the schools, the parents of children showing a hearing loss are notified, and are given recommendations for further attention.

The audiometer is kept at the County Superintendent's office, and may be loaned to county medical and educational personnel.

The 1956 cattle market may be just the reverse of 1955, Stephen J Hiemstra, Iowa State College farm economist, predicts. He says the market probably will trend upward during the next 7 or 8 months, being above the 1955 level by next fall. It shouud follow a marketing pattern more similiar to 1954 than 1955.

On January 1, Hiemstra says, 1 percent more cattle were on feed in the nation than a year ago. The North Central States, including Iowa, are feeding about the same number of cattle as last year. In the West, feeders increased 3 per cent over last year. California, the leading western cattle feeding state, was up 5 per cent alone.

In the Western Corn Belt, the number of cattle on feed January 1 was down 4 per cent. The Eastern Corn Belt shows an increase of 9 per cent.

A year ago we had a shortage of finished cattle and had an unusually strong winter market but this year our supply has been plentiful. The market showed signs of reviving around Thanksgiving, but failed to do so. The percentage of prime offerings at Chicago failed to show a normal seasonal decline at the close of 1955.

Short feeding operations, according to Hiemstra, were increased last all with many low grade cattle being fed to heavyweights—around 1,200 pounds. Such cattle, if grading below prime. have been hard to sell. He says over a 1,000 of them went unsold at Chicago last week end and had to be carried over the weekend. Then Monday's sales set a 29-year record for a day in January.

We also had a substantial increase in the number of cattle on feed weighing over 900 pounds. On the other hand, Hiemstra points out that the number of calves on feed is down accordingly.

Hiemstra finds it difficult to hope for much better cattle markets this winter. And he says we will not see a repeat performance of last winter's unseasonally strong market.

Last week's sharply rising hog prices, a result of unusually small marketings, cannot be expected to continue to rise, according to Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist.

Kutish says packers' killing gangs have been built up to handle a much larger number of hogs than farmers are now marketing. In order to keep these gangs busy, the packers have been bidding sharply for the available hogs.

If the present rapid reduction in marketings continues, packers will soon cut back their killing gangs, bringing their work forces into line with the low volume of hogs reaching the markets. By doing this, explained Kutish, the packers would need fewer hogs to keep their plants busy.

But last fall's 12 percent larger pig crop will soon increase the number of hogs reaching the markets. When this happens, bidding among the packers will be less active even though they maintain their work forces at their present size.

The direction of the present marketing trend, however, is normal, Kutish says. Hog sales normally fall off as we move toward the late spring-early summer low. But, he adds, the speed of the current fall off is much too rapid to be sustained.

For the sheep and lamb markets, Stephen J Hiemstra, Kutish's assistant, predicts a winter seasonal rise in lamb prices. He reports that this country had 8 percent fewer feeder lambs on feed January 1 than a year ago, with Kansas down 33 percent. Drouth has severely restricted feeding, particularly in the wheat pasture areas.

Build Their Confidence—

Give Youngsters Time in Morning

Give your children adequate time before they leave for school in the morning—time to attend to a few of their own needs. This will help them develop senses of responsibility and self confidence.

What's your household like in the morning? Dad rushing through breakfast to get to his work; your teen-age daughter needing a blouse which isn't ironed; the first grader sauntering out of his room too late to eat a good breakfast? Is this confusing picture serves as a painful personal reminder of your house, it's time for you to take a close look at your family's morning habits.

LAST-MINUTE RISING

We're going to talk about that first grader. It isn't kindness to let him sleep until the last minute in the morning. On the contrary, it's an unkindness, says Buena Mockmore, extension child development and family life specialist at Iowa State College. But, be fair and take a look at your reasoning. Is he making up in the morning for sleep you let him miss last night?

That junior citizen needs morning time to prepare himself both mentally and physically for all the demands of the day. Don't laugh now, because even a youngster does have plenty of demands each day. Both school and personal problems are vividly real and very big to him. He needs to be properly equipped to deal with every one of them.

If you haven't started a routine based on adequate morning time for the youngsters, now's the time to begin. It's worth your time in the long run to establish this efficiency habit now. It will avoid some of the "departure tantrums" a younster can develop when he's under the pressure of insufficient time.

Time in the morning lets even your kindergarten or first gade child do a few chores for himself. Attending to some of his own needs at this age helps develop in him a sense of responsibility and self confidence.

JOBS FOR HIM

Rouse the small fry early enough so he can go to the toilet, wash and dress himself, and still have time to eat a hearty breakfast. If he does these things, you will have offered him the opportunity to be independent—not completely dependent upon you.

Very important to both health and total energy is the breakfast he eats. Be sure there's time to eat a warm, well-selected and unhurried morning meal before he leaves for school. Don't expect your child to go 18 hours—the time between last night's supper and lunch today—without adequate nourishment.

Time is needed to put on outer clothing suitable for the weather. Allow for a period in which he can collect his belonging before he leaves the house for school. To eliminate any crises over lost galoshes, notebooks, homework and other articles, Mrs Mockmore suggests a "pre-bedtime" collection. Then all his things will be together and ready for morning.

HOW DO YOU SCORE?

Will you consider some of these ideas, Mom? You might take a pencil and paper—jot down the problems we've mentioned, and see how many of them you observed in your household this morning. Now check the ones on which you need to work, and make a plan.

Making plans to gain more time for necessary activities such as dressing, eating, toileting, and washing every morning may involve a few changes. Perhaps it will mean getting up half an hour earlier, collecting belongings and clothing at night and getting to bed in time to get enough sleep so you won't need to stretch time in the morning. At any rate, if rushs and tension are eliminated from the morning scene at your house, it will probably result in improved family relations among all of your family members.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

We can have a peek this week at the private thoughts of some 60 state safety officials around the nation, courtesy of a survey taken by the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies. Here is what the "average" traffic official thinks:

He disagrees with the theory that modern cars and modern highways make it possible to drive safely at high speeds. He wants traffic accident prevention program to include speed-control emphasis.

He thinks advertising emphasis is encouraging people to use higher speed. He wants statutory speed laws because, for one reason, he lacks faith in the ability of the driving public to determine for itself what constitutes safe speed.

On superhighways, he might short of superhighways, he thinks 60 miles per hour during the day and 50 at night are fast enough.

On superhighways, he mighth stretch a point and permit speeds up to 65 day and 60 night but, personally, he thinks 60 is fast enough anytime, anywhere. For himself, he doesn't feel "safe" at any speed over 60.

Perhaps the most sobering item in this survey is the safety officials' lack of faith that the public can determine safe speed.

If the lack of faith is justified (and the yearly death records seems to say it is) then most of us are taking our lives every day on decisions we are not qualified to make.

Pardon us while we get out and walk.

IN THE ADJOURNED MEETING OF THE COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION OF HANCOCK COUNTY, IOWA

IN THE MATTER OF THE KLEMME COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT of Hancock County, State of Iowa

FINAL ORDER RULING ON OBJECTIONS AND FIXING BOUNDARIES FOR THE PROPOSED SCHOOL CORPORATION

BE IT REMEMBERED, that on the 25th day of November, 1955, a petition was filed with the County Superintendent of Schools of Hancock County, Iowa, signed by more than one-third of the qualified voters residing within the proposed boundaries set forth in said petition as established by the affidavit thereto attached, said affidavit being signed by A. R Arnold, a qualified voter residing within such proposed boundaries, which affidavit was and is attached to said petition and filed therewith, which petition asks that a reorganized school district to be named the KLEMME COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, be established within and including the contiguous territory described and set forth in said petition. The said petition establishing that the County Superintendent of Schools of Hancock County, Iowa, is the proper official with whom such petition should be filed.

That within ten days after said petition was filed the County Superintendent of Schools of Hancock County, Iowa, did fix the 9th day of January, A D 1956, at 12 00 o'clock noon, as the final date for filing objections to the petition in the office of said County Superintendent and did give notice for at least ten days by one publication in the Klemme Times, a newspaper having general circulation within the proposed reorganized school district, appearing in the December 21, 1955 issue of the Klemme Times, to all persons residing or owning lands within the territory described in the petition or who would be injuriously affected by the change petitioned for, that all objections to the proposed reorganized school district must be in writing in the form of an affidavit and must be filed in the office of the County Superintendent of Schools of Hancock County, Iowa, at Garner, Iowa before noon on the 9th day of January 1956, the date fixed by said County Superintendent of Schools for hearing upon said objections.

That at the same time the County Superintendent of Schools of Hancock County, Iowa, fixed the 9th day of January, 1956, at the hour of 2:00 o'clock P. M. of said day, in the Court Room at the Court House at Garner in Hancock County, Iowa, as the time and place of hearing on objections and called a meeting of the County Board of Education of Hancock County, State of Iowa, to be held at said time and place, to act as a Board for the hearing of said objections.

That thereafter, the County Board of Education of Hancock County, Iowa, met in session at the time and place so fixed, the same being in the Court Room in the County Court House at Garner, Iowa, at 2:00 o'clock on January 9, 1956 as a Board for the hearing of said objections. Objectors and interested persons were heard and after reviewing all objections and hearing all evidence in support thereof; and within five days after the conclusion of said hearing the Board ruled upon objections and entered an order fixing boundaries for the proposed school corporation, as in its judgment, was for the best interest of all parties concerned, having due regard for the welfare of adjoining districts The said boundaries were neither those petitioned for, nor those fixed by the county plan of Hancock County, Iowa, and thereupon the hearing was adjourned, as required by law, to the 31st day of January, 1956, at 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon of said day at the Court Room, in the County Court House at Garner in Hancock County, Iowa

The ruling upon objections and order fixing boundaries, above mentioned, was published in the Klemme Times in the January 18 issue, and the County Superintendent of Schools of Hancock County, Iowa, gave notice of said adjourned hearing by one publication in the January 18 issue of the Klemme Times, as required by law, notifying all persons residing upon or owning lands within the territory described in said order fixing boundares or who would be injuriously affected thereby, that all objections to the establishment of the Klemme Community School District with boundaries as fixed in said order must be in writing in the form of an affidavit, and must be filed in the office of the County Superintendent of Schools of Hancock County, Iowa, not later than 12:00 o'clock noon of the 31st day of January, 1956, and of the adjourned hearing to be held in the Court Room of the County Court House at Garner, Iowa on the 31st day of January, 1956, at 1:30 P M., to hear evidence and argument and to fix the boundaries for the proposed school corporation or dismiss the petition, which shall be final.

Another speaker, Stuart Walsh of San Francisco told the delegates:

"Get your whole team together so your entire community is behind the project."

Another speaker, introduced only as "Mr X" from New York advised:

"Industry prefers to enter a community where its efforts are appreciated."

The clinic was sponsored by the Iowa Development Commission.

Hunting and Fishing Violations Show Increase

Hunting and fishing law violations increased slightly during 1955 with a total of 1,947 violations as compared to the 1954 total of 1,673.

Hunting violations led the list during both years, with 943 hunting infractions reported during 1854 and 1,312 reported in ing 1954 and 1,312 reported in showed a decrease in 1955, with 529 convictions. In 1954 there were 612 convictions for fishing violations.

Fishing and game law violators must have been more prosperous in 1955 than in 1954, however. At least, fewer of them were jailed and more of them paid fines. In 1954 a total of 182 jail days were levied to such lawbreakers, but only 138 jail-days were served in 1955.

Total hunting and fishing fines in 1955 were $45,819.85, a sharp increase over the 1954 figure of $31,552.50.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

We are indebted to Mrs Lena Schroeder for bringing us a copy of the Tracy Headlight-Herald of Tracy, Minn., containing a story about a Tracy doctor and his wife who had only recently returned from a South American tour.

Of interest locally is the part of the story telling of a visit with the Milton Lau family at Lima, Peru. Milton is the youngest son of Mr and Mrs H C Lau. The family used to live west of Klemme and are well-known in the community.

Following is the part of the story which is of interest locally:

On October 24, Dr and Mrs W G Workman arrived in Lima, Peru. A touch of home awaited them here, where they were entertained by the Milton Lau family, formerly of Tracy. Lau is in Peru working for the government on advancement of agriculture in that country.

Workman remarked that "if everyone is doing as good a job there as Milton, they should go places. He is away sometimes as long as three weeks out of a month working with the native farmers to improve their agriculture methods."

Mr and Mrs Lau and family, Marcia, 15, Butch, 11 and Marlys 3½, have been in Peru for about a year and a half. Lau plans to leave for the states about Christmas-time, 1956, because that is when the school year ends in Peru.

"All of the Laus are working hard on the Spanish language, and speak it continuously in the home, to become more familiar with it," Workman reported. "Even Marlys, the baby, chats in Spanish with the native cook."

Workman reports that Mr Lau has made a very successful effort to become acquainted with the Peruvians and their lanuage, unlike many other foreign workers in the country.

Lions Club to Sponsor "Happy" Al Bell Show

Al Bell, lecturer, photographer, traveler and farmer, has for many years presented his programs to the school children. This year the adults will have an opportunity to see one of these popular programs when the Lions Club sponsors the presentation at the Klemme High School gymnasium on the evening of Tuesday, February 28.

In past years, Mr Bell has traveled to Alaska, the Scandinavian Countries, Central America, the Caribbean Islands, Dutch Guiana, Nova Scotia and Gaspe, Ireland, and last summer gathered his stories, visual materials and made his color and sound movies in northwestern Canada.

"Sons of Chinook" was made on the big ranches during branding time, at the annual Indian Days at Banff at the world famous Calgary Stampede and, also, are included magnificent close-ups of the big game of this region.

Al Bell filmed all the rodeo events from a specially constructed pit inside the arena. You will witness the events even closer than if you had attended yourself.

This is perhaps the only evening appearance in this community, so be sure and attend.

Shamrocks Have Rough Week; Lose Two of Three

The Klemme Shamrocks had it rough the past week. Last Friday night they were hosts to the Thompson cagers, and they beat them 69-41, after leading only 30-23 at the half. Then things became even rougher.

Saturday night they journeyed to Ringsted and took it on the chin 66-61, and then Tuesday night they were at Northwood, where they were handed their worst licking of the year, 84-52. The fact that Denny Haefner was knocked out after about four minutes of the game had elapsed and saw no more action probably accounted somewhat for the wide margin that the Northwood team was able to pile up. His accident no doubt took some of the steam out of the Shamrocks.

In the Thompson game, which saw the Shamrocks steadily build up the score after the half, Haefner and Kramer led the attack with 28 and 22 points, respectively.

In the Ringsted game, which saw the local team trailing by 10 points most of the way, Haefner and Kramer again led the way with 20 and 17 points, respectively. The Shamrocks pulled to within two points of Ringsted with only 3 minutes left to play, but Ringsted again pulled away to finish with their five-point victory margin.

In the Northwood game Kramer led the scoring for Klemme with 22 points, while Terhufen and Brinkman each accounted for 11. Haefner, who was in the game for only four minutes registered only 2. Northwood displayed a very balanced attack with five men scoring in double figures.

The Little Shamrocks broke even in action the past week. They downed the Thompson reserves 41-29 with Nuehring banging in 16 points, and lost to Northwood reserves 51-46, with Nuehring getting 13 points and Josten 10.

This Friday night February 17th, the Shamrocks meet the Crystal Lake team on the local floor in the last regularly scheduled game of the season. This game was originally scheduled to be played on the Crystal Lake floor, so sports fans are advised that season tickets will not be good for this contest.

CAPITOL LETTER

PATROL SCHOOL

April 15 will be the starting date for a four-week Iowa highway patrol school for the training of new candidates. The recruit training school will be held at Camp Dodge in Des Moines.

Highway Patrol Chief David Herrick said more than 160 applicants have met the physical and educational requirements. Patrol officers will select about 35 to attend the school.

Graduates will be named to fill about 20 vacancies in the patrol.

FOUR YEAR DEGREE

The state board of public instruction will be asked to set 1960 as the date when a four-year college degree will be required for a beginning teacher certificate in Iowa.

Final action requires legislative approval via a change in state law.

The action for more stringent teacher qualifications will be requested by Iowa teachers through the Iowa State Education association.

The four year college degree will not affect present teachers. Any action by the state board would not be retroactive. Presently, the four year degree is required only for high school teachers, and the two-year certificate for elementary grade teachers.

WANT TO MOVE

At least eight members of the Iowa house of representatives want to move to the state senate this year.

Two years ago State Sen Jay C Colburn of Harlan moved to the Iowa house. This year too, a former state senator, Erwin Schoening of Bryant in Clinton County, will seek a house seat.

State representatives who have announced they are seeking nomination to the Iowa senate include: W H Tate of Mason City; Howard C Buck of State Center; Russel A Patrick of Hawarden; Jack Miller of Sioux City; Frank R Thompson of Guthrie Center; Jim O'Henry of Carson; Carl H Ringgenberg of Ames; and Willian H Harbor of Henderson. All are Republicans.

OUTSTANDING

Duane Munter, 32, of Fort Dodge, has been named Iowa's "outstanding young man" for 1955 by the Iowa State Junior Chamber of Commerce. The award is presented annually by the JCC to the person who has had the most distinguished service record in home community projects and activities during the year.

Munter, a bank vice-president, received the award Saturday at a statewide dinner in Ottumwa. He was selected by a committee of three professors from Iowa State College.

C E Thompson, Humboldt, state award chairman, made the announcement.

MENTAL HEALTH

The Rev Charles Phillips of Des Moines has been reelected president of the Iowa Association for Mental Health. Other officers include Mrs Norman Lipsky, of Cedar Rapids, first vice-president; Dudley Lowry, Davenport, second vice-president; Mrs Joseph Jacobson, Dubuque, secretary, and Nelson Urban, Des Moines, treasurer.

COUNTY CHANGE

The Iowa tax study committee is considering recommendations for changes in the state system of county government.

Several proposals for changes in county government have been presented to the special committee. Latest plan includes a proposal for a state local option law that would give individual counties the right to adopt a county manager plan of government, if they want to.

State Sen X T Prentis, (R) of Mt Ayr, committee chairman, said county government matters would be included in the committee's final report due next September.

SELECTIVE VOTE

Iowa State Education Association members have voted against a proposal to open voting membership in the organization to persons outside the teaching profession.

The proposal had been made for the purpose of helping the association's attempt to be classified as a charitable and nonprofit organization which would be exempt from property taxes.

The ISEA'S new state headquarters, in the famed Weeks Mansion, is now assesed for personal property tax purposes. The association officers have been fighting such tax assessment.

WANT MORE PAY

The Iowa highway commission has asked the governor for pay raises averaging $15 a month for 1,456 employees.

Commissioners report that counties are paying road maintenance workers more than the state pays men doing the same type of work. The pay hikes if approved, would bring the state salaries up to the county pay level.

The pay change would authorize increases totaling $265,200 for the 1,456 employees.

Final action is up to the state executive council of which Governor Hoegh is chairman.

SAFETY ROLE

Constructive traffic safety programs come from organized public opinion, Noble Dutton, national safety council expert, told the Iowa Lay Committee on Traffic Safety.

"You can't have a strong program when officials are doing it alone," Dutton told the committee which is composed of 30 statewide organizations which maintain safety programs. He said "publilc opinion must be mobilized."

FOR CAB

Whitney Gillilland of Glenwood, former state Republican chairman and now chairman of the foreign claims settlement commission, may be appointed to the federal civil aeronautics board (CAB).

Gillilland is under consideration for the post and has been recommended by Senator Bourke B Hickenlooper. The position pays $15,000 a year.

IOWAN NAMED

Virgil Hancher, president of the University of Iowa, has been named to a five-member board which will be the first board of visitors to the U S Air Force academy in Colorado.

The job of the board of visitors is to inspect academy facilities and review general operation of the institution.

Also on the board is Charles A Lindbergh. Both Hancher and Lindbergh were on the committee to select the site for the academy.

HEADS TEACHERS

Harold W Weber of Clinton will be the new president of the Iowa State Education Association. He has been nominated for the position and will be elected at the ISEA state convention. Now association vice-president, he would succeed L L Woodruff of Burlington.

The Iowa Future Teachers association has named Joyce Billavou of Penn College as its president. Pat Eberly, Clarinda Junior College, is vice president.

LESS BUTTER

Editorial of the Week

A big dance planned!

On leap year night, February 29th, the sophomores are giving a dance for the school and friends. We are having a king and queen from each class and from them will be chosen a grand king and queen to rule over all. The sophomores have chosen three couples from each class as candidates. Their names are in the office and you pay a penny to vote for them. You may vote as often as you like. Voting takes place every morning from now until the 29th. The kings and queens will not be notified until that night.

The candidates are as folllows:

Freshman: Ginger and Craig; Joyce and Ronnie; Cozy and Jerry L.

Sophomores: Barbara and Paul; Karen and Gordon; Dorothy and Raymond.

Juniors: Sharleen and Keith; Janice and Martin; Beverly and Bob.

Seniors: Carol and Denny; Shirley and Don K; Margaret and Butch.

The money received from the dance will be given to the seniors to be used on their skip day. The admission is 25c and the dance starts at 7:00 p m. and will end at 11:00 p. m.

Everyone come!

Cackles from the Coop

Another reminder not to forget the County Vocal Festival at Crystal Lake on the 27th.

This year contest rules have been changed to allow brass choirs to participate in the ensemble contest. Therefore, we have one. Its members are: Art Carlson, 1st trombone; Rosalie Rosendahl, 2nd trombone; LaVohn Josten, 3rd trombone; Lynn Huenemann, baritone horn; Fred Arnold, 1st cornet; Val Stromer, 2nd cornet; Carroll Priebe, 3rd cornet; Chuck Bacon, 4th cornet; and Jo Anne Jacobs, tympans. This group hasn't practiced as yet, so we won't venture a prediction as to how they will do in contest, but we have hopes.

Senior Class News

We went over the English test on pronouns yesterday and then we checked our papers on diagraming sentences using the subject, verb, adjective and adverb. The only new constructions for today's lesson on diagraming are transitive verbs and prepositional phrases.

In American history we are always getting interrupted by class meetings, etc. The only thing that we did so far this week was watch a current event movie.

For today's assignment in bookkeeping we are answering the questions in back of the chapter on payroll accounting records and reports. We have to be able to tell how to record the payroll in the combined cash journal, how to record the employer's share of old age benefit taxes, and how to record state and federal unemployment taxes.

In business law yesterday we had three tests over forms of an agreement, what relation the third party has on a contract, and how contractual duties may be discharged. Today we answered the questions about all the types of remedies that you can take up in case of a breach of contract. Tomorrow we are supposed to get a unit test over the last four chapters.

In typing we have been having spelling words and their meanings. We are also working on typing deeds and mortgages.

In speech we are preparing to give a speech to inform. We have to run all over the school for information and look for material to write about.

Geometry: We are learning to prove the answers to problems by logical reasoning. In algebra II we are computing problems by logrithms. These give you approximate answers.

Chemistry: Last Friday there was a combination of zinc sulfide, sulfer dioxide, and hydrogen sulfide emanating from the science room. Maybe this doesn't sound bad, but being that zinc cloride has a very strong odor, sulfer dioxide smells like burning rubber (only worse) and hydrogen sulfide has the pungent odor of very old and rotten eggs, the chemistry class was the source of many very pointed comments for the rest of the day. Pity the poor sophomores, they had to stay in the room for an hour after the chemistry class left.

Gossip Around KHS

Say Betty, whose ring are you wearing? It couldn't be Harold Boomgarden from Mason City, could it?

Who did Jeanne Barz go to the school dance with Friday night? I hear she also went to the show with him Sunday night. It couldn't be Roger Jonson, could it?

What's this we hear about Eva Thiemann having four or five boys take her home Saturday night? Isn't one a night enough? Better watch it, Eva.

It sounds like Myrna Barz and Joyce Thiemann had a lot of fun at the Ventura sweetheart dance. It couldn't be because of boys by the name of Larry Bacon and Richard Westscott, could it?

It looks like Keith and Joyce are going together again. "An old flame can come to life again." How about that, Keith?

I wonder if we heard right when we heard that Chuck Bacon and Margaret Pringnitz were with Val Stromer and Cozette Lau after the Sock-Hop Tuesday night. Things come about rapidly you know.

Ell Midgets Hold First Tractor Meeting Feb. 8th

The meeting was opened by a talk on tractor safety. The speaker was Bud Krier, a field representative of the Minneapolis-Moline Company. Carold Larson is the Dealer.

The next topic was what makes an engine run. This topic was explained by Fred Arnold, the Oliver dealer in Klemme.

Both speakers did an excellent job telling us about their subjects and I think all 4-H members and Dads learned a lot from them.

Our next meeting will be February 27th at which time half of the club will go to Fred Arnolds and the other half to Carold Larson's for our next tractor school.

Liberty Busy Bees

The meeting was called to order by the president. The minutes of November and December meeting were read and approved. We decided to contribute $10 toward a new table and mirror for the Junior Fair. The club was invited to a skating party February 2nd at Belmond by Avery boys' club. A talk was given by June Mayland and a demonstration was given by Nancy Farquhar. Lunch was served.

Liberty Go Getters Stage Dad's Night

Dad's night was held by the Liberty Go Getters 4-H club, February 6th at the home of Roger, Lloyd and Gordon Pringnitz.

A chili supper was served by Mrs Lloyd Pringnitz, Mrs Kenneth Zwald, Mrs Walbert Mayland and Mrs Leo Jass with the help of the boys and girls of the club.

The club has a new member, Jimmy Brouwer.

A demonstration "Tractor Maintenance" was given by John Farquhar and Donald Hrubes. Terry Peck, a John Deere Mechanic from Garner gave the members some good pointers on tractor safety and maintenance.

The club finally got out of debt by paying a bill of $14.49.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

Three miles out of town, just as the first dishwater light of dawn was mixing in the west, a young man driving home from an all-night dance, closed his eyes and went to sleep.

Ten minutes later, a highway patrolman awakened to the ringing of his telephone and listened to the night marshal's quick report of a "bad one about three miles out."

"Call Doc and tell him to grab his bag and be on his corner in five minutes," the patrolman said. "I'll pick you up coming through town." Five minutes later, a racing patrol car skidded to two quick stops in town and roared out onto the highway.

The patrolman had hardly finished his radio call for an ambulance and a wrecker before they sighted the scrambled wreck of the car, piled against a bridge abutment.

The driver was alive and conscious but horribly injured. The doctor reached through the broken window and gave him a shot in the neck, then the patrolman and the marshal started breaking into the twisted wreck with crowbars.

They had just cleared away to the driver when the ambulance pulled up and the doctor and the victim were on their way to the nearest hospital. Two more patrolmen arrived just ahead of the wrecker and took charge while the first patrolman sped back to town.

There he aroused the minister of the victim's church and took him to the home of the boy's parents to break the news. Since he had blood on his uniform the patrolman stayed in the car.

When the dazed parents stumbled out of their house and into their car, the patrolman led them quickly through early morning traffic to the hospital. They were there a half hour before their son died. The partolman drove on home to change clothes and get ready to go on duty for the day.

$300 Scholarships for Some High School Seniors

Two $300 Federal Land Bank scholarships will be provided again this year for high school seniors who enroll in the Division of Agriculture at Iowa State College this fall.

The scholarship program is sponored by the 68 National Farm Loan Association in Iowa and the Federal Land Bank of Omaha, according to Art Buffington, secretary-treasurer of the United National Farm Loan Association. Mr Buffington said the scholarship program has been in effect for four years and is planned to be continued in coming years. He encouraged high school students other than seniors to work toward the posssibility in their senior year

The intent of the scholarship is to encourage boys of outstanding ability to continue their education in agriculture.

Application blanks are available from vocation agriculture teachers, county extension directors, high school superintendents, and at the local National Farm Loan Association offices. Applications should be submitted to the Division of Agriculture, Iowa State College, Ames, April 10, 1956

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

After the sharpest rise in 3½ years, 2 weeks ago, the hog market has settled down to more of a trading basis, according to Francis-A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. He says that marketings are more in line with previous expectations, being greater than last year.

During the week ending January 26th, Kutish reports that the hog markets received 26 percent fewer hogs than the week before. This was 4 percent under a year ago, but marketings now are near mid-January levels, about 20 percent greater than last year.

The sharp cut-back in hogs late in January also affected the dressed meat markets. Kutish states that pork loins were boosted upwards from $5 to $6 per hundred pounds. In contrast with the increase in fresh pork, cured cuts, ham, bellies and the like, showed increases of only 1 to 2½ cents per pound.

Another effect of this cut-back in marketings pointed out by Kutish is the narrowing of the price spread between Chicago and interior markets. As an example of this, he compares the Dec 1 prices on top butcher hogs —$11 at Sioux City and $11.75 at Chicago—with last week's top of $15 in Sioux City and $14.75 in Chicago.

This country's dairymen also appear to be well on the way toward establishing another new record this year. Output per cow is at an all-time high, and Kutish predicts that total production probably will mark a new record.

Although milk consumption is above last year, Kutish says that production is still exceeding consumption. With a possible surplus of milk facing the dairy industry this year, the current outlook hinges upon the support levels which Secretary Benson will announce for the marketing year beginning April 1.

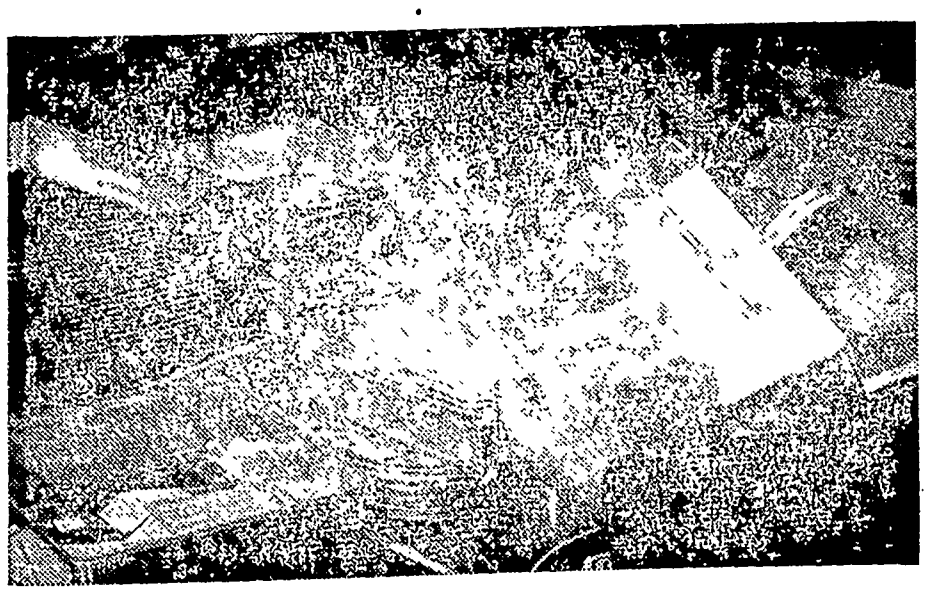
For Baking—

Choose Pans With Care



For consistent baking success, choose the right pans, use them in the correct way and give them proper care.

Baking can be lots of fun. But it can create some bitter disappointments. What's more heartbreaking than an expected houseful of company—and a miserable baking failure just out of the oven? You wonder, "What could have happened?" Specialists say it could have been one of many things.

As you know, your baking success depends upon accurate meaurement of ingredients and correct methods. But it also depends upon some points to which you may not have given much thought—such as the pan you use for your batter and the placement of that pan in the oven.

According to Jewel Graham, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College, these apprently unimportant factors can mean the diference between a perfect baked product and a complete failure.

For example, if you are baking a cake and the pan is too large for the amount of batter, the cake won't brown properly. Or, if your cake turns out with poor volume and running over the pan's sides, you've probably filled your pan too full.

SIZE OF PAN

Since the pan's size can be a critical factor, be sure to look for standardized markings when you shop for pans. For instance, you can find stanardized round layer cake pans 8 x 1½ inches, 8⅜ x 1¼ inches, 9 x 1½ inches and 10 x 1½ inches. You may be surprised to know that an 8⅜ x 1¼ inch pan holds less batter than the 8 x 1½ inch size—and that 10 x 1½ inch pan holds about one and one-half times as much as the 8 x 1½ inch size. You'll also see standard sized pan in square and oblong shapes, cooky sheets, jelly roll pans, loaf pans, muffin pans, pie pans, casseroles and custard cups.

PAN MATERIALS

Different pan materials vary in their abilities to absorb heat and to transmit heat to foods being cooked. Usually highly polished metal pans, such as bright finished aluminum, reflect heat so they produce a lighter browning.

If you want your cake to have tender, light brown crust, bake it in bright aluminum, shiny new tin or glass. If you use glass, remember it is such a good conductor of heat you should reduce the oven's temperature by 25 degrees.

Perhaps it's cookies you are baking. They require the moderate browning produced by polished materials such as aluminum or tin. If your tin cooky sheet has become darkened, watch out! It's apt to produce over-browned or burned cookies. For pies and breads which require well browned crusts, glass or evenly darkened tin will give optimum browning results.

The condition of the pans used affects baked goods, too Uneven baking and browning may be the results of using a warped or unevenly darkened pan. If your pans are dented or scratched, it is probably time to replace them, for this ailment can cause sticking.

To keep your pans in top-notch condition, uses them only for what they are intended (cake pans for cakes, cooky sheets for cookies, etc).

PLACEMENT IN OVEN

Take care to place pans in the oven so they won't interfere with heat circulation. your cooky sheet must be enough smaller than the oven so there's at least 1 inch on every side between pan and oven wall.

If you're baking a single pan of food, such as a single layer of cake, use this ideal oven position. Place the pan in the center of a rack so the pan's center is midway between the top and bottom of your oven.

Perhaps you'll need two racks. If so, place one rack slightly above the center and the other slightly below it. Arrange the pans so they'll touch neither the oven walls nor one another

Legion Auxiliary Reaches 1956 Membership Quota

Marie Blank and Gladys Lewis were hostesses to the American Legion Auxiliary in the formers home on Tuesday evening, February 7th.

Presiding over the meeting was the president, Veletta Schlei. She announced that the unit had reached its membership quota of 78.

Doris Back is to send a gift to Billy Joe at Woodward this month.

The mid-winter conference will be held in Des Moines, February 12-13. It is hoped that delegates from the unit can attend at least part-time.

Members were urged to write to senators and representatives urging them to vote in favor of immigration into the U S in accordance with the McCarran-Walter Act, but to oppose legislative devices to circumvent same or to minimize individual requirements.

We voted to contribute $10.00 to the Polio Fund.

Irene Barz and Judy Johnson were appointed to purchase and send 125 favors to Woodward for March.

A nominating committee, consisting of Carrie Schwichtenberg, Lois Chambers and Margaret Thomas are to select a candidate for county vice president.

Leafy Coobs resigned, as equipment chairman. Another chairman will be appointed soon.

The Auxiliary will hold a bake sale on the afternoon of February 25.

The athletic banquet, which the unit will serve, was discussed and some committees were appointed.

This being the month for special emphasis on Americanism, the chairman, Nellie Arnold, gave a very interesting report on Americanism.

Lunch was served by the hostesses following the meeting.

Obituary of Mr. Dwight R. Hummel

Mr. Dwight R. Hummel, son of Leroy and Maude Hummel, was born on December 15, 1903, at Elliot, Iowa.

He attended rural schools in the Elliot area, and while attending the high school there, he was a member of the southwest Iowa championship football team of 1919.

In the spring of 1920, he moved with his mother and brother to a farm near Klemme. In 1928, he began tank wagon service and distributed petroleum products to the people of the Klemme territory until the fall of 1954.

He was united in marriage to Gertrude Carpenter by Rev. Harry Herlein on November 11, 1943, and the couple established their home in Klemme.

He was baptized and received into membership of the Klemme Methodist Church by Rev. Hershel E. Harvey. He attended church services with regularity and served as Sunday School teacher, chairman of the organ committee, and member of the church board.

In October, 1954, Dwight purchased the Westside Automatic Laundries at Waterloo, and he and his family have lived there since that time.

On January 19, 1956, he underwent surgery at Schoitz Hospital in Waterloo, and although he received careful medical attention, it was to no avail and he was called to his eternal reward on February 13, 1956, having reached the age of 53 years, 1 month, and 29 days.

He was a devoted husband and loving father and leaves to mourn his passing, his wife Gertrude; three daughters, Joyce, Janice (Mrs. Robin White) of Cedar Falls, and Jo Ann (Mrs. Harry Peters) of Kanawha; a brother, Hugh of Klemme; three grandchildren, Jay Allan White, Roger Alan Peters, and Russell John Peters; and many other relatives and friends.

He was preceded in death by his parents and an older sister who died at birth.

County Corn Acreage Allotments Announced

Hancock County's corn acreage allotment for 1956 is 104,859 or 17,316 acres (14.17%) less than for 1955, it was reported this week by Jesse Smith, chairman of the county ASC committee.

Every county in Iowa will have a smaller allotment this year as a result of the Iowa and national allotments being reduced because of the all-time record supply of corn now on hand in the United States. However, the Iowa and national allotments were still lower in both 1940 and 1941.

The state allotment for 1956 is 8,201,379 acres, as compared with 9,636,620 in 1955 and 9,063,929 in 1954. In 1940, the state allotment was 8,193,000 and in 1941 it was 8,184,000.

Chairman Smith said that computation of actual corn acreage allotments for individual farms of the county will be started immediately so that notices can be mailed out to farmers by March 2 at the very latest.

As in 1954 and 1955, only farmers who comply with their individual corn acreage allotments will we eligible for price support on corn produced this year. Nearly 51 percent of the farms of Iowa were in compliance in 1955 to lead all of the heavy corn producing states. In Hancock County, 58 percent of the farms were in compliance in 1955.

Corn acreage allotments of neighboring counties for 1956 and 1955 follow: Wright County's acreage allotment for 1956 is 109,193 as compared with 128,778 in 1955; Cerro Gordo County's 99,953 in 1956 and 116,075 in 1955; Winnebago County's, 72,487 in 1956 and 84,885 in 1955 and Kossuth County's 178,043 in 1956 and 209,445 in 1955.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

It's going to be nice to have Highway 69 widened, even though there is going to be some inconvenience to motorists while the work is in progress. The inconvenience will be only slight, but in the minds of some drivers it will seem as though the whole project is designed specifically to delay them for a moment or two.

Work on the Iowa River bridge south of town has progressed to the point where one-way traffic is necessary, so traffic lights have been installed at both ends of the bridge, allowing vehicles to cross from only one direction at at a time. We are quite certain that the lights do not stay green in favor of either direction for an over-long period of time, but from the actions of some drivers you would think that it was the most unreasonable thing in the world to want them to obey the signal.

In fact, by spending some time observing the actions of drivers at the bridge, you can get an idea of why there are so many accidents on our highways. Safety organizations and the State Safety Department have used every opportunity to try and impress on people that observance of highway signs and courtesy would go far toward reducing accidents, but apparently a great number of motorists think that their own ideas are better.

Warning signs are posted almost a half-mile from the bridge in either direction, as well as several other signs designed to slow the driver down and get him prepared for the fact that he is coming to a congested area . . . so what happens?

Some drivers actually obey all the signs, and respect the traffic lights, but oh, the others! They breeze right into the area as though there had been no warning at all, disregard the stop light if there is no traffic directly in their way, honk at civilized drivers who are obeying the signals, and in general act as though they had no respect for anything or anybody, and should have been where they are going yesterday . . . and so far as we're concerned, maybe they are right, for there is an old saying about going to a "warmer climate" in a hand basket.

Main trouble with that deal is, though, they usually take some innocent person, or persons, along.

We heard of one driver who stopped for the light, only to have his car smacked from behind by a car of a motorist who was following him. Not only that but the driver of the rear car was real huffy and wanted to know why the first driver had stopped. Number one asked what he had expected him to do with a red light smack in front of him, and number two said that he certainly hadn't expected him to stop.

And we wonder why there are so many accidents.

And while once again on the subject of driving, we would like to drop a gentle reminder

Shamrocks Take Easy Win From Mitchell In First Round of Tourney

The Klemme Shamrocks had easy going when they tangled with Mitchell in the first round of the sectional tournament at Mason City, Tuesday night, and wound up on the long end of an 87-18 score.

Some sort of a record must have been set when Mitchell was held without a field goal for the first 13 minutes of the game. They didn't get their next field goal until the Shamrock regulars gave over to the reservees in the third quarter, and even then the reserves outscored the Mitchell team 21-11 for the rest of the game.

The Shamrocks led 51-7 at the half and were out in front and still going away at 66-7 when Coach Westberg sent in the reserves. Haefner led the Shamrock scoring with 21 points, while Kramer had 17, Brinkman 12, and Terhufen 11. Eleven of the twelve men who appeared for Klemme broke into the scoring column, as the Shamrocks extended their season record to 21-4.

Mitchell closed out their season with a 6-12 record.

Next action for the Shamrocks will be Thursday night in the second round of the sectional when they meet Plymouth. Plymouth earned their right to play in the second round by downing Orchard 62-54, Tuesday night.

If they get by Orchard, they will meet the winner of the Rudd-Rock Falls game in the finals Saturday night, with the winner advancing to district play.

Service Were Sunday For Mrs. DeMerritt

Funeral services for Mrs William L DeMerritt, 46, of Belmond were held Sunday afternoon from the Klemme Methodist Church with Rev John Datema, pastor of the Full Gospel Church north of Klemme, officiating. Interment was in Memorial Park Cemetery at Mason City. Fulton Funeral Home of Belmond was in charge of arrangements for the funeral.

Mrs DeMerritt, who had been ill for about a week with a chest congestion, was found dead Thursday morning by members of her family, apparently having passed on during the night while asleep.

Ida Alice DeMerritt, nee Ax, was born February 8, 1910 in Liberty Township, Hancock County, the youngest daughter of William and Lydia Ax. On July 15, 1937, she was united in marriage to William L DeMerritt. To this union four children were born. They range from six to seventeen years of age.

Mrs DeMerritt reached the age of 46 years and nine days, and leaves to mourn her passing, her husband; two sons, William L, Jr, and Roger; two daughters, Beverly, and Marcille; three brothers, Irvin of Klemme, Elmer of Chicago, and Lloyd of Brownsville, Texas; a sister, Pearl (Mrs J M Neuberger) of Brownsville, Texas; and her mother, Mrs Lydia Ax of Klemme.

Winnebago Council Employs New Executive

Herb Ohrt, President of the Winnebago Council, announced today, that the Executive Board has employed Donald R Smith of Joplin, Missouri, as Field Executive serving Hancock, Franklin, Wright and Winnebago Counties. He will move to this area on March 1st.

Mr Smith succeeds Darwyn A Van Gorp who last fall was transferred to the Tall Corn Area Council. Smith is currently employed as Field Scout Executive in the Mo-Kan Area Council with headquarters at Joplin, Missouri, where he began his professional career in Scouting, on January 1st, 1953. He has been a school teacher and principal. He has served as a scoutmaster and as a district commissioner. He is a graduate of the 161st National Training School for Scout Executives.

Smith is married. The couple have two daughters, ages seven and nine. They plan to live at Clarion where a house has been rented for them. The Smiths are active in Church, Sunday School and P T A.

Mr Orht said he feels the Executive Board employed a young man of high caliber, who knows his job and the Scouting Program. Smith's job is a big one, he said. Effectively serving sixty units, representing about 1850 Scouting Families in 25 communities, is an impossible task except through effective County and District volunteer organization. We hope the good people of the counties Smith will serve, will respond to a real opportunity to serve more boys with better Scouting under the new 4 year banner, "Onward for God and My Country".

Shamrocks Down Crystal Lake To Close Season

The Klemme Shamrocks were hosts to Crystal Lake, Friday evening and sent them home on the short end of a 61-52 count to finish out the regular playing season.

Leading 17-11 at the end of the first quarter, the Shamrocks were able to increase that six point margin by only three more points throughout the rest of the game as the stubborn Lakers stayed pretty well up with them.

Haefner led the scoring for the Shamrocks with 18 points, while Kramer and Terhufen each found the hoop for 16. Habbs and Wilson led Crystal Lake with 17 and 15 points respectively.

March of Dimes Nets $362.07 For Polio

According to Mrs David Schwichtenberg, local chairman of the March of Dimes fund drive, the drive in Klemme had brought in $362.07 by Tuesday evening. The money collected in the drive will be used in the fight against polio.

This year's amount exceeds by $54.97 the $307.10 which was collected from last year's drive, and proceeds from the South Ell Tip Toppers 4-H Club Fun Night, which was held last Saturday night, have yet to be added.

Is Second Election For Klemme District

On Monday, February 27th, voters residing within the boundaries of the proposed Klemme Community School District, will go to the polls and vote for the second time on whether or not the district should be formed.

On February 8, 1954, voters first cast their ballots on the new school district proposal and approved the measure 603 - 63. Then, after the district was formed, suit was brought against it with the plaintiffs alleging that the district was illegally formed. The District Court ruled against the plaintiff and the case was appealed to the Iowa Supreme Court, where the decision was reversed due to a jurisdictional technicality.

As a result of the Supreme Court ruling, all of the work of reorganization had to be done again, so petitions were circulated, hearing held, and all the necessary steps leading up to a vote on the proposal were taken. As a result, the election will be held on Monday and proponets of the new district are looking for a large and favorable vote.

If the vote on the proposal is favorable, then within a few weeks an election will be held to pick a board of directors for the new school. Then, barring adverse legal action, the Klemme Community School District should again come into being on July 1st of this year.

Co-op Oil Ass'n Held Annual Meeting In Garner Wednesday

The annual meeting of the Hancock County Oil Ass'n was held at the Memorial Building in Garner last Wednesday night, February 15th, with an estimated 400 persons in attendance.

An election was held which left all directors and officers who served the association in 1955, still in office for 1956. Roy Railsback of Garner is manager and treasurer of the association which serves a large area in this county and the western edge of Cerro Gordo County.

Local men who are directors of the association are Carl Willie, Alvin Goll, and Elmer Anderson. Local employees are Emory Weaver and Graydon Back, tank wagon and service men, and Henry Kaduce, Kenneth, and Don Alden, station employees.

Goodwill Truck

The Goodwill Truck will be in Klemme on March 6th to pick up the discarded clothing, toys, and shoes for the handicapped workers at Goodwill Industries. These discarded household items are the material worked on by the handicapped as they attempt to help themselves.

The Goodwill Industries operates on the principle that the Handicapped person doesn't want Charity, But A Chance. When discarded clothing is contributed to the Goodwill, the contributor is giving some handicapped person a chance to work his way back to a job in private industries.

Anyone having articles to give to the Goodwill Industries may leave them at the home of Mrs Martha Bredbenner.

• RANDOM THOUGHTS

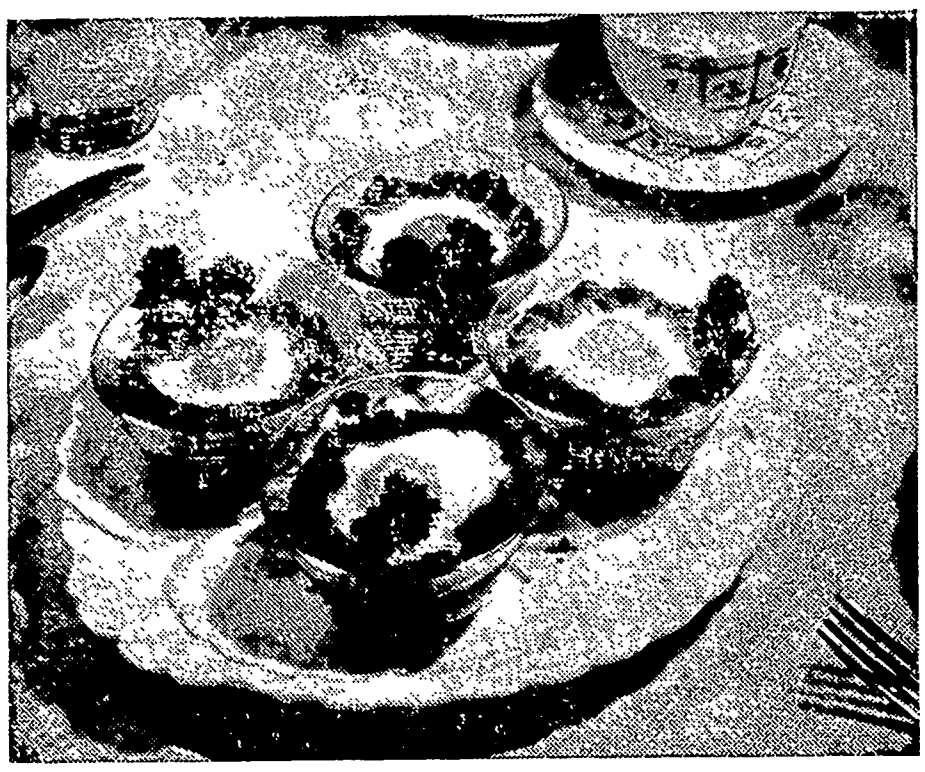
that some people insist on too much speed on our main street. We doubt if some of the offenders know how fast they are driving. They would probably be surprised if apprehended for speeding, but they should get it.

Our dining roof window looks out on the intersection at the southwest corner of the park and we often see drivers who should know better, ignore stop signs and drive right out onto the main street. We have even seem them drive right on through when a small child has been ready to cross the street. All we can say is that it is a good thing that the children involved have had sense enough not to trust their supposedly responsible elders.

We know that all of us who drive make our mistakes and that given the right set of circumstances a mistake can be fatal, but the driver who constantly ignores the regulations which have been made for his safety, who fails to see the need for any courtesy, and who habitually drives with "both feet in the carburetor" is really asking for it. Chances are he'll get it, too.

Be Nutrition-Wise—

Put Plentiful Eggs to Many Uses



For variety, you might try baked eggs in hash as shown above. Simply break an uncooked egg into each portion of hash, season and top with a bit of melted butter. Then pop into the oven for 15 minutes at 350 degrees F.

It's anybody's guess about which came first—the chicken or the egg . . . But regardless of which was first to arrive, it's pretty well established by nutrition experts that eggs place "first" nutritionwise— and you should remember them as you do your daily meal planning.

MULTI-NUTRIENTS

Eggs provide protein for building and repairing body tissues, and fat for energy and other important body roles, according to Leslie Smith, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College.

Bone formation and construction of red blood cells are two other tasks eggs do efficiently because of their high mineral content. Top vitamin contributors, they make for improved over-all health.

HIGH PRODUCTION

Eggs are plentiful this time of year, according to Department of Agriculture market specialists. Because of cool weather, the proportion of top-quality eggs in the total production is large—and lots of the available eggs are large in size.

Most of the eggs you buy during this winter season have delicate yellow yolks—which means they are ideal for your omelets, custards, cakes and other family favorites.

As time passes and spring production of eggs comes along, more eggs will have a deep yellow yolk because hens are being fed on green feed. Remember, however, that the shade of yellow is no indication of the yolk's vitamin A value. In this era, most hens are fed scientifically, so they get a full quota of nutrients the year around.

BUYING TIP

When you buy eggs, don't worry about the shell color. White, brown and yellowish eggs are of equal cooking quality and nutritional value if they are of the same grade. The shell's color simply indicates which breed of hen laid the egg. Remember, your best assurance of quality is the federal grade label. "U. S. Grade A' or 'U S Grade B'. You will find the grade on the egg carton.

Remember, too, that during the winter months, large size eggs usually represent the best buy on the basis of number of pounds per dollar. In late summer, when young hens (pullets) are beginning to lay, small eggs will offer more for your money.

COOKING SUGGESTIONS

Since you are probably using eggs often now—and in a variety of ways—here are some pointers for top cooking results.

Remember to remove eggs from the refrigerator about 45 minutes before you plan to use them. Bringing them to room temperature serves a dual purpose—eggs beat up faster to a larger volume, and you can separate the yolks from the whites with more speed and ease.

FOR TENDERNESS

To produce top-notch tenderness, cook them at low to moderate temperature. High heat and/or overcooking toughens eggs. fl you're making a custard or sauce and plan to use eggs for thickening, this is especially important becauses high temperature and/or overcooking causes curdling or watering. Dishes leavened with eggs such as egg-rich cakes and souffles, will probably fall, turn out with thick, tough crust and be heavy and soggy on the inside if they are cooked at high temperature or overcooked.

LAUNDRY

Every day is laundry day says Mrs Ray Bails of Stanwood. She does about 25 machine loads each week. She's the mother of 14 children.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

OLD AND NEW

It appears that top-of-the-ticket candidates in the 1956 Iowa elections will feature veteran office holders, for the most part, on the Republican ticket, and new faces on the Democratic side.

Of the candidates who have announced early, the Democrats are pinning their victory hopes on new men or candidates who haven't before sought nomination or election as senator, governor or lieutenant governor.

Veteran Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper and Gov Leo A Hoegh will seek reelection on the Republican ticket. It is doubtful that either will be opposed in the party primary. W H Nicholas, who has served one term as lieutenant-governor, is again seeking the GOP nominations. One "newcomer" in the Republican races at this level is Wendell Pendleton, state representative, who is opposing Nicholas. This is Pendleton's first campaign at a statewide level.

On the Democratic side, seeking the senate nomination, are two men never before involved in a statewide contest—R M "Spike" Evans and Lumund Wilcox. Lawrence Plummer, making his first try for the governorship nomination, did campaign two years ago for attorney general. His running mate, if he wins the nomination will be State Sen George O'Malley, making his first race for a top-of-the-ticket spot. No opposition has developed for either Plummer or O'Malley.

First date for filing papers for a state office is March 12, and final filing date is March 31.

CAMPAIGN IS ON

On the day he announced his reelection plans, Governor Hoegh, in response to a newsman's inquiry, said his campaign manager "might possibly" be Russell Lundy, who guided his campaign two years ago. Lundy is now chairman of the Iowa highway commission, an appointment made by the governor after the campaign. Hoegh emphasized, however, the decision had not finally been made on the manager.

Evidence that the 1956 campaigns have already started came soon after the Hoegh press conference, however, when Democratic party chairman, Jake More, imediately pointed to Hoegh's consideration of Lundy and charged that highway commission construction and location "is based on politics".

More said past policy had been "to keep politics out of the management and operation of the highway commission."

WILLIS PASSES

Fred Willis, 74, statehouse custodian and superintendent of the Iowa statehouse building and grounds for many years, died after several months illness.

Willis had retired just a few months ago and was succeeded by Charles Wagner of Des Moines.

DUBUQUE PARK

The Iowa conservation commission is drafting plans for a new state park near the Julien Dubuque grave just south of the city of Dubuque. An acceptable plan for such a park, commission officials said, should be ready very soon. The area may involve about 27 acres.

Such a project has been under dispute for several months. Purchase of the land owned by a Dubuque businessman, Herman Lott, has been under dispute. Originally the state wanted to condemn all the land owned by Lott in which the grave site is located. Objections were raised. The governor and executive council sought to work out a peaceful solution.

The conservation commission has been working on the project for weeks. There is considerable interest in preserving the area where Dubuque is buried on a bluff overlooking the city and the Mississippi river.

SPECIAL SESSION

Governor Hoegh apparently is still intent upon calling a special session of the legislature late this year.

In a Cedar Rapids talk, in response to a question, the governor said he probably would call a special session primarily to act on recommendations to come from the special tax study committee.

Hoegh said: "Other matters may come up in addition to the tax structure action. It might be wise to bring reapportionment up at the same time."

The state tax study committee report isn't expected until September 1.

SOIL BANK SUPPORT

U S Sen Thomas E Martin said that an exhaustive Iowa survey, conducted by his office, indicates that 66.41 percent of Iowans responding to the poll favor President Eisenhower's proposed soil bank program.

Martin said the survey shows that farm prices and politics are considered the number 1 issue before the nation. Two-thirds of those completing questionaires listed the farm price situation as tops.

HITS HIGH PROPS

Allan B Kline, former Benton County farmer, and past president of the American Farm Bureau, in recent midwest speeches, including Iowa, said that "it is fallacy to assume that continuation of high government farm price supports which got us into trouble will get us out."

"As long as we have an excessive surplus, prices will be depressed," Kline said. "Some people are so bankrupt in intelligence that they want to continue the program which collected the surplus."

He said the soil bank plan might work "pretty well for three or four years if we keep our eyes on the ball, expand markets and get rid of surpluses." He said the program should be as voluntary as possible.

JOE LONG DIES

Joe L Long, executive secretary of the Iowa Taxpayers association for 19 years, died in Des Moines. Long retired from the ITA about two years ago.

Long was well known as an authority on taxes and roads. A former Iowa publisher of weekly newspapers, he also had served as campaign manager for the late Gov B F Carroll in 1908.

SAVE WATER

Several speakers at a series of seminar meetings on water resources, held at Iowa State College, warned that Iowa must save water for a dry day, thus reversing the old saw about "saving for a rainy day".

Increasing demands by cities, farmers and industry are causing serious concern over the state's water supply.

H G Hershey, state geologist, reported that while water supplies have been taken pretty much for granted in past years, plans must now be made to conserve supplies and tap new sources.

Farmers are being urged to adopt conservation practices, build more farm ponds, plant fields on the contour, terrace and other ways to hold the water where it falls.

BEER RULING

The Iowa attorney general has ruled that county boards of supervisors may issue or refuse to issue tavern and off-sale beer permits in unincorporated villages within their sole discretion.

CHECK SALES TAX

Agents of the state tax commission have completed a door-to-door check of business houses in Council Bluffs to determine if merchants are collecting the full two-and-a-half percent sales tax. Checks may be made in other cities too.

At Granville Mr and Mrs Barney Koob recently observed their 60th wedding anniversary. They were married at New Vienna, Iowa, in 1896.

Gossip Around KHS

Word is around that Winola is going with Dean B. Could this be so?

We are wondering who the boys from Garner could be that a couple girls from Klemme are writing to?

I wonder if Dave W is still going with Marie. We haven't heard much about them lately.

Could something have happened between Lois and Dick because they aren't going steady anymore.

Say Anita, are you still going with Roger? We haven't heard much about you lately.

It looks like Winola is sure on the go between giving rides and getting rides with Lee. How about that Winnie?

Cackles from the Coop

This week Arthur Carlson and Joyce Thiemann were invited to participate in the Tall Corn Music Conference sponsored by Iowa State Teachers College at Cedar Falls on the 24th and 25th of February. They will play in a 170 piece band directed by Fred Ebbs, director of bands at the State University of Iowa.

Last week the band was very sorry to learn that Joyce Lassahn has been stricken with rheumatic fever and will be out of school for sometime. She was one of the ambitious players in the band and was the only person to have her contest solo memorized this long before contest. Her loss will really hurt come contest time.

This week we will introduce you to the last of our contest ensembles for this year. It is the clarinet trio. Cozette Lau, first clarinet; Dorothy Kroehnke, second clarinet; and Maurine Johnson, third clarinet are the members of this group.

The first American paper mill was erected at Germantown, Pennsylvania, in 1690, the same year that the first American newspaper was attemped.

If you think diagraming is easy just try it. Some of those prepositional phrases really fool a guy as to whether it modifies a verb or a noun. Yesterday we had a short quiz in diagraming. As for the lesson today, we had practice on diagraming sentences with subjective compliments. As for tomorrow in English, we will diagram some more sentences using appositives.

Yesterday, the whole period in bookkeeping was spent taking a unit test over the combined cash journal. To start the new chapter on bad debts, we have some questions at the end of the chapter to fill out.

As for history, we are reviewing for a test over trade unions, immigration, and general reform movements.

It seems as though we are doing the practical problems at the end of each part or else taking some sort of test in business law. Now we are on a new chapter dealing with some sort of agency and we find out what types of agencies are illegal and what are legal.

Geometry: A test provided us with some excitement in geometry. It consisted of proving logically that two triangles are congruent—that is that they are equal in all their parts.

Trigonometry is the new unit we are starting in alegbra. It is the study of measuring angles and distances by computation instead of direct measurement.

This "it" for the first time in speech class. As we give our first round of speeches, our knees are shaking, our notes are rattling in our hands, and our minds are full of facts jumbling around. "Will each of us be able to communicate our ideas?" This is the one question on our minds as each of us approach the podium.

This week we are studying nitrogen and its various compounds and their uses in chemistry. We made nitric acid and, if we are real nice, we might get to make some nitroglycerine (just enough to blow the place up and no more. Any more might be dangerous).

Junior Class News

The Junior Class sure is busy around Klemme High School. At least they act that way. Let's look and see what they've been doing the past week.

We have finished literature and started grammar which has been about using verbs correctly.

Five and ten minute writings, and problems are occupying the time in typing class. We were also given spelling words which we will be given a test over at the end of the week.

In home economics we have been making and "eating" pastries.

I asked one of the boys what they were doing in shop and the answer was "working".

Everyone groaned when Mr Chadwick gave us a test over "The Desert Lands" in geography. He also gave us reports about desert people to be handed in at the end of the week.

Our Visit To The First National Bank

On Friday the 7th grade visited the First National Bank. When we arrived Mr Arnold had made out dummy deposit slips. He let Paul, Sharon and Daryl S pretend to deposit money. They each had a check for $100. When we were finshed. two of them had only $50 because they had written checks for $50.

Mr Arnold then showed us a posting machine which he had an office worker use. The posting machine types off the amount you have on deposit, the amount which has been checked out, and the balance. This is called a bank statement. We were given these samples to take back to school for our bulletin board.

We were shown promissory notes; drafts, which are bankers checks and travelers checks, and they were explained to us. We saw a machine that punches the name of the bank, the date, and the bank's number on a check which has been paid

Mr Arnold showed us a photographing machine that takes pictures of checks and other bank papers. The bank does this to keep a record of checks and papers.

Mr Arnold told us about bonds. He said there were several kinds of savings bonds; E bonds, H bonds, and J bonds. E and H bonds are mostly used. We also learned about savings accounts. He then answered any questions we wanted to ask. For a souvenir, Mr Arnold gave us each a dime.

We enjoyed our visit to the bank very much, and would like to do it again some time.

By Bob Hullihan

Frank was a planner. He always knew where he was going and how he would get there. Being on time was his talent, and he probably never made a purely impulsive move in his 51 years.

People who remember him like to tell how he would pull out a smooth, worn watch, glance at it briefly, then give it a quick, affirmative nod like a man agreeing in perfect understanding with an old friend.

So in love with making closely timed plans was Frank that often when he had to travel the state he would leave his car at home with his wife, preferring to work out neat connections with trains and buses along the way.

That was why he felt so confident and successful that cold afternoon as he sat eating a sandwich in a lunchroom along the highway. He was about to make a clever connection.

He had figured out that by catching a bus at this little waystation, he could arrive at his destination an hour earlier than expected. And that was the sort of thing that made him happy.

The bus was due—out came the watch—in exactly three minutes. Frank picked up his bag, stepped firmly from the lunchroom, and walked to the edge of of the highway where he stood sheltered from the wind by a large truck parked while the driver ate dinner. The bus would stop on the opposite side of the road.

It must have been a minor triumph for Frank when the bus arrived right on time for he stepped out from behind the truck and onto the highway with the long stride of a man who knew exactly where he was going.

But he didn't know. He had no idea. The car that hit him and killed him had not been considered in his plans at all.

Klemme Junior High Wins County Tourney

The Klemme Junior High basketball team last week won the Hancock County Junior High basketball tournament which was played at Crystal Lake.

The local junior high cagers went through this tournament in exactly the same manner as did the Shamrocks when they won the county championship last month.

In their first game the local junior high team defeated Corwith 43-29. In the second round, they downed Britt 30-20, and then in the finals, they ousted Garner 34-14 to win the championship.

Looks like Klemme might have some more good basketball teams coming on in the future

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

The recent United States Department of Agriculture announcement which dropped corn loans 18 cents a bushel can greatly affect the 1956 corn allotment program, Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, predicts. Coming on the heels of a 15 percent cut in corn acreage, it raises the big question of how much participation we can expect in the program.

The results of widespread nonparticipation in the allotment program manifold. If we have a normal crop with little corn eligible for supports, Kutish believes that prices will be depressed. He claims this also will reduce the alternatives for the hog farmers.

Farmers in 1952, according to Kutish, could cut back on hogs becauses of low hog prices and seal their corn. There were no allotments then, nor restrictions on sealing. But this year we have a sizeable cut in allotments and lower loan rates. Since the 1956-57 loan rate for northwestern Iowa will be in the neighborhood of $1.20, the alternative of 1952 no longer exists.

Some farmers, reports Kutish, figure that the above factors next fall may force corn down to 80 cents on the farm in some areas. He therefore expects many farmers to re-evaluate their hog plans because of such price expectations. He adds that 12 cent hogs will be more profitable than selling corn for 80 cents a bushel on the market.

This re-evaluation may be too late to affect the 1956 spring pig crop, but it most certainly could show up is next fall's crop, Kutish suggests.

This low price for corn also would encourage cattle feeding next fall. Short feeding operations probably would increase, with these cattle being marketed late in the year. Thus the fed cattle market under such conditions would peak in mid-fall.

All of these conditions, of course, commented Kutish, may never materialize. He concludes that the corn outlook for next fall depends for the most part on what kind of farm program Congress and the president can agree on within the near future.

"How much better the world would be if we only let Opportunity do all the knocking!"

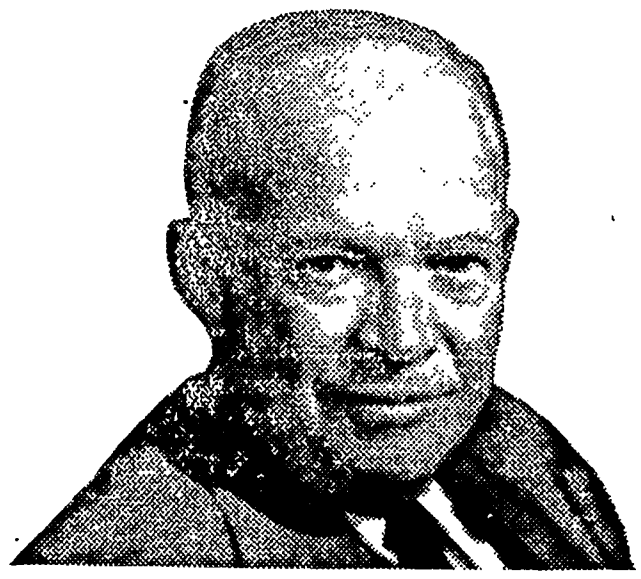
HELP EISENHOWER
pass the new farm program

You will benefit this year if Congress acts before spring planting time



"Although agriculture is our basic industry, farm families find their prices and incomes depressed amid the nation's greatest prosperity.

"... An oversupply of commodities drives down prices as mounting costs force up from below, generating a severe price-cost squeeze.

"... Remedies are needed now, and it is up to the administration and the Congress to provide them swiftly. As we seek to go forward, we must not go back to old programs that have failed utterly to protect farm families.

"... I recommend, therefore, the following nine-point program. I urge the Congress to pass this program with maximum speed, for delay can only aggravate and multiply the difficulties already sorely harassing millions of our rural people."

Dwight D. Eisenhower

From the President's special farm message to Congress.

The Eisenhower-Republican 9-Point Farm Program

1. A VOLUNTARY, 2-POINT SOIL BANK to take 40 to 45 million acres out of production of your problem crops, get rid of the surplus, raise prices.
   An Acreage Reserve which uses the surplus to reduce the surplus.
   A Conservation Reserve to prevent future surpluses and to build back soil for future needs.
2. LAWS TO PERMIT FASTER SURPLUS DISPOSAL especially in foreign markets. Selling, not storage, is the answer.
3. STRENGTHEN COMMODITY PROGRAMS on wheat, corn, dairy products, soybeans, cotton and rice. Ease production controls wherever possible.
4. PROTECT FAMILY-TYPE FARMS by limiting the size of price support loans made to large corporate-type farms.
5. EXPAND RURAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM to help low-income farm families live better, earn more.
6. PUSH FORWARD THE GREAT PLAINS PROGRAM to stabilize income in drought-stricken areas, and to prevent another dust bowl.
7. INCREASE FARM RESEARCH APPROPRIATION to find new uses and new markets for farm crops, lower production costs and increase farm profits.
8. ASSURE ADEQUATE CREDIT TO FARMERS to meet capital needs of present farmers, help young farmers get started, tide farmers over emergencies.
9. REFUND GASOLINE TAX TO FARMERS on motor fuel used in farming operations.

Answers to some of your questions

Q: Why will it work?

A: Because this is a program for farmers by farmers. We asked for, and got, sound advice from hundreds of farm leaders and thousands of farmers everywhere. This program gets at the root of the problem on a practical, non-political basis. It contains no double-talk or bureaucratic theories. It is the most business-like, down-to-earth approach to the business of farming and marketing of farm products this country has ever had.

Q: Why is it a more practical program than others that have been offered?

A: Because it is especially tailored to today's peacetime conditions. It hits right at the problem of price-depressing surpluses built up because of wartime policies too long continued. These surpluses hang over your farm like a hidden mortgage.

Q: Will all farmers benefit?

A: This program will directly benefit all farmers everywhere: producers of food grains, feed grains, oilseed and fiber crops, dairymen and livestock producers. It recognizes the special problems of regional groups and producers of certain crops.

Q: Will this program help strengthen farm prices?

A: Yes. The present mountain of surplus, and the threat of future surplus, now holds down prices. Every farmer realizes that "a government warehouse is not a market." As surpluses are used up prices will inevitably rise. (Marketing people have estimated that net farm income would have been $2 billion higher in 1955 if it were not for the surpluses.)

Q: How much will it help?

A: Hundreds of millions of dollars in payments to farmers can be made this year under the Soil Bank plan alone if passage is not delayed. This is in addition to its effect in strengthening farm prices. Farmers would also get $60,000,000 a year tax refund on gasoline used in their farming operations.

Q: How big is the surplus?

A: The government now holds an $8-billion stock of farm products. We can't shut our eyes to it, throw it into the ocean or plow it under. It costs about a million dollars a day for storage and carrying charges alone.

Q: Why do surpluses drive down livestock prices as well as grain prices?

A: Continued overproduction of grains not only clogs the grain markets but forces continued expansion in an already over-expanded livestock production. Livestock prices as well as grain prices would be higher today if it were not for the surplus.

Q: Why is the new Soil Bank Plan the most sensible approach to the surplus problem?

A: It will get rid of the surplus and prevent future surplus from piling up. It will stop the shift of another farmer's problem crops to your problem crops.

Q: How does the Soil Bank "Acreage Reserve" use the surplus to reduce the surplus?

A: In exchange for placing a portion of their allotted crop acres in the Soil Bank (removing them from production entirely for an agreed period), farmers will receive certificates. These certificates will be good for cash at the bank or for commodities drawn from surplus government stocks. In this way farmers will be using up the surplus instead of adding to it. This part of the program applies to corn, wheat, cotton and rice.

Q: How will the Soil Bank "Conservation Reserve" keep future surpluses from building up?

A: It will take 25 million acres out of all crop and livestock production for several years. This land will be put into grass, trees or water storage. It is voluntary and provides generous incentives for wide-spread participation. It, too, will help livestock producers as well as grain producers since it will reduce the surplus of feed grains that put more and more people into the livestock business.

Q: Are these programs entirely voluntary?

A: Yes. President Eisenhower and the Republican Party believe it is a basic right of every farmer to be free to plan his own farm program and make the best use of his land that he knows how. They also believe that farmers should have the chance to build up their soil without loss of income. The well-being of all Americans, as well as the future prosperity of farmers themselves, depends on maintaining productivity of our soil resources. Farmers who participate will no longer feel that they are forced to farm every acre to the limit, producing crops that aren't needed, in order to keep their income up.

Q: How do I benefit if I put some of my acres in the Soil Bank?

A: You get an opportunity to restore the fertility of your soil and at the same time you are assured of an income from the land you retire. As surpluses are reduced, prices will increase on crops you do produce.

Q: Why will Soil Bank participation help insure my income?

A: It will strengthen your cash position by giving you a guarantee—in effect, income insurance. The acres you take out of production will provide income regardless of drought, flood or other disaster.

Q: How will the Soil Bank help livestock producers?

A: With less feed grains being produced, fewer farmers will feel that they have to raise more livestock to "piece out" their income due to surplus-depressed prices of grain. Participants in the Soil Bank plan will sign an agreement not to graze their diverted acres.

Q: When does it start?

A: Just as soon as the necessary legislation can be enacted. The President has urged all possible speed so farmers can plan their plantings and benefit fully during the present crop year. Your Republican members of Congress are behind the President. They believe the more you know about the program, the more you can help. You can help by writing members of Congress urging immediate action.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Another basketball season has ended as far as the Klemme Shamrocks are concerned, and even though they did lose to Rudd in the finals of the sectional at Mason City, still they had a fine season, had a good time playing the games, learned how to both win and lose, and provided a lot of fine entertainment for basketball fans. Our congratulations to Coach Westberg and his squad.

Apparently no one was very excited about last Monday's school election, but as is the case in nearly every election, those who were against the proposal got out and voted 100 percent, while those who did not particularly care one way or the other stayed at home. Two years ago the vote showed that there was a greater precentage of voters who really wanted the district to be voted into being, but apparently they were more complacent about the whole affair this time.

Ike's announcement of this morning telling of his decision to seek the Republican nomination for president will really start the political show off with a bang. We don't think there is any doubt but what he will be the Republican standard bearer, but when the campaigning starts in earnest for the November election, the Democrats will really be after his scalp.

We wonder how many million people will see Iowa and Illinois play basketball on TV Saturday afternoon? The game could be a decisive one in the outcome of the Big Ten race for this year, and interest is running pretty high. Should be a game well worth watching as both teams have lost only one conference game so far.

No dummy is Clarence Manion, who says that "A constantly swelling government is a sure sign of the moral sickness of the people under it. Governments swell when and because the people shrink."

Then there was the other fellow . . . not so dumb, either . . . who said that the best time to overcome a bad temper is before it gains control.

This has been a good winter for getting around. There have been very few times when the roads were slick, and there have been practically no drifts. However, it seems as though it got cold early this year and has been cold for a long time. Makes us really appreciate these nice warm days when we get them.

Oh well, it will soon be spring, and with it will come warm weather, birds, growing things, fishing poles, golf clubs, baseball gloves, etc., all of which will make us forget about winter until first frost next fall.

Someone offers the following comforting words for those who have at some time or other made a mistake: "A mistake is at least proof that someone was trying to accomplish something."

And another feller says "girls who swear they've never been kissed can hardly be blamed for swearing."

Engagement Announced

Mr and Mrs Elmer Beier of Klemme announce the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Maxine, of Des Moines, and Douglas Dwayne Doolittle, also of Des Moines.

Mr Doolittle is the son of Mrs Bertha Doolittle of Fort Dodge and Milton Doolittle of Des Moines.

Miss Beier is employed by the Boreman Co. and Mr Doolittle is a cost accountant with the Des Moines Implement Plant.

The couple will be married in the early fall.

Klemme grade school will be represented by a sixth grader and an eighth grader in the County Spelling Contest at Garner High School next Saturday morning.

Randall Langlitz of the eighth grade and Larry Johnson from the sixth grade won the elimination contest here Tuesday afternoon. Darrell Kothenbeutel and Shirley Datema won third and fourth places and will enter the contest in Garner if the two principals are not able to attend. The contest starts at 9:30 a. m. and is open to the public.

Will Elect Directors Monday, March 26th

Voters in the proposed Klemme Community School District went to the polls Monday in a repeat performance of an election on a similar proposal held two years ago. Although the vote was not as large in this election, still the outcome was the same as 428 voted in favor and 65 voted against the proposed district. The vote two years ago was 603-63 in favor.

Following the vote of two years ago, the district was formed and had begun operation when an adverse ruling by the Iowa Supreme Court invalidated the district. This made it necessary to again go through all the work of reorganization, which led up to Monday's election again approving the district.

A comparison of the voting in the two elections shows that in Monday's election Klemme Independent voted 246-11 in favor 305-8. Twin Lake voted 44-9 in favor this year while in the previous election the vote there was 57-14. Liberty Township approved the measure 32-26 Monday while previously they had 42 yes votes and 28 no votes. Ell Township was 49-6 this year and 91-3 in the earlier election. Avery Township was in favor 67-14 Monday, and 105-8 two years ago. Belmond Community voters cast five ballots in Monday's election and all were yes votes.

Election returns from the two elections show that those who opposed the forming of the district were able to muster two more votes for Monday's election than they had two years ago, while a great number of the supporters of the district apparently felt that their votes were not needed this time and stayed away from the polls.

This week's issue of The Times carries a notice of special election for the election of directors and treasurer for the newly approved district. This election will be held on Monday, March 26 and voters will elect five directors and a treasurer. Nomination papers for the various directors and the treasurer must be on file in the office of the County Superintendent of Schools not later than ten days previous to the election and must be signed by ten qualified electors of the district.

WILL HOLD CAUCUS

In order that all interested parties in the district might have a part in selecting those who will be on the ballot for the election of March 26th, a caucus will be held at 8 o'clock the evening of March 9th in the high school gymnasium for the purpose of selecting candidates.

The public is urged to attend this caucus so that the best possible candidates can be chosen.

Shamrocks Lose to Rudd in Sectional 48 - 46

End Season With 22 - 5 Record

Although leading by 12-8 at the end of the first quarter and 22-19 at the half, the Klemme Shamrocks were unable to hang on to their lead in the finals of the sectional tournament at Mason City, Saturday night, and lost to Rudd by a score of 48-46. It was not for lack of fight, though, that the Shamrocks were defeated. They were down 8 points with just over two minutes left in the game, but managed to cut the margin to 2 before the final horn.

Big Ron LaFrentz of Rudd was the man who ended the season for the Shamrocks. He was strong off the boards and tossed in seven goals in the second half to finish the game with 24 points. Haefner scored 18 points to lead the Shamrocks, but it was "Butch" Terhufen who almost pulled the game out of the fire with a flurry of late shooting. He banged in four field goals late in the game, the last one coming just before the gun.

The Shamrocks tried hard and fought hard, but in the final period they were missing the services of both Brinkman and Larson who fouled out, and they could not quite get back up to take over the lead.

It was a fine season, though for Coach "Bill" Westberg and his Shamrocks. They finished with a 22-5 record, won the North Star Conference championship, and won the Hancock County Tournament to pile up the best record held by a Klemme team for a number of years.

KLEMME-PLYMOUTH

Last Thursday night in the semi final game of the sectional, the Shamrocks raced away from Plymouth to win by a score of 71-44 after leading 33-20 at the half.

Martin Brinkman had the best night of his career in the Plymouth game. He took charge of a lot of rebounds, played a fine floor game, and banged in 25 points on seven field goals and 11 out of 13 free throws. Haefner managed 23 points for the Shamrocks in the game.

CAPITOL LETTER

POLITICAL DATES SET

The official Democratic and Republican party meetings which are the forerunners to the party's presidential state and national conventions this year have been set.

A long series of caucuses and conventions will begin with the Republican precinct meetings scheduled for not later than March 2 and the Democratic local caucuses on March 26.

Iowans. through these meetings, the county and state conventions, thus will have their say as to who the two major parties will choose as their presidential standard bearers in the '56 general election.

Republican presidential county conventions have been set for March 16, the state presidential convention April 6 and the national convention in San Francisco. August 20.

The Democratic presidential county conventions will be April 6, the state presidential June 1, and the national August 13, in Chicago.

HILL REPORTS

Howard Hill, Iowa Farm Bureau president, in Washington, advised congressional leaders that the "interest of the corn belt farmer must be protected in the 1956 farm legislation."

He recommended three major amendments to the present farm bill now before Congress. He asks removal of allotments on corn, increased appropriations to provide adequate incentives for participation in the soil bank plan, and use of banked acres as a condition to price supports.

The present bill would require farmers to comply with all allotments before they could be eligible for the soil bank.

TAX RETURNS

Farmers paid more individual income tax in the 1954-55 fiscal year than any other occupational group in the state, the Iowa tax commission reports.

Revenue from individual farmers totaled $4,861.183. This total was paid by 79,407 farmers, while a total of 112,601 farmers filed no-pay returns.

From a revenue standpoint, next highest group was laborers where 152.,996 individuals paid a total of $3,960,827. There were 74,644 laborers who filed no-pay returns in the 12-month period.

Total individual revenue collected in the period was $21,-833,411.

NOT IN ACCORD

Two farm leaders, one from the National Grange and one from the National Farmers Union, expressed differing opinions on price supports at the recent National Farm Institute in Des Moines.

Herschel D Newsom, master of the National Grange, said price supports should be used to establish for each commodity a market price at which it could be sold in other countries.

James G Patton, president of the Farmers Union, declared prices should be supported by the government at 100 percent of parity and that farm programs should be geared to the needs of the family type farm.

At the same parley, U S Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson said he cannot and will not suggest measures such as a return to 90 percent of parity support prices.

He said surpluses are the nation's number 1 farm problem and said the administration has been moving soundly and aggressively on a program to aid the farmer.

ROAD BONDS EXEMPT

The federal internal revenue service, in a recent ruling, has declared that interest on Indiana toll roads bonds are exempt from federal income tax.

Iowa officials report the ruling will have an effect on the sale of toll road bonds in this state when and if they are offered for sale. The action may help the price on Iowa bonds, they feel.

The Indiana toll road commission is set up along lines similiar to those in Iowa and hence the same critical points would apply in the interpretation on income tax exemption.

TRAFFIC UP

Traffic on Iowa's primary highways increased 1.67 percent in 1955 over 1954, the Iowa highway commission reports. The traffic count was made at automatic markers located in 25 locations around the state.

The primary traffic was up 2.68 percent above the previous year.

Vehicle traffic on the highway has increased steadily every year since the war.

END OF ERA

Iowa's last interurban passenger train has made its final run. You just can't find them no more.

Last week the Waterloo. Cedar Falls and Northern Railroad completed its last run between Waterloo and Cedar Rapids. That was the last such service in the state. Since the late 20's interurban service had dwindled from the Iowa scene. The Waterloo-Cedar Rapids service had struggled along in recent years until it finally followed the route of all interurban transportation—out.

SALES TAX RECEIPTS

A Council Bluffs city councilman, Joseph Katelman, has proposed that all Iowa state sales tax receipts be used for school purposes.

He urged his city council to take the lead in following a proposal that would refund to local communities of sales tax for exclusive use of public education.

He said all taxing bodies should try to do something that would keep mill levies "where taxpayers can afford to pay them."

JOB SEEKERS

More Iowans are hunting jobs.

An increase of nearly 28 percent in the number of persons seeking job placements in January was reported by the Iowa Employment Service.

New applications for jobs increased 18 percent in January over December. There was a decrease of nearly 8 percent. in increase in new applications, the service said, this results in placements. Combined with the boosting the active application file by 27.7 percent.

MAYORS NOT "IN"

The Iowa Employment Security Commission in a recent interpretation of the state public employee pension system reported, in broad language, that it will not include part-time mayors and part-time town nor city councilmen will not be included for benefits under the state program.

The commission said probably hundreds of mayors would be involved in the interpretation but had no idea exactly how many.

The state legislature last year expanded the filed coverage of the pension system to bring in elective fulltime mayors, but not elective part-time mayors.

Martha Circle Met

Martha Circle of the Klemme Methodist Church will meet at the home of Mrs Carold Larson Thursday afternoon, March 8th. Members are asked to bring an article to be sold at this meeting.

Gossip Around KHS

It looks like because of the basketball tournament, a new romance has started between Larry W and Marvalyn C.

I wonder why a couple of Garner girls were waiting patiently for the Klemme basketball boys to get back Tuesday night. It couldn't be because of Don and Denny, could it?

It seems like the ballgame on Friday night turned out to be quite a success for Ruth and Rosalie. We saw them walk out the door with Jay G and Art W from Garner.

I wonder how long Gary can stay mad at Shirley? It seems like two weeks is his limit. Don't pay any attention to him, Shirley he'll get over it.

I wonder how long some of the junior boys will have their new class rings? Probably just long enough to get the newness worn off.

Senior Class News

The first part of this week we had a test over trade unions, immigration, and reform movements. Now in history, we are studying how the farmers overcame some of their serious problems, such as high tariffs, high transportation rates and low wages, through the grangers.

Are you looking up definitions to hard complicated words? We are just doing that now in business law. We are expecting a test over the definitions in the near future.

Last week we were diagraming participles and gerunds, but it seems this week we are diagraming infinitives in English. In our workbook we have done several exercises, which were underlining the infinitives and telling what parts of speech they were.

It seems as though the farther we get in bookkeeping the more complicated it gets. Fixed assets is the main subject matter now. We figure the depreciation of fixed assets and then we enter depreciation expense and allowances for depreciation in the general cash journals.

Then we have to figure what to enter in the cash journal when you trade an old fixed asset for a new fixed asset; when you discarded a fixed asset and when you when you sell a fixed asset. Complicated! ! !

The chemistry class has been studying N2O, NO, NO2N4, HNO3 (nitrogen oxides), and red and white phosprous. Sorry, no stinks to report this week.

We have been studying the various axioms, postulates and theorems that can be used to prove triangles congruent and ways to use them. The advanced alegbra class has started the study of trigonometry by learning how to find the tangent and the logarithmic tangent angles.

We finished our information speeches and are now starting another kind of information speech. We are now collecting material for this speech.

I Wonder?

Is there anything more - - - frustrating than to have a carload of boys ask you for a ride one day and let you walk the next?
amusing than Denny, Dave, Don and Butch riding around on Denny's scooter at noon?
entertaining than to watch Coleen and Herb at the ball game?
enjoyable than to win a ballgame by 69 points?
aggravating than staying in a motel on the edge of Des Moines rather than in the heart of the city while attending the girls' state tournament?
fascinating than the television emcee who eats his sponsor's product in front of the camera and thinks he looks like he's enjoying it?
nauseating than having to sit in that cold English room?

The director of the band will be Edwin Franko Goldman, one of the most prominent band directors in the country and conductor of the famous Goldmon Band of New York City. Don McCatren, Education Representative of the Le Blanc Instrument Company will criticize reed solos and ensembles, and Carleton Stewart of Mason City, past president of the National High School Band Association, will criticize brass solos and ensembles. The band will be composed of students from Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Iowa, and, if past performance holds true, should be very good.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

We step aside this week and give place to an unknown Japanese who managed to give a safety message more charm—if less grammar—than any we have ever read.

This is reprinted from Public Safety magazine and was taken from "an old Japanese digest of traffic laws and ordinances."

"At the rise of the hand of policeman, stop rapidly. Do not pass him by or otherwise disrespect him.

"When a passenger of the foot hove in sight, tootle the horn trumpet to him melodiously at first. If he still obstacles your passage, tootle him with more vigor and express by word of mouth the warning 'Hi, Hi'!

"Beware of the wandering horses that he shall not take fright as you pass him. Do not explode the exhaust box at him. Go soothingly by, or stop at the roadside till he pass away.

"Give big space to the festive dog that make sport in the roadway. Avoid tanglement of the dog wih your wheel-spokes. Go soothingly on the grease-mud, as there lurk the skid-demon.

"Press the brake of the foot as you roll around the corner to save the collapse and the tie-up".

Here the excerpt ends. Some of the advice is good and some of it impractical. We can't see, for example, pulling to the side of the road and waiting for a horse to die.

But we like this easy, poetic view of traffic and wish it were possible today. What a happy situation if all "tootles" were melodious; if we could all "go scothingly by."

Pike Loses Head—So Does Waterloo Angler

A couple of Tripoli ice fisherman pulled a fast one on their Waterloo friends recently.

One of the Tripoli anglers had a 14-pound northern pike—caught in Canada last summer—in his home food freezer. One day he cut the head from the fish and took it to Sweet's Marsh, a near-by area famed for its pike fishing. Arriving at the marsh he tossed the head to his buddy, who caught it and casually dropped it on the lake.

Sometime later a Waterloo fisherman happened by, looked at the big pike's head, and gasped, "Man, did you catch that?"

"I sure did," was the answer.

"How much did that fish weigh?"

'Oh, about 14 pounds, I guess. I didn't weigh it."

So if you hear any stories about the wild northern pike fishing at Sweet's Marsh, forget 'em. But it does sound like they are catching some suckers up there . . .

Only Half of Accidents Involve Two Vehicles

Less than half of last year's 510 fatal traffic accidents in Iowa involved collisions between motor vehicles, the state safety department reported today.

Clinton Moyer, state safety commissioner, said 223 fatal accidents occurred when cars or trucks collided, 214 occurred when cars hit fixed objects, overturned, or ran off the highways, and 73 accidents were pedestrian or car-train accidents.

Moyer said the number of non-collision fatal accidents indicates that "individual failure to adjust to road conditions is one of our most serious problems."

Of the 606 persons killed last year, 235 in non-collision accidents compared to 214 in 1954. Moyer's report was based on a summary of fatal accidents in 1955 just released by the safety department.

According to the report, 753 drivers were involved in the fatal accidents last year. Sixty-five of them were driving faster than 70 miles-per-hour when the accidents occurred.

Ninety-nine of the drivers had been drinking, 35 apparently fell asleep at the wheel, and 90 were residents of other states, according to the report.

The 606 deaths last year were six less than in 1954.

There'll be whiskers in Belmond in about a month. Men of the "Whisker Club" will start beards April first, to advertise the town's coming centennial.

Annual Meeting Marks 25th Anniversary of Experimental Farm

The annual meeting of the Northern Iowa Experimental Association will be held at Kanawha March 8th. It will mark the 25th anniversary of the Northern Iowa Experimental Farm there, according to County Extension Director Paul Henderson.

All Hancock County farmers are invited to attend the meeting, Henderson said. It will begin at 10 a. m. with the annual stockholders' meeting and auditor's report. Following this will be talks on "New and Old Herbicides for Crops," "Oat Breeding—Past, Present and Future" and "Insect Control in Crops". The talks will be given by Iowa State College specialists, D W Staniforth, R E Atkins and Harold Gunderson. H D Hughes, former head of farm crops at Iowa State College, will speak at the noon meal.

After dinner, Iowa State specialists Gerald L Barger, Wallace E Ogg and J L Stritzel will speak. They will talk about "Weather Risks for 1956," "The Soil Bank Plan" and "Fertilizer Practices for 1956". Staniforth will follow the talks with the Northern Iowa Experimental Farm's annual progress report.

According to Henderson, the Northern Iowa Agricultural Experimental Association was formed 25 years ago to meet the need for a suitable place to carry on field experiments on disease control in northern Iowa. The Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station plots at Ames did not lend themselves to the study of many problems occurring in northern Iowa. This was due to the difference in soil and environmental conditions in the two sections.

Nominations Open For Master Swine Producers In Hancock County

Nominations are being received now in Hancock County for entrants in the 1956 Iowa Master Swine Producers Project, according to Extension Director Paul Henderson of Garner.

He says the name of any market hog producer may be submitted for this honor. If you have a neighbor, friend or member of your family who you believe does an outstanding job of market hog production, or if you would like to enter your own name in the project, Extension Director Henderson suggests that you report this to the extension office in Garner as soon as you can.

The nominations may also be presented through your local high school vocational education instructor, veterans vocational instructor, and of the directors of the Iowa Swine Producer's Association or directly to the Animal Husbandry Extension Service at Iowa State College, to Radio Station WHO at Des Moines or to the Iowa Swine Producers' Association at Des Moines.

Extension Director Henderson says all nominations should be made by June 1. The earlier the entry is made, the better, so that the required records can be kept. A producer must have raised hogs himself at least 5 years to be eligible for the project. He must have at least 10 sows, and all sows must have farrowed by June 1.

In determining noteworthy achievement, the amount of pork produced per sow and the total amount of pork produced will form the basis for consideration. Consideration is also given to the consistency and general ability of the swine producer.

Each producer's record will be considered on its merit. The 25 Iowans who appear to the committee of five judges, to have turned in the best accomplishments will receive public recognition during the fall of 1956.

In past years, men from Hancock County who have received recognition as Iowa Master Swine Producers have included Clark Lackore of Garner, John Hill of Kanawha and Gerald Burk of Goodell.

Supervisors Award Contracts; Approve Official Bonds

Hancock County Supervisors Monday awarded the contract for the printing of 300 copies in booklet for the 1955 financial for Hancock County to the Kanawha Reporter at a letting held at the courthouse on Monday. The Reporter's bid was low among four filed and was $5.75 per page.

There were no bids on file for the medical care and medicine for the County Home for the ensuing year and the board ordered the county auditor to set a new date of letting and to advertise for bids.

The board approved the official bonds of Earl Eox, as special Deputy Sheriff to act as dog catcher in Hancock County, the contractors bond of Earl Stille, Garner contractor, for a contract on Hancock County drainage district No. 1 and 2, and the bonds of Collins, Thompson and Willis of Algona, for the engineering on the same project. Morton W Bittinger, of Algona, for the construction engineer on the project. He is employed by the engineering firm of Collins, Thompson, and Willis.

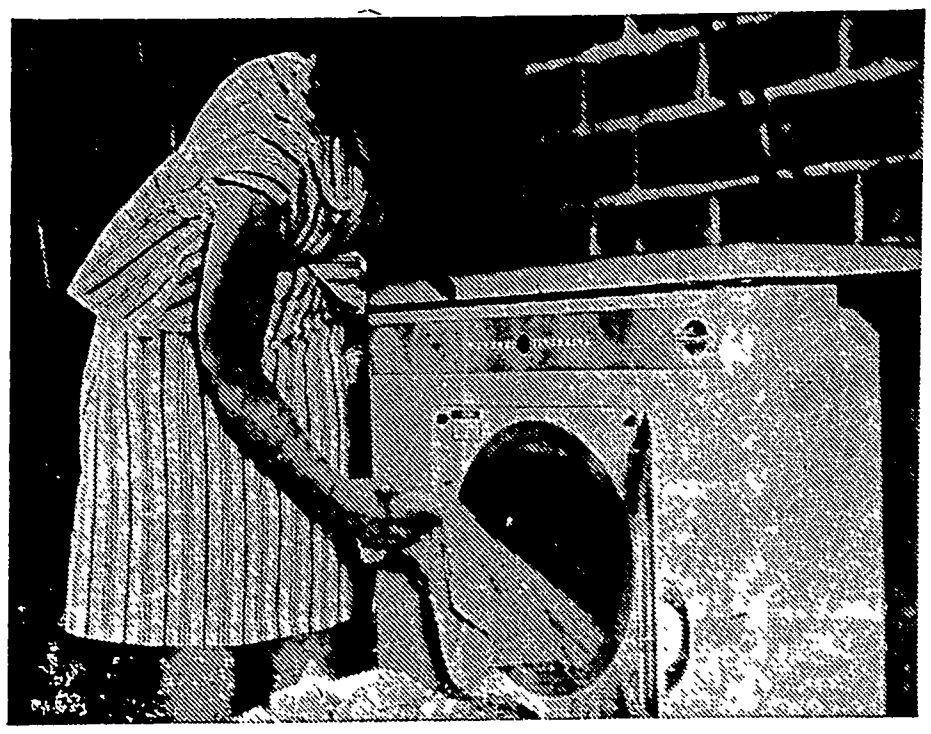
To End Tattle-Tale Gray—

Launder Efficiently With Soft Water



This homemaker examines her clothes to make sure they are sparkling clean. And—they are! It's all because she's learned that soft water is one of the most important preventers of that tattle-tale gray look.

"Tattle-tale" gray is a term that's greatly overused—yet what can better describe the word picture that comes to mind on ironing day when you see one of your favorite garments with that "gray look."

This has probably happened to all of us who do our own laundering at least once. And if we could take one of those "tattle-tale" garments and hold it under a microscope, chances are we'd think it had never been washed, for tiny dirt particles embedded among the fibers would show through the lens.

Opal Robertson, extension textiles and clothing specialist at Iowa State College, says fabric discoloration stems from three common causes—stains, soil and tattle-tale gray.

The stains can be removed through bleaching, but your bleaches won't get rid of dirt covered with soap curd—otherwise known as tattle-tale gray. Good washing methods are the only cure for this ailment. This is just as true for garments of the new man-made fibers as it is for the "old faithful" natural fibers—cotton, silk, and wool.

HARD WATER BLUES

Hard water is the big problem. When soap combines with hard water curds form. These curds stick to the fabric and hold dirt captive in the fabric causing the stiffness and grayness you see on your garments. If you've noticed yellowing or rust spots on your laundered clothing, it's probably a result of iron in the water.

By this time, you've pobably guessed the real secret to sparkling clean and longer lasting clothes. It's soft or softened water. Remember this—the life of a garment may be cut 20 to 40 percent if you continuously use hard water for laundering. (One Laundry Institute authority says up to 60 percent.)

If you have some clothing with the post-laundering tattle-tale gray look, you can do some reconditioning by alternating soaking the garments in a concentrated solution of a water softener and then washing them in thoroughly softened water with a proper detergent. This will help remove the hard water scum deposit. Even clothes washed with synthetic detergents can be improved by periodic conditioning.

BUILT OR UNBUILT?

When you shop for soap and detergent, do you look on the packages to see which ones are built?—which are unbuilt?. Built concentrates are for heavy-duty work. The unbuilt or light-duty syndets compete directly with unbuilt soaps. For your cotton and heavy-duty laundering, the light-duty products are relatively ineffective. They simply don't have the needed cleaning power—and the syndets allow an unacceptable amount of redistribution of soil on the fabric after it's been removed by the detergent.

OTHER TIPS

Remember to either hand-wash your sheer or lacy, loosely knit or woven fabrics or put them in a mesh bag before you run them through the regular wash.

Avoid soaking garments. Two or more short sudsings give better results than one longer wash. The only time to soak garments is when you are washing sweaters or other napped surfaces because lack of agitation is important here. In other words, avoid splashing and moving clothing of this type around very much.

Add water softener to your first rinse water. Rinse garments until all the soap is out. Remember, soap curd continually deposited on a garment leads to tattle-tale gray.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

The January 1, 1956 livestock count has put an end to conjecture that we have passed the peak in cattle numbers, according to Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. He says that we have added roughly another million head to our total numbers, which now stand at a new record high.

The big boost, says Kutish, was in older steers, up 14 percent from Jan 1, 1955. This means a large supply of beef again this year. He says we probably will see an even larger slaughter than in 1955. The tonnage, however, is not expected to be up proportionally, as cattle probably won't be fed to such heavy weights as they were last year.

It looks as if we can have another record calf crop this year, too. Even though we did have heavy cow slaughter last year, Kutish points out that 1956 was started with one-half percent more beef cows than a year earlier.

Looking ahead to the beef supply in 1957-58, Kutish says it may be about the same as in 1955. In making this prediction, he assumes no change either in liquidation or in holding cattle back from the markets. Under this assumption, we would not have as large an inventory of older steers to work off in 1957 as we have this year.

Milk cow numbers are down about 1 percent, but the increase in milk output per cow should more than offset this. So milk output in 1956 should be above 1955.

The poultry enterprise, however, is still one of the brightest places on our farms, Kutish says. On the first of this month, farmers were planning to raise only 3 percent more chicks than a year ago. With the larger number of yearling hens carried over this year, this small increase probably will mean about the same size laying flock next fall as in 1955.

Even after allowing for a continued rise in the laying rate, Kutish considers the outlook good for laying flocks next fall and winter. He says the housewife should do a lot better than her husband with his livestock, but adds that she should get her chicks into the brooder house before April 1st.

Fertilizer Helps Oats On Farms In County

Fertilizer will help oat yields on Hancock County farms, according to Extension Director Paul Henderson of Garner. Soil test reports are the most accurate guide to use of fertilizer, Henderson says.

However, he adds, E R Duncan, an extension agronomist at Iowa State College, offers some general suggestions for fertilizer for oats that can be used if you don't have a soil test. You can use up to 20 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre on darker colored fertile soils and up to 40 pounds on lighter colored, less fertile soils.

Duncan says oats following corn that was well fertilized with nitrogen may get enough carryover to satisfy nitrogen need. Twenty to thirty percent of the nitrogen will carry over from corn, on the average.

Phosphate is usually needed for the seeding in the oats. Rates range from 40 to 60 pounds of phosphorus pertoxide per acre. Potash may be required in poorly drained soils in north central, eastern and southern Iowa. The potash helps establish legume seedings that are planted with the oats.

A legume or legume-grass mixture, says Duncan, should go on every acre of oat seeding. Even if hay or pasture isn't needed, the seeding can be turned under as green manure.

The agronomist adds that legume-grass mixtures also improve soil tilth, protect against erosion, and help control weeds.

Farm Bureau Women To Tour Amana Colonies

April 17th is the day the Farm Bureau Women's Committee has set for their annual tour.

This year the committee has chosen a one-day tour of the Amana Colonies. The conducted tour will include a tour of all the colonies, visits to several factories, and other places of interest. Meals will be served at one of the famous eating places of Amana.

Women in the county, who are interested in making this trip, should send their reservations to the Farm Bureau Office before March 23, 1956, or reservations may be made at Farm Bureau Women's Day, March 23. The tickets are $4 for transportation. Meals will be extra. Money must accompany your reservation. Buses will leave Garner at 6:00 a. m. and return that evening.

For further information contact your township women's chairman.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Winter came back with a bang Tuesday evening, and by this morning (Wednesday) it wasn't kidding. Just about the most disagreeable day of the winter. The only good feature that we can see is that it is getting late enough in the season that it probably won't last long.

This has been rather a hectic week for us. Between working at getting out a paper, doing a little rush job work, and driving to Belmond every evening to see the Mrs and check on the new son, we have about had our hands full. Seems rather strange to be in the "daddy class", but guess we'll get used to it. So far, we kinda like it.

One thing we'll say for the new little feller, he picked a day when we didn't need to be at work to take his first look at the world. We fully expected him to put in his appearance on press day, so the Sunday arrival was a welcome surprise.

"But I don't have any secrets! The Government knows more about my business than I do!"

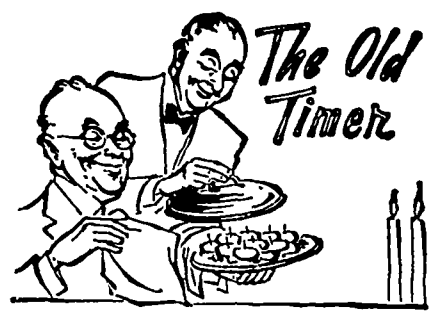
If you want to have a say in who's going to be on the school board, we suggest that you be on hand at the caucus which is to be held at the high school gym Friday night. If you help pick the candidates, your chances of getting the men you want in office are better than if you shun the whole affair.



"Maybe you can't take money with you—but where can you go without it?"

Remember you couldn't farm or operate other business with the tools of yesterday as efficietly as today. Why cannot this apply in principle to the education of today.—Marvin Brown, Ellsworth News.

Glasses are said to have a decisive effect on a person's vision, especially when they've been filled and emptied many times. And you don't need to see an optometrist to find that out.—D E Carrell, Keokuk Daily Gate City.

SCHOOL'S OUT

Classes were slim at the Oakland public schools recently, due to an epidemic of measles. 32 cases were reported, with the kindergarten accounting for most of the absentees.

Mr and Mrs William Reinhart are the parents of a six pound, fifteen ounce girl born at the Belmond Community Hospital this morning (Wednesday). She has been named Susan Joan and is the third child for the Reinharts as they have two other daughters, Merrie June and Nancy Jean.

Mr and Mrs L E "Pete" Kilgore are the parents of a nine pound boy born Sunday, March 4th at the Belmond Community Hospital. He is the first child for the Kilgores and has been named Clay Lyndon.

Harley is a student at the University of Iowa at Iowa City having re-entered the University last fall following two years of service in the United States Army. The date of the wedding has not been set.

STABBED

Sidney Johnson, son of the Ernest Johnsons of Madrid but now employed in Pasadena, had a close call recently when a worker in the plant went berserk and stabbed four men, including Mr Johnson. All four were hospitalized.

Mr. and Mrs. Busch to Observe Golden Wedding

Mr and Mrs Carl F Busch, 23 5th St N W, Mason City, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary, Sunday, March 11th. Open house for relatives and friends will be held at the Methodist Church in Klemme, from 2:30 to 5 p. m.

Carl Busch and Addie Schuldt were married at Klemme, March 8, 1906. The Rev George Wessels officiated.

They spent the first 22 years of their married life in Klemme, moving to Mason City in 1928.

The Buschs have six children, Glenn, Charles and Kenneth of Mason City; Beatrice (Mrs J H Greene) of Crystal Lake, Illinois; Willis of Davenport and Paul of Ventura. There are eight grandchildren. All will be present for the anniversary except a grandson, Lt. Richard E Busch, U S A F, Goose Bay, Labrador.

March Blizzard

The worst blizzard of the winter struck in Iowa Tuesday evening, dumping anywhere from one to six inches of snow in various localities. Temperatures dropped rapidly from the balmy reading of Monday, and by this morning (Wednesday), we were right back in rough winter.

Weather reports, though, call for clearing skies and warming temperatures, so apparently, the return of winter will be brief.

This section of the state was lucky in that only a couple of inches of snow fell. Roads here stayed in good condition, but as nearby as Sheffield, schools had to be closed because of driving conditions.

February Was Cold And Dry Month

February 1956 went into the record books as a cold and dry month according to weather records kept by Earl Henschen, custodian at the Hancock County courthouse. The average temperature for the month was 15.93 degrees as compared with 15.57 for the same month last year. The minimum average for the month was 4.93 and the maximum average was 26.93. The highest temperature recorded during the month just ended was 47 on the last day of the month. February 29, and the lowest was 16 degrees below zero on the morning of February 3. On ten of the twenty-nine days of the month the mercury dipped to zero or below.

Precipitation for the month totaled only .37 of an inch which came as snow and rain, the largest amount which fell in a 24 hour period was .13 of a inch which came as three inches of snow in the twenty four hour period ending at 7, a. m. on February 2. February 1955 recorded a total of .86 of an inch of precipitation. A total of four and a half inches of snow fell during the month.

The cold and comparatively dry weather during the month was a continuation of the weather pattern which has continued since the middle of November. A fairly good snow cover which fell early in the winter and has continued because of the steady cold weather, has afforded good cover for pastures and meadows. Absence of the usual winter blizzards has made the winter a rather pleasant one in spite of below normal temperatures.

Tell Road Work to Be Done in County

The Hancock County Board of Approval, consisting of a representative from each of the sixteen township board of trustees and the board of supervisors, met at the courthouse in Garner on Tuesday, February 28, and adopted a tentative local road construction program calling for approximately twenty-five and one half miles of grading and graveling.

Hancock County Engineer Charles K Paulson reports that of this total approximately fifteen miles will be constructed this year with ten miles to be constructed by contract and five miles to be constructed by a county construction crew. The remainder of the program will probably be carried over to 1957. Engineer Paulson estimates that construction work on the grading and graveling of local roads this year will total approximately $75,000.

In addition to the local program, the State Highway Commission will let contracts on sixteen miles of black top construction sometime in April. Roads to be blacktopped this year include the farm-to-market road from Corwith east to state highway No. 111 running from Britt to Kanawha, and from highway No. 111 at Crystal Lake east to highway No. 69.

Other construction on roads includes four bridges totaling $60,000 now on contract and an additional four bridges to be let on contract later in the year and eight or ten bridges on local roads to be built by the county bridge crew.

Work has already begun on bridges on highway No. 69 which are being widened and the pavement widening construction will get under way early in the spring. Contracts on this project were let last fall.

In addition to work on local, farm-to-market and primary roads this year, Contractor Harry Rehm of Garner, will complete the 1955 local road program which total about four and a half miles, work on which was halted by severe winter weather which set in early last fall.

Republicans to Hold County Convention

The Hancock County Republican presidential convention will be held at the courthouse in Garner at 10 o'clock a. m. on Friday forenoon, March 16th, according to an announcement by Clinton D Daniels, Republican County Chairman. CAPITOL LETTER

NEW GENERAL

Iowa will have a new attorney general. Dayton Countryman, in announcing he would not seek reelection, has opened the gates to a scramble for the nomination in both party primaries, Democrat and Republican.

Two candidates have already announced their plans to seek the GOP nomination. Don Hise, Des Moines attorney, and former assistant under three former attorney generals and Norman Erbe of Boone, an sssistant now cn Countryman's staff.

Another possibility in the Republican field is Warren Fletcher of Des Moines who ran a surprisingly strong race two years ago in the primary.

Two Democrats are seeking the nomination, Edward Fitzgerald of Des Moines and Don Wilson of West Des Moines.

FISHING NEWS

Iowa fishing regulations have been liberalized.

The State Conservation Commission reports those species of fish that will be particularly affected by rule changes in the 1956-57 regulations are:

Catfish—continuous open season with a daily catch limit of 8 and a possession limit of 16; trout—continuous open season with no daily fishing hours, daily catch and possession limit of 8; large and small mouth bass—continuous open season in boundary waters, and May 26 to Feb. 15 in inland waters, all size limits lifted, with daily catch of five and possession of 10; northern pike—season May 12 to Feb 15, daily catch three, possession six.

State officials say the changes follow a national trend for liberalization of fishing laws.

BIRTHS INCREASE

Births in Iowa increased in 1955, but so did deaths. However, the births exceeded the deaths by more than two to one.

Marriages and divorces also showed gains, but there were 5 marriages to each divorce.

While the increase in divorces was one-tenth of one percent, state records showed the rate actually was down becauses of an increase in population.

There were 64,530 births in 1955 and 26,950 deaths. Marriages totaled 24,590 and divorces 5,180.

These figures were reported by the state health department.

NOT EATING PROPERLY

Iowa State College officials, after completing a survey on the matter, report that school children in the state are not getting proper nourishment.

About one-third of the 1,200 pupils recently studied "actually were deficient". in certain types of food, Dr George Browning of the college reports.

He said two-thirds of those studied in the survey are not eating the kind of breakfast they should.

REAPPORTIONMENT

A 13 member steering committee has been named to begin a statewide educational program for reapportionment of the Iowa legislature. A statewide citizens committee will be named to assist in publicizing the needs for "fair representation" in the legislature.

Chairman of the organization meeting was State Sen Duane Dewel of Algona, majority party leader in the senate in the last session.

Frank T Nye of Cedar Rapids was named secretary of the committee. The steering committee is made up of Republican and Democrat legislators, mayors of several Iowa cities and newspapermen.

NEEDS TO REBUILD

A University of Iowa professor of politicial science suggested a three-point program for rebuilding the Democratic party in Iowa.

Prof John Schmidhauser, in a speech before the Linn County Young Democrats, said that "consistent losses at the polls produce a vicious circle that lead to weak candidates, weak state leadership and lack of effective local organization.

He recommended: (1) Don't depend on national party candidates; get good local candidates; (2) rejuvenate state leadership and local organizations, and (3) restore party attractiveness through a year-round program of political activity.

ASC REPORT

The Iowa agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee reports 1956 may bring outstanding results in the ACP program activity in this state.

The 88 counties which submitted ACP reports for January had 35,000 requests for cost-sharing work filed. In these counties the committees had approval totaling $3,229,774. which is over one-third of the state's total appropriation of national funds for the whole year. The state appropriation for the year is $9,209,000.

By this week 27 counties reported all funds obligated and more needed, with three counties asking increases in allotments.

USE TAX

Use tax collections on new motor vehicles and trailers decreased $40,000 in January compared with the same month of a year gao.

The Iowa tax commission reports total use tax collections for January this year were $453,178 compared with $493,348 in 1955. Six counties had one-third of the total of the $453,178, for January, including Polk, Linn, Scott, Woodbury, Black Hawk, Pottawattamie.

FIRE SAFETY CAMPAIGN

The state fire marshal has approved a statewide fire safety education program in Iowa schools.

Ed J Herron, state fire marshal, said the program will be sponsored by the Iowa Farm Safety Council and the Iowa Fire Prevention Committee.

Aim of the drive is to locate and eliminate fire hazards in farm and city homes. It will emphasize fire prevention education. Counties reporting the most successful program will receive award recognition.

TAKES STATE POST

Dr J O Cromwell, 50, has been named superintendent of the Iowa Mental Health Institute at Independence. Cromwell, head of the state hospital at Blackfoot, Idaho, was named by the Iowa board of control. No salary schedule was announced although it probably will be in the neighborhood of $15,000 a year.

Cromwell will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr Donald Kyer who resigned after a dispute with the board of control.

The newly named superintendent was born in Illinois and is a graduate of the University of Iowa college of medicine. He is married and has five children.

For Laundry Day—

Know How to Select Right Bleach

Make certain that every article you put away after laundering is as sparkling clean as the pillowslips shown above. Bleaches can help you achieve this—but only if you use them correctly. This photo was taken by the Department of Agriculture.

If you use bleaches when you do the household laundry, you're not alone—for statistics tell us that 90 percent of all homemakers who do their own laundering claim bleach as a number one helpmate on laundry day.

SPECIFIC BLEACHES

Along with the influx of so many new fibers, fabrics and finishes onto the textiles market come new bleaches—specific types of bleaches created to help you whiten and brighten very specific types of fabric. So in order to get the best results from bleaching, you must know "which bleach to use when," says Opal Roberson, extension clothing specialist at Iowa State College.

Chances are when you shop for laundry supplies, you are confronted with an array of bleaches lined up on your grocer's shelf. Although sold under many trade names, they can be classified in specific groups. If you're familiar with these classificatons, you'll get the right bleach for the right fabric every time

HYPOCHLORITE BLEACHES

One family of bleaches is termed the hypochlorite group. It includes such trade names as Clorox, Purex, White Sail, Des Moines Cleanser, and such powdered bleaches as Clorox, Frosty, Purex and Vip—just to mention a few.

Known as sanitizing bleaches, you can use these on your articles of white cotton, linen and rayon fibers—and on garments which you're sure are absolutely colorfast. Never use the hypochlorites on clothing of wool or silk, as they will damage these fibers.

Elizabeth Beveridge, head of the Household Equipment Department at Iowa State College, advises you never to use a hypochlorite bleach on wrinkle-resistant white cotton garments without first trying it out on a scrap of material, an inside seam or on some other inconspicuous spot.

The reason for this is that some wrinkle-resistant finishes turn yellow when treated with hypochlorite bleach.

SODIUM PERBORATE

If it's a gentle, safe and mill powder bleach you want for your garments of wool, silk, man-made fabrics and cotton or linen, look to the sodium perborate bleaches. You will find that most commercial bleaches containing this ingredient also contain a large amount of water softener, which means that part of their whitening action is actually due to removal of grayness caused by soap scum rather than bleaching. Remember, this bleach is too mild for the small fry's heavily soiled school clothes or for Dad's dirty work clothes.

OPTICAL BLEACHES

Few optical bleaches, as such, are on the market. However, they are highly popular ingredients for some detergents and bluings. This group contains a fluorescent dye which absorbs light that we can't see and gives back a bluish light which we can see. The extra blue tends to cover up yellow and makes the fabric look much whiter. This gives an effect many homemakers like—partcularly when water supply for sufficient rinsing is limited.

Remember now—bleaching can remove stains and help eliminate that "tattle-tale" gray look, but bleach won't remove dirt covered with soap curd or soil (such as mud). Only good, efficient washing methods do this.

Hubcap thieves cut a swatch through Mahaska and Poweshiek Counties recently. A total of about 40 were reported as stolen during a single evening.

Senior Class News

Today is the big day in speech. This time we are giving demonstrative speeches to inform.

In our English workbooks we are picking out the infinitive phrases in each sentence and then telling what part of speech each phrase is, such as adjective, adverb, subject, etc.

We are finishing the project in the bookkeeping workbook and now we are reviewing for a test over the last three chapters.

Just think! Tomorrow in business law we will have a test over definitions and another test over the last two chapters. Doesn't that sound like fun.

Reading in our history class has been mostly what we did this week. We are now studying about new pleasures that have risen after the Civil War such as the invention of baseball, authors etc.

Chemistry: We are reviewing for a big test over percentage of compounds, sulphur, phosphorus, normality, and propertus of acids, bases and salts and mixtures thereof.

In geometry, the triangles are the same but the congruency theorems have been changed to protect our sanity.

Question of the Week

Recently the idea has risen about having five years of high school instead of four. What would your reaction be to such a plan?

Keith Nuehring: I think it would be great.

Roger Johnson: One more year to fool around and goof off. I think it would be o. k.

Bob Larson: I guess it would be alright because school can be a lot of fun.

Jerry Janssen: I guess it would be alright.

Larry Hoffman: I like the idea.

Marlin Stadtlander: Four years is enough.

Ron Hummel: I dont like the idea too well. I think four years is a great plenty to spend in high school, in fact too much.

Bob Ausborn: I dont think it would be too bad. One more year of school would do more good than harm.

Kay Burk: It wouldn't be too bad. I agree with Bob that it would do more good than harm, and I rather like it here in school with all the activities going on.

Denny Haefner: My reaction would be that I would have to spend another year of getting in and out of trouble.

Fred Arnold: I don't like the idea. What would be accomplished by it?

Don Ausborn: I don't think it would be too bad because this is my last year.

Marvin Michelson: Ix-nay.

Anita Katter: I don't think it would be a very good idea becauses you would have to go one more year of high school when otherwise you could be out of school earning some money.

Editorial of the Week

This is sure a busy time for everyone here at K H S, especially the seniors. It seems like there's so much to get done before school is over. We have started on our senior class play, "Spooks and Spasms", which is to be held on April 17. Practices are going to be broken up quite a little with Easter, music contests, athletic banquet, etc.

We're going on skip day the 20th of April, which is another day that takes a lot of planning. We plan on going to Minneapolis and places of interest around there.

The juniors are busy working on the Junior-Senior Banquet, which will be the 28th of April.

Friday, the cheerleaders are going to see the state tournament and next month the basketball boys will be going. (We only wish they would be playing instead of watching).

Then last, but not least, will be commencement and Baccalaureate.

Schedule of coming events in the music department.

March 24th: North Iowa Bandmaster's association (band plays).

April 3rd: Pre-contest recital for solos and ensembles

April 13th and 14th: Solo and ensemble contest at Plymouth

May 1st: Spring concert

May 4th and 5th: Large group contest at Klemme

Mr Whitford has been trying to have ensembles practice on Monday and Wednesday mornings at 8:30, but so far none of the groups have started practice before 8:45 and most of them not before 9:00. In fact some of them haven't started at all due to leaving their horns at home. Whether this is laziness or carelessness is debatable. Carlessness is excusable, laziness isn't. Beware! Mr Whitford's patience has arrived at the breaking point.

When the chorus went to Crystal Lake last Monday, quite a few of those who had been "goofing off" in practice were left in Klemme. They missed a lot of fun and a good program, highlighted by a boys quartet from Gustvus Adolphus College, St Peter, Minnesota.

Junior Class News

In English we are studying about transitive and intransitive verbs and what voice they are, such as passive and active.

We had a test Tuesday in geography over the different grazing belts of the world and the wet middle latitude lands.

In shop II they are still going strong on their projects.

As for projects in typing, we are typing business letters and envelopes. We are taking ten minute writings trying to improve our typing abilty.

Making yeast bread and studying meat, has been mostly what the home ec class has done so far this week.

Freshman News

We are diagraming sentences using transitive and intransitive verbs in English. In the workbook we are telling what voice each verb is such as active or passive voice.

As for now we are starting on the basic symbols of algebra. We finished the volume of a sphere cone, and sphere, and the total area of a rectangle solid, cube, and the surface of a right circular cylinder.

Working on semester projects that have to be done by March first and reviewing for a test has been keeping us very busy in science.

We are still busy on our projects in shop I like usual.

Making skirts seems to be what the home ec class is doing now.

Fourth Grade Pretend Fishing Trip in Maine

We are studying about Maine in our Social Studies. We are pretending that we are vacationing near the sea coast and writing our experiences back to our friends in Iowa. Here are two of the letters:

Courage Cove, Me.
March 2, 1956

Dear Joyce,

I wish you were here. I met a boy. His name is Chris Pruitt. He lives at Courage Cove, Maine.

One day we went out on a fishing trip, Mr. Pruitt and Chris showed me the boat.

First, I saw the engine room. The engine was a Deisel engine.

Then we saw the pails full of fish line. The lines are coiled in pails to keep them from tangling.

We went out to sea at high tide and stopped over a fishing bank. Then the crew went to work.

First the dories were put in the water. Then the fishing crew put the fishing line out from the small boats. After all the line was out it was lunch time for the crew.

After lunch the crew pulled up the line and took the fish off the hooks.

A man looked up and told the rest to hurry because a fog was coming in.

On the big boat the crew went to work to clean the fish before they weren't any good.

We went to Courage Cove instead of the market because of the fog. We had to sell our fish there.

Good-by,
Judith Rasmus

Courage Cove, Me.
March 2, 1956

Dear Karen,

Dad and I are on a day's fishing trip. The boats glide over sand bars in safety when it is high tide. The flow helps carry boats out to sea. The pails of fishing line are near the four dories which the schooner carries. We stopped on a fishing bank where seaweed and other sea plants grow thickly.

The fishing lines are different than ours. There is a long line about a hundred feet long. A barrel is tied to one end of it. The line has hooks on it about every six inches. It takes all morning to drop these lines from the dory. After lunch the fishermen must bring the catch in.

On our trip a big thick fog came in. All along the way we saw other boats scooting for shore.

Love,
Sharon Wessels

Miss Beardsley: "Jerry, should Bobby have said wunst?'

Jerry Jansen: "No'm he should have said twict."

Paul G: "Nobody, I had to fight for 'em."

Al Bell Entertained

Tuesday, February 28th the entire school was entertained by Al Bell at an assembly program. He had traveled this year in the wilds of Canada.

His program was entitled "Sons of Chinook", Chinook being the name of a wind as he explained to us. He showed us some of the things he brought back from the Sioux Indians, including such things as a beautiful beaded, leather jacket which he wore, some Indian jewelry, a calf running iron for branding calves, and numerous other things. One of the things which interested everyone was the geiger counter which he used in the movie, he later showed us, to hunt for uranium.

After giving us a summary of the plot, Al Bell showed us the movie he made in Canada. The story consisted of the hero who was hunting for uranium, played by Al Bell, Jr. being pursued and finally caught by the villian, played by Al Bell, Sr.

Throughout the entire movie we were under the impression, the villian, who we hissed violently, was after the hero's uranium. But after a fight to the finish, the villian ran off with the hero's bananas.

During this story we viewed the beautiful scenery of Canada, the Sioux Indian tribe and also the famous Calgary Stampede. The latter was an honest to goodness rodeo and held the interest of all as we watched the cowboys being thrown from the bucking broncos and brahma bulls. He also watched the chuck wagon race.

It was a very interesting program and I'm sure everyone is looking forward to Al Bell's visit next year when he will tell us more of his travels.

Gossip Around KHS

It looked like Donna C and Larry W were having a good time at the dance February 29th. Right kids?

Say Cozette, who took you home from the dance the 29th? Was it Vernon Greiman from Ventura?

I wonder if Myrna was surprised to see Larry at the dance?

Say, Rosalie, who was helping you with your algebra last night, after the dance? Could it have been John?

Who's Gracka going with now? It looked like she had a new heart throb.

There's a new romance in the sophomore class, Chuck B and Sandra M. They make a pretty good couple.

Jeanne, who was down to see you Monday night? Could it have been M. B.?

How come the sophomore class was arguing all day Wednesday? What about this kids?

Say Ray, who did you have at the game the other night?

Betty, why didn't you and Harold stay for the dance last night? Just wondering.

I wonder why Barbara A didn't keep Bob's ring? Instead she kept his bracelet. Can anybody tell us why?

It seems that Karen kept Craig busy Wednesday night at the dance. We saw him emptying the pop cooler and washing dishes. It's nice to have a man around the house, huh Karen?

What happened to Coleen and Herb? We haven't heard much about them lately.

Say Margaret H, did you notice who was down to the dance Wednesday night? We mean Ed H.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

The hog market, which has been faltering since the bursting of the January price bubble, should be looking better within another 6 weeks, says Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. He expects the peak in the market of fall pigs to be passed by that time—with slaughter begining to taper off toward the yearly seasonal low in early July.

Kutish points out that hog marketings the third week of January fell too fast. During the first half of the month, slaughter at the major centers averaged about 300,000 head above a year earlier. Slaughter then dropped to only 25,000 head over the previous year.

This resulted in a scramble among the packers for hogs. The prices were bid up to keep killing gangs busy. But marketings the following week jumped back into line with the number of hogs in the country and the bubble collapsed.

We are now moving into the period when peak runs of fall pigs will be marketed. The period has been moving ahead in recent years, says Kutish. as the shift toward earlier farrowing has gained momentum. Peak runs came in April in 1951. Last year they came in mid-March.

There are more fall pigs, but since hogs are being marketed at lighter weights this year, Kutish expects the peak run of fall pigs to occur sometime within the next month.

Once we are past this period, Kutish reasons that slaughter should fall off toward a seasonal summer low. Farmers last year held back breeding stock to increase the fall pig crop about 11 percent. This year Kutish believes we will not have such a large amount of breeding stock held back. So. slaughter probably will exceed the previous year by a larger percentage than indicated by the difference in the size of the two pig crops alone.

Farmers Can Count On Fertilizer Carry-Over

Hancock County farmers can count on some carry-over of fertilizer from their 1955 applications, according to County Extension Director, Paul Henderson of Garner.

The carry-over of nitrogen, particularly, is greater in dry years. This carry-over of nitrogen may be important on many farm in this county. It will be worth taking it into consideration in using your 1956 soil test report and in working out your fertilizer program this year, Henderson says.

He adds that Lloyd Dumenil, agronomist at Iowa State College, says nitrogen carry-over from 1955 applications this year may range as high as 35 to 45 percent in the drier areas of Iowa. Corn made little use of the nitrogen in the severe drouth areas. And where there was little rain, little of the nitrogen was leached away.

Dumenil suggests that you can cut costs safely by deducting the estimated amount of your carry-over where corn follows corn. Corn will get the greatest return from this nitrogen carry-over. Oats will receive less and soybeans will make little use of the nitrogen.

Dumenil says it is also well to bear this carry-over in mind if you are planning to plant oats. Too much nitrogen on oats may cause lodging.

He says weather conditions affect carry-over of phosphorus and potassium less than they do nitrogen. However, he believes about 50 to 60 percent of the phosphate applied in Iowa in 1955 will be carried over. The carry over from potassium applied to corn fields last year might also total 50 to 60 percent if the stalks were left on the field. Where the stalks were removed from the field, the field, the carry-over might still be about 30 percent.

Extension Service Moves

The Hancock County Extension Service moved into their new offices which are located in the courthouse annex which you will remember as the old Lutheran Churcch just north of the courthouse. The extension offices are in the basement The extention personnel includes Paul Henderson, County Extension Director, Elsie Mae Van Wert, County Extension Home Economist, Edward Bruns, County Extension Youth Assistant and Mrs Joyce Reikma, Extension Office Assistant.

The basement has been entirely remodeled and offices have been set up for each of the personnel.

The office was open for business Saturday morning March 3rd. The phone number is Garner_234.

LOTS OF MAIL

At Montezuma, rural mail carrier Paul Putman figures that he has handled over 10 million pieces of mail in his 34-year career. Recently he received a 25-year safe driving award. Mr Putman has driven over 600,000 miles as a mail carrier. His middle name, incidentally, is "Revere."

New Law Opens Way For Foreign Trade

The first agreement for the sale of beef under Public Law 480 has been reached with Israel and came as a tremendous stimulus to the over-supplied U S livestock market last week.

Israel, paying for the beef with its own currency, will purchase 40 million pounds, worth some $10 million. The poundage is roughly equivalent to 50,000 head of cattle off U S farms.

Said Agriculture Secretary Benson, "This agreement comes at an especially opportune time from the standpoint of market conditions since high quality beef of heavier weight is readily available at reasonable prces."

At the same time, numerous other transactions were concluded by P L 480 administrators.

Burma purchased 100,000 bales of cotton, 1.5 million pounds of tobacco, $2 million worth of dairy prducts and $200,000 worth of fruit in a $21.7 million agreement.

The Latin American country of Columbia was authorized to purchase $6,137,000 of cotton from the U S and upland cotton was also sold to Jugoslavia in an $8,500,000 agreement.

Egypt expanded an earlier sales agreement to include approximately 3 million extra bushels of wheat and then received a new authorization to purchase $5,490,000 more wheat.

Greece amended an earlier agreement to provide for an additional $742,800 worth of non-fat dry milk from U S suppliers.

Girls' Sports

"Oh, my aching back!" This is the phrase you hear from the girls who have been taking p t. You can guess what we have been doing. Yes, it's more exercises and running laps around the gym. We have been doing a little dancing these past couple of weeks which we all like very much. We have been trying to learn some different steps. Some of us would like to do a little square dancing but as yet, we have no square dancing records.

Most of the girls are interested in basketball, volley ball, bad minton, etc. and would enjoy having some tournaments in these games.

School Chidren Making Drive for Clothing For Needy Youngsters

Winter will be a little warmer for many needy children this year—if Superintendent Kirkpatrick and the students and teachers of city schools have their way. Mr Kirkpatrick reported today "Klemme schools are going all out in a drive to collect good, clean clothing for needy youngsters in this country and and overseas during the week of April 16th through April 20th.

Klemme's efforts will be coordinated with "Bundle Week in Iowa, which State Superintendent J C Wright recently announced will be held to assist Save the Children Federation in its 14th Annual Clothing Crusade.

America's school children have given overwhelming supports to previous "Bundle Weeks". Just last year, they collected over 1,650,000 pounds—more than 825 tons of used clothing.

The clothing collected will be distributed in a number of ways —some free to Navajo Indians and to impoverished people in isolated rural areas of the United States; some sold for nominal charges to the Southern mountaineers who rebel against accepting outright charity; some shipped for free distribution in countries overseas.

In addition, clothing is stockpiled for emergency purposes. For example, over the past three years more than 2,000,000 pounds of clothing have been sent to Korea. And quake, flood, and fire victims in Greece, Italy, North Africa, Austria, and Haiti received emergency shipments in 1954 and 1955.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

You can help support a worthy cause by attending the Cub Scout Carnival at the high school gymnasium Friday night, March 23rd. All the proceeds from the carnival go into the treasury of the local Cub Pack and help to further the cause of scouting locally.

Besides helping a worthy cause, you might find yourself enjoying a really good time, as this Cub Scout Carnival has proved very entertaining in previous years.

We are inclined to envy people like the Clarence Neubergers, the Mayor Cooks, the Emil Blumers, and the Ted Dutheridges when they go south for the winter, but it seems as though most of them make it home just in time to get caught in a real old March blizzard. That's when we feel like maybe we haven't had it so bad after all. We're accustomed to the cold, but when they get home, their blood is all thinned out from having been taking it easy in the sunny south.

Don't swallow all that. We'd trade places with any of them just any old winter.

Each week, we think the winter is about over with, and then comes a worse storm than the one before. That blizzard we caught Saturday and Saturday night was a humdinger. Thank goodness we just caught the tail end of it. Not too far to the west of us the storm dumped as much as 24 inches of snow on some localities.

We'll say no more about winter's last fling, or about spring being just around the corner. We'll just keep our fingers crossed and hope.

Some weeks ago this column contained the following paragraph: "There is a lot of talk about legislation in our state to regulate speed, but they only talk about regulating the maximum. We thing that the slow poke on the highway is just about as much of a danger as the 70 mph driver, and we think that if our legislature gets around to passing speed limit laws, they should also include a clause setting forth a minimum speed."

That paragraph was reprinted in another paper under a line crediting us with having written it. The article was read by a Des Moines man, whose name we won't print, and he took exception to it, but good. By means of a two-cent post card he lets us know what he thinks of us, our writing ability, and our personal habits . . . and he even indicates that there is a good place for us to go . . . and he thinks we'll soon be there. Could be!

In any case, we got a kick out of his card which reads as follows: "Articles of above type suggest stupidity in writer's makeup. If you are a teen-ager or one who indulges in liquor it is understandable. The undertakers love your type for they increase business. Such writers as you appear to be are in a feverish hurry to enter Hades."

We don't know just what got this person so heated up, but he seems to have no doubt but what we are a half-witted drunkard, and he leaves no doubt as to what is our destination. Could be.

Little Kathy Chadima, daughter of Mr and Mrs Wayne Chaddima, 814 Runell, Iowa City, and John Hoppe, son of Mr and Mrs Albert Hoppe, 149 17th Street SW, Cedar Rapids, were among a number of children on crutches who called on Governor Leo A Hoegh, Tuesday, March 6th at the State Capitol Building to launch the 1956 Easter Seal Appeal which will continue through April 10.

Cub Scout Carnival Will Be March 23rd

The annual Cub Scout Carnival will be held on Friday evening, March 23rd, at the high school gymnasium. The activities are due to get underway at 7:30 p. m. and if past performance means anything, there will be a good time in store for all.

Among the many entertainment booths at the carnival will be a fun house, and a horse race, not to mention numerous other booths common to carnivals.

In additions to the fun to be had, there will be a registration for door prizes, with one prize being a set of live twins.

There will also be a lunch counter with ice cream, pie, coffee, and milk on sale.

All proceeds from the event will go into the treasury of the local Cub Pack and will be used to help defray the expenses of the activities in which they participate during the coming year.

Caucus Friday Night Picked Board Candidates

A caucus was held at the high school gymnasium last Friday evening to pick candidates for the board of directors for the Klemme Community School District. Some forty people were on hand for the caucus and came up with the names of the following men:

Roy Arnold and Gerald Burk were the choices for a three year term.

Mrs Stella Lemke was picked as a candidate for the office of treasurer.

Accident Report for County Shows Decreose

The Iowa Department of Public Safety today released the 1955 traffic accident record for Hancock County, listing 204 reported accidents, a property loss of $94,915 and personal injury costs of $66,150.

The county accident record in 1954 was 202 reported accidents, $82,425 in property damage, and $100,850 loss in personal injuries, according to the department.

Milo Chalfant, director of safety responsibility, said the Hancock County record was part of a total state loss in 1955 of $28,924,024 in 54,877 traffic accidents.

The State record for 1955 showed an increase of 4,000 traffic accidents and $1,285,245 in financial loss over 1954, Chalfant said.

State Safety Commissioner Clinton Moyer called the report "an almost incredible outline of general public indifference to the total problem of traffic safety."

He pointed out that financial loss figures listed in the report are "minimum and direct costs only. If we could estimate the indirect costs, I would guess that the loss figures would almost double," Moyer said.

He called on Hancock County residents to make an organized effort behind community and county officials to cut the accident rate.

CAPITOL LETTER

SENATE RACE

Atty Gen Dayton Countryman's decision to seek the Republican nomination for U S senator is causing considerable discussion in the GOP ranks in Iowa.

The concern reportedly stems from the fact that U S Sen. Bourke B Hickenlooper has established himself as a loyal party man, has closely supported the program of the Eisenhower administration, and from his long service has established senate seniority that many Republicans don't want to toss away at the present time.

Countryman now in his first term as attorney general, has chosen to oppose Hickenlooper, who went to the senate from the Iowa governor's office, at a time when the Cedar Rapids attorney is apparently enjoying solid support particularly in the GOP ranks.

The attorney general's entry in the primary, makes a three-man race of it for Duane Orton, Atlantic farmer, also has said he will seek the GOP nomination for the U S Senate.

LOOKING AHEAD

Lt Gov Leo Elthon's report that he will seek the nomination and election to the Iowa state senate from his own district probably means that Gov Leo A Hoegh will go probably unopposed in the party primary this spring.

It is no secret that Elthon was giving serious consideration to opposing Hoegh for the nomination.

There has been speculation, as a result of the Elthon announcement, that he will seek a return to the senate as a forerunner to a gubernatorial bid two years from now, in the 1958 state elections. Elthon will oppose State Sen Jacob Grimstead of Lake Mills, who succeeded Elthon when he was elected lieutenant-governor

ANOTHER BID

Iowa's only lady legislator in the last session has announced she will seek reelection to the Iowa house of representatives. Mrs Gladys Nelson of Newton, now on a world tour, wrote from Athens, Greece, that she plans to seek the GOP nomination and reelection in Jasper County.

EGG LAW RULING

The Iowa attorney general's office has ruled that a producer selling eggs directly to a consumer is not required under Iowa law to candle and grade the eggs.

The opinion also held that Iowans purchasing eggs for resale from non-resident producers may have the eggs graded and candled by a non-resident, Iowa licensed candler and grader located within 50 miles of the borders of the state."

REED WITHDRAWS

Carl W Reed, 82 year-old member of the Iowa commerce commission, has decided against seeking reelection. Reed had taken out nomination papers and announced plans to run again. However, he later changed his mind. He was first elected to the commission in 1940.

SEES AIR ACADEMY

Gov Leo Hoegh was one of 20 Iowans, all from Des Moines, who visited the U S Air Force Academy near Denver, Colo., over the weekend. The two-day trip, arranged by the air force, included a complete tour of the new academy.

PAY RAISES

Salary increase rewards are now possible for some state employees.

State Comptroller Glen Sarsfield said these prospects are in sight for some employees as a result of state executive council action in making the first broad upgrading of state employe salary brackets since 1952.

Because of budget limitations and certain technicalities, however, the comptroller said comparatively few employees can expect prompt boosts in their paychecks.

Those who do get raises will be about $10 to $15 a month to the good.

IOWA INCOMES

Nearly one of every seventh Iowan who paid a state income tax in 1955 had a net income of more than $5,000 in 1954, the tax commission reports. Of 449,414 who paid income taxes, 66,314 had net income of more than $5,000.

About one of every 100 who paid income tax had a net for the year of less than $1,000. There were 3,290 in this bracket. There were 142,427 who were in the $3.000 to $4,000 category.

MORE VOTING PLACES

It's going to be easier for more Iowans to vote in the state and general elections this year. At least there will be more polling places.

Iowa Secretary of State Melvin Synhorst reports there will be 2,515 voting precincts in the June 4 primary, a net gain of 32 since the November general election in 1954.

TRAFFIC PARLEY

Iowa mayors and traffic safety officers will convene at a state traffic safety conference with Governor Hoegh, April 9, in Des Moines, Purpose is to plan a "local action" type campaign to reduce the state traffic death toll.

INDIAN AFFAIRS

A state Indian affairs committee, to work out a long-range program to benefit the Indian population of the state, has been named by Governor Hoegh. On the committee are:

R W Breckenridge and Elwin Duncan, Ames; Mark Thornburg, Howard McKinney and Ralph McCague, Des Moines; Jim Bruce, Mrs Warren Fillon, Walter J Willett and Neil Johns, of Toledo; Joe McNally and Mayor E C Carval of Tama; J Harold Ennis, Mt Vernon; Raymond Ruppe, Iowa City; Fred Bruene, Gladbrook; Hugh Louden, Grinnell; Howard Waters, Danville; William Fisher, Marshalltown; Nelle Kennison, Madrid, and Robert C Wyth, Cedar Falls.

TO WASHINGTON

Eight Iowa college students, four Democrats and four Republicans, have been selected to spend a week each in Washington this spring to study politics first-hand. The program is worked out by Robert Ray, director of the Iowa Citizenship Clearing House at the University of Iowa, and Congressman Fred Schwengel of Davenport. Schwengel originated the program two years ago.

Students named for the Washington visit this year include: John Daniel, Jr., Cedar Rapids; Kenneth Aspelmeier, Mediapolis; Ward McCulley, Shellsburg; and Alberta Moellering, Woolstock, all Republicans; and Richard J Peterson, Fayette; Dale R Knesel, Waterloo; Harold L Burton, Alden, and Inta Sampson, Des Moines, all Democrats.

TO AIR GROUP

Albert H Detjie of Traer has been named to the Iowa aeronautics commission by Gov Leo A Hoegh. Detjie succeeds Joe Newburgh of Dubuque who recently resigned from the commission. Both are Democrats.

Detjie is an oil and gas jobber who has had his own plane since 1946. He has been closely associated with the Iowa Flying Farmers group.

Iowa aeronautics commission members are not fulltime employees of the state but receive per diem and expenses when on commission businss.

RATES HEARING

The Iowa commerce commission has scheduled a hearing March 27 to discuss a railroad petition for increased interstate freight rates.

The railroads are asking a 7 percent hike in shipments within the state of Iowa. The petition for the increase was filed with the commission Jan. 30. It cited a recent interstate commerce commission authorization for a 6 percent hike in interstate freight rates.

Cheerleaders Attended Girls State Tourney

Friday morning at 11:15 a. m. we four cheerleaders, by name of Margaret, Carol, Gracka and JoEllen, loaded our suitcases into Mr Johnson's car and made ready for our trip to the girls' state basketball tournament at Des Moines. We then picked up Mrs Johnson and were on our way.

Before we left Klemme's city limits, we had started eating rice krispy squares. As we talked, we found we had enough food along to feed an army. In our many boxes and bags were 2½ dozen sandwiches, 3 dozen cookies, 2 dozen oranges, 2 dozen apples 1½ dozen bananas, 1½ dozen rolls, a giant size bag of potato chips, a can of shoestring potatoees, a pan of brownies, a batch of fudge, other candy and a apple pie. We ate all the way to Des Moines.

When we arrived we had some trouble locating our motel. None of us realized how far 10 miles from the heart of Des Moines was. It was a very new and modern motel equipped with T V in the rooms. After getting settled, we left for theh city where we went to the Des Moines theatre and saw "I'll Cry Tomorrow" starring Susan Hayward. We didn't wait until tomorrow.

After the show we had one hour to get back to the motel, change our clothes, eat supper, and come back to the game. We hailed a cab and paid $2.05 for fare to get back to our room. Luckily for our pocket books, the man that owned the motel took us back to the game. Incidentally, we were late.

Our seats were so high in the auditorium, that by the time we had climbed up to where they were, we were completely beat.

At first the altitude made us dizzy, but after we got used to it, we enjoyed the last quarter of the game.

After the game—well, anyway we went to bed at 5:$$ a.m. The next morning, we were in dire need of some sleep. But, our paradise was short lived, for Jo Ellen was awakened at 7:00 a m by somebody banging on the wall. No one else heard it? Oh well, I guess the rest of us are just heavy sleepers. We were all up by 8:30 a m.

Checking out of the motel at 10:00 a m, we spent most of the day shopping. In the afternoon, we also attended the movie "Picnic". We ate supper at Bishop's Cafertia and then went to the finals. This time we sat on the ceiling and didn't face the floor, but the altitude didn't bother us quite so much. The games were very good and we enjoyed them immensely.

After the games, we started home. Most of the ride was spent sleeping, but once in a while we'd wake up and eat the remainder of our food until everything was devoured. As we drove into Klemme at 12:15, we looked back at our experiences and we unanimously agreed that we had a wonderful time.

Editorial of the Week

Leap Year Dance Big Success

Last Wednesday night, February 29th, we had our leap year dance. We were real pleased with the big turn out. There were over 100 teenagers.

The dance got underway at about 7:00 o'clock. We danced full swing until about 9:30 at which time the kings and queens were brought on stage. Mr Andreae announced the king and queen from each class and crowned them (with crowns, that is). The freshman king and queen were Craig Larson and Virginia Kudje; the sophomores were Paul Gilpin and Barbara Avery; juniors, Bob Larson and Beverly Christiance; seniors, Don Kramer and Shirley Barz. Shirley and Don wee chosen as the grand king and queen to rule over all. All the kings and queens danced one dance, after which everyone danced until about 10:00 o'clock. At this time the sophomores served lunch. We had cookies, cupcakes and pop.

The dance ended at 11:00 o'clock. Everyone enjoyed themselves, so we hated to go home.

The sophomores took in $50.00. The seniors would like to take this means to thank the sophomores for helping provide for the seniors' skip day fund.

We hope that it will be possible to have more dances before the year is over.

Senior Class News

The chemistry class has had "it", but good. "It" meaning a test. We are now working feverishly on our notebooks so that we can hand them in by the 15th.

We have had 'it" in geometry too. The geometry test wasn't as bad as the chemistry test, but it was bad enough.

Trying to pick out the right word is our subject matter now in English. We have to be able to tell whether to use pricnpal or principle, lie or lay, sit or set, rise or raise, etc.

From the audit slip in the cash register, we have to be able to tell what kind of entry will go in the combined cash pournal in our bookkeeping workbook. We are reviewing the last three chapters, for tomorrow we are expecting a test.

We're studying the different kinds of sales in business law. We're finding that there are plenty of ways on how to enforce a sale of merchandise such as a down payment or else agreement is writing.

In American history we are studying how the United States increased their possessions through the 19th century and how they made many enemies during this period.

Still giving speeches to inform is taking our time in speech class. We haven't done anything else so for this week in speech class.

Diagraming seems to be all that the English class has been doing the last couple of weeks. We are diagraming sentences using appositives, gerunds and infinitives.

We had a test over "Man's Health and Welfare" in general science several days ago. "Matter' is the new subject that we are studying.

In math we are studying the symbols of alegebra. Working on some basic equations was our assignment today.

Four girls in home ec have finished their skirt projects and are now working on blouses.

It seems like we are doing the same thing in shop, week after week. It doesn't seem possible that we can get anything done.

Cackles from the Coop

Our face is red! A couple of weeks, ago we announced in this column, that the Luther College Dorian Festival Band would be directed by Edwin Franko Goldman. We copied that information directly from a poster Mr Whitford received, but it seems that the man died about a week before we wrote that he would direct the band. Everyone has agreed that it would be impossible for the late Mr Goldman to direct, so Carleton Stewart of Mason City has been selected for the job.

Students from here who will participate and their ranking in the band are: Art Carlson, first out of 20 trombones; Virginia Kudje, second out of 9 clarinets; and Fred Arnold, twenty-fifth out of 35 cornets.

White band is practicing madly. five days a week, for Mason City the 24th, but Mr Whitford still hasn't decided what we will play.

Instead of chorus, Mrs Griesy is having small vocal groups every day from now until after solo and ensemble contest.

Question of the Week

We would like to establish a group of high school students for a square dance party to be held twice a month. What is your opinion on this idea?

Gary L: I think it would be nice to have a dance at least once a month.

Roger H: Square dancing is for the birds, why not modern dancing?

Judy S: I think the idea is great but I think modern dancing would be more fun.

Craig L: I think modern dancing would be more fun plus a little more assortment of dances.

Jerry L: I think it's a good idea, but I think modern dancing would be more fun. (At least once a month)

Herb G: I like the idea very much and would like to have it more often than twice a month.

Carroll P: I like the idea as I like square dancing better than modern dancing.

Roger B: I like square dancing, but modern dancing is better.

Carol B. I think it would be a lot of fun. However, I prefer modern dancing to square dancing.

Jokes

Mrs Andreae: "When I opened the door of the stove, a mouse jumped out!

Fonda: "Did you shoot him?"

Mrs Andreae: "Of course not. He was out of my range."

Bob T: "I want a dollar's worth of potatoes with eyes."

Clerk: "Why with eyes?"

Bob: "Mother says they will have to see us through the rest of the week.

Son (saying his prayer): "Please bless my mother, my father, and please make Montreal the capital of Canada."

Mother: "Why do you want Montreal to be the capital of Canada?"

Son: "Because that's what I put in my test paper."

Father: "What's this very low mark on your report card?"

Junior: "Maybe it's the temperature of the schoolroom."

Gossip Around KHS

I wonder who Don K took skating Saturday night? We hear it was Dorothy K.

We're glad to see that Karen and Craig are really living it up again.

I guess Martin has turned his attention to Jane R. They were seen together at the show with Keith and Margaret, Sunday night.

We hear that Linda A and some other Garner girls were seen in Belmond and Klemme with Denny's car, looking for Don K. Too bad they didn't know he was home.

I wonder what Margaret P thought when she found out that Keith had Ginger K with him Saturday night.

We heard that Bob L and a girl from Kanawha double dated with Marvin M and Marilyn W.

We heard that Roger B went to Britt to see Marie C Saturday night, but she wasn't home. Better luck next time, Roger.

Boys' Sports

As there are no boys sports in progress at the present time, all the boys are now taking P T. A typical P T class begins with a few exercises, after which the boys divide up into various groups or teams. The teams then play each other in volley ball, basketball, or various relays. There is usually a prize of running a few laps around the gym for the losers.

The basketball boys are all looking forward to their trip to Des Moines where they will take in the Boys' State Tournament.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

It's human nature that most of us are concerned with the mark we leave behind us.

Perhaps it's the beginning of human desperation when a man comes to feel that his passage is leaving nothing behind to mark that he has come and gone.

Some of our wild drivers may be suffering from that desperation when they bull through traffic, leaving shaken and angry people behind them. At least they've left a momentary mark of passage, though it constantly risks being a tragic one.

Highway patrolman find many of these marks of willful passage, but one of the most ironic was picked up recently.

A patrolman was investigating one of those fatal accidents that had no apparent explanation. A driver had taken his car directly into the abutment of a bridge. The speed at the time of the crash was set at 70 miles.

Then the patrolman found a bloody beer can in the ditch. The can had teeth marks on it. A powerful and sudden impact had driven someone's teeth deep into the metal can.

The driver-victim of the accident had his teeth knocked out and fractures of the facial bones.

The patrolman was satisfied that he had found the cause of the accident in the mark one driver left behind him.

BULLET

Harold Wingate accidentally put himself in the hospital with a rifle wound recently. He was attempting to break up a dog fight, using the gun as a club, when it discharged into his breast.

Sheep and lamb numbers have decreased since the early 1940's. Steve Hiemstra, Iowa State College farm economist, reports that from 1942 to 1950 sheep numbers slumped 47 percent.

This large decline in numbers, says Hiemstra, is due primarily to a shortage of sheep herders and the resultant increase in production costs. As herders became harder to find, their pay naturally increased as did other production costs During the 30's when this country had an abundance of labor, the build_up in sheep numbers coincided with the build-up in labor supply.

There has been a slight increase in stock sheep since 1950. Between 1950 and 1956, Hiemstra says there was only a 3 percent increase in the 13 western sheep raising states. But in the Corn Belt, sheep numbers were up 23 percent.

This shifting of sheep from the range areas to farm flocks appears to be continuing. Last January, Hiemstra says that the western states were down 2 percent while the Corn Belt states 2 percent.

Farmers have realized good profits from these native flocks in recent years. particularly in Southern Iowa. Lamb prices have been quite stable and incentive payments on wool have increased wool income. This is in contrast to the hog and cattle markets which have declined sharply the past year.

A modest build-up in native sheep numbers is expected by Hiemstra during the next 3 to 5 years. He does not believe that this increase will be large enough to make sheep raising a major enterprise in the Corn Belt. It will remain a supplementary enterprise because labor requirements are high and it is difficult to get much production volume with a ewe flock.

Hiemstra says the sheep outlook should continue to be good relative to other livestock over the next few years.

The Avery Twin Lake Hustlers held two special meetings in February on tractor maintenance. The first meeting was held at the Goodell Farm Equipment Company with Mr Ross giving the lesson. This meeting dealt with tractor safety and what makes a motor run. Mr Ross gave two special demonstrations. First on tipping a tractor from hitching to other than the draw bar, and the second was using an electric drill to illustrate what happens without shields in place.

The second meeting was held at the Farmers Implement Company with Mr Waauge giving the lesson on general lubrication and oil for the engine and hydraulic system. Mr Waauge gave a demonstration on packing a bearing and filling a grease gun. All the club attended both meetings and a list of interested fathers also attended.

Legion Auxiliary to Stress Safety During March

At the Regular unit meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary., March 6th, Mrs Veletta Schlei, Unit President, said, that during the month of March, local Units through the Nation will be placing special emphasis upon the clause contained in the preamble to the Constitution of the Constitution of the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary, "Individual responsbility to the Community, State and Nation." The four major objectives to the Community by the American Legion Auxiliary are —Safety, Health, Education and Recreation.

With the killer stalking the streets and highways, the homes. the farms and inudustrial areas and the appalling statistical record of one person being killed every six minutes and one injured every three seconds through accidents, Mrs Leafy Coobs, Unit Community Service Chairman, is urging every member of the American Auxiliary and every woman in the community to give safety measures a paramount place in her daily life and become active in the "Crusade for Safety."

The local Unit conducts a year-around program of Community Service through their activities in Red Cross, interest in good schools, assistance with Health and Community Drives, assistance with Community Recreation Centers, contributions of magazines and books to school and public libraries, and cooperating with other community projects.

Foundation Cherokee Oats Seed Available For County Farmers

Hancock County can get foundation Cherokee oats seed this spring from the Committee for Agricultural Development, County Extension Director Paul Henderson of Garner announced today.

The committee for Agricultural Development is the organization which makes available seed of new and purified crop varieties. Extension Director Henderson says that Joe L Robinson, production manager for the committee, reports he has a good supply of foundation seed of Cherokee oats on hand.

This seed was produced from breeders' seed under strict production and handling requirements by the Committee for Agricultural Development. Certified seed producers and famers who want a pure supply of this variety may still purchase it from the committee for this year's planting. The seed is eligible for certification and free from serious varietal mixture.

Cherokee has long been popular with the Iowa farmer primarily because of its good grain qualities, Extension Director points out. It is early and short, but only moderately disease resistant. Over half of the acreage in some parts of the state is of the Cherokee variety.

The seed is bagged in 3-bushel bags for $4 a bushel. Henderson says there is no restriction on the amount that can be purchased. Orders should be made in multiples of 3 bushels and sent to Committee for Agricultural Development.

Other seed supplies available from the Committee for Agricultural Development are single crosses of popcorn and field corn.

The Year 1956—

Outlook for Your Clothing Dollar

It looks as if your clothing budget will be spent in about the same way it was last year. The outlook is generally good—and you and your family will have a variety of garments from which to choose

* * *

The year '56, is well underway now. And, it'll be a clothes buying year for you and your family, just as it is for all Americans. It makes no difference whether you buy a large quantity and variety of garments or just a few well-chosen outfits—you'll still buy.

CLOTHING PRICE FORECAST

And that's why we think you'll be interested in some clothing price estimates for 1956. The estimates resulted from much research, analysis and discussion which came out of the 1956 Annual Outlook Conference that was held in Washington, D. C., early this year.

If you plan to buy a new suit or coat this year, keep right on planning! Prices for women's and misses' suits and coats are expected to stay unchanged. Even though costs for making these articles will soar upward prices will remain stable because most manufacturers are producing more garments—thus favoring stiff competition.

DRESS PRICES STABLE

Most dresses for your wardrobe will remain about the same price, although you can expect some boosted charges for the lower quality garments. The reason for this is that increased production costs cannot be efficiently met by all the manufacturers of these clothes.

Blouse and sportswear production will increase. It seems we modern American women want more casual clothes—and the manufacturers are going to give them to us. Consequently, no upward trend in prices is expected in this area.

FOOTWEAR OUTLOOK

You'll find women's hosiery at approximately the same prices. About cotton footwear, look for slight price jumps. For example: Cotton sock and anklet prices will dart upward. Cotton mill prices are below the level of "breaking even." To survive, they must up their prices.

Shoes are apt to be marked up in the stores, too. There may be a break in higher shoe prices around April 1, however. The reason for the possible break is that as production and quantity of leather hides increases, manufacturers may produce an excess of shoes. If so, they will probably sell to retailers at lower prices—and retailers will drop their prices to you.

Girls' dresses and slips may feel a slight price increase at the retail level. Most girls' wear prices will remain about the same, however.

THE BABIES' GARMENTS

As for the infants of the nation the forecast is a skyward trend. These higher prices result from increased production costs. The infants' wear price increase is the one which hits you—the consumer more than any other, for it operates on the principle that "Grandmas and aunties will pay most any price for the family's baby!"

The Dad in your household will probably pay approximately the same prices in '56 as he did in '55. Althought there is some pressure for higher prices in men's wear, it's doubtful that any increase will come into view right now. Most manufacturers are already featuring 1956 spring lines of clothing with no price increase.

By the same token, you needn't look for added expense for your son's garments. For the time being, stability reigns here, too.

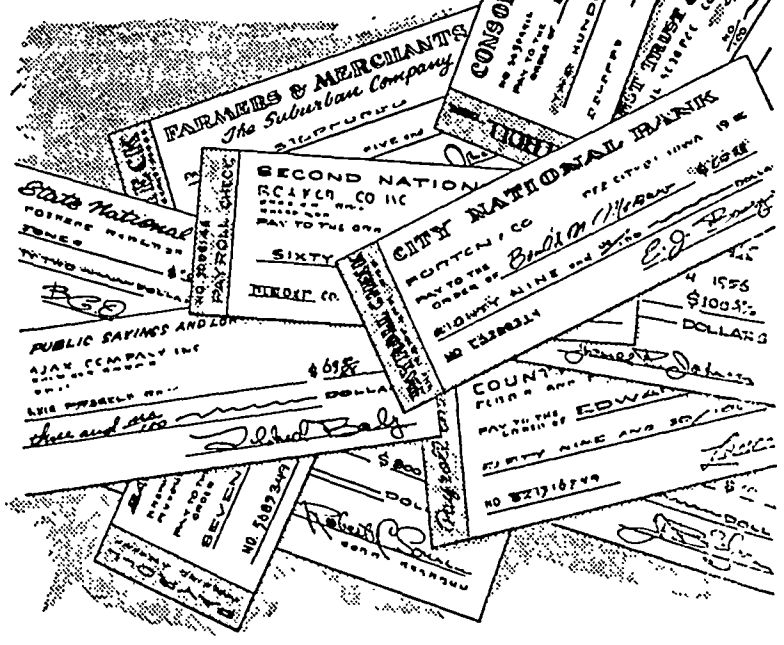
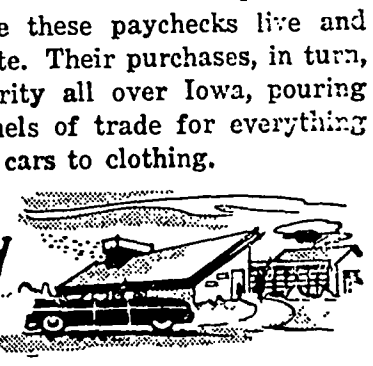
MILLIONS MORE FOR IOWA PAYROLLS



WITH an Iowa payroll of over $30,000,000 per year, the brewing industry is a real contributor to employment in our state. The thousands upon thousands of Iowans who receive these paychecks live and work in every part of the state. Their purchases, in turn, help to further swell prosperity all over Iowa, pouring these millions into our channels of trade for everything from food to furniture, from cars to clothing.

The Brewing Industry Boosts our Prosperity



THIS huge payroll is only one part of the benefits Iowa receives from the brewing industry. For example, the industry pays more than $23,000,000 per year in taxes, reducing our own taxes by that much. It has invested over $62,000,000 in its business in Iowa. And it purchases millions of dollars worth of farm products every year. Yes, we can truly say that—

School Election Will Be Held Monday

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Quite a surprise this morning (Wednesday) to see about four inches of heavy, wet snow. When we hit the sack last night, snow was the farthest thing from our mind. Boy, did we get fooled!

The snow we had Saturday night and Sunday morning was good and wet, too, and there was just enough of it to make shoveling necessary. When we had shoveled around to the east side of our house, we heard a robin doing a little complaining about the weather. He was perched in our hedge, had his feathers all ruffled up and acted as though he cared no more for the cold north wind than did we.

"Bill" Tiggeman says that the robins are having an awful time the last few days. Don't know whether to stick around or to beat it back to where they came from. We think that if we were as well endowed for the free and easy life as the birds, we would have stayed south for some time to come. We'd wait til spring is here and the grass is riz.

We think that the ballot for this coming Monday's school election lists the names of some very capable people. We hope that the voters of the school district will see fit to turn out and cast a ballot for their favorites. It seems to us that a subject that can bring forth as much argument as school, should be worthy of your interest . . . at least to the point of helping to choose the people who are going to run it.

Then, too, if you vote you can argue with a clear conscience. If you don't vote and things don't go to suit you, you don't even have a legitimate gripe.

We imagine that most of us are under the impression that traffic regulations are the result of the ever increasing use of automobiles . . . and most of them are. However, there were traffic regulations back in 1896, the second year of publication for The Klemme Times, as is shown in the following item taken from the paper of April 10th of that year:

"The bicycle riders of Klemme will be interested to know that the bicycle bill has passed both houses of the legislature. It provides that persons riding bicycles on the public highways shall, on meeting or passing persons, turn out to the right, giving half of the road and when horses or other animals attached to the vehicles become frightened, the cycler shall dismount and use reasonable care to prevent accidents. Persons failing to do this shall be liable for all damages resulting therefrom, together with a fine not exceeding $10.

Haven't heard of a bicycle scaring a horse or an oxen in this neighborhood for quite some time.

J W Berry says, "A degree ought to be required of all automobile drivers . . . a degree of caution."

Joyce Ann Ingold Bride of Bruce Arnold at Moline

The marriage of Miss Joyce Ann Ingold, daughter of Mr and Mrs Wilson Ingold, 2207 46th St, Rock Island, Illinois, and Bruce C Arnold, son of Mr and Mrs E J Arnold of Klemme, was solemnized at 3:00 p m, Saturday, March 17, in Trinity Lutheran Church, Moline, Illinois.

The Rev Dr Walter A Tillberg officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an alter decorted with baskets of white gladioli and lighted tapers in candelbra. Organ selections were furnished by James Galley and vocalist was James Burton.

Preceding the bride to the altar was the maid of honor, Miss Irma Harkcom, Moline. Her gown was of nylon cobweb lace over cotillion blue taffeta with a scoop neckline, tiny sleeves and a bouffant, ballerina-length skirt. The blue taffeta obi sash extended into a double flowing panel down the back. A blue taffeta stole and matching mitts completed the ensemble. Her flowers were white and cotillion blue carnations forming a colonial bouquet.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Sally Ingold, sister of the bride, and Evelyn Arnold, Charles City sister of the bridegroom, wore dresses identical to that of the maid of honor.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of nylon tulle and Chantilly lace styled with a decolletage neckline, molded bodice and long fitted lace sleeves. The pleated skirt had an overskirt of nylon tulle edged in Chantilly lace forming a chapel train.

Her double tiered veil was of imported illusion tulle, held by a scalloped bonnet trimmed in seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis with white satin streamers tied with stephanotis.

Bernard Silverbeg, Rock Island seved Mr Arnold as best man, and guests were seated by Jack Bohy, Moline, cousin of the bride, and Giles Weigandt, Moline.

The couple received 200 guests in the church parlors. Assisting with the serving were Mesdames Gilman, Clark Robert Berry, Richard Luebke and Misses Joyce Peterson Mary Rausch, Sharon Burton, Pat Bohy and Helen Louise Cosner. Miss Cozette Lau, Klemme, Iowa, cousin of the bridegroom, also assisted.

A buffet supper for out-of-town guests and relatives was served in the home of the bride's parents following the reception.

When the couple left on a wedding trip, the bride was wearing an avocado linen sheath with embroidered bodice and matching box jacket, with avocado and black accessories.

A graduate of Rock Island High School, the bride is employed as a photo retouch artist at J I Case Co., Rock Island.

Mr Arnold, a graduate of Klemme High School, spent two years as a Staff Sgt in the army located in Japan, then graduated from Iowa State College from a four year course in Mechanical Engineering. Since graduation he has been a product engineer with the J I Case Co., Rock Island.

Mr and Mrs Arnold's address is 720 21st., Rock Island, Illinois.

Those Elected Will Serve 1 to 3 Years

Voters of the Klemme Community School District will go to the polls next Monday, March 26th to elect five directors and a treasurer for the recently approved district.

It was two years ago April 5th that voters first elected directors for the Klemme Community School District, only to find later that all their efforts for reorganization had been for naught. Court action which was instigated by a few opponents of the district was carried from the District Court to the Iowa Supreme Court where an adverse ruling was handed down due to a jurisdictional technicality.

In that election two years ago only about a third of the voters turned out. It is hoped that Monday's election will bring forth more people who want to have a say in who will run the school for them.

There are eleven candidates for director and of these eleven, ten will be elected. Two of those elected will serve for a one year term, two for a two year term, and one for a three year term. Also on the ballot will be one candidate for the office of treasurer. That candidate is Mrs Stella Lemke and the treasurer will be elected for two years.

At a caucus held at the high school gymnasium on Friday night, March 9th, those in attendance picked candidates so that each township in the district and the town of Klemme would have candidates on the ballot. They did this in the hope that voters would mark their ballots in a manner that would give each district representation on the board. Voters are not required to mark their ballots in such a manner but that is what those who were at the caucus would like to see happen.

Those who are elected at Monday's election will take over their duties on July 1st.

Picked by the caucus for one year terms are Don Bacon and C J Larsen of Klemme and Herman Schmidt and Harlan Nuehring of Twin Lake Township. Garland Brinkman is also a candidate for election to a one year term, having filed nomination papers with the County Superintendent of Schools just prior to the deadline for filing. Voters will mark their ballots for two of the above named candidates.

Picked by the caucus to serve for two year terms are Clifford Anderson and Alvin Goll of Ell Township, and Clarence Lenz and Virgil Stille of Liberty Township. Voters will pick two of these four men.

Picked to serve for three year terms are Roy Arnold and Gerald Burk of Avery Township and voters will make their choice between these two.

The election will be held in the Klemme Fire Station and the polls will be open from 12 o'clock noon until 7 o'clock in the evening.

Mark Monday, March 26th on your calender so that you will be sure to remember to go and cast your ballot.

• RANDOM THOUGHTS

Most everyone with whom we have talked since election has voiced the opinion that there are good men on the ballot this year . . . and most of them have expressed the hope that each of the districts which have been included in the Klemme Community District will get representation on the board. In fact, some of them have been more than a little put out because the ballot could not legally be set up to make the final decision come out that way.

Speaking of elections, that Minnesota primary was a honey. Most all the experts figured that Kefauver was gaining on Stevenson, but they didn't realize that so many voters would go against the "organization" in the state and vote for Kefauver.

We think that politics this year will be rather a risky place for betting any money. Voters seem to be in rather a rebellious mood, and there's no telling what will happen when they go to the polls. Liable to be some mighty big upsets.

CAPITOL LETTER

GOOD CONTESTS

While Gov Leo A Hoegh will be unopposed for renomination and reelection this year, several other candidates, on both sides of the political fence, face tough primary competition.

The Democrats have a battle shaping up in the governorship primary where Larry Plummer, Northwood attorney, and Herschel Loveless, Ottumwa will fight it out. Plummer two years ago sought election at attorney general, and Loveless lost by 50,000 votes to Governor Beardsley in 1952.

Five candidates are seeking the nomination for U S senator, wanting the spot held by Sen. Bourke B Hickenlooper who asks reelection. He is being opposed in his own ranks by Atty Gen Dayton Countryman, just finishing his second year in a state elective office, and Duane Orton of Atlantic, a farmer and newcomer to the political scene.

Democrats Lumond Wilcox of Jefferson and R M (Spike) Evans of Arnolds Park are contesting for the senate nomination.

BIG PARLEY

Not only will Iowa Republicans next month select their delegates to the party's national convention in San Francisco this summer, but they must elect a national committeeman and committeewoman. This will be done at the state GOP presidential convention April 6.

There's a good contest brewing for the national committee spot now held by Robert Goodwin but which he'll give up April 6. He has served one term, having been elected in 1952.

Charles Wittenmeyer of Davenport, in the first district, and Warren Rees of Anamosa, in the second district, are active candidates for the national position. Wittenmeyer is a member of the state central committee. Rees served on the GOP state committee four years before retiring in 1954. Rees headed the committee that wrote a new state Republican constitution.

Roscoe Jones of Atlantic in the seventh district, has said he would like the job too. But his candidacy causes an involvement because National Committeewoman Anna Lomas of Red Oak is seeking reelection. Both jobs won't go to the same congressional district.

TINLEY DIES

One of the state's most prominent soldiers Lt Gen Mathew Tinley of Council Bluffs is dead. Tinley, retired commander of the 84th Division and a physician, died less than a week after his 80th birthday.

WANT PENSIONS

Howard P Cloe, Des Moines VFW department service officer, told a two-day spring rally of the veterans organization that one of its main objectives is the task of obtaining favorable consideration of a pension plan for all World War I veterans.

The pension plan being supported by the VFW is now before the house veterans' affairs committee in Washington.

TOLL ROAD

If Congress fails to include a toll road credit provision in a federal road measure now being debated there may be no toll road in Iowa.

Gov Leo Hoegh said that if states cannot be reimbursed with federal funds for toll road construction, they have financed or would finance there would be little advantage in building a toll highway.

A federal interstate highway program now before congress if approved, would provide funds for modernizing some 40,000 miles of highways on the interstate system. Iowa has 702 miles on this network which would be modernized, much of it to four-lane standard. Highway 6 is in this program. A contemplated Iowa toll road would parallel 6 but slightly to the north.

ENTERS RACE

Jean E Hansen, Eagle Grove, former Democratic state representative, will seek the Democratic nomination for state treasurer. Hansen was the party nominee for treasurer two years ago. He represented Carroll County in the Iowa house from 1947 through 1951.

NOTHING WRONG

There's nothing wrong with this new license plate!

Some county treasurers have been receiving complaints that the plates vary in weight, bend too easily, are sharp on the edges, paint comes off too easily, and won't fit many standard license plate brackets.

Henry Burma, chairman of the Iowa board of control which supervises the men's state reformatory at Anamosa, where the plates are made, says he hasn't received any complaints.

GOP ELECTS

Hughes Bryant, Mason City, is the newly elected chairman of the Iowa Republican Veterans league. Dudley Weible, Forest City, is vice-chairman. John DeWitt, Griswold, secretary and Peter Narey Spirit Lake, treasurer.

URGES BOOST

Iowa teaches should get pay increases of a minimum of 10 percent, the Iowa State Education Association reports.

The ISEA said that teacher salaries in Iowa would have to be raised 19 percent to equal the national average.

The ISEA says that public school enrollment in the state will increase by more than 20,000 next year and that as many as 1,651 additional teachers will be needed.

TO CAMPAIGN

Col Ralph A Lancaster, state director of selective service for several years, who retired from active duty last November, will seek the Republican nomination for sheriff of Polk County.

Lancaster was deputy state director of selective service 10 years, and state director five years. He was assistant Iowa adjutant general from 1932 to 1940.

SALARY HIKES

If the money can be found, the state board of regents will give salary increases to staff members at three institutions—Iowa School for the Deaf, Iowa Braille and Sight Saving school, and the Oakdale State Sanitorium.

The board has approved salary raises but left it up to its finance committee and officials of the institutions to see if the raises can be provided with the funds available.

LESS CLIPPING

Barbers in Iowa's Capitol City have reduced their work hours to 50 a week. Many shops have been on a 60-hour week, 8 a m to 6 p m, six days a week.

Under the new plan they will either close all day Monday, or will work an hour's shorter day and knock off Saturday afternoon.

FOUR NEW TOWNS

Iowa has four new towns this year, than it did two years ago.

The secretary of state is sending election instructions to four more towns than he did 2 years ago. Towns incorporated since the last election are: Otho in Webster County, Walford in Benton, Gibson in Keokuk, Crestwood in Polk.

Iowa now has 941 incorporated cities and towns.

QUITS POLITICS

Mayor Pat Touchae of Waterloo has gotten out of politics. One of Iowa's most active mayors, Touchae had been mentioned during the legislature as a likely appointment to the highway commission, and since as a possible candidate for governor.

The mayor resigned to become executive secretary of the Waterloo chamber of commerce.

GETS SAFETY AWARD

Clinton A Bane, 57, Bondurant farmer, has received the "outstanding individual leadership award" for safety activities, from the Iowa Farm Safety Council at its 12th annual meeting. The council also presented 15 other certificates of merit to other Iowans and organizations for safety achievements.

Plan Music Contest

Superintendent E F Kirkpatrick and Charles Whitford spent last Saturday in Des Moines where they attended a meeting of the Iowa High School Music Association to plan the music contests to be held May 4th and 5th.

At present it seems that Klemme will be host to four boys glee clubs, 22 girls glee clubs, 22 mixed choruses and 27 concert bands on those days.

Klemme Man Elected Grand Jury Foreman

The Hancock County Grand Jury for the year 1956 convened at the courthouse on Tuesday morning and organized by electing Dale Brede, foreman. Members on the panel selected were Brede, C M Lackore, Hayfield; Adrian DeWaard, Kanowha; Myrtle Rhinehart, Britt; Ernest Senne, Woden; Olive Yeoman and Della Ross, Corwith. The grand jury was to make an inspection tour of the jails at Britt and Garner, the county home and the various offices at the courthouse on Tuesday.

Mary Circle Met

The Mary Circle met on Thursday afternoon, March 8th at the home of Mrs Melvin Neuberger, with Mrs Clara Stille as cohostess. Fifteen members were present.

Mrs Melvin Schaefer gave the lesson on "Devotional Reading". A lovely lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

The April meeting will be at the home of Mrs Henry Ward with Mrs Richard Carolus as cohostess.

KLEMME LOCAL NEWS

Mr and Mrs J C Thomas spent Sunday visiting in the Jim Thomas home at Des Moines.

Mrs Anna Ulrich fell down the stairs at the nursing home in Clear Lake last Wednesday afternoon and received a number of cuts and bruises. One cut in her arm required thirty stitches. She is still at the nursing home, is getting along fine and can have visitors.

Senior Class News

We were studying the rights and remedies the buyer has against the seller and the seller against the buyer. Now in business law we are on the chapter, "Conditional Sales" which is a type of sale that is often used to protect a merchant who sells on credit.

Diagraming compound sentences seems to be what we are doing now in English. We also have to make the right choices in several sentences, using set, sit or rise or raise.

In history we have been mostly reviewing for a nine weeks test.

In chemistry we had a nine weeks test, and as any chemistry student will tell you, Mr Crawford has never given an easy test. He didn't break his record this time, either.

Corollaries and deductive and inductive reasoning have been explored by the geometry class this past week. An example of inductive reasoning is: If all great men are poor writers and Joe is a poor writer, then Joe is a great man. Needless to say, we try not to use this type of reasoning.

Studying for our bookkeeping test seems to be what we have been doing lately.

A speech to convenience is our new subject in speech. It seems like we are always making a speech of some kind, but you have to expect that from a speech class.

Editorial of the Week

This week was the end of the third nine weeks. As usual we were all busy taking tests. We had our tests on Tuesday and Wednesday this time because on Thursday and Friday, the boys are going to the tournament.

I am sure all the students enjoy tests as it gives them a chance to express what they know. The teachers enjoy them, too. It's so much fun correcting about one hundred papers. This also is one way for them to see how much they have accomplished.

If the seniors are lucky, this will be their last big test. If at the end of the year, the seniors have a C average, they are not required to take the tests.

Wednesday will be another sad day when report cards are handed out. When everyone first gets their report card, they peek in to see what they earned. For some reason it helps to sneak up on it.

Cackles from the Coop

The band will record for radio station KSMN tomorrow, the 15th. We will play "The Nutmeggers" (march) by Eric Osterling, "March Poco" (concert march) by Donald I Moore, and "Amporito Roca" (Spanish march) by Jaime Texidor. For the past week we have been alternately playing to record and then listening to the tape recorder play back to prepare for the radio station recording.

This week we will begin introducing you to vocal ensembles. The freshman class has three. The first is the sextet, composed of: Joyce Tiemann and Margaret Pringnitz, first soprano; Cozette Lau and Virginia Kudje, second soprano; and Mardell Stadtlander and Myrna Barz, alto. Dorothy Roul will accompany them. The second is a trio composed of; Joyce Thiemann, first soprano, Virginia Kudje, second soprano, and Mryna Barz, alto. This group will be accompanied by Cozette Lau. The last is a trio composed of Margaret Pringnitz, soprano; Dorothy Roul, second soprano; and Mardell Stadtlander, alto.

Girls' Sports

We have been doing the same strenuous exercises for about the first 15 minutes of our P T class. We also have been doing different kinds of relay races such as leap frog and duck walk.

We had races m kicking the socker ball kitty-corner from our partners. This helped us in learning how to kick and dodge the ball when playing the game of socker. This game of socker is played something like basketball, but instead of passing the ball from our hands to each other we have to use our feet and kick the ball. The game is rather complicated, but once you catch on to how it is played, it is a lot of fun. We surely get our exercise playing this game because we have to run a lot to kick the ball to our goals.

Junior Class News

In English we are diagraming sentences using predicate adjectives. We are also reviewing for our nine weeks tests.

Our typing class consists mostly of spelling and typing ten minute writings.

We have had geography drilled to us so much this week that it's all we can think about.

It seems like we're always busy in shop.

The wholesale and retail cuts of beef and pork have been the topic of the advanced homemaking girls. Last Thursday, the class went to tour Larsen's processing plant.

RETIRES

At New Hampton, August Klatt has retired as assistant cashier. after 42 years with the bank there.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

A dozen times the farm wife had gone to the window to look down the road and now she sat in the kitchen watching the supper grow cold on the stove.

Behind the house the evening engulfed the barn where, by now, lights should be burning and they should be finishing milking. Her husband had never been so late returning from town.

At last the silence and sense of interruption drove her from the house and she took the car and started down the road hoping to meet her husband returning in the pick-up truck.

She did meet him, just at the edge of town. They stopped side by side in the road and he told her he had been delayed concluding a sale. He would hurry on home, he said, and get the chores started.

By the time the wife got her car turned around in the road, her husband was far ahead in the truck. She followed more slowly, until, as she rounded the curve just above their home, her headlights picked up a freight train moving across the grade crossing.

The husband's truck was not in sight and she was relieved to think that he had crossed the tracks ahead of the train and was now home starting the work.

Not until the train jarred to a stop and flashlights gleamed around the engine did she realize that the truck was scattered 100 yards along the tracks and her husband dead.

The typical car-train fatal accident occurs at a crossing close to the victim's home, a crossing familiar to the victim for many years. Nothing but luck can protect the driver when attention and alertness fail.

South Ell Tip Toppers

The South Ell Tip Toppers held an all day meeting February 25th at Rosalie Rosendahl's.

Jane Renner made a motion to give $10 to Twin Lake Township for the purchase of a demonstration table. It was seconded by Myrna Barz.

Rosalie Rosendahl and Jane Renner are to write to the Chamber of Commerce for a map of a tour of Mason City sometime in April or May and to write to the Methodist Camp about a cabin for a few days of camp.

Ginger Kudje and Ellen Waddingham are going to help three of the North Ell girls put up a display for National 4 H week.

An illustrated talk was given by Jane Renner "Color Scheme to Harmonize with a girl's Complexion."

Janet Murray and Linda Jernigan gave a team demonstration o "Room Decoration". A music talk "Malagerena from Andalusion" was given by Myrna Barz.

The club held their March meeting at Virginia Kudje's.

Sharleen Swanson gave a demonstration on "How to Make Dresser Scarves, Simple Embroidery and Mitered Corners."

The Hancock County Nurse gave a demonstration talk on "Baby Sitting" and on "Bed Making."

Ginger Kudje was elected to be the candidate for queen at Fun Night.

Growing Old... to serve you better

When you ship or travel to or from the circled area shown above, consult a Rock Island representative. His job is to help you.

Rock Island

Ever since the first ROCKET chugged bravely over the midwest prairies, 104 years ago, the Rock Island has been doing a 24-hour-a-day transportation job for its patrons.

And it has never stopped growing—growing in the sense that it is constantly improving service and facilities.

This growth means many things. To shippers it could mean covered hoppers . . . or damage-free cars . . . or those mighty, mobile power plants, the ROCKET FREIGHTS . . . or perhaps the Convert-a-Frate cars, soon to come.

To travelers it certainly would mean Rock Island's fleet of modern, light-weight ROCKETS, including the famous Golden State (Chicago-Los Angeles) . . . and it could mean the new Jet Rocket now in service between Chicago and Peoria.

It also means a capable personnel, those willing-to-serve Rock Island representatives who consider it a privilege to help you with your shipping or travel problems.

Third Of Voters Cast Ballots In School Election

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

As your elected representatives to guide the course of the Klemme Community School, the directors chosen at Monday's election are well worthy of your support.

Winter is really showing its muscles during the last days of March. We've had rain, sleet, snow, thunder and lightning, and blustery winds. About the only thing lacking weatherwise is a good hot spell . . . and we suppose that will come before too long.

They used to say in Texas that it was the only place in the world where you could stand in mud up to your knees and at the same time have dust blowing in your eyes. The way our weather has been acting, we wouldn't be surprised if we would even go that one better.

Whoever the Iowan was that said "if you don't like our weather, just wait a minute" must have had March in mind.

Lots of excitement west of town Monday evening .A huge balloon came down just north of Alvin Bachman's farm. It is assumed that it was a weather balloon, but none seems to know for sure. We have watched the daily papers and listened to the radio, but so far no clue as to where the balloon may have come from.

A note attached to the balloon said something to the affect that the plastic material of which the balloon was made weighed some 500 pounds, and that whoever found it should help themselves. People took the note literally and within three hours every bit of the thin clear plastic was gone.

The balloon was a whopper and we've heard all sorts of estimates as to its actual size. Some say it would have covered a hay stack, others talk about houses, and one estimate was that if the material had all been spread out it would have covered an 80 acre field.

In any case, it was big, and we're still curious as to the purpose and origination of the balloon.

Charlie Hitt and Asa Legge returned Saturday from a trip that took them to visit relatives in Kansas and Arkansas. They visited with Charlie's daughter, Mrs Dalton Schmidt, and her family, at Benedict, Kansas, with Dick Legge at Newton, Kansas, and with Charlie's sister. Mrs L D Williams at Mountain Home, Arkansas. They also did a little sight seeing on the trip.

Most interesting of the sights to their mind were a pair of flood control and power dams in Arkansas. One was at Bull Shoals and the other was the Norfork dam. The Norfork dam is 220 feet high, 2,624 feet long, contains 6,500,000 cubic yards of concrete, backs up enough water normally to cover 22,000 acres, and drains 1,806 square miles of land.

Accident Cases Fill Docket for Court

The case of Dennis Schmidt, a minor, by Alfred Schmidt, his father and next friend and Alfred Schmidt vs Arthur Uthe, doing business as the Uthe Implement Company, defendant, is scheduled for trial in the Hancock County District Court on Monday.

Tell Results of Basic Skills Tests

By Supt E F Kirkpatrick

The results of the Basic Skills Tests have been returned and now we know how the average pupil in each of our grade school classes compared with the average pupil in other grade classes.

The test was composed of eleven parts such as vocabulary, reading comprehension, language skills, map and graph reading, use of reference material, arithmetic, tec.

We are especially proud of the 3rd grade. They did better than 92% of the rest of the 3rd grade classes in Iowa. The 8th grade surpassed 81% of the 8th grades in Iowa. Both of these groups were above average in every test.

Our 7th grade was about average with the rest of the state. Our 4th, 5th, and 6th grades did not do so well, but the test results can be used by the teachers to adapt their work to the pupils needs as shown by the tests.

These scores are for class averages only. The individual students have a wide range of scores and each parent should consult the graph his child brought home, to see how he did.

Grand Jury Reports On County Installations

The Hancock County Grand Jury made a tour of inspection of the courthouse, county home and the jails at Britt and Garner, on Tuesday, March 20th. In a report filed with the Hancock County District Court, the Grand Jury stated that the jails in Britt and Garner were found in a clean and sanitary condition and the County Home was found in a very satisfactory condition and that the repairs and improvements recommended by previous grand juries are being carried out and will be continued.

The Grand Jury reported further that an inspection of the courthouse and annex indicated that both are in good repair with the exception of the courtroom and noted that finances necessary to follow through on the repair and renovation program recommended by previous grand juries is posing a problem for the Board of Supervisors. The Grand Jury recommended an emergency levy sufficient to complete the program including the courtroom which is in dire need of repair.

Quoting from the jury report "The Grand Jury feels that the rejuvenation of the Courtroom and the other work incidental thereto should be accomplished as quickly as possible and that the Board of Supervisors make available the necessary funds as soon as can be done". The report was signed by Dale Brede, foreman.

New Board Will Take Over July 1

The election for the naming of directors for the Klemme Community School District was held Monday with just about a third of the voters turning out, as was the case when directors were elected two years ago. In the 1954 election there were 369 ballots cast, while this year 372 voters went to the polls.

People who had worked toward the forming of the district had hoped to have a director named from each of the five areas included in the district . . . and their wishes were fulfilled. Those elected to the board included Herman Schmidt of Twin Lake Township, Clarence Lenz of Liberty Township, Clifford Anderson of Ell Township, Roy Arnold of Avery Township, and C J Larsen from the town of Klemme.

Schmidt and Larsen were elected for one year terms, Lenz and Anderson for two year terms and Arnold for a three year term. Mrs Stella Lemke was elected treasurer to serve for a two year term.

On June 30, trustees of the local school will end their duties and the newly elected board will take over the running of the the district on July 1. Trustees of the district are Asa Arnold, Paul Kramer and Herman Schmidt.

CAPITOL LETTER

BIG MONTH AHEAD

April this year will not only bring spring showers but much political oratory as well.

With the March 31 filing deadline for state officers past, both Democrats and Republicans will unlimber their big guns for the primary races.

But two big events are on tap for the month too.

April 6 is the date of the Republican state presidential convention in Des Moines. The GOP delegates will elect their national party convention delegates and alternates, and also will select a new national committeeman from Iowa, and will probably reelect Mrs Anna Lomas of Red Oak as national committeewoman.

Robert Goodwin steps out as national committeeman and Roscoe Jones of Atlantic, Warren Rees of Anamosa and Charles Wittenmeyer of Davenport are seeking the position.

The Democrats have a big party on tap for April 11. Their Jackson Day dinner in Des Moines will feature none other than former president Harry Truman, always a popular personality with Iowa Democrats.

The $25-a-plate function, with Truman as the attraction, is expected to draw the biggest attendance ever at this Democratic party function.

DISCUSS DELEGATES

County Republicans are beginning to line up candidates for the GOP national convention late this summer.

The sixth district GOP central committee has recommended Dick Everds of Estherville and Dwight Ewing of Rockwell City as district delegates to San Francisco. The group also recommended that Keith Richardson, state Young Republican chairman, be assigned one of the 10 delegate-at-large posts by the state convention.

In the first district, George Nagle of Iowa City, has the Johnson County endorsement for national delegate. In the third, Paul G Norris, Jr., Marshalltown and Charles E Strickland, Mason City, have been endorsed by county units.

Seth Barker, Ottumwa, was endorsed by the Wapello County Republicans in the fourth.

Pottawattamie County GOP members have endorsed Herman Snater of Macedonia in the seventh.

DIVIDED HIGHWAYS

A survey by the safety engineer of the Iowa highway commission shows that half of the accidents in Iowa could be avoided with four lane highways.

W O Prire, safety engineer, analyzed the 1954 accidents on the rural portions of Highway 6 across the state and concluded that 319 of the 574 accidents during the year probably could have been avoided with a divided four lane road.

Price told the commission that there should be no crashes at intersections on such roads, and that there would likely be few accidents from "passing other vehicles" on a divided highway.

His survey showed that on Highway 6 there were 153 head-on collisions, 130 intersectional crashes, and 21 accidents resulted from passing other vehicles .

TUITION UP

The Iowa School for the Deaf has increased its tuition charge for out-of-state deaf-blind students $300 a year to $3,300.

The deaf-blind department at the school has a reputation of being one of the best in the country and has an enrollment of 13 deaf-blind youngsters.

Report of the tuition increase was included in a state audit report made by State Auditor C B Akers. The report showed the school had an average of 335 students throughout the year.

MORE SALES

Governors from three states and agricultural representatives from 13 other states participated in a "meat state" conference in Omaha with its chief incentive "to restore profit in the livestock business".

Governors, Hoegh of Iowa and Anderson of Nebraska promoted the conference. In addition to them, Gov Joe Foss of South Dakota also participated.

Goals of the conference include the promoting of meat consumption through an advertising and promotion program on a national basis. Also better prices sought for meat producers.

MORE PINCHING

The Iowa highway patrol has stepped up its activity. Patrol records show that patrolmen issued 3,094 traffic summonses during the month of February, 451 more than in the same month a year ago. In addition, 2,135 warning tickets were issued, an increase of 348. Nearly 2,000 more tickets were issued in the month on faulty vehicle equipment.

Warning tickets appear on the driver's record kept by the department of public safety but do not require a court appearance.

MORE BUILDING

More new dwelling and more remodeling of residential quarters was noted in Iowa last month than in the corresponding month a year ago.

The public health engineering service reports 268 new dwelling permits were issued in 16 Iowa cities included in the survey as compared to 232 in the same cities in February 1955. Value of the permits for construction this year is $4,610,025 as compared with $2,634,984 a year ago.

Remodeling permits were up from 120 to 212 and the value of such permits is $220,925 as compared with $125,454 in the corresponding month in 1955.

COLLECTIONS DOWN

Use tax collections on new motor vehicles and trailers last month totaled $435,846, down from the collections in February 1955 which totaled $507,209.

PLANNING AHEAD

Some Republicans in Iowa's third district would like to see Congressman H R Gross of Waterloo unseated. A meeting was held at Allison, in the third district, last week to make plans to bring out congressional candidates to oppose Gross, a former radio newscaster, two years from now.

A permanent committee is to be organized with representatives from each county in the district. The goal is to mold an organization within the Republican ranks that will elect a congressional candidate who will support the Eisenhower administration program in Washington.

Among those mentioned as possible candidates for congress are Howard Roach, Plainfield; Harold McKinley, St Ansgar; Henry Burma, Allison; Alfred Beardmore, Charles City; and Mrs Enid Robinson, Hampton. Mrs Robinson, state GOP vice-chairman, has indicated she is not interested in a congressional race.

DELEGATE FEES

Fees for delegates to the state Republican presidential convention will be $3. The fee has been set by the GOP state central committee.

Delegates to the Republican national presidential parley in San Francisco. August 20, will set their own delegate fees. It is expected fees to the national meeting will not exceed $300 for delegates and $150 for alternates. They may be somewhat less too.

Fees to the 1952 presidential convention were $100 for delegates and $50 for alternates. Expenses are expected to be higher for the California meeting.

64TH

At Humboldt, Mr and Mrs Gus Luke recently observed their 64th wedding anniversary. They are still able to be up and around.

Federal Gas Tax Exemption Near

With a recent senate passage of a bill to make a refund available on the 2 cents federal gas tax as gas for farming, another Farm Bureau objective nears reality. A similar bill has previously passed the house. The bill now goes to conference and passage appears certain in the near future. This will result in an approximate 60 million savings to the Iowa farmers.

Editorial of the Week

CAREER DAY

On Monday, March 26th, the seniors and the sophomores went to Britt for Career Day.

The program started at 9:15 at which time we heard a few selections from the band. A short talk was given by Superintendent Earl L Miller; the invocation by Rev R M Bell; and the address by Dr Pendergraft, director of field service, Iowa State Teachers.

At 10:55 we went to our first period classes. We could choose any one of the following: agriculture, pharmacy, aviation, interior decoration, accounting and banking, building trade, teaching, elementary, office opportunities, automobile mechanics, business administration and engineering.

We had from 11:15 to 1:20 for lunch after which time we returned and went to our second period classes. For this class we chose one of the following: forestry, social work, homemaking, music, military service, beauty culture, teaching (secondary), nursing, Civil Service, veterinary medicine, religious occupation, and radio and television.

We returned home at 2:30.

For daily work in English we have been diagraming sentences on the board. Gerunds and infinitives are the latest addition to our diagraming.

We are learning some angles in algebra such as angle sof elevation, the angle of depression and the tangent of an angle.

We have been receiving short quizzes in biology class to keep us alert on the subject of bacteria.

In history we are studying about the powers of World War I and who had the most advantages, etc.

We have been taking a few short trips in drivers training which gives us experience for becoming a better driver.

Senior Class News

Punctuating compound sentences in our English workbook is our assignment today. We finally finished our diagraming of compound sentences so any day now we're expecting a test.

We are studying about Theodore Roosevelt and some of the reforms that he accomplished while in office. In American history some of the reforms in city government were the new commission form of government and the city manager form of government.

In bookkeeping we are keeping books for a big concern for a month. All the essential things of bookkeeping are required to complete this practice set.

Conditional sales and unfair trade practice has been the main subject in business law. Every chapter we receive a study guide to help us along.

The compounds of carbon and the reasons for them are the subjects being considered by the chemistry class.

In geometry we are studying parallel and parallelgrams.

In typing we have just finished typing out library cards. We have also been trying out several new typewriters. We have gotten three new ones so far.

Cackles from the Coop

Today (the 21st) Mr Whitford borrowed a strototuner from Mr Stansbury, Garner band director. A strototuner is an electronic tuning device. For example: if the note you are playing is supposed to have 256 vibrations per minute and instead it has 260 vibrations per minute, a disk on the dial will revolve counterclockwise. If you have 250 vibrations per minute, the disk will revolve in a clockwise direction and if you are in tune, it will remain stationary. It's a wonderful gadget and we should have one of our own.

The members of the junior sextette are Fonda Bier and Marvalyn Carolus, 1st sopranos; Eva Thieman and Winola Zwald, altos; and Sharleen Swanson and LaVohn Josten, 2nd soprano. Most of these girls have previous contest experience which will definitely help them to get a I ratingn.

Freshman News

To start this week off good, we received new seating arrangements in science. We have been study about water and how it changes physically.

As usual, in English we are still diagraming infinitives, and gerunds.

Most of the home ec class have finished their skirts and have a good start on their blouses.

In math we are solving algebra problems. We've about had our fill of this.

The saws and hammers are still banging away in shop.

Jokes

Dad: "What does this "F" on your report card mean son?"
Don A: "Why-er it stands for phenomenal."
Dad: "That's good, I'm glad to see that you're improving."

Don K: "Why does Denny call his car baby?"
Roger B: "Because it never goes any place without a rattle".

Bill "Has James changed much in the years he has been gone?"
Mary: "No, but he thinks he has. He keeps talking about what a fool he used to be."

Senior Class Play

As April 17th, the night of production of the senior class play draws near, we will this week attempt to give you a short story of the play.

Pretty Carol Calloway is in a quandary: What to do with a family of eccentrics? Sister Ione has gone gaga over psychiatry! Little brother Sid is scrammy over "shut 'em up" gangster films! Aunt Eunice is a push-over for phony mediums and supernaturalism. And then Carol is bequeathed an old haunted farmhouse, to which she marchals her family in short order. How each member becomes cured of his phobia on a wild stormy March evening forms the plot of this hilarious farce. The haunting of a head-bandaged ghost, the appearance of a ferocious gangster and an escaped maniac, will all delightfully chill the spines of the spectators; while the hysterical antics of the jittery maid, Allie Katz, and the lisping Dicky Bird will move you to screams of laughter.

Other characters include Minerva Hawkwood, the mournful housekeeper; her half-witted nephew, the crippled Benjy; Rex Rosner, a young plastic surgeon; and Clemuel McClatchin, an eerie undertaker!

Question of the Week

If you had to find a Secant, where would you look and what would you do with it after you found it?

Sharleen: I'd look in the jungle and if I found it I'd give it to Larry.
Joyce: I'd look in our attic and if I found one I'd get rid of it.
Mardell: I'd look underneath the study hall tables and then toss it to Margaret and Dorothy.
Ronald H: I'd look under Wessel's car and if I found it I'd put it back.
Kay B: I'd look in an empty ink bottle and if I found it, I'd give it to Mr Crawford to work on in chemistry class.
Ginger: I would look in Gary's car and if it was an insect, (a poisonous thing) I'd let it bite him.
Mr Chadwick: I'd look for it in an English book and find out what part of speech it was. Then remember to never use it at all.
Shirley: I'd look for it in Carol's bed and if I found it, I'd never sleep with her again.
The Answer:
Secant is a line that intersects a curve at two or more points.

Gossip Around KHS

Beverly and Pete got into an argument and they're not on speaking terms.

We have seen Jeanne B and Raymond H together quite a bit lately.

Sharleen and Larry must have been bitten by the same bug as Bev and Pete as we hear they have had a little spat also.

You don't suppose Myrna B was a little mad the other night when Gary L made her walk? Do you?

Martin B seems to be mad at a few of his classmates because of them taking Jane R skating Monday night.

I wonder what Carol B said to Roger over the phone that caused the operator to forget to tell them when their three minutes were up.

I wonder how come Roger B won't give the Klemme girls a ride anymore? He always is willing to give the Mayfield girls a ride.

Children Assigned New Type Homework

Children will leave school this afternoon with a new kind of homework—loads of it. The papers they carry home will explain their big task, which is to collect clothing for "Bundle Week in Klemme", a project co-sponsored by public schools and Save the Children Federation.

Teachers have tacked posters to classroom walls, urging their pupils to bring bundles of clothing to school during "Bundle Week" Monday April 16 through Friday April 20 should prove a very busy period.

Superintendent of Schools Kirkpatrick explained today, "Getting clothing for children is a national project of Save the Children Federation. I hope our schools will make a sizeable contribution to this important drive."

Mr Kirkpatrick said that children's clothing is the major need, but infant and adult wear are also welcome. He listed items most in demand: sweaters, shirts, pants, dresses, diaper,, baby shirts and bootees. All clothing should be clean, mended if necessary, and wearable.

The superintendent foresaw that students' parents would receive lots of help in cleaning out their closets of things the family no longer need or wear. He requested people without children in school to hand their useable castoff garments to neigborhood students for the drive.

Save the Children Federation will distribute some of this clothing free overseas, on the Navajo Indian Reservation, and in the Southern Appalachian Mountains; stockpile some for emergencies such as fires, floods, earthquakes, and storms; and sell some for nominal prices to American mountain people who rebel against accepting charity.

Girls' Sports

Another week of school has rolled around and as usual we started off with an hour of P T. For the first few minutes we did a few exercises and ran a few laps around the gym. After this we play various games or dance. When we play games, the loser has to take a few laps around the gym. This gives a reason to try hard to win.

In spite of being worn out, and the stiff muscles, we have a lot of fun in our P T classes.

Junior Class News

English consists of diagraming sentences using gerunds and infinitives. We are finally beginning to understand them.

As usual we've been typing in typing class. Mostly ten minute timed writings and some problems.

In geography class we have been studying "The Flatlands" and "The Natural Resouces.' We are finally getting back to normal after the thirteen page nine weeks test Mr Chadwick gave us last week.

As for Home Ec, we have been studying pork and beef cuts. We have been learning whether it is best to broil or fry, steaks, pork chops, pork loin and various other kinds of meats.

In shop the boys have been working on their projects. Some of the things they are making are: hall trees, one boat, a couple chests, coffee tables and picnic tables.

Looking in at speech we find them demonstrating speeches and picking out subjects for speeches and finding information for speeches to convince.

Ending with business law in which we have been studying "Unfair Trade Practices" etc. This brings to a close the junior news for this week.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

He listened while the city went to sleep. The sounds of traffic rising to his apartment bedroom gradually disentangled. lessened and fell into long periods of silence. Then came the single, lonely sounds: the last bus, the solitary, quick crack of heels on the walk as someonne hurried home against the clock, the dragging hum of a car his ear followed far up the empty street.

When these sounds ended, he knew the city slept. His wife, his children in another room, his friends, few enemies, the hundreds of people he knew by sight in the daily streets, the thousands he didn't know at all, they all were turned now to that quiet business of sleep. He felt like the only man unemployed in a busy place.

He got out of bed, dressed, and scribbled a note in the kitchen: "Couldn't sleep again so have gone for a drive. Be back for breakfast." Outside, on the street he felt better, almost as though he had some definite business there. A light, fine rain misting down reflected the few lights still burning in the city like a false dawn.

He drove to the nearest cross-town avenue. In a few hours he would be driving down this street again with morning traffic, toward's a day's work without sleep.

He began to drive fast. The rumble of brick under his tires sounded like escape toward something reassuring and solid. Then, perhaps, a moment of sleep came at last. Or, perhaps, the last twinge of desperation or an instant of neglect.

The car was sliding on the wet street. The lights of a bridge flashed ahead. He turned, frantic to avoid the gray abutment. The car crashed down the bank into a darkness of water, a flood and current of sleep.

ISEA Making Drive for Funds for Headquarters

County and city organizations of teachers are stepping up the drive for funds to be applied on the purchase of the Iowa State Education Association's new headquarters home, Salisbrry House in Des Moines. The intensified effort follows a vote of the ISEA delegate assembly in February to complete the purchase fund as soon as possible. An over-all goal of $300,000 has been established for the campaign.

Hancock County teachers have contributed $346 toward a goal of $1,840.

Salisbury House, a 42-room English-style mansion, was built in the middle 20's by Carl Weeks of Des Moines, who made a fortune in the manufacture and sale of cosmetics. The orginal cost of the building was $1,200,000.

The ISEA purchased it in 1953 for $200,000 including a large collection of paintings and art objects which are now on public display. Extensive remodeling has been completed to provide offices and working facilities for the 30 full-time employees of the association.

This, together with an addition of a book storage room, has increased the ISEA's total investment to $387,000. The association had a building fund of $87,000 on hand when the purchase was made.

In addition to the campaign among ISEA members, the headquarters project is also receiving support from business and industrial firms. A total of $24,630 has been subscribed to date in this phase of the campaign.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

This week, says Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, will be important in the hog markets from the standpoint of orderly marketings.

Twenty-seven percent more hogs were slaughtered during the last week in February than a year earlier. Early in March receipts were down 2 percent from the previous week. The mid-March marketing "bulge", the economist adds, should be near the end of the heavy fall pig runs. From the end of this week on, slaughter will decrease slowly, but will remain above a year earlier level. This will put hog prices in a better position from the supply viewpoint

By June, the percentage in slaughter over a year earlier will have declined, states Kutish. We have more early pigs this year than last year, and farmers will want to market them in June Remembering last year's experience, they won't be inclined to hold pigs after they are ready for market. July, says Kutish, could be a month to avoid this year.

Soybean meal prices should be higher by next fall, predicts Kutish. The meal price is currently depressed by heavy crushings resulting from a rising oil demand. Soybean oil at Decatur is selling at 14⅝ cents. The highest since September 1954.

As a result of this, soybean meal in Iowa is selling $10 per ton below August futures, and $7 below new crop meal for December's futures. And this is in the face of an expected 1956 soybean crop of over 400 million bushels.

Since meal demand by farmers will be increasing because of seasonally larger poultry and hog requirements, there is a strong incentive for the Iowa farmer to cover his summer soybean meal needs at current prices.

March grain markets started weak. There were heavy deliveries of corn and oats on March future contracts. Kutish says Chicago corn stocks are double a year ago, but that Iowa prices have remained high compared to Chicago's.

Reports from the country indicate that more corn is going under loan than a year ago, but large Commodity Credit Corporation sales and supplies of other feed grains will partially offset this.

The higher rail rates for grain went into effect last week. This raised grain transportation from Iowa elevators to the terminals 1½ to 2 cents a bushel. This means that local bids on grain to be moved by rail will be down that much more in relation to the terminal prices.

In mid-February, Iowa farmers were receiving less in the market place for grains, livestock and poultry than a year earlier, according to Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist

The dairy and poultry enterprises of the farm business, compared to grains and livestock, are the bright spot in the overall farm picture. Kutish says that butterfat was selling at the same price as a year ago. Milk was down 6 percent.

This relatively favorable dairy picture has resulted in dairy cows being bid up to a higher price than a year earlier. In fact, says Kutish, milk cows are the only item of the many products marketed by Iowa farmers which are selling higher than a year ago. He consider this a clear indication that farmers also are aware of the deterioration of other parts of the farm business relative to dairying during the past year.

There is increased interest in poultry this spring. This is a result of relatively favorable egg prices this winter. More recently, egg prices have dropped some compared to a year ago. But Kutish points out that the decline is still less than the drop in beef cattle and hog prices.

Current wool prices are down 11 percent from a year ago, but this is offset by the wool incentive payments.

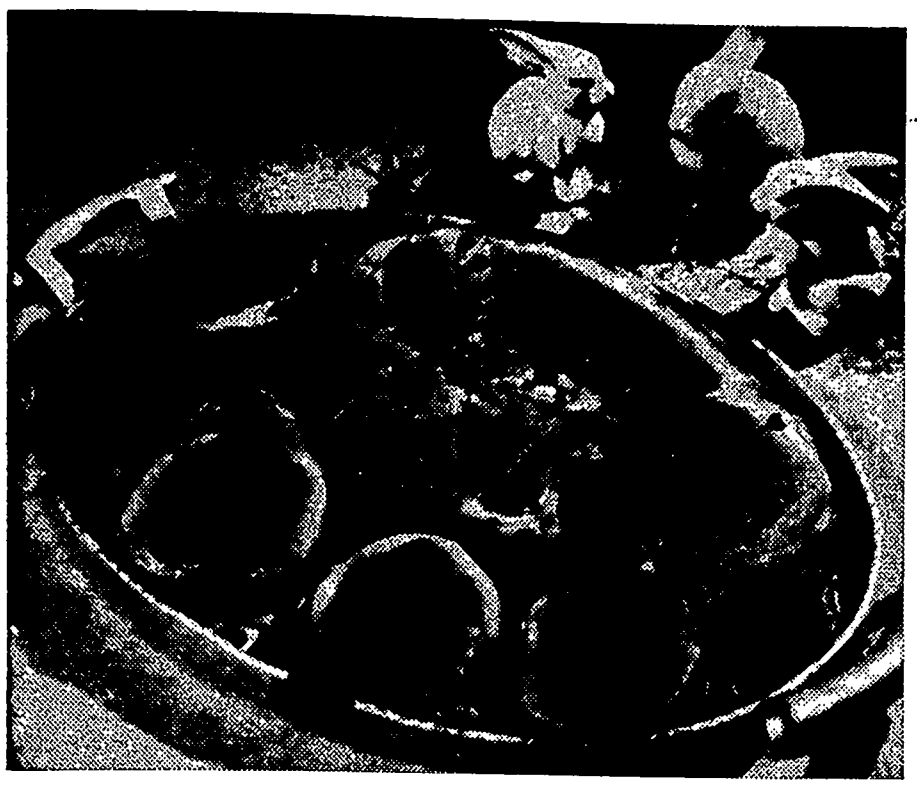
Accessorize Meal With Garnishes



Perky cranberry tulips make this Easter ham platter as festive as your Easter bonnet. While the ham slices are baking, crumble a brown sugar-butter topping over the tulips and bake them right along with your slices of ham.

What will it be on Easter Sunday—ham or turkey? Whether you decide to serve one of these "traditionals" or some other variety of meat on the holiday that is just around the corner, you'll find Easter Day a happy day at your house if you make your big dinner a real party affair.

Remember to perk up both table and food—the table with decorative Easter knicknacks and food platters with bright, original garnishes.

Jewel Graham, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College, offers a few suggestions on ways to "dress up" your meal.

GRAPE CLUSTERS

Perhaps you are serving turkey. If so, try your hand at some grape garnishes. Clusters of grapes will more than gleam and sparkle when placed on the platter around that "big bird". For lots of eye appeal, alternate red and green clusters on a bed of crisp green parsley.

For a quick—but sweet—trick, dip your grape clusters in some slightly beaten egg whites. Then place them on a cake rack over a piece of wax paper to drain. Sift granulated sugar over the grape clusters and allow them to dry. (This method is neater and more efficient than dipping clusters alternately in egg white and sugar.)

If you've never tried hard-cooked eggs in your turkey dressing, now's the time to begin. To create a sprightly April touch, simply add 4 to 6 Easter eggs to the dressing.

SCORE YOUR HAM

If you're serving ham, score it. This adds lots of eye appeal. To score uniformly, use toothpicks as guideposts. Simply space them at regular intervals along the two side edges of the ham's fatty surface. Place your knife against them and cut parallel gashes. Now cut diagonally across the parallel lines to form uniform, well-shaped diamonds. Single lines will form a conventional design, but for a more festive effect, try double linnes.

There are many different glazes you can use. Miss Graham recommends either a mixture of dry mustard and brown sugar or crange marmalade. After glazing, you'll probably want to stud your diamonds with whole cloves.

An Easter ham certainly deserves top-notch garnishes. You can try vegetable-shaped flowers or stylized Easter eggs.

FLOWER-SHAPED GARNISHES

Slice some large, white turnips into Easter lily shapes. Gay yellow jonquils can be fashioned from thin slices of rutabaga by cutting each slice into six petal shapes.

Cranberry tulips (shown in above picture) make an eye-catching border for an Easter ham or any other meat you choose. So simple to make, too! Just cut a 1-pound can of jellied cranberry sauce into plump slices. Then use your tulip-shaped cooky cutter to cut a cranberry tulip from each slice. Place each tulip cut-out on a canned peach half. Use as a vivid garnish for your ham platter or arrange a "tulip ber" on a speaate plate—then guests can help themselves to the cranberry tulips. You might try topping your favorite salad with these tulips, too.

If you like to serve your ham or turkey with an "ice", scoop frosty cranberry sherbert into lemon, orange or small graptfriut shells—and form a border around you meat platter.

Old Hunting, Fishing Licenses to Expire

Hunters and anglers are reminded by the State Conservation Commission that their 1955-56 hunting fishing licenses expire March 31, and will be void after that date.

New licenses are now available from county recorders, conservation officers, and many license depositaries such as sporting goods and hardware stores.

Resident fishing licenses are required of all males 16 years of age and over. Women 16 years of age and over must hold fishing licenses in state-owned lakes only, and are not required to be licensed to fish in other waters.

Resident hunting licenses are required for all hunters regardless of age and sex, even for shooting "varmints" during the summer.

However, owners and tenants of land and their children may hunt, fish and trap on such lands without securing a license to do so.

ICE CAKE

A family of Montana probably owes the lives of all six to a huge chunk of ice. Their car, belonging to Mr and Mrs Oscar Crawford was knocked off the highway when it was hit from behind on an ice road, and shoved down a 15 foot embankment. The huge cake of ice, frozen to the banks of the Turkey River, kept the car from plunging down into the river.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Spring must be here. We've seen robins, blackbirds, redwing blackbirds, flies, box elder bugs, young muscle men with no shirts, top-down convertibles, people raking lawns, farmers in the field, and this week's Times carries a fishing tackle ad.

Next thing you know, some of the local golf duffers (including Ye Ed) will be out chasing that little white ball around the pastures again.

After a long cold winter it seems more than pleasant to be able to be out in the sun and see winter-forgotten activities coming to life again . . . and just think . . . the gas bill will shrink, you can put away those heavy winter clothes, the kids can be out of doors more, the snow tires can come off the jalopy, the storm windows can come down to be replaced by screens over freshly washed windows, the yard will begin to be needing mowing, mud will be carried from the side streets to come to rest on our paving where it will turn to dust to be picked up by warm south breezes (and some from other directions) and gently wafted into homes and business places to form a nice film over everything.

Of course, the side street dwellers fare no better than do those on the paving. They get the dust just as often and in addition have to put up with the mud when the weather is right.

Which reminds us that some guy once said that all dust was, was mud with the juice squeezed out.

In any case, we are glad to bid goodbye to winter, and are looking forward to a lot of pleasant outdoor activities.

"Men still die with their boots on—one boot on the accelerator!"

That big storm system that cranked up down in Texas and finally got going full blast in Michigan didn't entirely miss our locality. About 1:30 Tuesday morning, the wind here was really blowing. Only heard of one case of damage, though, and that was at the Herman Nannenga farm 2½ miles south of town on highway 69. There it blew over a windmill, mashed in a stave silo, and blew a big tree down right alongside the house.

There's a big political storm brewing in the country now, too, and it won't entirely miss us either. How much damage it will do, we don't know. Guess it will depend to quite a degree on which side of the political fence you are.

That's one fence where the grass isn't always greener on the other side. Just the people.

Local School Children Sponsor Bundle Week

Bundle up that overcoat—along with all those other outgrown, unwanted, but still useable garments that clutter every household's closets. For next week is Bundle Week, and school children will give us no peace until we make a donation to help clothe the ragged in this country and abroad.

The students can teach us all a lesson in democracy and humanitarianism and brotherhood through their clothing campaign. Important though these virtues may be, they seem almost trivial when compared to the great good that Bundle Week will bring boys and girls whose threadbare garments cannot shield them from freezing winter winds.

Held under the auspices of Save the Children Federation, an international child service agency, Bundle Weeks have become an institution in the nation's schools over the past 14 years. And this is Klemme Bundle Week.

Surely, innocent children deserve more than rags. These victims of poverty, war, or natural catastrophies do not ask for much—merely for garments we ourselves no longer wear. This is a modest request and one that Klemme should respond to generously.

ASC Official Announces New Corn Sales Policy

Will Sell Some Corn At Local Market Price

A new policy for sale of any government-owned binsite corn which is found to be non-storable has been put into effect, it was announced this week by Jesse Smith, chairman of the Hancock County ASC committee.

The policy is not intended to lower the "going local price", since the selling price for the non-storable corn will be the prevailing market price, Chairman Smith stated. The "prevail- market price", he explained, is the local market price or the terminal markt price adjusted to the country point where corn is being sold, whichever is higher. The terminal price adjustment covers freight costs and fixed terminal charges.

In any event, the selling price of any non-storable corn in the binsites will be substantially less than the formula price fixed by law for high grade or storable corn sold out of the government bins. The formula price at the present time is the 1955 county loan rate, which is $1.50 per bushel in Hancock County plus 21 cents. The new sales policy does not affect or change the formula price for high grade, storable corn in the binsites.

The amount of corn which the new sales policy will make available for sale at the prevailing market price in Hancock County cannot be stated definitely because corn falling into the non-storable classification becomes known only through day-to-day and week-to-week maintenance operations. However, the state ASC office has estimated that from 10 to 12 million bushels of the 225 million bushels now in Iowa binsites may be found non-storable between the present time and the end of July. This estimate is based on past experience in careful maintenance of such big quantities of stored corn.

Because of the strict maintenance and testing methods to be used in determining non-storable corn, it will probably be two weeks before any such corn can be offered for sale in Iowa.

Chairman Smith explained that under the new policy any binsite corn showing certain signs of non-storability can be sold locally while its utilization value is still high. The policy will thus benefit those in need of corn and also protect the government against greater loss resulting from the old policy which prevented sale of corn at market prices until it had deteriorated to grades 4, 5 or sample.

In the past, because of the low grade of corn which could be offered at adjusted prices, local demand frequently was limited and the grain had to be shipped. Under the new policy, more of any offered corn will be bought and used locally, it is believed. To further this advantage, authority for sales decisions and price determinations has now been given to local ASC officials. Heretofore, local authority was limited to recommendations to the Chicago CCC office and it made the decisions and price determinations. The change in procedure should permit much prompter disposal of non-storable binsite corn in the immediate vicinity.

Sales of non-storable corn will be for cash at binsite on the basis of the prevailing market price for No. 2 yellow corn, with any applicable price adjustments for lower quality to be made after certain testing requirements have been met. Anyone will be eligible to purchase such corn but the established policy of utilizing established trade channels will be observed. All buyers must stand the cost of removing offered corn from the bins.

Mrs Arnold is the former Joyce Ann Ingold, daughter of Mr and Mrs Wilson Ingold of Rock Island, and Mr Arnold is the son of Mr and Mrs E J Arnold.

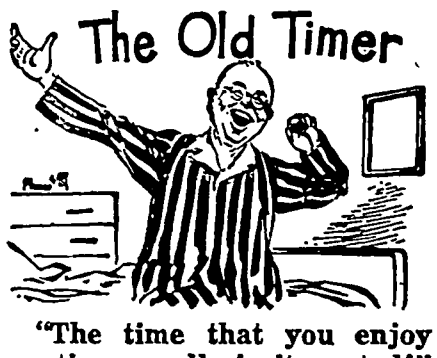
Of course the political storm is going to stir up a considerable amount of mud. It may even bring forth some name calling. And no doubt, each side will have it's wolves in sheep's clothing.

Which reminds us. Did you hear about the unlucky wolf in sheep's clothing who reluctantly died in the wool?



"The time that you enjoy wasting—really isn't wasted!"

Worthie Usher says it took a shocking performance to make him agree to having that ungainly static strap installed on the underside of his new Chevie.

Some feller who ain't so dumb says that "In people, as in machines, tolerance permits maximum efficiency with a minimum of friction."

Another wise guy says that "A woman is the only being that can skin a wolf and get a mink."

While yet another imaginative character says that "A spinal column is that which keeps you from being legs all the way up to your shoulders."

PRESIDENTIAL PARLEY

Tomorrow Iowa Republicans will hold their state presidential convention in Des Moines. Tonight, at pre-district informal caucuses county delegates in each district will gather to decide on their delegates to the national committeeman from Iowa.

Each district will select two delegates to the GOP national confab in San Francisco Aug. 20. The district delegates will be elected at formal caucuses just ahead of the state convention which gets underway at 11:00 a. m. Friday.

Iowa will have 26 delegates and alternates at the national. In addition to the 16 from the eight districts, 10 delegates will be selected at-large by the convention. These at-large delegates most likely will include the two U. S. senators, the governor, and the heads of the party's state auxiliary units.

Robert Goodwin, GOP national committeeman, steps down at tomorrow's meeting. Three candidates to succeed him include Roscoe Jones of Atlantic, seventh district; Warren Rees of Anamosa, second district; and Charles Wittenmeyer of Davenport, first districts. All three have or are now serving on the GOP state central committee.

State chairman Don Pierson is a member of the party national committee also. Mrs Anna Lomas, Red Oak, seventh district, is seeking reelection. She is unopposed.

DEMO DINNER

Carroll Switzer of Des Moines, Democratic candidate for governor in 1948, will toastmaster the Jackson Day Democratic fund-raising dinner in Des Moines April 11. Former President Harry Truman will speak.

Switzer and Truman are old friends. When president, Truman had appointed Switzer, an attorney, to a federal judgeship in the southern Iowa district. However, senate confirmation was never forthcoming because then Iowa Sen. Guy Gillette blocked the appointment.

Switzer, upon President Truman's appointment, served an interim period as federal judge but because he failed to get senate approval had to resign. Switzer still hasn't been paid for the time he served on the federal bench, a matter of about $6,000.

COMING AGAIN

Iowa Democrats haven't been able to entice Adlai Stevenson to this state but another presidential contender, Estes Kefauver, apparently likes it here. The Tennessee senator, here just recently, has announced he'll return for a "major speech" June 11.

That means the senator will get here days after the Democrats have had their state presidential convention which is June 1.

ALLOCATE FUNDS

The Iowa legislative budget (interim) committee has allocated $5,000 to the State War Orphan's Educational Fund to pay for sharply increased requests for college costs of war-orphaned students.

Frost Patterson, director of the World War I bonus board which adminsiters the fund, said nearly $12,000 would be needed to pay off the requests already approved this year. The last legislature appropriated only $8,000 a year for the current two-year period.

The fund was set up to help finance educations for the children of war servicemen killed on active duty.

HOUSES FOR DISABLED

The Iowa Veterans Administration said that 55 disabled Iowa veterans have moved into or are in the process of building "wheel chair houses". Another 18 have established eligibility for such houses.

The VA, under a federal program, defrays 50 percent of the cost of the homes up to a $10,000 maximum. The dwellings are constructed with special features such as ramps rather than steps, wide doorway for wheel chairs, and other necessary conveniences.

BOILING POINT

The Iowa Employment Security Commission is boiling these days. Since Gov Leo Hoegh appointed Democrat Frank Engel of Davenport to the commission, Engel and the two Republican commissioners haven't been getting along too well. Charges and counter charges have been hurled around. The Republicans are J C Blodgett of Cedar Rapids and Claude M Stanley of Corning.

Recently the Republicans have charged Engel works only "part time". They said he leaves commission headquarters in Des Moines on Wednesday or Thursday to return to Davenport for the weekend.

Engel admits he leaves early each week, contends there's "no point in sitting at an empty desk" for as the minority member "I cannot do anything."

Iowa law prescribes the commissioner's jobs as "full-time."

48 NOW

Gov Leo A Hoegh was 48 years old on Good Friday. The governor and Mrs Hoegh didn't celebrate the birthday in Iowa, however, but spent the Easter weekend in Washington.

The governor was in Washington to testify before congressional subcommittees in behalf of Missouri River development programs, and to discuss pending farm and road legislation with administration leaders.

The governor had meetings with Vice-President Nixon and Sherman Adams, presidential assistant, in addition to conferences with the members of the Iowa congressional delegation.

WANTS SAFETY CHECK

The Iowa Auto Dealers Association, at its recent state convention, by resolution urged more new car dealers in Iowa to support an annual auto safety check program.

Such a program, sponsored by the association for several years, is scheduled for May this year. Under the plan vehicle owners can have their auto safety-checked on brakes, head lights, tail lights, windshield wipers and horns.

REVISE RATE

Iowa railroads have revised downward their rail freight increase askings by recommending the rates be hiked to 6 percent rather than the 7 percent in the original petition filed with the state commerce commission.

The amended petition brings the increase in line with the increase recently approved. The commerce commission has yet to act on the request.

DEPOSITS DOWN

Total deposits in Iowa's 658 banks declined by $24-million, nine-tenths of one percent in 1955, the state banking department reports.

Combined deposits of the state and national banks were $2.672,283,000 at the end of 1955, compared with $2,696,375,000 at the end of 1954.

State bank deposits dropped by $22,131,000 and nationals by $1,961,000.

TOO YOUNG

The Iowa attorney general has ruled that George K Pettengill of Cherokee is too young to run for state representative. A Democrat and a Buena Vista College student, Pettengill won't be 21 until August 28.

The attorney general held that the law requires a candidate to be at least 21 when he files his affidavit of candidacy for the June primary. The last day for filing was March 31 for state office. Pettengill would have been 21 before the November elections.

The cattle market outlook is improving, according to Steve Hiemstra, Iowa State College farm economist. Hiemstra says present market trends contrast with the 1955 price declines which began in January and continued downward through April and May.

Choice cattle prices declined since January, but have recovered slightly since mid-February. Prime grades meanwhile have held steady, creating at the present time the widest price spread for this grade since last summer.

Slaughter during the first 10 weeks of 1956 was up 8 percent, but beef production, reflecting heavier average weights, was up 12 percent. During the first week in March, the average weight of steers slaughtered at Chicago was 1,168 pounds, equal to the heaviest in 30 years. But weights the last few weeks have declined slightly, resulting in smaller discounts due to overweight.

Heimstra considers this a healthy sign and believes that the excessive supply of heavyweights will be worked down by midyear. This plus a cutback in hog slaughter should allow both markets to recover.

There are about 20 percent less calves on feed this year, but the total 1955 calf crop was 1 percent greater than in 1954. This means that more calves are being held on the ranges. We can therefor expect more grass fed and fewer grain fed cattle available for slaughter next fall—the opposite of last fall and winter, says Hiemstra.

The demands for feeders, says Hiemstra, is holding up better than the slaughter markets will justify. During January and February, the average price of feeders at Omaha was down 16 percent from a year ago, but choice slaughter steers were down 26 percent. Hiemstra says part of this difference results from our supply of cheap and abundant feeds, but adds that it shows the optimism of cattlemen over the prices they expect to receive next fall and winter.

Soil Conservation District Makes Monthly Report

The Hancock County Soil Conservation District Commissioners met for the month of March with 100% attendance. They were Henry Swanson, chairman, Ben Riemer and Sam Barber. Paul Henderson, County Extension Director is the secretary. Included in the attendance of the meeting was Vern Moss, Farm Planer for the district and Delores Hejlik, secretary.

Business started off very good by approving 11 new conservation plans. They were: D L Davidson, Wilbur Olson, C C Baldus, Glen Smith, Clarence Neuberger, Mrs Mary Otis, L H Perkins, Herbert Missal, LeRoy Smith, George Cink, and Elmer Meyer. We want to say "Thank You" to each one of the new cooperators for they are taking a great step towards an advancement of a good sound conservation program on their farm.

Also for the month of March there were 38 follow-up contacts completed throughout the county by the Conservation Aid, Raymond Pool. The contacts were made to various farmers who have been operating under a conservation plan for the last 6 to 8 years. The purpose of the contacts are to help the farmer with problems that may come about in regard to his plan and revise if needed. Also give suggestions of new developments etc. in soil and water conservation.

March marks the pre-opening of a new growing season in Hancock County. The frost has disappeared and the first chance of good weather, farmers will be hitting the field.

Now is the time to be thinking about soil erosion practices such as contouring which should be applied to rolling land that has more than 3% or 3 feet of fall within one hundred feet. One of contourings most important features is to conserve moisture and that is something we are definitely behind in. And of course the other important feature is to help check erosion and to keep our good topsoil up where it belongs.

Shrubbery plantings are another important practice to be thinking about as they are planted in the spring. Promoting shelter areas in odd corners and places is very important to the farmer and to wildlife. You can have wildlife on your land and have a better farm or ranch because of it. Every farm is a complex community which is successful only if all living things in it are working together. We need to promote a favorable biological balance on our farms. We must use our land wisely and within its capabilities as God and nature meant for us to use it, for we are His helpers and keepers of the land, not the owners.

May 6-12 has been set aside for "Soil Stewardship Week". It has been made a special week for us to place emphasis on man's obligation to be a faithful steward of God's soil and protect it for our future generations to come. Quoting from the Eleventh Commandment by W C Lowdermilk, "If any shall fail in this stewardship of the land, thy fruitful fields shall become sterile stony ground and wasting gullies, and thy descendants shall decrease and live in poverty or parish from off the face of the earth."

Freshman News

In science we are studying how fuels provide us with energy. Such things as what fuels are manufactured from coal, what fuels are taken from wells, and how the value of fuels are determined are just a few of the things that we are finding out in this chapter.

Math: Working with positive and negative numbers has been our chore the first part of this week. Now we are working on graphs of formulas.

We've been working on the parts of sentences such as direct objects and indirect objects in English. Otherwise we haven't accomplished too much so far this week.

Somebody is always completing some project each week in shop. Some of us are building hardier projects than others, but most of us get the experience of handling tools.

Home Making I: All of the girls have completed their skirts and are working on blouses. The blouses have to have set in sleeves and a collar so all are running into some difficulty. After these two projects are finished, we can make anything we wish.

Editorial of the Week

Spring is here. What a wonderful time of year! Trees are budding and the grass is getting green. Winter with its drab surroundings is fading and in its place spring is literally springing forth. Birds are singing happily while everything is bursting with freshness. All living things are shaking off the drowiness of their winter sleep.

The students of K H S are also undergoing a mysterious change during this time of year. They are becoming afflicted with the strange, unavoidable disease called "Spring Fever". Students are happily going down the halls with the feeling of elation running in their blood. As spring surges through their veins a strange restlessness overcomes any desire or need of study. This is a terrible disadvantage but a wonderful feeling, as we all know.

So if any stranger was to enter our high school and wonder about the students sitting in the classrooms dreamily staring out of the windows, remember—spring is here! !

Girls' Sports

We have had only one P T class this week. and we were fortunate enough not to have to do any calisthentics. So we have been doing some dancing and trying to learn the game of golf.

Mr Westberg gave us a sheet of paper with all the definitions of words and terms used in this game. There surely are a lot of terms we have to know before we start to play golf. If you are ever on a golf course and you hear someone holler "fore", be sure to duck or you may get a sudden surprise of a big lump on the head from a golf ball.

Mr Westberg plans to take us to the golf course at Clear Lake sometime this spring. I think all of us would enjoy this very much. You never can tell, one of us may become the world's champion golf player!

Junior Class News

It seems like we juniors never get through diagraming sentences. We are now using noun clauses, infinitives and gerunds in diagraming sentences.

In typing we are making rough copies and from these we make regular copies, squeezing words so that the margins on both sides are equal.

Today we had two visitors from Africa visiting our geography class. Soil and soil formations have been our topic in geography this week.

Everyone in our shop class is getting well acquainted with the power tools. We are warned to take necessary precautions when using the power tool because one bad move could cause the loss of a hand.

Homemaking II: After taking our second trip to the Food Market to see them cut pork, we have been cooking various pork and beef cuts. The methods we have used are broiling, roasting, frying and stewing. We have also prepared several casserole dishes.

Cackles from the Coop

The band now knows what is wrong with it, and "but how"! After we played at Mason City last Saturday (the 24th), the band directors from Mason City, Decorah, and Osage, (who were acting as judges) told us what we were doing wrong. Most of the criticism was centered on dynamic contrast (or lack of it) and some part being too loud while others were too soft.

This week we will introduce you to two more, and the last two, vocal ensembles for the contest. They are the senior sextette and trio. The sextette is composed of: Anita Katter and Ione Rosendahl, first soprano; Margaret Haefner and Marcia Watne, second soprano; and Ruth Pringnitz and Gracka Gerardi. alto.

The trio members are: Ione Rosendahl, 1st sporano; Sharleen Swanson, 2nd soprano; and Margaret Haefner, alto.

Gossip Around KHS

Leila, we are wondering who this Bill is that we have heard so much about latey in school. Don't keep us in suspense.

It looks like Jeanne and Ray are really keeping in pace. We have been seeing them together quite a bit lately.

I wonder if Betty Clayton is still going with Harold Bumgardener. We haven't seen or heard much about them lately.

We see Larry Thiemann and Sharleen Swanson have fixed up their spat.

Beverly C and Pete H have finally decided to make up and over look a few things.

What was Herb H doing up town one Monday night when Charotte Courad from Corwith was in town taking her lesson? It seems he knows her quite well.

Jokes

Bobby T: "What do you have when you have two ducks and a cow?"
Marlin S: "Quackers and milk".

Guard: "Halt! You can't go in there".
Private: "Why not?"
Guard: "Because it's the general's tent."
Private: "Then what's that sign doing with 'Private' on the door?"

Mr Crawford: "Who can tell me the names of some shooting stars?"
Jerry Janssen: "I can! Gene Autry, Hopalong Cassidy, and Roy Rogers."

Paul G: "The driver of that car ahead of us must be one of my teachers."
Raymond H: "Why."
Paul: "He's so stubborn about letting me pass."

Senior Class News

Diagraming sentences has left us in English. We are now in our workbook using the right tense of the verb in a sentence. We then tell what tense the verb is, what person it is, and what the number is.

We're still busy on our bookkeeping practice sets. This has been taking up most of our spare time lately. We should finish them sometime next week.

In American history we are reviewing for a chapter test. Some of the latest things we have been studying are the early milestones in the conservation movement and how the democrats carry on after the Republicans left.

We are now studying about bailor and the bailee in business law. Our first chapter is about the nature of bailment. Such things as the four characteristics of bailment, and how bailments are created are only a few things we have studied.

We did it again. (Almost burned the school down.) During Monday's class in chemistry, Mr Crawford mixed sugar with potassium chlorate and put a little water on the mixture. It was supposed to ignite spontaneously, but it didn't. He then poured sugaric acid on it and it ignited! Flames went about a foot high, smoke billowed up into a mushroom shaped cloud (atomic bomb) the glass that the mixture was in melted, and the room was sprayed with little black particles (radioactive fallout). We regret that we will be unable to report to you on the radioactivity of these particles, as our physics department is not equipped with a geiger counter. Mr Crawford's only comment was, "It didn't do that when I showed it to the freshman general science class."

The geometry class has been studying parallels and parallelograms and ways of proving them.

North Ell Tip Toppers

The meeting of the North Ell Tip Toppers was held at the home of Patty Tlach, March 17th, at 2:00 p. m. Sixteen members answered roll call by showing the dresser scarves they made.

Linda Humphrey gave a talk on music and an illustrated talk was given by Inez Nuehring.

Elaine Jurgemeyer and LaVohn Josten gave a talk on "How to Measure Light." Linda Meinders gave a demonstration on portfolios.

We voted for queen for Fun Night and our queen is Delores Grieman. We decided not to have local elimination. Instead we had volunteer junior and senior teams. Lois Weiland and Patty Tlach are the Junior Demonstration team. LaVohn Josten and Delores Greiman are the Senior Demonstration team.

We have reserved "Mercey Cottage" for our 4-H camp June 25, 26, and 27.

Avery Twin Lake Hustlers

The Avery Twin Lake Hustlers met at the Goodell Farm Equipment Company on Mrach 5 with Mr Krass leading the discussion on "Clean Air and Mixing Fuel and Air." Mr Krass pointed out the proper way to service the air cleaner and told the effects of worn and damaged parts on the life of a motor. He showed how the motor ran on different carburetor adjustments. Mr Krass also demonstrated that there was water in the exhaust gases.

On March 26th the Avery Twin Lake Club met at the Farmer's Implement Company and Mr Waage led the discussion on "Ignition and the Cooling System." Mr Waage also showed how to test a storage battery.

Kay Burk was elected to be our king candidate for Fun Night. All boys attended these meetings.

Appoint Election Judges

Hancock County Supervisors Monday appointed the clerks and judges of election to serve in the seventeen Hancock County voting precincts for the Primary election in June and the General election in November. Judges and clerks were selected for both the receiving and counting board in the various precincts. Judges and clerks will be notified of appointment by County Auditor Gus Pappas shortly.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

Martin was alone when he made the big jump and it's impossible to say what went through his mind during those suspended moments of unexpected flight. Martin, surely, can't tell us.

He was on a road that led from work to home and he had often said he could "drive blindfolded." But a little germ of speed was operating in Martin that afternoon and, at a crucial point, it destroyed his control of the car.

Like so many Iowans lately, he drove off the highway. The car hit a slight bank and began the big jump. What went through Martin's mind as he sat there, frozen to the useless wheel, incredibly flying through the air? How could he have believed it was really happening?

After all, he was Clay Martin. He had been mind in body for 34 years. His were the eyes that knew the faces of his wife and children. In his throat was the voice familiar to friends. These hands, clutching white at the steering wheel, were his own. They had signed his checks, opened a thousand doors for him, touched his family.

And he sat in old familiar clothes; in shoes that were worn to the fit of his feet; and there was the wristwatch of a past birthday, quietly counting the seconds as though time was not about to end.

Yes, he was Clay Martin. He was real. He knew he was real and the world knew it. His name was on a mortgage, a time card, a birth certificate somewhere, a drivers license.

How could something so real end so abruptly, so unexpectedly? Perhaps something like this went through Martin's mind or, perhaps, he only screamed in a voice he couldn't recognize until the car crashed some 60 feet from the highway.

"Why don't you go down and ask Bulganin and Khruschev if they won't please call off their peace offensive?"

Outlook for '56—

Lots of Food at Stable Prices

You'll have lots of fun shopping this year because the food forecast is optimistic. Foods, in general, will be abundant—and prices, in general, will be about the same as they were last year.

You and your family will have plenty of bountiful meals during the year '56. Foods will be just as abundant this year as they were last year—with prices staying about the same.

NATIONAL FOOD SITUATION

The National Food Situation was released recently by the Department of Agriculture—and it tells us that we will continue to buy lots of good food to correlate with our high consumer incomes

Food supplies will be every bit as high as they were last year. Retail food prices—the ones we pay—will stay about the same. To sum it up, the outlook says we'll probably consume a little more food—both in total amounts and amount per person.

MORE FOOD DOLLARS

Jewel Graham, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College, says our spending is expected to dart upward, too. If you're an average homemaker, you'll probably spend more dollars for food than you did in 1955. However, you'll spend only about 25 percent of your total income for groceries, which is about the same percentage as last year's average.

WHY BOOSTED EXPENSE?

The reason you'll probably spend a little more for food products is not only because you'll buy more groceries than last year, but also because of your increased interest in the highly processed products, such as frozen foods, ready mixes and prewrapped meats. You've discovered how much preparation time in the kitchen these products save.

Marketing charges for the food you buy are expected to continue at the same high levels as they have in recent months.

GOOD MEAT SUPPLY

At the beginning of 1956, food stocks stood at their peak of plenty. The number of livestock now on farms is the largest since the end of World War II. This indicates that you'll see continued heavy supplies of livestock products. So look closely for some good meat bargains.

SHIFTS IN PREFERENCE

Your family will probably shift its food consumption a bit in the amounts of certain specific foods it eats. For example, you will probably prepare and serve more beef, pork and chicken than you did last year—also more fluid milk. You're apt to serve less veal, lamb and mutton.

REMAINING THE SAME

Your use of butter and other dairy products, eggs, lard and turkey meat will probably remain about the same. It's a little too early to predict how high the production and consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables will be.

Regarding vegetables, however, we'll probably buy more of the processed vegetables—also more vegetable cooking oils and salad oils.

TAKE A DROP

Canned fruit products and cereals are apt to take a drop in consumption rates.

You and your family will probably buy about the same amount of frozen fruits and juices, margarine and shortening as you did in '55.

COFFEE

Some burgulars who entered a grocery store at Stanwood recently, won't need to worry about the price of coffee for awhile. They stole 200 pounds of it.

The Brewing Industry

EVERY Iowa taxpayer receives the benefit of the substantial taxes being paid by the brewing industry.

For example, the annual taxes on beer sold in Iowa now amount to $25,453,545.48, including: $11,495,912.04 Federal tax on beer sold in Iowa; $3,167,762.44 Iowa tax paid by wholesalers; $2,000,000.00 in sales taxes; $1,289,871.00 license fees of Iowa wholesalers and tavern operators; $7,500,000.00 other State and Federal taxes paid by Iowa wholesalers and retailers. All this helps by that much to reduce Iowans' tax bills.

Millions More For Iowa's Prosperity

ALL Iowa benefits, too, from the contribution the brewing industry makes to our state's prosperity. Tens of thousands of Iowans are employed in this great industry. Millions of dollars are invested in Iowa property. And Iowa farmers profit directly from the huge volume of agricultural products used in brewing. Truly, it can be said—

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

This week we are struggling with the flu bug, plus a badly puffed up eye, as well as trying to get The Times to press and into the mail. We are really enjoying ourselves.

"Doc" Dulmes gave us some fancy-named salve for the eye, and some pills designed to render us practically insensible to the discomforts of flu, colds, etc. Folks up town have given us a world of advice on what to do for our red-eyed, runny-nosed plight, but the best comments have been reserved for the discolored, swollen eye.

Such comments as "so the wife finally socked you", and "they finally caught up with you" are the milder, more printable comments we heard. Some of the others wouldn't look so good in black and white.

Clarence Kluckhohn suggested that the wife had put colored glasses on us so that we couldn't see the nice looking young gals on the street, and Mrs Bill Keraus, who heard the remark suggested that she should have gone one step further and put on blinders.

Best part of it was that about that time we were having plenty of trouble even seeing. Any efforts towards further hampering of our vision would have been a waste of time.

Guess we'll live, though, even if after four unsuccessful taps at our knee with a reflex hammer, "Doc" pronounced us dead.

Work to Begin Soon On County's Blacktop

Hancock County Supervisors Monday approved the resolution submitted by the Iowa State State Highway commission requesting that the board concur in the recommended award of contracts on Federal Aid high way projects S-796(p) and S-885 (b) to J W Craig Company of Minneapolis, Minn. The Minneapolis firm recently was the successful bidder at a letting held by the Iowa Highway Commission at Ames on April 3. The two projects are for blacktop construction of farm-to-market roads from Corwith east to Highway No. 111 and the farm-to-market road from Highway No. 111 east to Highway No. 69 east of Crystal Lake. The bid of S-796(2) was $133,501.95. and on S-885(4) was $152,929.11. Work on the two projects will get underway as soon as county highway crews can complete the work of re-establishing the surface.

Will Let Bids for Drainage Repair

Hancock County Supervisors Monday approved the report of a commission examining claims for damages filed in the proposed construction of a new drainage improvement petitioned for by J N Griggs et al on Lateral No 21 of Hancock County drainage district No. 1 and 2. The board ordered County Auditor Gus Pappas to advertise for bids on the proposed construction and have fixed May 7,, at the hour of 1:30 p. m. as a time for letting thereon. Said letting will be held at the courthouse in Garner.

"Martin Luther" Film To Be Shown Thursday, April 19

Under the sponsorship of the Adult Bible Class of Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church the sound film "Martin Luther" will be shown in the school auditorium on Thursday, April 19 at 8:00 p. m.

The film was authorized by Lutheran Church Productions, Inc., a cooperative agency of six Lutheran bodies. It was produced in Europe by Louis de Rochemont Associates. It has been shown in many of the theatres in America and has received favorable and laudatory reviews by critics.

The purpose in producing the film was from a determination to supply churches and schools with a powerful visualization for telling the Reformation story in the most effective way possible.

Our entire community is cordially invited to attend this showing of this outstanding film "Martin Luther" on the 19th of April at 8:00 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Government Program Offers Conservation Aid

Hancock County farmers were reminded this week to take immediate steps to partcipiate in the federal government's offer to share the rest of needed soil and water conservation practices.

The reminder came from Alfred Josten, office manager of the Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office, and Paul Henderson, the county extension director.

They said the shortage of rainfall and low reserves of moisture in the soil have emphasized the need for moisture and soil conserving practices such as those included in the cost sharing agricultural conservation program (ACP) administered by the Hancock County ASC office.

Pointing out that funds are still available for approving requests for cost-sharing conservation work to be carried out this year, Josten said that every ordinary conservation problems to be found in this county can be met with one or another of the practices that are being offered.

Every farm has a conservation need, either soil or water, but in some cases the need has not been recognized, he adds. In their own best interests, all farmers should make it a point to look over their fields carefully and take prompt action to meet their conservation problems.

The cost sharing program offers a number of practices which are especially applicable in the spring. These include seeding practices for various purposes, construction and seeding of sod waterways, construction of terraces, livestock water ponds and erosion control dams, and the use of contouring with strip cropping for intertilled crops. Drilling livestock wells and planting or improving stands of forest trees are other practices of lasting value.

Specific drainage practices—such as tiling and construction or improving farm ditches—are available where their application will not serve to bring additional land into crop production. Complete information of the cost sharing conservation program may be obtained at the county ASC office or the county extension service office.

Services Held For August Larson, 76

Funeral services for August Larson, 76, of Forest City, former Klemme farmer, were held at 10:30 a. m., April 6th, from the Hanson Funeral Home at Forest City and at 2:30 p. m. from Trinity Lutheran Church at Alta. Rev Burton W Smith, pastor of Immanuel Lutheran Church of Forest City was in charge of the morning services and Rev John W Oberg, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church of Alta was in charge of the afternoon services.

Mr Larson, who was the father of Carold Larson, local businessman, had been in ill health for the past several years and died on Tuesday, April 3rd, at the Forest City Hospital.

August Larson was born April 2, 1880 in Sweden and came to this country with his parents when he was seven years old. He was baptized in the Lutheran Church and was confirmed at Bancroft when he was fifteen.

On January 29, 1908, he was united in marriage with Wilhelmina Johnson of Alta. The couple farmed near Alta for two years and then purchased a farm near Bancroft where they lived for 27 years. From 1936 to 1946 they farmed one-half mile west of Klemme. They then retired and moved to Forest City.

Mrs Larson preceded her husband in death in 1948.

Survivors are two sons, Carold of Klemme and Alvin of Torrance, California; five grandchildren, and Bernice Branstad, who made her home with the Larsons for a number of years.

Alvin Larson and his family drove from California to be present for the final hours of Mr Larson's life and to attend the funeral services. They arrived in time for his birthday which was the day before he passed away.

CAPITOL LETTER

MORE INTEREST

Voters in the two major parties will have more interest in the state primary elections this year because of several contests involved in Democratic and Republican ranks.

While there is no contest in the GOP ranks for governor—Governor Hoegh is unopposed—two Democrats, Herschel Loveless of Ottumwa and Lawrence Plummer of Northwood, are seeking the nomination.

In the lieutenant-governor race, both parties have contests. State Sen George O'Malley of Des Moines and William Bartley of Iowa City are contesting for the Democratic nomination. Republicans will choose between William Nicholas of Mason City and State Rep Wendell Pendleton of Storm Lake.

U S Sen Bourke B Hickenlooper is being challenged in GOP ranks by Atty Gen Dayton Countryman for the nomination, and in Democratic ranks "Spike" Evans of Laurens and Lumond Wilcox of Jefferson are contesting.

RESURFACING

The Iowa highway commission reports that 200 miles of primary highways in the state, which have been recently widened to 24-foot roads, will be resurfaced this summer. A third phase of the program, shoulder widening, will come in programs next year or after.

Approximately 1,000 miles of primary roads will have been widened by the time construction work ends this winter. The widening program was launched a year ago

TOLL ROAD

Gov Leo A Hoegh, recently returned from Washington, said that Iowa will not have a toll road if federal interstate highway program is approved by the present congress.

Under a bill now under consideration, states would not be reimbursed with federal funds, for toll road construction. Hoegh said however, that if the interstate network moderization program is approved, there will be little need for a toll road in Iowa because the federal highways will be built into wider, more modern freeways.

Hoegh said the Iowa toll road authority has adopted a "wait and see" attitude on toll construction. No appointments on fiscal agents, engineer or toll road counsel will be made until after the federal highway bill has been resolved in congress the governor reported.

SEEK REELECTION

Four Republican justices on the Iowa supreme court have announced their plans for renomination. The four are Justices William Bliss, Mason City; Norman Hays, Knoxville; G. K. Thompson, Cedar Rapids, and Henry Peterson, Council Bluffs. GOP nominations for the supreme court will be made at the state judicial convention in Des Moines July 27.

BUILDERS' STUDY

A committee of 10 Iowa builders has been named to study and survey conditions in the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) in Iowa. The committee was named after a statewide meeting of builders.

On the committee are: H J Bjornsen, Cedar Rapids, Don Sperry, Fort Dodge; Henry Tageson, Mason City; Steve Spellitch, Davenport; Syl Myerchin, Sioux City; Dick Smith, Ottumwa; Byron Beekler, Iowa City; Wayne J Wilkins, Waterloo; E C Eckman, Clinton; E T McMurray, Des Moines.

A controversy over FHA procedures broke out when it became known that one Des Moines builder was required by FHA to repair 40 houses he had built. Some builders feel FHA inspection standards in Iowa have suddenly become to stringent.. Reassignment of three FHA officials in this state has been asked by Frank C Wahrman, director of the FHA program here.

RESIGNS SOIL JOB

Allen R Schroder has resigned as executive secretary of the Iowa Association of Soil Conservation District Commissioners, and as editor of the association magazine.

An association officer said court action is planned to obtain possession of books and records in connection with publication of the magazine. The suit, already filed in Polk County, charges Schroder with refusing to give an accounting. The advertising director of the magazine has been relieved of his duties.

Hubert Beasley, Garden Grove, association vice-president, has temporarily taken over duties as editor of the magazine.

STUDY AIR LINES TAX

The Iowa tax study committee is studying taxes paid in the state by commercial airlines. One committee member pointed out that while railroads pay "quite a bit" of property tax here, airlines pay little property tax.

"One kind of transportation should not be taxed one way and another kind of transportation another way," said St Rep Blythe Conn of Burlington.

An Iowa legislative research bureau report, made to the committee at its request, said air lines whose planes stop in the state pay state corporation taxes.

"Generally, however," the report said, "ground facilities (at airports) are entirely municipally owned and these facilities are exempt from property taxes."

Air lines are charged landing fees and floor space rental fees at these municipal airports.

WOULD EDUCATE THEM

Most drivers would do the right thing but they don't know what it is, is the opinion of Bert Woodcock, director of safety education at Iowa State Teachers College. Woodcock made his report to the Iowa Lay Committee on Traffic Safety.

He would stress driver education programs for motorists in the state.

"Drivers need a terrific lot of improvement," he declared, "and we're falling down if we don't supply the need for education."

LOAN RECORDS

A report of the state auditor shows that Iowa savings and loan associations set new records in virtually all phases of their business in 1955.

State Auditor C B Akers' annual report said the assets of the association increased $21,646,000 to a total of more than $177-million, the largest dollar increase in history.

378 QUALIFY

A total of 378 persons have legally qualifed as primary election candidates for congressional, state and legislative offices in this year's state primary elections.

The report was made by Secretary of State Melvin Synhorst. He said no candidates were disqualified. In previous years three to six candidates have been disqualified for one reason or another. Candidates this year apparently were more careful in filing procedures.

Cackles from the Coop

"And our mistakes have been recorded for posterity" might be the title of this column this week. At the recital, night before last (the 3rd) Mr Whitford ran the tape recorder (except for a few eventful minutes when it refused to run). Now we have the privilege of hearing how we sound to the audience. It really helps too, even though the most common comment after the recital was, "I never played it that way before."

Things were rather eventful in band Wednesday morning. Mr Whitford raised his baton to start a number, all was silence. Crack! Snap! Thump! Everyone jumped about six inches off the floor and turned to look in the direction of the disturbance. There stood Margaret, getting redder by the second, looking down at a gaping hole in the head of the small tympani. What caused it no one knows, but the question now is "can we get another one, by the 12th so that the brass choir can practice?" We hope so.

Freshman News

Troublesome verbs are now bothering us in English. We're doing exercises in our workbook by putting the correct tense of verb in a sentence.

The math class is now doing problems concerned with income. It's terrible.

We're taking up a new unit in science about different types of ores. What types of ores are the most valuable and which types are the most needed are some of the things we are finding out.

In shop the boys are still at it. Most of the boys have accomplished a lot since the first of the year. They are getting pretty good at knowing how to square a project up, and how to put a smooth finish on and, how to put projects together that will stand a lot of wear.

Sewing, ripping, and sewing again has taken our time in freshman home making.

Senior Class News

Exercises in our English workbooks have been keeping us very busy lately. We cross out the wrong verb which doesn't agree with the subject in number and then tell the person, the number and the tense of the verb.

History: We received our test grades and the results are not very encouraging. Our new chapter is about World War I.

In business we've been studying the relations between the shipper and carrier. We've been finding out some of the ways in which the shipper can collect damages on certain types of accidents. Now we're studying about negotiable instruments.

The geometry class is about to have another test, this one over parallel and parallelograms.

It seems that Mr Crawford is collecting quite an arsenal in chemistry class. The latest fad is squirt guns, nice little ones, 20c apiece, that can be hidden in the palm of the hand. However, someone is having his trouble at concealing his weapon. So far he has spent 60c (including tax).

Speeches to convince have proven to be quite a problem to the nineteen upperclassmen in the speech class. It is not only the speech topic but also the 8 minute minimum time limit that presents the problem.

Question of the Week

If you tripped over a sarcophagus, what would it be, where would you be and what would you do after you tripped over it?

Ginger: I bet it is a pin. I'd be on the ground and I'd get up.
Myrna: It's probably the name of some dance. I would be dancing and afterwards I would get up having been embarassed.
Miss Beardsley: I believe I would throw it back into the grave from where it originated. I would be strolling through the cemetery at midnight.
Denny: I'd be in a nut house. I would call for a warden to get me out.
Carol: A rug on the bathroom floor. After I tripped over it I would be in the bath tub (headfirst). Becauses I am in the tub I may as well take a bath.
Elaine: A bag of hors d'ourves. I would probably fall down on the ground. I would send it to a laboratory in New York and have them dissect it.
Karen: It sounds to me like an animal and I'd be in a jungle. I'd probably get up and run.
Rosalie: It may be a shrub and I might find it in a ditch. If it had flowers on it I would take it home and take it to my cat's funeral.
Dorothy: I'd find it in a junk pile and take it home and put it in my closet for later use.
JoEllen: Cadaver. Empire State Building. Scream and run.
A sarcophagus is a coffin.

The biology class has been studying about the structures of plants and all the essential parts. We have also been learning the fundamental function of the root.

We are diagraming infinitives used as adjectives, gerunds, appositives, direct objects, and prepositional phrases in English.

Driving around poles and angle parking are helping us to be an all around better driver in drivers training.

We have been studying about the rise of Adolph Hilter in world history. We also enjoyed a movie on this topic.

In algebra we are doing trigonometric problems, such as angle of elevation, angle of depression, sine of an angle and cosine.

Gossip Around KHS

I wonder if it made Myrna nervous to see Larry at the recital the other night when the sextette sang. I'll bet he got tired of waiting.

We got wind of a new couple that were together at Terry K's party last Saturday night. They were Gary D and Gracka.

I wonder if Egon is still going with Elaine. We haven't heard anything about them for quite some time.

I wonder who Ruth and Rosalie were talking to in Garner the other night. He had a nice Chev didn't he?

Looks like Cozette and Vernon got together last Tuedsay night. How about this kids?

Donna sure seems quiet lately. Is it because shes got company in the back of the room? Is it because Larry U's keeping her company?

Elaine and Egon sure have been good lately, what's up?

Rosalie! How far can you get with 17c worth of gas? To church and back home?

"Well, Mom," said Ricky, "There wasn't time to take them off."

Mark: "In the pocket of the man next to me."

Patient: "I can't say why, but I got a sort of a pain, I don't know where, and it leaves me in a kind of—sort of well, I don't know."

Doctor: "Here's a prescription for I don't know what. Take it I don't know how many times a day for I can't tell you how long, and you'll be better I don't know when."

Bob: "Do you know why the man robbed the glue factory?"

Bill: "No, I don't. Why?"

Bob: "Because he was a stick-up man.

Ron: "Do you like railroad steak?"

Ron: "Chew-chew, chew-chew!"

A big and hopeful project that may someday influence all of us is having its small beginning these days in Waterloo.

Twenty-three adults from the Waterloo area are meeting two nights a week for instruction and training in good driving.

The place is the state safety department's first driver improvement center at West Waterloo High School.

The idea is nothing new but the techniques and planned dimensions of the program are entirely new as far as Iowa is concerned.

Over the next year or two the safety department hopes to have at least 14 of these driver improvement centers operating in various heavy population centers in the state - within 50 miles of every driver.

A full realization of the plan would mean the production of thousands of trained drivers - adults and teen-agers - every year.

Local support and financing is needed for establishment of a center. In Waterloo, for example, the school board has purchased special Drive-Trainer equipment for use in the school and center program.

The adults taking training in Waterloo were all subject to license suspension because of records of violation or accidents. To learn results, their records will be watched for many years to come.

It's a small beginning, but the program can become just big and effective as the people of Iowa want it to be.

Seniors to Present "Spooks and Spasms" Tuesday, April 17

As the curtains open for the first act, you will find the Calloway family becoming acqauinted with a haunted farm house that Carol Calloway has inherited from the late Jasper Jones.

As the play continues, you will be terrified by a head-bandaged ghost, an escaped maniac, howling dogs, and the blinking off and on of lights. You will also roll with laughter at the jittery Allie Katz, half-witted Bengy, and the lisping Dicky Bird. As the play continues, the cast decreases due to several killings.

This is one play you surely don't want to miss so on Tuesday night at 8:00, drop everything an come to the high school gym. You won't be sorry you did.

Girls' Sports

Again this week we have been studying the game of golf. Last week as we told you, we learned the terms which one uses in the game of golf. All of us got a chance to hit a golf ball this week. We couldn't go outside as it was too cold, therefore we practiced hitting a perforated golf ball in the gym. We all learned the correct grip of a golf club. We all enjoy this sport but are not too sure of ourselves. Some of us believe that we would do better as a caddy.

Liberty Go Getters

The Liberty Go Getters met April 2nd at the home of Gary Lenz. Twenty members answered roll call by giving the names of different kinds of chickens. Nancy Farquhar and Carolyn Jass gave a talk on starting a brooder house of chickens. Edward Bruns, our new youth assistant, also gave us some pointers on raising chickens.

Questions on dairying to be filled in by our next meeting and our 4 H membership cards for 1956 were handed out to all the members.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Although the hog market may have a temporary setback because of recent rapid price increases, further hog price strength is expected between now and late spring by Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. Some temporary adjustment from the recent rapid price increases could occur, however, but the longer hog outlook for spring is good.

Slaughter of hogs has been declining seasonally since the peak run of fall pigs hit the markets around March 1. It should continue downward for the rest of the season, according to Kutish, closely following last year's totals.

The pork product market has shown strength recently. Kutish points out ofter lagging behind the early phases of the live hog price climb, lard, hams and Boston butts now are above their late January levels. Picnics are about the same.

The March 1st survey shows that Corn Belt farmers are planning an 8 percent reduction in summer pigs. Proposed spring farrowing plans also are smaller than originally last December.

This means that Corn Belt hog producers will benefit from two price strengthening forces next fall. There will be fewer hogs in total, and a smaller portion of the total will be in the Corn Belt. This should relieve the pressure on packing facilities, a potent Iowa hog price depressor in November and December.

Kutish concludes that if we follow through on the intended cuts in spring and summer pigs, the 1956 hog price low may come early—perhaps in November.

An Open Letter

From Don's D-X Service, Klemme, Iowa

Wednesday, April 11, 1956

Dear Friends:

Would like to take this way of letting you know of some of the changes that are taking place here at our station effective April 16, 1956.

As you probably know, the D-X people are constantly testing and experimenting to give the American motorist the very best gasolines and motor oils that money can buy. Well, this year there's even bigger news, bcause we have the most powerful gasoline in D-X history. We have raised the octane rating four points, making it higher than some of the gasolines used in our famous fighter planes of World War II . . . and listen to this . . . "You will get up to 60 more miles on a tankfull".

Yes, it's hard to believe that you can buy a gasoline that is sold on a money-back guarantee. That it will do a better job of reducing ping, give you quicker starts, and provide more anti-knock performance than anything like it.

Now you may say "Bosh, all gasolines are alike." My friends, that is true. All gasolines are basically alike. That is, all but D-X. You see D-X goes one step further by adding an upper cylinder lubricant that is scientifically blended into every gallon you buy . . . not just dumped in the tank to mix by itself. This upper cylinder lubricant lubricates valve stems, rings, pistons, cylinder walls, valve guides, and all moving parts in the flame zone of your engine.

Drive out today and see how you can save enough money to drive a 900 mile trip or vacation absolutely free of gasoline cost in the next twelve months. This new and powerful gasoline is now on its way to the D-X stations and it is my hope that we will have it in our tanks by the 16th. So drive out for a tankful. Remember, it's backed by the only written money-back guarantee of its kind.

As you probably know, next to the field of aviation, the automotive industry has probably advanced the fastest and farthest of any in the last few years, creating a great need for scientific know-how and equipment. The 12 volt systems necessitate the stocking of nearly twice as many batteries, ignition equipment, etc. As an example, a 1955 low-priced car requires the dealer to stock eight different exhaust tail pipes to get coverage. You need five mufflers to fit the same model from 1949 on. One manufacturer makes fourteen different types of shock absorbers to fit his car since 1950. You need twelve different oil filters to service most automobiles, saying nothing of trucks and tractors. A tire manufacturer makes nine different types of tires in a size 670-15.

Technically, there are 2,000 different ills, pains, and breakdowns that a car can develop.

Along with everyone else our costs of operating have soared too. As an example, the price of gasoline has risen nearly 5c per gallon since 1950. Added taxes have contributed to most of this raise. How does this enter into the picture?

Well, let's say a dealer pumps 10,000 gallons of gasoline a month and a great share of it is in charge accounts. This means that since 1950 we have to have between $400 and $500 more every month to carry gasoline accounts. In this day of the automobile . . . and what a part it plays in our everyday life . . . it is absolutely fantastic to even think that we can possibly carry gasoline, or anything else for that matter, on and on in the form of charge accounts.

For these reasons then: bigger stocks, more different types of merchandise, a multitude of different equipment, and the prohibitive cost of buying gasoline . . . which we must pay for at the time of delivery . . . we find that commencing on April 16, 1956, we will continue to operate on a cash basis only.

However, I do want to point out that the D-X Oil Company issues absolutely free, to qualifed peole with a sound credit rating, D-X credit cards. What does this mean? Exactly this. If you now have or wish to apply for a D-X credit card, which is good in all 48 states, Canada, and Hawaii, you may continue to buy on credit as in the past. Also, on all tires, batteries, and accessories you have as high as 6 months in which to pay with not one penny down, no interest, and no carrying charges . . . and I'll be horn swaggled if this isn't as good a deal as you can find anywhere.

What does this mean in our business? It means we will be able to devote more time to our work. Time which we used for collecting purposes before. It means that we will be able to do our work even better than ever with the proverbial "load off our mind". It means that we will continue to give free pickup and delivery service, which is, our customers tell us, a great help to them . . . bill naturally payable when vehicle is delivered. It means we will continue to give those profit-sharing S & H Green Discount Stamps; sell our merchandise at a lower cost than before by reducing the expense of bookkeeping. It means we will be able to buy more modern equpiment which it takes to keep the delicately made cars of today in top shape.

Yes, friends, it's a big, fabulous and fast world, and so we too must keep pace with it or we die .

Yours for better and cheaper motoring,

D. J. SCHAEFER
Owner and propietor of Don's D-X Service

Better Car Care Because This Dealer Cares

Ask Yourself Now!—

Do You Practice Good Health Rules?

Most rural families in Iowa fail to have recommended regular medical check-ups. Make sure you, Dad and the youngsters do your part toward better family health and better health for Iowans.

Are you cheating yourself and your family by neglecting good health practices?

Research studies done by interview show that many Iowa rural families fail to follow some of the most important recommended health practices—especially those practices that are apt to prevent serious illness, says Mary Lyle, professor of home economics education at Iowa State College.

Unfortunately, if you're one of the offenders on this point, you are a member of the majority party—rather than the minority. Two different surveys conducted by the Agricultural Experiment Station at Iowa State College showed that most Iowa rural families don't follow the recommended practice of having a regular, thorough physical examination.

Mom Rates First

Usually, the lady of the household holds the top record on regular health exams; Dad comes next; the youngsters rate a low number three. On the whole, folks who don't have regular check-ups never even see a doctor until some member of their family is actually sick.

Dental examinations rated the same type of inattentiveness. Rather than having regular dental examinations to prevent decay, the majority of the families waited until they had tooth aches or other tooth and gum troubles before they took any action.

Looking Ahead Financially

Forty percent of the rural Iowans had no advance or systematic savings plan set aside to meet emergency or unexpected medical and dental bills.

The rural nonfarm families who were interviewed rated a little better—but not much. Thirty-four percent of these families told interviewers they just took care of medical expense as the illness or need arose.

Insurance Most Popular

Hospital insurance was the most popular saving method for those who did have some advance financial plans for possible illness or accident. Second on the popularity list was a personal savings account.

Parents made a good record concerning vaccinations for their youngsters. Immunization of children, under 6 years old, against smallpox, diphtheria and whooping cough rated fairly high in number. But very few adults were adequately protected against smallpox and diphtheria—both diseases which may strike unprotected adults.

X-Rays for Tuberculosis

The x-ray method for diagnosing tuberculosis is recognized as a good one. Even so, x-rays for detecting the disease were not widely used by the citizens. Although a mobile unit had visited many of the counties in which interviews were made, very few of the interviewed folks had been x-rayed.

Reasons for No X-Ray

When x-rays were taken, generally only the adults of the family took advantage of this free chance for medical attention. A sparse 15 percent of the farm families interviewed had their entire families x-rayed to catch any traces of tuberculosis. Among the most popular reasons given for not being x-rayed were: (1) procrastination (2) "inconvenient to go," and (3) "no need for an x-ray."

These studies were conducted by Nihad Allos and Esther Borgman, graduate students at Iowa State College, and were done under the direction of Miss Lyle.

HOT WELL

Workmen near Pomeroy last week could warm their hands over a gas flame issuing from a 200 foot deep well casing on the Albert Seehusen farm. The gas was struck as they were drilling for water and escaped from the casing for about 31 hours before dissipating.

Mother Away So Teenagers Help Themselves

A wise mother knows that teenagers home from school head for the refrigerator and a cold appetizing bottle of milk. Ample milk means healthier vigorous youngsters. Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Of course, the wedding of Grace and her Prince is getting quite a play in the news media of the country, but for our money the top story of the week is the veto of the farm bill by President Eisenhower.

We're not well enough versed on the farm problem to argue about the right or wrong of it, but we think that "Ike" showed a lot of courage in his action as well as an intent to stick by what he thinks is best for the country as a whole . . . regardless of political pressures.

Mrs Mary Jane Jorgenson of Garner drove to Omaha Friday and spent Saturday with her son Capt R A Jorgenson, Jr. Ray flew in from Williams Air Force Base at Pheonix, Arizona, flying a jet that made the trip in just two hours. Both Mrs Jorgenson and her son visited Saturday at the T E Davis home in Omaha. Mr Davis is a brother of Mrs Jorgenson's.

Wouldn't it be nice if we had private conveyances that could cover distance that fast. Think of all the places you could go for a weekend.

"Maybe money can't buy happiness, but it'll help you get some fine synthetics!"

The state safety department is spearheading a drive to help Iowa communities find out just how much traffic safety they have in stock. No doubt some good will come out of their efforts, but we feel quite sure that common sense is the best traffic safety stock of all. Of course, they can, by their efforts, stimulate the use of common sense.

A small town's a place where a fellow with a black eye doesn't have to explain to people. They know.—Augusta Kansas Gazette.

In fact, if this state doesn't get plenty of rain during the next three or four months there'll be an awful hole in that surplus that has been bothering congress. It's dry here and worse in other parts of the state.

Commercial Club Plans Summer Entertainment

The Klemme Commercial Club met last Wednesday, April 10th and made plans for the coming summer. In addition they agreed to be closed on the following holidays: Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas, and New Year's. It was also decided that Klemme stores would only have one open night per week this summer and that would be Saturdays.

Present plans call for entertainment on Saturday nights to include band concerts, square dancing on the street, and possibly some free acts.

County Treasurer Makes Tax Collection Report

According to Mr McMillin, county treasurer, the total tax handed into the office for collections for the year of 1956 now amounts to $1,933,306.25. This is an increase over 1955 in the amount of $247,636.42.

The following itemization shows the collection in the Treasurer's office for the first three months of 1956:

January	$195,472.23
February	194,071.04
March	766,113.60
Total	$1,190,960.83

And, Mr McMillin points out that this figure figured percentage-wise is 61.60 percent of the total amount to be collected for the year.

Drainage collections for the first three months of 1956 show a total of $94,024.40. Collections for automobiles and trucks for 1956, now totals $208,443.78.

The total amount collected in the Treasurer's office for the first three months of 1956 amounted to $1,493,429.01.

Mr McMillin commented, "With the prices as they stand today and collections in general, we felt the collections were far above average. The last two weeks of March were a real rush period and many had to wait in line to get waited on".

He observed that nearly all taxing districts showed an increase over last year, and many had added school bonds and interest to pay. The Treasurer's office collected the Britt school tax in full. The total amount in this school district for bond and interest amounted to $42,248.45, and the office took in collections of $35,303.96, or about 84 percent to date.

Mr McMillin says they still have a number of car and truck license not asked for as yet, and the penalty for April amounts to 15 percent.

He concluded, "With collections like they are; it is hard to get the apportionments made and the checks out to the schools, towns, and townships."

But, he felt that those checks would be made out this week and mailed to the various designated recipients.

COLLECTION

Rev Lawrence Murphy, Glenwood pastor, a lapidarist who carves model churches from alabaster, has added another to his growing collecting. It is a replica of a Colonial style church which he visited in New England about two years ago. Four hundred hours of painstaking effort went into the model.

Lyle Goll, Gloria Tenold Married at Joice

Couple Will Farm In This Community

Bethany Lutheran Church of Joice was the scene of a wedding Sunday evening when Gloria Ann Tenold, daughter of Mr and Mrs Alto Tenold, of Joice became the bride of Lyle Goll, son of Mr and Mrs Alvin Goll. The Rev David Luttio read the double ring ceremony at the candlelight service.

The church chancel was decorated with tall baskets of pink and white snapdragons and was lighted with candelabra of burning tapers. The church altar was graced with bouquets of pink snapdragons. Alternating blue and white satin bows marked the pews along the white bridal path.

Mrs E C Emmons served as organist and played the preludes of nuptial music. She also accompanied the vocalist. Mrs Marvin Austin of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, sang "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony as the couple stood at the altar. The Rev David Luttio of Joice sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar, and following the benediction, Mrs Austin sang "Crown With Thy Benediction". Marilyn Anonson and Julie Tenold sang "O Perfect Love" as a duet during the recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length creation of chantilly type lace over bridal satin. The fitted bodice rose to an insert of nylon net with a pointed collar and long sleeves lily-pointed at the wrists. The full skirt extended into a fan-train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a matching nylon cap studded with sequins and seed pearls. Her pearl necklace was a gift from the bridegroom, and she carried a bride's cascade bouquet of red roses centered with a white carnation corsage.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Marilyn Anonson, cousin of the bride, and a student at Iowa State Teachers College, Cedar Falls. Bridemaids were Julie Tenold, cousin of the bride and Donna Brunsvold, a friend of the bride.

They wore identically styled floor-length gowns, each in a different shade of blue made with net over taffeta. They wore matching headbands with short veils trimmed with pearls. Their double-strands of pearls were gifts from the bride. They carried bouquets of pink carnations with white carnation centers.

The flowergirl was Jane Reinsmoen of Joice, a cousin of the bride, wearing a gown similiar to the bride's Her pearl necklace was a gift of the bride and she carried a basket of roses and rose petals.

CAPITOL LETTER

HARD WORKER

Twenty-two years of labor in Republican politics were climaxed for Charles Wittenmeyer of Davenport by his election as national committeeman from Iowa.

He will succeed Robert Goodwin of Des Moines on the GOP national committee this week at a meeting in Washington. Goodwin, who held the post for four years, was resigned at this week's meeting.

The Davenport attorney will serve out Goodwin's unexpired term until mid-August, and then, after the party national convention, will serve a regular four-year term.

Wittenmeyer, 52, has been Scott County GOP chairman of the Davenport Repubican central committee. He was first elected chairman of his county Young Republican league in 1934. He had served on the state central committee almost six years .

DEMO GET READY

Iowa Democrats, given a push by a rousing talk by former President Harry Truman in Des Moines last week, are mapping plans for an all-out campaign in the state this fall. They'll place heavy emphasis on the farm situation.

So much enthusiasm was drumed up in presidential county conventions that many counties split their delegations to permit more party members to participate in the state presidential confab in Des Moines June 1.

While the Democrats are permitted 2,051 delegates at the state meeting, some counties have doubled or tripled their delegations. One. Wapello while only permitted 48 votes, is sending 310 delegates—all who attended the county meeting.

State Chairman Jake More has promised that "all will be seated". The Veterans Memorial Auditorium holds 14,500.

SCARED RACE

Indications are that U S Sen. Burke B Hickenlooper, seeking renomination in the Republican primary this June, will run a "scared race".

The senator's advisers aren't taking lightly the bid being made for his senate seat by Atty Gen Dayton Countryman, a relative newcomer to the state GOP scene.

Hickenlooper has named as his campaign manager, Thomas Murphy of Red Oak, a newspaper publisher and former finance chairman of the party in Iowa. Murphy lives in the seventh district, in southwest Iowa, where much of the farm discontent has arisen and in a district where the National Farm Organization is particularly strong. Jim Milroy, a veteran in state politics, and a former campaign manager for the senator, has been named to the advisory staff.

FOR REPEAL

Apparently the half-cent increase in the Iowa sales tax, voted by the last legislature, is a popular item to be against this year.

Gov Leo A Hoegh has said several times that he favors repeal of the added half-cent sales tax, and recently in a Sioux City address, W H Nicholas, one of the two GOP candidates for lieutenant-governor, said he would fight for repeal of the measure too.

Democratic candidates don't like it either and are saying so.

GETS PROMOTED

Gov Hoegh has won a promotion from Iowa Republicans.

Four years ago, as an ardent Eisenhower supporter, the governor attended the GOP national convention in a capacity as assitant master at arms of the Iowa delegation that will participate in the San Francisco sessions.

REPORTING DATE

The Iowa tax study committee has delayed its reporting date 15 days. The committee had planned to make its report on the state tax structure by Sept. 1 but has now set the date back to Sept. 15.

Change in the due-date virtually means that no special session of the legislature will be called before the November elections this year.

A special session is by no means a certainty and may not be called at all. The next regular session of the legislature is next January.

The committee, authorized by last legislature. has been working on the state's tax probelms since last May. It plans to make recommendations on tax changes to the legislature. Governor Hoegh has said that, if necessary and warranted by the committee report, he would call a special session.

GOP CARAVAN

The Iowa Council of Republican Women is now sponsoring its regular election year "caravan of candidates". The tour of the eight congressional districts, which features appearances by GOP candidates for office, got underway last Thursday in the eighth district.

Final meeting is scheduled today in the first district with meeting at West Liberty and Iowa City.

SAFETY CONFAB

Some 600 Iowa mayors, enforcement officers and safety engineers conferred last week in Des Moines on plans for reducing the death toll on the state's highways. It was the first in what is planned as a series of regular mayors' traffic safety conferences.

ALCOHOLISM SURVEY

Five Iowa legislators have requested a study by the state legislative research bureau on alcoholism.

They want to know what other states are doing in the way of programs to educate and inform the public about the habit. They ask that the research include a study on what laws, both to establish and to finance an education and information program, other states are using. They urged the report to be finished in time for presentation to the 1957 legislature.

Asking the study are: State Reps Jack Miller of Sioux City and Emil L Novak of Cedar Rapids, and Senators Duane E Dewel of Algona, Arch W McFarlane of Waterloo and Jack Schroeder of Davenport.

TRUCKERS TAX

State treasury agents are renewing their efforts to catch truckers violating the Iowa gasoline tax law. Truckers coming into Iowa with more than 20 gallons of gasoline in their tanks, are, by law, to pay state gas tax on fuel above the 20-gallon limit.

Eighteen state treasury agents last week took up posts at seven locations along the Iowa-Nebraska border to check truckers coming into the state. Similiar enforcement campaigns were carried out last year along the southern and western state borders.

NEBERGALL TO STAY

R W "Doc" Nebergall will not be relieved of his duties as chief of the state bureau of criminal investigation. Gov Leo A Hoegh, after a request from six county sheriffs. conducted the month-long study of the bureau.

In his report, the governor recommended two major changes in the operation of the bureau. He said changes are being made to improve the work standards in the bureau. He recommended a better and more extensive delegation of authority in the department, and that there be improved liaison between the local peace officers, state agents assigned to assist them, and the bureau office.

The governor said the bureau has been carrying an unusually heavy workload and that more agents would be fired .He said he is convinced local officers are receiving full cooperation from Nebergall and his staff.

Gossip Around KHS

I see where Ione and Gordon and Shirley and Gary were at the show in Britt again Sunday night. Seems like they are making it a regular Sunday night get_together.

It seems there was a green Plymouth in Klemme to see a certain senior girl. What about this, Ruth?

I see where Roger B gave Barbara A a ride to school this noon. Is this something new starting?

I wonder what happened between Marvalyn C and Larry W. I don't see them together anymore. Is there a Kanawha girl by the name of Lorraine interfering?

I guess Larry U and Donna C hit it off quite well. I see they are still going together and he gives her a ride to school every noon.

I wonder how come Gracka was standing around up town with Beverly C. It couldn't be because someone was with Pete, could it?

We hear that Margaret H is going to be getting up earlier the mornings the milkman comes. Who is the milkman?

I wonder if Kay is still going to Britt. I haven't heard much about him lately.

I see that Dave is wearing a bracelet with the name Marie on it. Could it be the Marie from Garner?

Cackles from the Coop

If practice makes perfect, our groups and solos should come home with lots of I's. Things get underway after tomorrow (the 13th) at Plymouth at 4:00 p. m. and everyone is practicing madly to get ready for it. As yet we don't know whether we will have a tympani head or not, but our fingers are crossed.

Don't forget the Band Concert on the first of May and the large group contest will be here on the 4th and 5th of May. This will involve 27 schools and it should be rather lively in town, if nothing else.

Editorial of the Week

Juvenile delinquency is becoming an ever increasing problem in our society today. It has increased 9% in the past year. We haven't been too interested in it up until lately, for in previous occasion, J_D was prevalent only in large cities where slums or environment encouraged it. But lately reports of J_D have come from small towns such as ours where neither slums or environment encouraged it. What is the cause of this?

Statistics say that the cause of juvenile delinquency originates in the home. Teenagers today say they want and need more love, sympathy and understanding. They also say that they can't talk to their parents. Parents today haven't established the easy communication channels needed to talk to their children. This, perhaps, is the key to juvenile delinquency.

But lets not attribute the cause only to the parents. They have had this laid on their shoulders enough. It seems to me that it is a 50_50 proposition Teen_agers are just as much to blame as their parents.

Of course, just because some teen_agers make mistakes is no sign the entire teen-age population should be labeled "Juvenile Delinquents" and I'm afraid this is just what's happening. All teen_agers aren't junvenile delinquents just because they are teen_agers. Most teen_agers today want to curve delinquency just as much as any adults want to. In fact teen_agers want J_D's punished to the full extent. "Throw the book at them" is the response teen_agers today give to the question—"How shall we curb J_D?" Another response is "by punishing the parents in the same way as the children."

Something must definitely be done about this problem for all teen_agers—juvenile delinquents or not—will soon govern our nation as citizens of tomorrow.

Question of the Week

What would you do without electricity in your house?

Keith N: Go away at night or sit in the dark.

Roger J: Go away, go to bed or sit in the dark.

Jerry L: Have hot milk for supper every night.

Judy S: Our house wouldn't be so modern and we wouldn't be able to have T V and that would kill me!

Bob Larson: I'd light a candle.

Roger B: I'd light a candle also.

Ronald B: I'd have to drink my ice cream.

We thought we were finished diagraming sentences but it looks like we were wrong. We are now learning how to diagram complex sentences.

The geometry class is going around in circles—literally. We are studying circles, chords. diameters. radii; and proofs thereof.

Chemistry has been very quiet this week in comparison to last week (no explosions or fires); however we did make some soap. It works, too.

We have been working with columnar special journals this week in bookkeeping. Some of the things we have learned are balancing and ruling the double-page cashbook and analyzing the columnar general journal. We have also started a new chapter dealing with notes and interest.

In business law we have been giving current news events concering things that deal with business law. After each topic is given, we take time to discuss it thoroughly.

World War I is our topic in American history. We have been discussing some of the events leading up to the war and also some events brought about by the war.

Advanced Typing: In filing we are learning how to index different names and businesses.

Junior Class News

English: Studying. We have discovered that infinitives may not only be used as nouns but also as adjectives and adverbs. In order to analize a sentence, we have been diagraming sentences. Work will continue on adjectives and adverbs for the nert week or so.

Typing: One of the latest things that we have been doing in typing is making booklets. We also have been taking five minute writings to make us more skilled.

Shop: By now, some of the boys in shop are becoming pretty well acquainted with tools. Some of the lamps they have made, look professionally done.

Speech: The students in the speech class have been complaining they are over worked. No! The situation is that their speeches to convince were more difficult than they had anticipated. That round of 19 speeches has come to an end, and our next attempt will be a speech to impress. Have you ever tried to impress someone's emotions—emotions of love, anger, want, or hatred? It isn't easy.

Geography: The geography class enjoyed a nice long test over mineral resources. Our new chapter is about manufacturing and trade.

Home Ec: Deep fat frying has been our study in advanced home making. So far we have made French fried potatoes, onions, fish fillets, chicken, shrimp, corn fritters and doughnuts.

Liberty Busy Bees

The monthly meeting of the Liberty Busy Bees was held at the home of Carolyn Jass on Mar. 17. The meeting was opened by the 4 H pledge. Janelle Johnson, Winola Zwald. and Nancy Farquhar are the committee on the display in the Josten Hardware store which was for 4 H club week. Our card committee composed of Marcia Erdman and Joyce Hueneman sent a "Thank You" card to the Josten Hardware for exhibiting our display. We voted to pay $5 to the International Youth Exchange.

We decided to have a bake sale on April 7th at 11:30. Joyce Hueneman and Janelle Johnson are on the committee to see about a place to hold the sale. the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

"He didn't have any troubles. He wasn't the kind. He wouldn't have killed himself."

Comments of the crowd seemed to rule out suicide. Yet, it was apparent that the man scattered along the railroad track had driven into the train at full speed, in full daylight, in full possesion of his faculties.

While the grim job of collecting what was left went on, the train was backed over the crossing to clear the highway. Suddenly, everyone in the watching crowd realized what had happened.

The train was made up of four box cars directly behind the engine, then a string of some twenty flat cars followed by more box cars. As the train backed over the crossing, the flat cars disappeared from view beneath a hedge of weeds along the track to the left of the highway.

When the train stopped, the crowd looked soberly at what the dead driver had seen in his final moments—an engine and four cars about to cross the highway. The rest of the train, the long line of flat cars, was hidden behind the weeds.

Apparently the driver decided to make one of those neatly timed movements of speed and direction and, without slowing down, pass directly behind the last box car as it cleared the crossing.

His timing was perfect for as much as he had seen. He hit the first flat car right in the middle.

"Wilbur, I want you to come home—this very minute!"

It's not polite to brag, I know, but compared to me, some chicks just don't have it. They're my age, yet I'm bigger, my shanks are yellower and my comb redder. And take a look at my feathers. Why some chicks I know are still trying to feather out. Course I've had some breaks in my life. The boss put Ren-O-Sal in my drinking water since I was a downy little bird fresh from the hatchery. Experts Explain—

What Emotional Health Looks Like

Signs of physical illness are frequently much easier to recognize than symptoms of emotional ill-health. Everyone, including you, has the chance to be a psychological genius today because you can learn symptoms of emotional "sickness"—as well as symptoms of emotional well being. Perhaps your knowledge can help one who needs it.

Most of us know what to do when we have a headache—or a cold—or a sore back. We can tell because we feel physical discomfort.

But it's not so easy to self-diagnose our mental and emotional ailments. We don't hurt any place, and unlike the time when headache strikes and we say "it hurts here on my head," when asked who has a neurosis, what do we reply? You're right. It's usually "Aunt Matilda," "the lady next door" or "the landlord"—but never "I do."

Celebrated Twosome

Dr and Mrs H A Overstreet explained "What Emotional Health Looks Like" to over 600 Iowans at the Family Life Conference April 3 and 4 on the Iowa State College campus.

The famous author-lecturer-psychologist-educator team named six guideposts for good emotional health—each of them important points.

First on their list was "Do you move toward life—or do you tend to move away?" If you're moving up and out, you're growing because you're interested. Remember, if you're interested, you're interesting. The object of this point is to diminsh your capacity for hate and to "boost your capacity for love."

On the other hand, a person who tends to move inward rather than out—to shrink rather than grow—probably makes a lot of small criticisms about others. He'll say "she's nice—but . . ." He's bored—and proud of it. He may be suspicious, dominating and self-pitying.

"Give and Take"

Second on the Overstreets' list is "are you capable of give and take?" Those who aren't haven't "grown" sufficietntly. Given as examples of this were conversation monopolizers.

"Do you enjoy creative privacy." The cause of many neuroses today is that we're living in such an over-stimulated environment that most of us must live as pure extroverts. "This is the big psychological sadness of our times," according to Mrs Overstreet.

Each of us needs a certain amount of creative privacy. Now, this doesn't necessarily mean you have to actually create something (i. e. painting, sewing). It simply means that you must make time to be alone and quietly gather your own thouhgts.

Capacity to "Bounce Back"

The fourth guidepost is "can you assimilate the unwanted experiences in life?" A happy life comes to the person who is ready to meet those experiences he does not want. Take the blows of life "on the chin" and then as promptly as possible "bounce back" to happy normal living. Don't brood about the disapointments. Your life wouldn't be complete or normal if it didn't present a few unwanted experiences.

Number six on the Overstreets' list was "do you have concern for something that is very much greater than yourself?" Here, you must move beyond your own egotism. We grow by moving up and out. If you don't grow toward something greater than yourself, you won't, in reality, grow.

People who have this concern for a greater power possess the capacity for expressing gratitude. They aren't niggardly in their ability to freely admire other people and other things They have a power for dedication to causes, jobs and to people.

Hog and cattle prices both have shown recent strength, with hogs being the star performer, says Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist.

Hog slaughter, according to Kutish, will fall off faster during the next few months than will cattle slaughter. The supply of fed cattle reaching the markets normally increases at this time of the year—the time of year when hog slaughter normally falls off. The main hope for substanial rise in cattle prices sometimes comes between early summer and early fall.

Much of the increase in the beef supply is expected to occur during the first half of 1956. It will consist of the higher beef grades, a result of the carry-over of older steers on January 1. Since farmers had fewer light cattle on feed this winter than they did a year ago, Kutish believes we will have a smaller supply of beef in the last half of this year than we did at the same time a year ago.

A greater portion of the beef output in the last half of this year will be of the intermediate grades. The economist says there should be a large supply of grass fed steers hitting the markets in mid or late summer, the exact timing depends upon the weather in the grazing areas.

The price spread between the upper and lower grades of steers and heifers this summer and fall should be wider during the last half of 1956 than during the past year.

O. D. O. Club Takes Tour

The O D O Club met at the home of Mrs Curtis Greimann and from there we went to Mason City on a tour.

We visited the Coco Cola Co., seeing the new big bottles going to be filled, which were not for sale to the public at the time. Next we visited Mode-O-Day, factory, Marshall and Swift Cleaners and Furriers, State Brand Creameries, Mason City Globe Gazette and the Clear Lake Lake Bakery.

We all enjoyed the interesting tour very much. There were 17 ladies taking the tour.

After returning home, we had our bulb exchange with our secret sisters.

DEPORTED

Four Mexicans were deported, after stealing nine suits of clothes at Osceola recently. Immigration officials were called in and the aliens were sent back to Mexico.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Marshal Richard Ulrich has some serious doubts about the honesty of some of his fellow peace officers. Tuesday he attended a district peace officers meeting at the VFW Club in Mason City, and when he came out to get in his pickup and come home, he discovered that someone had made off with the red plastic shield that fits over the spot light on the pickup.

"Rich" said that he didn't mind the $2.70 for the red plastic shield, but he didn't like having to think that some fellow "long arm of the law" would stoop to such a nasty trick.

If you are planning a trip to Nebraska we would suggest that you contact Lyle Goll before you go. He has some late information (picked up on his honeymoon) as to some rather unusual driving laws in that state.

Speaking of driving, the widening work now underway on highway 69 is going to call for a little extra caution. There are men and machines all along the highway, so it behooves us all to watch for flagmen and obey their signals. None of us wants to be responsible for injuring a workman.

If you're worried about the taxes you pay, consider the plight of Iowa Electric light and Power Company. Their taxes for the year 1955 amounted to $11.00 every minute.

If we scrimped a little we might be able to stand about 30 seconds of that.

During the first three months of this year, 109 drivers have been denied licenses when they applied for renewal. During the same period last year only five applicants were denied their license. The increase is due to the state safety department's intensified driver improvement program which they announced earlier this year.

If you are due to get your license renewed, better bone up on driving rules and regulations, and keep your slate clean in the meantime. The driving privilege would really be missed.

Services Were Thursday For Mrs Carl Suckow

Ida Alice Ludeke was born November 16, 1893 at Klemme, Iowa, being the youngest of ten children of Herman F and Martha Ludeke.

She grew to womanhood and was a successful school teacher for eleven years in Hancock County.

She was united in marriage to Carl W Suckow May 26, 1918. They made their home in Garner for several years where Mr Suckow was employed by the Skelly Oil Company.

Mrs Suckow was a member of the Methodist Church, was a devout Christian, teaching Sunday School for many years. She was a faithful member of the choir, often rendering special music. She was a member of the Women's Society of Christian Service and held various offices until her health failed a year ago.

Mr and Mrs Suckow decided to retire and move to Springfield, Missouri, where their sons live. They sold their business and were on their way to their new home which they recently purchased. At Ruston, Louisana, the Suckow car went out of control, causing an accident which proved fatal to Mrs Suckow, April 16, 1956.

She was a kind and loving wife and mother and will be greatly missed.

She leaves to mourn her sudden death, her husband, Carl; two sons, Warren and Dean, and two grandsons, Randy and Daniel; five sisters, (Emma) Mrs Art Schoenwetter, (Clara) Mrs Fred Schlichting, (Lydia) Mrs Wm Ax, (Sarah) Mrs Elmer Weisbrod, (Mary) Mrs George Schoenwetter; and two brothers, Henry and Ralph; and many other more distant relatives and friends.

DUTCH REFUGEES

Mrs Dorothy Houghton of Red Oak, an advisor on the federal government's refugee relief program told a Des Moines Rotary Club audience the other day that the Iowa Governor's Refugee Relief committee is especially urging individuals and groups in Iowa to sponsor Dutch refugees.

Among Dutch refugees waiting to come to America, she said, are many with skills that are in short supply in this country. She told the Rotarians that these include chemists, draftsmen, engineers, electricians, instrument makers and stenographers.

Mrs Houghton said that Iowans have signed assurances to bring to this state approximately 1,200 refugees under the federal program.

FARM PROGRAMMING

President Eisenhower's veto of the farm bill, Iowa ASC officials point out, "has cleared the way for Iowa farmers to make final decisions on their operations for this crop year.

State ASC Chairman Dwight Meyer urged farmers to point their 1956 operations toward obtaining the maximum benefits of the government's present price support and production adjustment programs.

He said these programs proved of great assistance in difficult times of the past and can help tremendously in 1956 if farmers themselves will take full advantage of them.

WET OR DRY

The Iowa Temperance League wants to know the "wet" or "dry" attitudes of legislative candidates in Iowa possible on beer and liquor legislation.

The League has mailed its biennial questionaire to all candidates, the dry forces will then make recommendations on the candidates before the primary elections.

Questionaires this year requested an answer to six questions: Would you oppose liquor-by-the-drink legislation? Would you favor eliminating sale of beer at the state fair grounds? Would you support legislation to elimimate the Class C Beer permit? Would you favor restricting beer and liquor advertising? Will you support local option on beer? Would you favor establishing a minimum distance requirement from churches and schools for beer permit holders?

SHE LIKES IKE

Mrs Dorothy Houghton of Red Oak, has been named national co-chairman of the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee, a voluntary organization working for the renomination and reelection of President Eisenhower.

As national co-chairman Mrs Houghton will be in charge of woman's activities of the committee. Her offices will be at the national headquarters in New York.

THREE CANDIDATES

Three candidates are being discussed as possible successors to Charles Wittenmeyer on the Republican state central committee. Wittenmeyer. who has been installed as Iowa GOP national committeeman, is expected to resign as Scott County Republican chairman and from the state central committee, shortly.

Candidates mentioned for first district chairman job include: Ben Galer of Mt Pleasant, William Morrison of Iowa City, and William Talbot of Keokuk. All three are attorneys and county Repubican chairmen.

LICENSES SUSPENDED

A total of 475 Iowans had their drivers licenses suspended, revoked or denied during the first three months of this year, the state department of public safety reports.

The driver's license denials are the result of a department stepped-up program for driver improvement.

During the comparable period a year ago, the licenses of 320 motorists were either suspended, revoked or denied.

ASKS BOOST VALUES

City and county assessors have been advised to boost values on high-priced property and lower them on low-priced property. The suggestion came from Louis Cook, director of the state tax commission after completing a statewide tour.

Iowa requires property taxes be levied on the base of 60 percent of actual value. By common practice actual assessments are "not more than 35 percent," Cook said.

Cook said he advised assessors to "get better property up because there is a tendency to let more expensive property off easy."

PATROL SCHOOL

Candidates for the Iowa highway patrol now are in their second week of training at a new candidate school underway at Camp Dodge near Des Moines. Thirty two recruits are taking the training for vacancies on the patrol. Not all will be assigned to duty but those qualified who are not selected for about 17 vacancies now will be placed on a patrol reserve list.

REAPPORTIONMENT

A state senator told a Des Moines Chamber of Commerce meeting that legislative reapportionment in Iowa will be accomplished more quickly through a constitutional amendment than any other method.

State Sen. Duane Dewel, Algona Republican, and senate majority leader last session, said that trying to pass bills to change county representation in the legislature will fail because redistricting plans alienate too many members.

He expressed the opinion the reapportionment could be obtained through a constitutional amendment. He declared the present method of reapportionment is not "realistic" and has been "out of whack for 50 years."

LOCAL TAX LEVY

Taxes levied by Iowa local governmental bodies for payment this year totaled $261,227,162.

The levies were up $16,501,465, or 6.74 percent over 1955 They were made by 99 counties, all municipalities, and all public school districts in Iowa.

The report was made by the state comptroller's office.

The Unted States Department of Agriculture is forecasting a total production of 126 to 127 billion pounds of milk during 1956, Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, reports. Last year 123.5 billion pounds were produced.

Milk production for the first 3 months of this year, according to Kutish, was 13 percent greater than a year earlier. Production per cow broke all previous high records, off setting a small reduction in milk cows from a year earlier.

Reviewing the milk markets of 1954 and the first half of 1955, Kutish says conditions then were not favorable to milk production. As a result of this unfavorable situation, dairymen reduced milk cow numbers about 2 percent.

When hog and cattle prices began to slump in 1955, the dairy outlook began to improve relatively. A drop in feed prices further improved the outlook. Feed prices now average 15 to 20 percent below a year ago.

After three weeks of rapid price advances, Kutish says the hog markets now are going through a brief "digesting period:" Slaughter during late March was about in line with the same period a year ago, but the average prices at Chicago were about 10 percent below prices for the same period a year earlier. This reflected the lower wholesale price for pork.

Prices for the next 2 months will be largely affected by the trend in hog marketings. Kutish says receipts of hogs recently have been close to the number of hogs marketed a year ago. If this trend continues, he believes that the further advance in hog prices to the spring high could be substantial.

On the other hand, Kutish says this could be a lull period—farmers could be shifting from marketing hogs at lighter weights to selling them at somewhat heavier weights. An increase in prices could encourage farmers to do this, but thus far Kutish has not found any evidence that this shift is occurring.

If this is a lull period in receipts, Kutish says the spring peak will not be as high as it would if the first possibility he outlined above holds. In case it is a lull, we would get an early run-up in price—then have the heavy-weight hogs dragging on the market later in the spring. That, concludes Kutish, is what happened in 1954.

Gossip Around KHS

Who has been eating at the grade school with Judy S? Could it be Marlin S? Don't sit too close to her Marlin.

Velma seems to have her eye on Ronnie B. How about that girl from Belmond, Ronnie?

Could it be Jerry J likes to go skating at Belmond because of Jeanne J?

Say, Roger, who was the girl you brought to the class play Tuesday night? We heard it was Marie E. How about this, Roger?

We heard that Paul G went with Marlene V from Meservey. How about that Paul?

I wonder who Craig Larson took to the Senior Class Play, Tuesday night? We heard it was Marguarite Keeper.

I hear that Martin B brought Barbara A to the play Tuesday night. Evidently he isn't going with Jane R anymore.

Say, Mart, what's this I hear about you going to work and saying you had strawberry pop for breakfast? Should we ask Ruth about this?

I see that some of the senior boys had their girls from Garner at our play. I wonder if they are going to the Garner Senior Class Play?

What's this I heard about Dave's car not starting Sunday night and he had to leave it at Marie's all night? How did you get home, Dave?

Cackles from the Coop

In the solo and ensemble contest last weekend at Plymouth, our vocal groups and solo groups received 2 ones, 5 twos, and 3 threes. Our instrumental groups and solos received 13 ones, and 7 twos. This represents the best record of any class "D" school in this section of the state, and on several criticism sheets the judges had written, "You have received very fine instruction." It is our observation that Mr Whitford and Mrs Griesy can take a well-deserved bow.

Don't forget the concert on the 1st of May and the contest on the 4th and 5th of May.

Senior Class News

Diagraming practices in our English book has been keeping us out of mischief latey. Diagraming adjective clauses and noun clauses becomes very complicated in many cases.

The bookkeeping class today will enjoy a test over interest rates and figuring the exact date when a note will become due. Some of the class has been finishing the January practice set for extra credit, which is due tomorrow.

The chief question in chemistry class lately has been "Now who hid the water faucet handles?" However a little something soon cured the light fingers, and everything is now back to normal.

The geometry class is still going around in circles.

We are now taking up different types of insurance in business law. Yesterday we got in a hot discussion over the farm bill that the President vetoed.

Reviewing over the subject matter of World War I has been helping us understand the situation that occurred during this time.

Editorial of the Week

Because we couldn't thing of a topic for an editorial this week, we tried something different. We passed a paper around the room and had each person write a sentence and this was the result:

I'm too tired for track today. Same Here. Hope it's real nice weather Friday. I hope we don't get lost like Garner did. I hope Shirley behaves correctly. The play is over with. Test in bookkeeping today. I suppose it will be hard. We have to hand in our practice sets, tommorrow too! Oh, well! This is just not my day! Don's watch doesn't work any more. The mainspring is now the mainsprung. I've had enough of school. The venetian blinds are dusty. I wish someone would clean them. I wish it would get warm so I could lie out in the sun! Wait for May 17 to come. I can't. I hope I get my diploma signed. I have a watch for sale. It's guaranteed to move.

Question of the Week

EYE

Arnold Yoder of Keota nearly lost an eye recently. A spring broke as he tried to stretch it, one piece hitting him in the eye. He was rushed to the hospital at Iowa City.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

"I looked up in the rear vision mirror and saw this little girl rolling in the street." A stunned and weeping driver made that statemet to police moments after a five-year-old girl died on the curbing before her home.

Only ten minutes before, the motorist had been driving through the mid-morning quiet of a residential section of an Iowa town. Yes, perhaps he had been driving a little faster than the speed limit allowed, but still, he had been cautious, normally watchful.

Then something struck his right front fender. It was such a light blow that he drove on, glancing into his rear vision mirror to see what had brushed his car. He saw a child "rolling in the street" behind him.

The little girl had skipped out from between two parked autos and into the side of the moving car.

There followed moments of dream-like helplessness. The child was carried to the curbing but she never regained consciousness. The neighbor women gathered, the ambulance came and the police. The driver became sick. He leaned against the car and weakly beat the fender with his fist.

There was nothing anyone could do. The child was dead when the ambulance pulled away. All he could see was that stark scene reflected in the rear vision mirror.

One or more similar accidents happen every spring and summer in Iowa when the small children come out to play. When a child is near a street or highway, "rear vision" is not enough to protect him.

March of Dimes Contributions Total $4,697.21 In County

Hancock Counnty contributed $4,679.21 to last January's campaign against infantile paralysis, it was announced today by Mrs Lafe Oxley, Campaign Director of the 1956 March of Dimes.

The comparable figure in last year's March of Dimes was $5,-011.45. This year's per capita contribution by Hancock County residents amounts to 31c. The March of Dimes director declared that 1956 receipts marked a decrease of 6.6% over those of the previous year.

In announcing the March of Dimes results, Mrs Oxley paid tribute to local volunteers "who worked so tirelessly and gave so generously of their time and effort to raise the funds last January."

"Once more," she said, "the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis can state with confidence that no polio patient shall go without care for lack of funds, and, moreover, that this aid will continue until the patient has made a maximum recovery. Our National Foundation Chapter is in a strong position to help those who need help, thanks to the heroic efforts of our volunteers."

March of Dimes funds are shared by the local Chapter treasury to provide patient aid and by national headquarters to support a vast program of scientific research, professional education and epidemic aid services, including financial assistance to chapters that have exhausted their share of March of Dimes funds.

"Our local funds, as well as those of chapters throughout the country, have been expended at an unprecedented rate in recent years," she concluded. "This is because of the continuing need for aid to patients who contracted polio in previous years."

Beware of Fabric Insects—

Store Winter Garments Carefully

This homemaker has decided to apply an insecticide directly to her fabrics before she stores them for the summer.

It's that time again—time to stow away your winter garments for the summer months ahead. And, you want to make sure none of those pesky clothes moths or carpet beetles invade the "hideaway" place you have planned for you family's winter togs, so you'll be interested in these storage tips. They are given by Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at Iowa State College.

Clean Thoroughly

The first thing to remember is that these insects are irresistibly attracted to dirt. That means your big job is to clean thoroughly as you prepare your garments for storage.

Arrange the sparkling clean garments in tightly sealed cardboard, metal or wood containers. Most clothing bags don't offer a tight enough seal.

Next, place some paradichlorbenzene crystals between the layers of clothing. Use ¼ pound of crystals to every 12 cubic feet. Then, close the container and seal it as snugly as possible. If you choose a cardboard box for your container, your most secure seal will be achieved by using gummed tape.

Remember to label each box as to contents. Then, you'll know exactly what garments each contains next fall when it's time for your bright, clean and safe clothes to emerge from their captivity.

Pros and Cons of Cedar

Perhaps you plan to use a cedar chest. Just make sure it's sealed securely enough to hold the fumes from the paradichlorobenzene crystals. Since cedar wood alone claims no insecticidal properties after one year, it's virtually worthless for safe storage after that time lapses. This same principle hold true with cedar-lined closets. It's only within the first year that the aromatic cedar resin has any degree of moth-repellent value.

Our friend, the clothes moth, has two favorite "haunts"—closets and clothes containers. His desire to do damage isn't confined to your stored clothes, so take precautions against him in your closet, too.

Recognize the Larva

You can easily recognize this pesky worm by the web he spins to protect himself. Contrary to popular opinion, the clothes-hungry insect that does the damage to our garments is not a flying creature, as his name might imply. There are four stages in the life cycle of the clothes moth—egg, larva (does damage), resting stage, and adult (flies about and lays eggs). So you want to prevent the damage the larva—not the flying clothes moth—can do to your clothing. If you do this, you'll get the moth before he ever reaches the flying stage. Peel your eye for that worm's protective web—it's the real source of trouble.

Methods of Control

You can curb the growth of larvae in various ways. They often dwell behind baseboards, so plan a line of attack in that direction. Place a long-lasting insecticide compound along your baseboards. Two percent to 3 percent chlordane in an oil solution or ½ percent dieldrin will do top-notch jobs. Clean empty closets, spray floors, walls and shelves with chlordane.

If you'd like to apply an insecticide directly to your fabrics, take a trip to the nearest drugstore, and ask for some fluosilicates or DDT. Important points to remember about these two insecticides are as follows:

1. Fluosilicates: Must be eaten by worms before killing them; can be removed by conventional laundering methods.
2. DDT: Will kill on contact; can be removed only by dry cleaning.

County Engineer Makes Report for Year 1955

Hancock County supervisors recently approved the annual report of Hancock County Engineer Charles K Paulson for the year ending January 1, 1956. The report lists an auditor's balance on January 1st, 1955 in the maintenance fund in the sum of $21,953.00, total tax collections in the sum of $359,784.46 and miscellaneous receipts in the sum of $27,702.30, a total of $409,439.76, to be accounted for.

On the disbursement side expenditures for maintenance work totaled $221,478.56; for supplies and equipment, $140,563.63 and miscellaneous expenses totaling $6,637.00 The auditor's balance on January 1, 1956 was $40,770.57.

The construction fund of the county had a balance of $166,539.35 on January 1, 1955, receipts from Road Use Tax in the sum of $293,636.60, and miscellaneous receipts totaling $9,945.39 for total receipts in the sum of $470,121.34.

The disbursements are listed as follows: Farm to Market construction, $79,730.55; secondary local road construction $128,263.79, and miscellaneous expenditures $21,386.24, leaving a balance on hand on January 1st, 1956 in the sum of $240,740.76. Of the total expenditures listed in the 1955, $33,000 was in payment of a gravel purchase and $11,973.29 was for road clearing, most of this item being expended for labor.

The annual report listed a total depreciated inventory of equipment and supplies on hand in the sum of $217,340.00.

The reason for the relatively large balance on hand in the construction fund on the first of the year was because no blacktop construction was done in 1955 and the balance on hand was obligated for three projects proposed in 1956, two of which have been let and construction on which is now underway. Local construction funds are used to subsidize farm-to-market funds received from the state as these total only approximately $130,00 annually and the county is required to furnish material for such projects and pay for certain unrelated costs in order to carry out a ten year improvement program of farm-to-market roads.

No Change In Corn Allotments for 1956

Laws governing the conduct of the government's price support, acreage allotment and cost-sharing conservation programs in 1956 are the same as in 1955, it was reported this week by Jesse Smith, Chairman of the Hancock County ASC Committee.

Proposals to change present laws governing ASC operations have come to an end so far as the present cropping year is concerned, he said.

Chairman Smith emphasized that corn and wheat acreage allotments will be in effect in Iowa this year. No change has been made in the national acreage allotments for either grain, he stated, and therefore the individual farm allotments already fixed in Hancock County and every other county of Iowa will stand as they are.

He pointed out that President Eisenhower has announced that the National average price support rate for 1956 corn produced on farms in compliance with their corn acreage allotments will be $1.50 per bushel. This is 10 cents higher than the previously announced national average support rate of $1.40 and only 8 cents under the rate of 1955.

Chairman Smith also mentioned that the President announced that a lower support rate would be fixed for 1956 corn produced on farms not in compliance with their corn allotments. Details of this special provision have not been worked out but the non-complying rate is generally expected to be low enough to make allotment compliance attractive.

With farmers now in position to make final decisions on their cropping plans for this year, Chairman Smith urged them to point their 1956 operations toward the maximum benefits obtainable through price support and acreage allotment programs administered by ASC.

"These programs proved of great assistance in difficult time of the past," he declared, "and they can help tremendously in 1956 if farmers themselves will take full advantage of them. The thousands of Iowa farmers who have used price support and acregage allotment programs in the past provide the best possible proof of their value to maintain income and to curb over production. The experience of these farmers should influence others to take the same steps in meeting present difficulties."

In urging compliance with individual corn allotments, Chairman Smith advised Hancock County farmers to consider the following factors and gear their operations to the protection afforded by announced price support rates:

1. With corn supplies at a record level, a cut in production of that grain is obviously necessary.

2. Individual farm allotments already fixed for 1956 are about the same as those of 1955 less what would have been diverted into the proposed soil bank. Iowa farmers had even lower allotments in 1940 and 1941 and turned in a high rate of compliance.

3. The national price support rate of $1.50 per bushel for corn produced in 1956 on farms in compliance with their corn allotments is especially attractive in comparison with the probable lower free market price.

4. Higher support rates than in 1955 for 1956 soybeans, flaxseed and grain sorghum, which are not subject to acreage restrictions, offer producers a means of maintaining or increasing overall farm income. The 1956 price support rates for barley, oats and rye are only a cent or two below those for 1955 and these crops, too, are not subject to acreage restrictions. The 1956 National average support rates for these commodities are $2.15 per bushel for soybeans; $3.09 per bushel for flaxseed, $1.80 per hundred-weight for grain sorghum, 93c per bushel for barley and $1.16 per bushel for rye and 59c per bushel for oats.

TREE

A falling tree injured Everett Bell, of Tabor causing him to be hospitalized. Mr Bell was operating a tractor, pushing out trees near Peru, Nebraska and one of them broke, falling on top of him. He received broken ribs and a punctured lung.

BURNS

A grain elevator burned at Sumner recently, in a $35,000 blaze which completely destroyed the structure. The flame was so hot that it melted the aluminum siding which had recently been installed on the building.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

It rained!

Not only did it rain, but it came down nice and easy so that it could all soak into the ground. We don't know how much moisture we have had in the past week, but there has been enough to do a lot of good. Now if the weather will warm up to more normal temperatures, things will really grow.

We passed the time of day with Mrs Milvern Barz after we had been getting quite a bit of rain, and we think she pretty well summed up the feelings of all farmers and most town people when she said, "Now a person feels much better".

I you see an unusual number of high schoolers around town Friday and Saturday, think nothing of it. They will be part of the 1,500 expected here for the state music contest for large groups, Class "D". There will be bands, mixed choruses and glee clubs from 28 schools taking part in the contest.

Heard about a little boy who came home and asked his parents what a bull was when he was sleeping. The parents, expected most any kind of an answer to the riddle but had to admit that they didn't know what a bull was when he was sleeping. They were quite surprised when the little guy said, "a bulldozer".

While we're playing with puns, the state conservation commission came out with a good one (depending on how you look at it) this week. Their definition of a flock of crows pestering an owl: "caw-cuss".

Don's D-X Service has come up with another item to speed service for his customers. He has installed a cash box on the drive, so that he will not have to run into the station to make change, etc. About the time he gets all lined up to do business in as expiditious a manner as possible, the state highway department will close him off for a day or two while they widen the pavement in front of his place.

Speaking of pavement, the AAA says that when you're walking along the highway, be sure to do your walking on the left side. The left side is the right side when walking along the road, and if they had remembered this simple safety rule, the nearly 700 people who were killed last year walking on the right side of the road—which was the wrong side—would still be alive.

The RYP of Hancock County is sponsoring a safety belt campaign. They are not in the campaign to make money, but to save lives. They say to buy your belts either from them or from any garage or filling station, and after you buy it use it.

Not a bad idea. Every now and then we see where safety belts are given credit for saving lives in highway accidents.

And while we're on the subject of highway accidents, don't forget that higway 69 is being widened and that there will be

New Driver Education School Tried Out In Iowa

A leading authority in driver education said today he was "shocked" by attitudes of some drivers in the first adult class to attend the state safety department's driver improvement center located at the West Waterloo High School.

He is Prof Bert L Woodcock, director of safety education at Iowa State Teachers College in Cedar Falls, in charge of instruction at the center.

"After you get a glimpse of the attitudes some drivers have, you are almost afraid to go out on the highway," Woodcock said.

All drivers in the first adult class at the center were eligible for license suspension due to records of accidents or violations, according to the state safety department.

They were given a choice between license suspension and taking the 8-hour course of instruction at the center, according to Russell Brown, state safety education director.

Twenty drivers chose to take the course, but the licenses of two were automatically suspended for failure to appear at classes. The 18 who completed the course now are driving under probation.

Their driving records will be watched closely for some time and compared to a group of similar drivers who did not take the training. The purpose of the research is to find out the effectiveness of training methods used at the center.

A second class of 14 drivers began a one-week course Monday the 23 of April. The center also is being used to give driver training to Waterloo high schoo lstudents.

Woodcock said there were "valuable results" obtained in the first class "though I wouldn't claim we changed the attitudes of all the drivers who attended."

He said some of the drivers appeared to resent attending the classes at first and most of them defended the attitudes and driving actions that had brought them up for suspension.

"Most of them softened up as the course progressed, however, and many of them expressed their appreciation for the instruction," Woodcock said.

He said truck drivers and teen-agers in the class seemed to make the best progress toward changing their driving attitudes.

"At the end of the course the teen-agers were defending the idea of a driver improvement center. They were a great help in maintaining interest and order," Woodcock said.

He said members of the class tended to "pick on one another whenever one would bring up a subject for discussion."

Woodcock said the establishment of driver improvement centers throughout the state "as soon as possible is one of the most promising answers to our traffic safety problem."

Subjects being covered in the classes at the Waterloo center are defensive driving, psychology of accidents and mental and physical characteristics of drivers, and natural and man-made traffic laws.

The state safety department now is prepared to set up additional centers in Iowa as soon as Iowa State Teachers College places its stamp of approval to the course content.

The Waterloo center is the first of a projected 13 to 15 centers the safety department plans to establish in various population centers throughout Iowa.

May 31st Deadline for Price Support Loans

Producers have until May 31, 1956, to obtain price support loans and purchase agreements on 1955 corn.

Only corn raised on farms in compliance with their corn allotments is eligible for price support.

Producers intending to apply for loan on corn should make application at the Hancock County ASC office at Garner, Iowa, not later than May 15th, so sampling and loan papers can be completed by May 31, 1956. Purchase Agreements can be taken any time up to and including May 31st.

April Farm Prices Show Slight Rise Over March

Prices received by Iowa farmers increased generally for farm products during the month ending April 15 ,with the index of all farm prices increasing 14 points (7 percent), according to the Iowa Cooperative Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The mid-April index, at 220 percent of the 1910-1914 base, may be compared fith the March index of 206 percent and the April 1955 index of 238 percent.

A gain of 19 points in the meat animal index from March 15 to April 15 was mainly responsible for raising the livestock and livestock product index 14 points. The dairy product index rose 2 points on strengthening butterfat prices but the poultry and eggs index lost one point with slightly lower egg prices during the month. The price of hogs was up $1.80 per cwt. from a month earlier, beef cattle gained 30c per cwt. and the lamb price remained unchanged. Calves and sheep, each declined 20c per cwt. Butterfat registered a gain of 1c per pound but eggs showed a fractional drop in price from a month earlier.

At 231 percent of the 1910-1914 base, the crop index for April 15 was 18 points (8 percent) higher than in mid-March and almost up to the level of the 235 percent recorded in April 1955. All grains except oats, which remained unchanged, showed substantial increases for the month ending April 15. Led by soybeans with a gain of 26c per bushel, flaxseed advanced 19c, corn was up 12c, wheat increased 7c and barley and rye, each, added 5c per bushel during the month. Baled hay, however, was down 10c per ton.

Will Give Polio Shots To All Through Age 19

Sufficient polio vaccine will be produced in May and June to begin immunization of every Iowan through the age of 19, it was estimated today.

The Iowa State Department of Health estimated today that some 300,000 children already have begun the polio vaccination series in the state, and most of this group has received at least two shots.

An additional 600,000 individuals are in the age group of birth through 19 years. Beginning May 15, the age limits will be expanded from the present program of 3 through 12 years.

To stretch the supply of vaccine as far as possible in the coming two months, prior to beginning of the polio season, the State Health Department's polio advisory medical groups recommended that no third shots of vaccine be given this spring. Statistics show that a substantial degree of protection is provided by the first two shots of the series, although three shots still are required for maximum protection.

The advisory groups also have recommended that no first shots be given aften July 1, during the polio season, because of possibility of the provoking effect of the vaccination in a child who might already be infected with the polio virus.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis reinterated today that all third shots must be obtained from private physicians. The Foundation, which provided vaccine for two shots each for 120,000 children last year, is not providing vaccine for the third shot this year.

equipment and men scattered about—maybe where you least expect them. It might save you a lot of trouble to take it easy and be especially alert.

And speaking of being alert, an Englishman said of the American people that regardless of what they were doing . . . or where . . . they are alive, alert, curious, combative, and rarin' to go!

And H A Zacks said "the boy who cried wolf has probably grown up to be the wolf who cries 'Boy'."

"An electric light bulb is the only thing that can go out every night without looking dissipated!"

Each month one of the officers of the Press Columnists of Iowa has been writing a short article on "What's Best About Iowa". This month's article was contributed by Paul Dean of the Rock Valley Bee. We think it is well worth reading, so here it is:

"I've lived in almost all parts of our nation, in cities and towns, in slums and suburban sections, traveled a few hundred thousand miles as a guest of the great white father in Washington and wouldn't give an acre of Iowa loam for ten in Texas,twenty in Tennessee, or forty on Formosa.

Iowans are the richest people on earth and not because of their bank balance.

Pity the poor easterner who rises in the morning and takes a deep breath of carbon-monoxide or the westerner who breaths deep of the rich desert dust or seacoast smog. I like soil but not in my lungs.

My children are growing up in a section of the country almost untouched by race riots, commy meetings or labor disputes. They know such things exist, but from a distance. You needn't be bitten by a rattle snake to know it's not good for you.

They live with other Americans-Dutch, Irish, Norwegians, and Swedes - and never have heard terms like "Spik", "Kike", "Dago" or "Hunky".

They are being educated in good Iowa schools and can look forward to attending good Iowa colleges. A flick of the TV dial brings them within inches of anywhere in the world.

What's best about Iowa? Everything."

Most of us realize that our soil is just about the most important resource we have. Without it there could be no food, no livestock, no nothing. The following article was written by D A Williams, Administrator U S Soil Conservation Service:

"Something more than material benefit is impelling American landowners and operators to become conservation farmers or ranchers. Something more than the established fact that soil and water conservation increases farm buying power is motivating businessmen and countless others to support conservation work.

A farmer or rancher finds pleasure in the beauty of his conservation-treated fields, pastures, woodlands, and wildlife areas. And I feel that all the rest of us share his pleasure as we drive by or fly over his acres; or, when we're extra fortunate, have a chance to feel healthy soil or vigorous sod beneath our feet, or join the owner in harvesting a wildlife crop more abundant now than a few years ago.

But there is another important motivating force for conservation.

I belive it is the fast-growing realization in every community I know about that wise use and treatment of soil is a moral responsibility—that soil is a gift of the Creator, and that we, all of us, have a steward's responsibility for it.

Unless we pause to consider the spiritual man, we may be amazed by this spread of the soil stewardship concept in a time when we are troubled by temporary crop surpluses and when only one person in 25 actually tills the soil for a living.

Unless we accept as a fact that men do recognize the spiritual values of soil and water conservation, we are unable to explain fully the personal sacrifices thousands of them make to serve as members of the governing boards of nearly 2,700 locally-organized and managed Soil Conservation Districts. These men —and there are some women on these governing boards—already are conservation farmers or ranchers. They already are, personally, reaping the material benefits of greater net income, lower production costs, and greater efficiency in the use of labor and machinery that comes with conservation.

But these local leaders cannot, and do not, expect material gain from their services as district supervisors, commissioners, or directors. They receive no salaries. In some states, they are not even reimbursed in part of their expenses.

They surely must be motivated by the truth of the Psalmist's words: "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof . . ." They are heeding the Creator's command, when He placed man in the Garden of Eden, "to dress it and to keep it."

I believe that the technicians of the Soil Conservation Service have this same conception. How else could we explain the countless extra hours, beyond the call of duty, which they devote to soil and water conservation?

And, throughout the nation, ministers are providing the spiritual leadership of soil stewardship. Thousands of them each year take soil stewardship as the text of sermons, and provide a continuing leadership among their congregations for recognition that the earth truly is the Lord's.

To those of us who are soil conservationists by profession as well as by conviction, this expanding conception of soil stewardship is indeed heartening.

For we know that man and the soil remain inseparable, all technological and cultural advances notwithstanding.

Man still obtains his food and most of his clothing and shelter from the dust of the earth. And this "dust of the earth", when kept in the balance in which it was created, is a wonderful composite of minerals and myriads of living, decaying plants and animals. It is a storehouse of abundance for past, present, and future generations—a tremendous reservior to trap and store for us more of the water which at one time may come in raging floods and at another season become insufficient for the needs of thirsty crops, animals, cities, and industries, and man himself."

Cackles from the Coop

This morning (the 25th) the Garner High School Band played a concert for our student body. It was a very enjoyable performance, and in this writer's opinion. Garner has a band that they can be very proud of.

Every year for the past six or seven years, our band has been criticized for not having white shoes on everyone's feet. To some judges a seemingly little thing like this could make the difference between a I rating and a II rating.

Incidentally, if you band members have any outgrown white shoes or white shirts (especially girls), or need white shoes or a white shirt, tell Mr Whitford and he will try to get the haves together with the have_nots. It's a bad deal to buy a pair of shoes or a shirt for band, wear them two or three times and find that they are outgrown (bad for the pocketbook, we mean). Consequently Mr Whitford and the music mothers are trying to do something about it.

Don't forget contest here the 4th and 5th. There will be good music for everyone who cares to listen. Our mixed chorus sings Friday at 6:45 at the Evangelical and Reformed Church. The girls glee club sings there also at 9:30 p m. The band also performs Friday night. They play at the High School gym at 8:20 p. m.

Jokes

A preacher dialed long distance to put a call through to a clergyman in a far_away town.

Inquired the operator: "Do you wish to place a person to person call?"

"No", he answered, "Make it Parson to Parson."

Butch: "Do you railroad steak?"
Dave: "What is it?"
Butch: "Chew, chew, chew, chew."

Bev: "Is your toaster a pop_up?"
Pete: "No, it's an Indian model —sends up smoke signals."

Editorial of the Week

SKIP DAY

On Friday the 20th, the seniors rose about 4:00 a. m. to set out for Minneapolis. We met at the school house at 5:00 a. m. We rode in a chartered bus which took us to and from Minneapolis and around the city.

We arrived there at 9:30. We had planned on getting there at 9:00 so we had to cut our tours short. We went first to the museum, after which we toured the Cowell Press which was very interesting. Last, we toured the Taystee Bread Bakery. By the time we finished at the bakery, it was dinner time.

In the afternoon we were free to do what we wanted. We met again at Cinerama at 8:00. Most of us enjoyed Cinerama very much. After that we started on our trip home. We were all so tired we could hardly stay awake.

We arrived in Klemme at 3:00 a. m., but that was not the end of our big day. Gracka invited all of us to her house for breakfast, if you can call it breakfast at 3:00 in the morning. Half asleep and half awake we all enjoyed a very good breakfast. At 4:30 we left for home.

Question of the Week

What are you going to do after the Junior-Senior Banquet?

Lois H: I would like to go the Surf and if not there, than maybe to a movie.
Anita K: Probably go to the Surf or to a show.

Juniors and Seniors Have Fun at Prom

If you were a junior or senior in Hancock County on Tuesday, April 24th, you would have probably been asked the question, "Did you have fun last night??" And if you had attended the Hancock County Junior - Senior Prom at the Surf Ballroom the night before, your answer would have probably been a sleepily uttered "yes".

For the last three years, the Britt Lions Club has sponsored a prom for the juniors and seniors of Hancock County. It is semi_formal, but it seems that girls that own formals, wear them, making it one of the most colorful events of the season.

The dancing starts at 8:00 p m and lasts until 12:00. When the dance is approximately half over all the senior girls and their escorts line up around the edge of the dance floor for the "Grand March". They walk around the floor, while the orchestra plays some appropriate music. During this walk, judges are chosing 7 girls to be candidates from which one will be crowned queen. We were very honored to have Carol Bridges chosen as one of the candidates. We felt especially elated since the other six girls were all from Britt.

The judges were introduced to show us there was no partiality, they being from Clear Lake and Mason City. The candidates were then interviewed and to make the suspense a little worse, we were told the queen wouldn't be announced until after intermission.

When the big moment finally arrived, Betty Kumsher was crowned queen and Bill Trusedale from Hayfield was crowned king. The king was chosen secretly beforehand by the superintendents of the schools in Hancock County.

The dancing then resumed until 12:00.

Everyone had a good time, for if they didn't, it was there own fault.

A bouquet of thanks to the Britt Lions for this Prom. It was very highly enjoyed in the past and we hope you continue it annually.

Learning how to diagram complex sentences is what we are doing in English now. We have found these types of sentences a little more difficult than the simple sentences that we have been diagraming.

FALLS

Robert Perry, a construction worker of Mingo, was killed recently when he fell from the second story of a gymnasium in Baxter, while helping remodel. Death resulted from a fractured skull.

Chan Loo

I suppose you wonder what this article is about when you read the heading "Chan Loo". Well, we had an assembly program in which he saw Chan Loo perform some magical tricks. He was very interesting and, to be sure everyone would listen, he started the program off with a bang. He shot a cap gun.

As he went on with the program, he wanted some boys and girls to help him. This was quite interesting, especially when they were real small. What did he do. To our surprise he could cluck like a hen and an egg would appear in a bag with which he was holding. The louder he clucked, the bigger the egg. That was only one of many tricks which the magician, Chan Loo, performed for us at 11:00 a. m. until 12 noon this morning. He ended the program with a bang also. This time the bang was firecrackers.

Everyone enjoyed the program very much.

Boys' Sports

The finals in our intramural basketball games were won by Keith Nuehring's team Don Kramer's team was behind until the middle of the the second quarer. Kramer's team then started taking the lead and was ahead thirteen points with four minutes and fifty six seconds left when Kramer fouled out. The team then began to fade and Nuehring's team won by two points—65_63.

Kramer held high score with 41 points. Nuehring was high on his team with 35 points.

Nuehring's team consisted of Bob Ausborn, Ronald Beier, John Abele, Craig Larson, and Carroll Priebe.

Kramer's team consisted of Maynard Weisbrod, Chuck Bacon, Roger Meints, Marvin Michelson,, Elmer Howard and Jon Watne.

Our officials were Coach Westberg and assistant coach Francis Johnson.

The captains of the other teams were Denny Haefner, Martin Brinkman, Roger Bachman and Bob Larson.

All in all they were good games and everyone had fun.

Avery Twin Lake Hustlers

The Avery Twin Lake Hustlers met at the home of Janet and Jerry Lange on April 9. There were 17 members, leaders, and Ed Bruns, Youth Assistant, present. The leaders went over the tractor maintenance books to make sure all the boys understood them so they could drive the tractor and help fix it.

The club gave $3 to International Farm Youth Exchange.

Darryl Nuehring gave a demonstration on "How to Control Gophers" which was very interesting. Meeting was adjourned and lunch was served.

Woman Performs A Most Difficult Balancing Act

The most difficult balancing act of all is performed every day by guess who? The average American housewife. She has to balance the family food budget, and that's the neatest trick of all. Fortunately she knows that milk is the best budget stretcher, supplying ½ of the family food needs for only ¼ the cost. A clean, clear, appetizing glass bottle of milk appeals to all the family, youngsters and oldsters alike—especially when it is delivered fresh by the milkman from —

Garner, Iowa
April 9, 1956

The Hancock County, Iowa, Board of Supervisors met in session on above captioned date pursuant to adjournment with C. D. Daniels, S. A. Barber and C. A. Bird present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and apprived as read.

On motion and second, the following are hereby approved: 1st Quarterly report of Lynn Forshee, Justice of the Peace of Britt Township; Tax Suspension Notice on Case No. 41-617; Resolution of Concurrence concerning Black-Top Letting held at Ames, Iowa.

Supervisor Daniels is hereby appointed a committee to investigate and cause repairs in D.D. No. S Main and D.D. No. 142 Lat. No. 4.

This being the 9th day of April, 1956, a date heretofore set for an adjourned hearing on D.D. No. 1 & 2 Lat. No. 21, petitioned for by J. M. Griggs, et al, the hour for said hearing having arrived, and the Board being fully advised, said hearing was held as scheduled.

The report of the appraisers, heretofore appointed to fix and determine the damages to which each claimant is entitled, was read.

After thorough discussion by objectors and proponents present, the Board deemed it advisable to approve and accept said report.

A date of letting is set at the hour of 1:30 P.M. on the 7th day of May, 1956, at the Courthouse in Garner, Iowa, and the County Auditor is hereby directed to cause notice of such letting to be published in the Britt News-Tribune, a newspaper of general circulation published at Britt, Iowa, which advertisement for bids shall request bids for labor and material for said construction, time of commencement and completion, approximate amount and kind of work to be done and the Board reserves the right to waive technicalities and to reject any or all bids, all in accordance with Chapter 455, Code of Iowa, 1954.

The foregoing was offered and read by Supervisor Bird who moved its adoption, was seconded by Supervisor Barber, whereupon the Ohairman, Clinton D. Daniels, placed the motion of its adoption and upon roll call the vote thereon was all ayes. Nays, none. Whereupon the Chairman declared the motion duly adopted:

This being the 9th day of April, 1956, a date heretofore set for a letting for gravel stockpiling in Hancock County, the hour for said letting having arrived, the proof of publication being on file and the Board being fully advised, said letting was held as scheduled.

The Chairman of the Board proceeded to open all bids on file and after duly considering all bids on file, the Board finds that due to technicalities the awarding of contract will be deferred until Monday, April 16th, 1956.

The bids of Peters Construction Company of Des Moines, Iowa, and Hogan and Faber of Rock Rapids, Iowa, are hereby rejected.

The bids of Sankey Sand and Gravel of Britt, Iowa, L. R. Falk Construction Company of St. Ansgar, Iowa, and Sylvan C. Oleson Construction Company of Forest City, Iowa, are deferred until Monday, April 16th, 1956.

Be It Resolved that the claims herein set out be allowed in amounts designated thereon and the County Auditor be and he is hereby authorized and directed to draw warrants in payment thereon of the several funds of Hancock County, Iowa, in amounts set opposite each claim.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

April 1 feeder cattle reports from the 14 main cattle feeding states indicate that supplies of fed cattle will be plentiful in the immediate future. But Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, expects marketings to be down enough by late spring to bring a stronger fat cattle market then.

On April 1, Kutish says that farmers were planning to market 10 percent more fat cattle during April than a year ago. Planned marketings for May and June, however, were down 2 percent and 19 percent respectively from a year earlier.

To Kutish, this adds up to a pretty decent late spring and summer market for fed cattle. He says the late fall market will depend upon how many of the cattle which were roughed through the winter are put on feed, and how soon. It also will be influenced by how many of the increased inventory of older steers which we had on hand January 1 are put on short feed in late summer or early fall.

The grain markets, which have been marked by relatively stable prices the last few months, have taken over the spotlight as the star performers in the farm price picture. Kutish cites two forces behind the present price push. One is the reduced supply of free corn compared with last year. The other is the higher price supports recently announced by President Eisenhower.

The President's announcement that prices will be supported for corn raised on farms which do not comply with their corn allotment, in effect, puts a floor under the corn market this fall. It means higher prices for corn that would otherwise prevail this fall; and it will tend to narrow feeding ratios during the coming winter.

This will raise the feeding costs for dairymen, cattle feeders and hog raisers. In turn this should mean somewhat smaller livestock production next winter than otherwise would be the case. Farmers will react to the less favorable feeding ratios by cutting back livestock production.

Soil Conservation District to Observe Tenth Anniversary

Hancock County Soil Conservation District will observe their tenth anniversary at a dinner meeting on June 12. The District Commissioners decided this at their regular meeting, held on Wednesday afternoon at the Soil Conservation Service office in Garner. An election of a district commissioner will also be held as part of the meeting.

The commissioners also approved three requests for assistance, four new farm conservation plans, and one replan.

The Hancock District was granted their certificate of organization on May 10, 1946 by the office of the Secretary of the State of Iowa. Since no annual meetings of the district have been held to date, the district commissioners decided a program for observing the tenth anniversary was in order. The meeting will be for district cooperators and their families, and anyone interested in the program of the Soil Conservation District. The meeting is scheduled to be held during Soil Conservation Week, and a special speaker is being contacted. Further announcement will be made as plans develop.

The term of Ben Riemer, who has served as a district commissioner since the district was organized in 1946, expires this year. Nominating committee appointed by the commissioners were John Smith, Garfield Twp.; Clifford Eliason, Twin Lake Twp.; and Howard Kester, Ellington Twp. This committee will secure nominations and circulate petitions for the commissioners election. Any land owner or operator is eligible to be a district commissioner. Nomination petitions may be secured at the district office in Garner.

Requests for assistance from Irvin Brandt (Bingham Twp.), Peter DeWaard (Magor) and Wayne Whitney, (Britt Twp.), were approved by the commissioners. New plans approved were R W Buckley (Liberty Twp.), Harry Fosse (Ellington Twp.), Lee Hammon (Garfield Twp.), and Clark Lackore (Ell Twp.). The replan approved was for Howard Kester in Ellington Twp. Howard recently purchased an additional 60 acres, which he desired to be included with his 120 acres in his conservation plan.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Bouquet of the week goes to the Klemme Music Mothers for the efficient way in which they handled the feeding of the large group of musicians, directors and judges who were on hand for the state music contest held last Friday and Saturday.

In addition to taking care of the king-sized appetites of the high school musicians they had a separate lunch room for the directors and judges. They drew praise from the judges, for they saw to it that they had coffee and donuts or rolls both morning and afternoon. This latter touch took very little effort on the the part of the Music Mothers when compared to the good feeling for Klemme it left with the judges.

The Music Mothers have asked that we convey thanks to everyone who in any way helped in making their task easier.

Our town may not be the biggest but for its size, we would say that it has a pretty fair to middlin' building boom going. Four new houses are underway as of now and are being built by Emil Pringnitz, Henry Ludeke, W C Keraus, and Glen "Sam" Terhufen.

It seems that every summer sees the addition of a couple of houses in our town, but this year, with four going up at the same time, must set some kind of a record.

What we assumed to be a weather balloon was sighted over Klemme along about mid-morning, Tuesday. Just how big or how high the balloon was would be hard to say. It didn't look to big . . . even with a pair of 7½ power field glasses . . . but it was visible for quite some time and seemed to be travelling slowly in a southwesterly direction.

My Neighbors

"That's odd. I get that feeling myself—that the income tax boys are choking me to death!"

Saturday, May 12th, will be the opening day of the fishing season, so we suppose that Clear Lake will be well covered with boats. We also imagine that quite a few of the local nimrods will be out trying their luck. Garland Brinkman says he has some new tackle that is just crying to be tried out and Jack Etchen has a new outboard motor that needs use. Of course they aren't interested in going except for the fact they want to try out their new equipment. Ha!

We don't have any new fishing equipment, but oue of these days when the weather warms up and we can lay on the river

Gov. Hoegh Gets First Poppy

Governor Leo A Hoegh was presented with the first American Legion Auxiliary Memorial Poppy of 1956 in Iowa by Mrs Walter H Glynn (right) Department President of West Des Moines Iowa, in a recent informal ceremony at the State House. The current volume of the organization's history, "The American Legion Auxiliary", was also given the Governor.

Witnessing the ceremony is Mrs R B Monk of Des Moines, Department Executive Secretary-Treasurer of the American Legion Auxiliary, who is director of the Iowa Department Poppy Industry.

The crepe paper flowers are made for the American Legion Auxiliary by veterans in the Des Moines Veterans hospital, the Clinton Domiciliary and the Iowa Soldiers Home, Marshalltown. The men receive a small fee for each completed flower, and thus not only benefit from the therapy derived from the crafts, but often are able to assist with the support of their families.

The poppies will be distributed to the public on annual Poppy Day, May 26. By wearing the memorial flowers the public can again pay tribute to our American war dead and the funds derived from the Poppy Day Distribution will be used by the American Legion Auxiliary in their extensive rehabilitation program for the needy veteran and his family.

Klemme Band and Girls Glee Club Get I Ratings

In the Class "D" music contest for large groups held here last Friday and Saturday, Klemme again made a good showing. Their only two top ratings to the 16 Division I and 14 Disivion II ratings brought home from the contest at Plymouth for soloists and small groups, and you have a very creditable musical year for the Klemme Community School musical department. Band instructor Whitford and vocal instructor Mrs Selma Griesy, as well as their students, deserve commendation.

Supt E F Kirkpatrick, contest manager, announced the following Division I winners for the contest:

Concert Band: Klemme, Alexander, Dumont, Goldfield, Renwick, Sheffield, Luverne, Rake, and Vernon Consolidated.

Girls Glee Club: Klemme, Rockwell, Dumont, Rake, Goldfield, Alexander, Sheffield, Rudd and Thornton.

Mixed Chorus: Rudd, Alexander, Hansell, Joice, Marble Rock, Goldfield, Sheffield, Hayfield, Luverne and Rowan.

Principal R C Andreae, who has held that position in the local school for the past five years and has taught here since the fall of 1947, has resigned to accept a similar position at Shell Rock. Neither of the vacancies created by the resignation of Mrs Andreae or Mrs Proper have as yet been filled, but Wayne W Whitney of Renwick has been hired to fill the position that has been held by Mr Andreae. He is a brother of Charles S Whitney, Hancock County Superintendent of Schools.

LaVohn Josten, a member of the North Ell Tip Toppers and Richard Eliason, a member of the Twin Lake Indians 4 H Club, were selected to attend State 4 H Health Camp. The camp will be held July 30 to August 4 at the state 4 H camping center. The purpose of the camp is to further train 4 H boys and girls in health activities which they can take back to their county and communities to strengthen their health programs.

These 4 H members will receive scholarships to cover camp expenses.

bank and relax while we fish, we'll give it a try.

The recent rains have really made a difference in the farm picture. Oats are up and are nice and green, pastures are beginning to look good, and farmers are busily engaged in getting corn ground ready for seed. In fact, some corn has already been planted. We hope that there will be plenty of moisture to make a good crop this year. We would even rather see too much rain than not enough. At least with too much there is feed for stock instead of parched brown pastures and fields.

SCHOOL REORGANIZATION

School reorganizations resulting in a reduction of 55 school districts in the last six months of 1955, and 23 reorganizations in the first three months of this year which will further reduct the number of districts in the state by 82, was reported this week by the department of public instruction.

A review of school reorganization in the state indicates there will be a total of 137 fewer districts by July 1, 1956 when the new reorganizations become effective.

Prior to about a year ago, the report said, only 10 percent of the new districts formed included as many as 500-600 pupils or more in grades one through 12. Last year about 33 percent were of this size. During the last six months of 1955 the percentage of such districts rose to 50 percent. Since January, the number is over 65 percent.

The department has held that at least 500-600 pupils in grades 1 through 12 are necessary in an administrative unit if children are to have the benefit of a broad program of education at a reasonable per-pupil cost to local citizens.

INCOME TAX

The state tax commission reports that 11,883 Iowans reported a net taxable income of $10,000 or more in returns they filed with the state in the fiscal year ended last June 30.

Commission figures show that a total of 445,313 Iowans filed pay returns with the state and they paid a total of $20,828,302 in state income taxes in the period.

Few Iowans make real big salaries apparently. For the report lists only nine who reported a net taxable income of $75,000 or more, and of this total only one was a single person. One Iowan listed a net taxable income of $100,000 to $125,000.

In a further breakdown of individual incomes, the tax commission reports indicated 58 taxpayers in the state had a net taxable income of from $50,000 to $75,000 the last year.

FOR HISTORY

The Iowa chapter of the American Institute of Architects has started a plan to list the buildings and houses in Iowa which should be preserved because of architectural and historical value.

Examples of buildings which the committee would like to see preserved are the Hubbell home in Des Moines the home of 106-year old Caleb Clark, first settler in Winterset, and the Lennon Mill at Panora.

RAIL RATES UP

Passenger fares on railroads in Iowa and in seven other midwest states advanced five precent this month.

The hikes in fares, approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, are expected to increase charges about $27-million a year.

Just a week before, the ICC had approved a seven-and-a-half percent hike in Pullman fares throughout the nation.

The ICC said that John Ropes of the Iowa Commerce Commission, one of two state commissioners who sat in on the hearings on the increased passenger fares, agreed with the ICC findings for increased fares.

HEADS DIVISION

Alvin G Hudson of Des Moines has been named director of the state safety responsibility and drivers' license division of the department of public safety. Hudson succeeds Milo Chalfont who resigned to join the faculty of Michigan State University.

Hudson, 35, has been assistant director of the division since last August.

GETS JOB

Robert Moore of New Hartford is the new secretary of the Iowa Association of Soil Conservation District Commissioners succeeding Allen R Schroeder of Des Moines.

The association also appointed Hubert Beasley of Garden Grove as managing editor of the group's publication, Iowa Soil and Water magazine.

Schroeder, who was managing editor of the magazine, has started to edit his own publication, America's Soil and Water.

DROUGHT SURVEY

A state group is surveying the drought situation in 27 Iowa counties and is expected to complete its work this weekend.

The survey of southern and southwestern Iowa counties is to determine whether residents want their counties designated as drought disaster areas.

An effort is also being made to determine what percentage of the farmers lack feed or credit for feed to maintain their breeding herds of dairy and beef cattle and how many farmers in need of feed have sealed corn on their farms.

Committee members are Dwight Meyer, State ASC chairman; Clyde Spry, state secretary of agriculture; Kermit Hansen, state FHA director; Dean Floyd Andre of Iowa State College, and N P Black, state banking superintendent.

COUNTRYMAN AIDE

Atty. Gen. Dayton Countryman has named Raphael R Dvorak of Tama County as first assistant attorney general succeeding Ken Emery of Des Moines who has resigned effective June 1.

Emory, a longtime employee in the justice department, will return to the fulltime practice of law. Dvorak has been on the attorney general's staff for the last four years.

CLASSROOM USAGE

Iowa's three state institutions of higher learning make an average daytime utilization of their classroom space ranging from 50.7 percent to 75 percent, the state board of regents reports.

The board made its report to the state tax study committee which is concerned wih a request for more funds from the institutions, and an expected whopping increase in enrollment in the next few years.

POLIO SHOTS

About 36 percent of Iowa's population will be eligible to receive polio vaccine May 15, the state department of health reports.

All Iowa children under the age of 20 are now eligible for the injections. There are about 905,000 in this age group which, with about 65,000 pregnant women eligible for the shots, makes a total of nearly 970,000 who may receive the vaccine.

The state health department reports that third injections of the vaccine should be delayed until all children under 20 and pregnant women have had a chance to receive at least one injection.

MORE ROAD PROBLEMS

Secondary and primary road surfacing problems are increasing with school district reorganization in Iowa, the highway commission reports.

Commission Chairman Russell Lundy said "consolidation of school districts is increasing the highway problems." He said requests for resurfaced roads because of school district reorganization "are becoming more frequent." He said the commission will make every effort to facilitate school bus transportation.

Chief Engineer John Butter said the problem affects secondary as well as primary road systems. County boards of supervisors, he said, are getting more requests for improved road surfacing as the result of such reorganizations.

Farmers Urged To Figure Allotment Compliance Value

Formers of Hancock County were urged this week by Alfred V Josten, office manager of the Hancock County ASC, to spend a few minutes doing some figuring and some serious thinking on the question of whether they should comply with their corn acreage allotments this year.

He declared that a little arithmetic and due consideration of individual problems will give the average farmer the "right answer." This method, he said, will probably point to compliance as the better course in a majority of cases, particularly on farms where commercial fertilizer is used for corn and where soybeans can be raised safely.

The suggested arithmetic involves known figures, such as the farmer's own corn acreage allotment, his available acreage for intertilled crops such as corn and soybeans under a sound rotation plan, his average yields per acre, and the price support rates in affect for 1956.

Manager Josten cited the following computations as an example of the figuring he believes every farmer should do before deciding on compliance or non-compliance with his corn allotment. He emphasized that no allowance for fertilizer costs has been made in the example.

Farm used in example — 160 acres, with two 40-acre fields available for corn and soybeans in 1956 and with two other 40-acre fields in small grain, hay and pasture. The farm has a 40-acre corn allotment. Yields per acre used here are the five-year (1950-54) Iowa averages but the individual farmer may substitute actual figures for his farm. The NATIONAL average support rate for corn produced in compliance with allotments is $1.50 per bushel, while the rate for "non-compliance corn" is $1.25. The National average support rate for soybeans is $2.15 per bushel.

The first computation is based on compliance with the farm's corn acreage allotment. The other computations are for non-compliance operations.

40 acres of corn producing 52.3 bushels per acre equals yields of 2,092 bushels, value at support rate of $1.50 per bushel is $3,138.00. 40 acres of soybeans producing 23.2 bushels per acre equals 928 bushels; value at sup-port rate of $2.15 per bushel is $1,995.20. Total estimated value of corn and soybeans, with farm in compliance with corn allotment, $5,143.20.

50 acres of corn at 52.3 bushels per acre equals production of 2,615 bushels having a value of $3,268.75 at the non-compliance support rate of $1.25 per bushel. 30 acres of soybeans at 23.2 bushels per acre equals production of 696 bushels having a value of $1,496.40 at the rate of $2.15 per bushel. Total estimated value of corn and soybeans, $4,765.15.

60 acres of corn at 52.3 bushels per acre equals production of 3,138 bushels having a value of $3,922.50 at $1.25 per bushel. 20 acres of soybeans at 23.2 bushels per acre equals production of 464 bushels having a value of $997.60. Total estimate dvalue of corn and soybeans, $4,920.10.

80 acres of corn (no soybeans at 52.3 bushels per acre equals production of 4,184 bushels. Total estimated value of this "all-corn plan" at $1.25 per bushel is $5,230.00.

ASC Manager Josten said that merely multiplying yields by support rates may not give the complete answer in every case. To get that he said farmers must carefully consider such factors as his finances, fixed expenses, fertilizer costs, the greater soil-depleting qualities of corn, proper land use, and the established rotation system. Consideration should be given also to the fact that soybeans will stand dry weather better than corn and that planting a high percentage of land to corn is like "putting all your eggs in one basket."

The ASC official pointed out, too, that farmers who are thinking of increasing their corn acreage because of the support offered for non-compliance corn should remember that loans can be made only on well-stored grain. In some cases, he said, this would call for additional on-farm storage facilities.

STOVE EXPLODES

A young Madison county farmer and his wife were burned, the latter critically, and their house destroyed by flames, when a cook stove exploded. The stove had been fueled with kerosene-soaked cobs. Both Mr and Mrs Eldon Burns were hospitalized.

Senior Class News

Both subordination and parallelism used as grammatical terms have been applied by us in correcting errors in sentences in English class. Some characteristics of parallelism occur when similiar or contrasted ideas are put in the same grammatical construction.

In bookkeeping class we are studying about partnerships. The only difference from that of the individual bookkeeping system occurs in the proprietorship section of the balance sheet and in the distribution of the net profit.

The geometry class is still going around in circles. Certain embellishments such as "An angle formed by two intersecting chords is measured by half the sum of the intersecting arcs" are part of our study.

Gold, silver and copper are now being studied by the chemistry class.

In history we have been studying the period between the world wars. We are studying about the great depression and how Franklin Roosevelt helped the people out of the depression.

The business class today took up the subject of income tax and social security. We are also figuring out income tax for individuals.

Cackles from the Coop

If you don't already know, Carol Birdges is Klemme's candidates for North Iowa Band Queen at the Band Festival at Mason City on Tuesday June 12. Her election by the band was announced at the concert on May 1 by the president of the Music Mothers, Mrs Renner. Good luck, Carol.

Oh yes, that reminds me, the concert! We will be able to tell you better how it was when we find out what we get in the contest May 4 and 5.

On May 8th and for several weeks after that, people along main street will hear the thump, thump of marching feet (in unison we hope) because the band will be practicing for the festival. (Oh! my aching dogs)

Gossip Around KHS

We heard that Richard M took Marcella Nuehring to the sophomore class party Wednesday night.

It seems that Jeanne and Ray haven't been getting along too well lately. What's the matter kids?

Say Fred, where did you and Marvalyn C disappared to so rapidly after the banquet Saturday night?

Ione and Gordon, Gracka and Dean, Beverly and Pete, and Ginger and Mart, were all seen at the Surf after the banquet Saturday night. I guess they all survived.

Freshman News

We've been reviewing for a test today in science on unit seven, "Making Things Move". It's all about different types of machines and what handicaps they have to overcome.

The math class has been working with problems concerning life insurance. They are given several types of insurance problems in which they find the annual premium.

We concluded our study of complex sentences by taking a short quiz. We will now put to use our gained knowledge of grammar by applying it to theme writing.

Several more blouses have been completed by the girls. Those who most recently finished theirs are Judy Gilpin, Dorothy Roul, Margaret Pringnitz, Myrna Barz, Audrey Lemke, Colette Lau, and Ginger Kudje spent some time last week working on black gathered skirts that they wore at the banquet. Joyce Theimann made a light green sleeveless blouse to wear to the banquet also.

Some of the fresmen have finished their main project in manual arts so they are doing some smaller projects to keep them busy the rest of the school year.

Junior-Senior Banquet Highlights Activities

"Quiet, there are seniors around," were the words spoken by the juniors in regard to the Junior-Senior Banquet for weeks. Finally on April 28th all their hush, hush planning was revealed to us in a beautiful banquet.

Their theme was "Cherries in the Snow", very appropriate for the weather that weekend. But in spite of a little rain and snow outside, it was definitely Spring in the Klemme High School gym. The entire gym was transformed into a garden.

The bleachers had changed into snow drifts dotted with pink blossoms and there also, formed by pink blossoms, lay our motto "To the Valiant Heart Naught is Impossible". In one corner a waterfall trickled over stones giving the scene a serene peacefulness. A white picket fence entwined with flowering vines enclosed a section of the garden where lawn chairs and tables were placed. At one end of this garden was a wishing well from which flowed punch for our enjoyment. Over the entire scene was heard the melodious song of birds which inhabited cages situated in the garden. Vines sprouted from the stage and grew up the curtains, and all around grew cherrie trees bursting with pink blossoms. Once in awhile a blossom would fall and drift softly to the snow beneath.

As we sat in this setting, eating a delicious meal prepared by the mothers of the junior class and listening to the speeches, our will, history, and prophecy, all the memories of our school days returned and suddenly came to us the realization that soon our school days would no longer be a part of all this. We were about to part and go our separate ways. A bouquet of thanks to the junior class and Mrs Andreae for a marvelous banquet. You have given us another wonderful memory to place in our files and cherish as our school days.

Junior Class News

English: How difficult can a complex sentence be? A one page test was thrown at us and we almost missed the catch. In other words, we found it very difficult.

We have been going over our geography thoroughly the last day or so, reviewing for our nine weeks test. Most of the material that we have been reviewing covers what we have done this last semester.

The typing class has been doing some complicated problems lately to keep them out of mischief. Ten minute writings have also been taking up a good share of our class.

Some of the juniors have been very busy the last few weeks in shop trying to get their projects finished before summer vacation.

Because the seniors will leave in the middle of May, the final exam speeches will begin next week and will continue for several days. This may readily be seen as the exam speeches. The time limit is 20-30 mintues. We may choose any type speech and any topic. However, Miss Beardsley has told us to be well prepared orally, as we will be moved out of our regular classroom to parts unknown to us.

Question of the Week

If you were out planting your garden or raking your lawn and you found a Squama, where would you put it?

Bob L: I'd give it to Herb, so he could give it to Coleen for a present.
Carroll P: I'd plant it in a vase and grow it.
John A: I would put it in a hole and bury it.
Jerry J: I will not be planting a garden or raking a lawn so I will not have to worry about it.
Keith N: I'd run the mower over it and if that didn't kill it I'd shoot it.
Roger J: I'd quick step on it, then I'd give it to Nuehring.
Shirley: I'd let it grow to find out what color flowers it had.
Denny: I'd give it to Larry Wessels to put in his motor so he would have more power.
Marvin: I would give it to Dave to play with.
Larry: I would leave it lay.
Roger B: I would take it to school and leave it for remembrance.
A squama is a scale or scalelike part. A squama of a bone.

Jokes

Mrs Anddreae: "Maynard, will you take this sentence? Let the cow be taken to the pasture," What mood?"
Maynard: "The cow."

Larry: "I just saw two cops chase a holdup man through a drug store."
Don: "Did they catch him?"
Larry: "No, He stepped on a set of scales and got a weigh."

Mr Chadwick: "Didn't I tell you to notice when the glue boiled over?"
Marvin: (in shop class) "I did and it was a quarter past ten."

State Safety Department Releases Report On Traffic Accident Fatalities

Young drivers, fast drivers and drinking drivers appeared today as the major contributors to Iowa's record increase in traffic deaths during the first three months of this year.

In the summary of the 153 traffic deaths in the state during January, February, and March State Safety Commissioner Clinton Moyer pointed out that:

"The number of teen-age drivers involved in fatal accidents jumped from 12 during the same period last year to 30 this year.

Fatal accidents occurring at speeds of 70 miles an hour or more increased from eight last year to 29 this year. Fatal accidents at speeds from 60 to 70 miles an hour were up from nine to 24.

The number of drinking drivers involved in fatal accidents doubled from 20 last year to 40 during the first three months of this year, according to the report.

The highest previous death toll for the first quarter of a year in Iowa was 130 killed in 1951. The final death toll for that year was 609.

Commenting on the report, Moyer pointed out that a "comparative small percentage of our drivers are pushing us toward a shameful record in highway tragedy."

He said every facility of the safety department has been coordinated into a drive against this group. Strict driver improvement, licensing and selective enforcement programs are in operation he said.

A reduction in traffic deaths in April, the first this year in comparison with last year, may be the first sign that results are being obtained, he said.

"Every driver must recognize that he is individually involved in this fight for greater safety on our streets and highways," Moyer said. "Every driver must make his contribution now if we are to avoid a stunning tragedy during the summer months."

The department expects traffic volume in Iowa to hit a new record during June, July and August.

Moyer made a special appeal to educators and parents to help the safety department increase driver education in schools throughout the state.

He said the three months summary of the record traffic fatality rate "is like a report card telling us that the irresponsible untrained driver is a dangerous failure."

Directors Approve Farm Bureau Women's Get-Out-The-Vote Plans

Mrs Milo Pitkin, County Form Bureau Women's Chairman will heading the Get-Out-The-Vote Campaign for the June primaries here in Hancock County.

The general plan to be carried out by the Township vice chairmen which recently met at the home of Mrs Milo Pitkin included the following: (1) a township telephone campaign whereby the township vice chairman will select someone in each school district to call every eligible voter the morning of June 4, and urge them to go to the polls. (2) Invite clergymen to announce in church on Sunday, June 3, the responsibility each citizen has in going to the polls and voting. (3) To cooperate with the IFBF in the following awards: Sponsor contest for youth (18 years or under) in which they complete the following statement in 25 words or less: "I believe my parents should vote because . . ."

The purpose of this contest will be to select the best statement by a girl and boy from each county. The county boy's and girl's winning statements to be mailed to the IFBF by May 15 where they will be judged by Farm Bureau districts.

The winning girl and boy from each of the nine Farm Bureau districts will be brought to Des Moines to visit the 1957 legislature, Governor's office, Department of Public Instruction, and other points of interest with transportation and neon banquet to be paid by the IFBF.

$50 to the county in each of the nine Farm Bureau districts who has the highest percentage of its eligible voters participating in the primary election.

(This money to be used to bring to the 57th General Assembly a group of at least ten workers who were active in setting up the mechanics in Getting-Out-The-Vote.

Farm Bureau Women feel that anything that will stimulate more people to vote and to want to know more about candidates and issues would be worth trying. The act of voting, and voting intelligently, is the most important single responsibility of American citizenship. The surest way we have of improving the character and usefulness of our government, on all levels, is for every citizen to inform himself on the issues and candidates and vote on the basis of what's best for the community, state and union.

Grandmothers' Club Hears Meeting Report

Klemme Grandmothers' Club met at the home of Mrs Marie Wille, Tuesday afternoon, May 8th. There were 22 members present.

After the opening excercises, Mrs Thada read two timely stories about "Mother."

A poem by Louise Etchen, "Beautiful Roses (in my garden grow)" was read by Mrs Elder.

A toast to secretaries was given in which this secretary discovers there seems to be "no happy medium"; either "too much" or "too little"—no matter what. But finds their advice—"Smile-Smile-Smile".

Mrs Naska Bock gave a comprehensive report of the all-day conference April 30th at Mason City, Klemme and Minneapolis Grandmothers' Clubs being guests of the Mason City Grandmothers' Club.

A plant exchange of various flowers proved to be most interesting and enjoyable.

A special feature of the meeting was the showing of a group of colored slides from Lehman's, Faribault, Minnesota, of their famous chrysanthemums.

After the program and business portion of the meeting, there are always a game or two for a period of relaxation and enjoyment.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostesses who were Mrs George Schoenwetter, Mrs John Albers and Mrs Carl Wille.

The next regular meeting will be at the home of Mrs Ralph Elder in September. There will be picnic sometime during the summer.

Our Children—

Growing Up in the Family

The greatest share of a child's really significant experiences occurs in his family—the conflicts—the happiness—the crises and the give and take. In the home and among family members—this is where the youngtser learns to cope with these varied situations.

"You don't scream at or spank your rose bush just because it doesn't bloom on the same day as your neighbor's. Think of your youngsters in this same vein. They, like rose bushes, are constantly growing—each of them unique and requiring different types of treatment and varied methods of handling."

These were the words of Edward V Pope, extension specialist in child development and parent education for the Department of Agriculture, as he spoke to over 600 homemakers at the Family Life Conference, held early this month.

Grow at Own Speed

Pope reminded mothers that one of the most vital ingredients they can contribute toward the production of emotionally stable personalities for their young ones is to let each youngster grow at his own speed.

You might take a little self-inventory about now. Ask yourself if you relax as a parent—if you let your youngsters learn pretty much at their own speed. This is an opportune time for you to do a little self-anlaysis, for National Baby Week is having its twenty-fourth anniversary this year from April 28-May 5, and May 1 is Child Health Day. The big purpose of Baby Week is to remind today's parents to keep an ever-watchful eye on their youngster's health—both physical and mental.

"I've Done Everything"

You've probably heard parents woefully exclaim, "but I've tried just everything with Johnny—nothing works." According to Pope, these parents are overlooking goals that are really important to that youngster of theirs—they're trying to impose a pattern of living on the child that's not really suited to him at all. He really needs unconditional love and affection—not an imposition of beliefs that aren't even his own.

Many parents can't understand why a youngster—so eager to learn for a few years—suddenly hits a lazy streak. You've probably seen this happen with a child who has begged for years to take piano lessons. However, after he studies for a few weeks, he loses interest—and mother is "at him" all the time to practice.

Two Conflicting Urges

The basic reason for this inconsistency in youngsters, said Pope, is the same reason that we adults fail to grow (or change). We want to learn, or to change—but this means encountering new experiences, and that frightens us. We feel secure the way we are—even if it isn't just the way we'd like to be. The truth of the matter is that often we are willing to grow only if it doesn't interfere with habits we'd rather keep. All people, including youngsters, have two conflicting urges—to grow, or learn—and to stay as they are.

Need for Understanding

This interplay of conflicting urges calls for understanding on your part. If you want to help that youngster of yours grow at his own speed, let him have these logical pauses or lazy streaks so that he can find his equilibrium. If yours is that child who begged for music lessons and had to be bribed to keep at them, give him understanding rather than exasperation.

We adults must plead guilty on this equilibrium score, too. Our society places top value on the "action" type personality—the person who really "gets things done." We fail to recognize the importance of the "pause that refreshes"—or the rest period that helps one regain his sense of equilibrium. The sooner we, ourselves, take advantage of these logical pauses, the sooner we'll convince ourselves that they're an integral and normal portion of our children's emotional growth.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

It ended like an indecisive debate. Each man asked a question the other couldn't answer. The argument was never taken up again.

The two men involved had lived in the small town for years. They were not intimate friends, but they knew each other in the casual, friendly way of small towns. Probably they met many times on street corners, at coffee counters and talked on different sides of some issue of the day.

One afternoon these two men were approaching one another on a highway near the town. A small, steep hill stood between them.

One man drove up his side at a slow rate of speed but, for some reason, in the middle of the highway, straddling the center line.

The other man climbed his side of the hill on the right side of the highway, but at a no-margin-for-error speed. They met just below the crest.

A few minutes later, both men were sprawled in the backseat of the car of a passing motorist who was taking them to a hospital. They were injured, bleeding, stunned. Neither knew if he was dying or not.

But one ahked, "Fred, why did you come so fast?"

And the other asked, "Why didn't you drive on your side of the road?"

Neither man could understand the other's mistake or answer for his own. The brief debate died with one of the drivers.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Dry weather and the USDA'S higher support price and precedent-breaking decision to support corn raised outside of allotments has resulted in raising corn markets, Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, reports.

The economist says local corn prices in Iowa are up as much as 20 cents over March prices, and that Chicago prices have pushed to a 14-month peak. But he poses this question, "How much would a general soaking rain across the Corn Belt drop the corn barket?"

Present total stock of corn (on farms, off farms, and in government hands) is up 7 percent from a year ago. The supply of free corn is estimated to be about 5 percent below last year's supply. With uncertain crop prospects in sight, Kutish says that this corn is not being sold. USDA corn sales since the first of March have been a fourth less than a year earlier.

Oats, however, have not shared the price advance with corn. Old oats supplies are 1 percent larger than a year ago, Supplies tied up by CCC loans or in USDA hands are much less than is the case with corn; but oats stocks in the terminals are up sharply from last year.

Soybean prices have made the sharpest advance, jumping about 60 cents since the first of the year. A strong demand for oil, given further strength by the freezing of the olive crop in southern Europe last winter, has been the prime moving force. Soybean oil prices have advanced 45 percent since January 1. These higher soybean prices have carried soybean meal prices up too, with recent prices about $11 per ton higher than early March levels.

Although hog slaughter is beginning to fall seasonally, Iowa farmers during March sold 14 percent more hogs than a year ago according to the Iowa Crop and Livestock Marketing Service. On April 1, farmers were planning to sell 13 percent more hogs in April, and 6 percent less in May from a year earlier. If farmers follow through on their April 1 plans, Kutish says that this would be the first drop in Iowa marketings from the figures of a year earlier for some time.

The present market trends indicate to Kutish that hog sales during May and June will be down enough from recent levels to make a decent late spring hog market. He also believes cattle sales will be down in June, too.

But if dry weather continues, he adds that we could have some liquidation of cattle showing up then as farmers react to the shortage of grass and higher corn prices.

Like To Win A Free Trip To Des Moines?

All Hancock County youths 18 years of age and under can compete for an expense paid trip to Des Moines in the Farm Bureau Women's "Get Out the Vote" campaign.

Entrants must complete the following statement, "I believe parents should vote because . . ." by adding 25 words or less. The deadline for entries is May 14.

They should be sent to the Hancock County Farm Bureau office in Garner. The nine boys and nine girls judged winners in their respective districts will visit Des Moies during the next legislative session. They will be taken to the Governor's office, to the Department of Public Instruction and be guests of honor at a banquet sponsored by the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation. Other Des Moines points of interest may be scheduled.

The contest is being sponsored in the county to stir up interest in voting in the primary election June 4. Hancock County Farm Bureau Women hope to boost the county above the 33.2 average for the last 4 elections .

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Regardless of the confusion caused by the adoption of daylight savings time in our state's number one metropolitan area, we will venture to say that come fall it will all be forgotten and everyone will have lived through the ordeal in good shape.

Biggest hassle we ever heard over one hour.

Maybe we should get our city dads to vote daylight time in for Klemme. Bet it wouldn't stir up nearly as much caustic comment as has that decision by the council in our neighboring city a hundred miles or so south on Highway 69.

If we were city dwellers, working in an office, store or industrial plant, we would be highly in favor of the daylight time. An extra hour to be out of doors after work would be more than welcome. But if we were farming, we would continue our daily work by sun time, making a few minor adjustments to our schedule where convenient and necessary.

One thing we'll bet on. The crops don't care what time it is. They'll grow anyway . . . if they get enough sunshine and moisture.

Next week ends another school year for local children. That means that instead of being on their usual routes to and from school, kids will be roaming all over town. If you're driving better keep your eyes open. You sometimes have to think for them, too. They know what they should do about crossing streets, etc., but they get intent on their play and forget.

This has been rather a backward spring, with lots of wind, and cold weather. Rain was a long time in getting to our section of the state, but after it finally got here, things began to grow. All the trees, bushes, lawns, etc., are greening up in good shape, and gardens are beginning to show some growth. Some plants such as tomatoes took it on the chin Tuesday night, though, when the temperature dropped to 29 degrees.

Maybe spring will arrive in fact as well as by the calendar one of these days.

A few years ago, a four-row corn planter was a novelty. Now they are getting to be the rule rather than the exception. Seems like nearly every farmer is putting in his corn four rows at a time. Makes short work of a job that nearly every farmer likes to get done just as fast as he possibly can.

"Even if you're on the right track, you'll get run over if you just sit there!"

Maurice Jacobs Active At Drake University

Maurice Jacobs, son of Mr and Mrs Roy Jacobs has made quite a record for himself while attending Drake University at Des Moines. In addition to being tapped for Omicron Delta Kappa (honorary scholastic and leadership fraternity), he has been active in other clubs and fraternities.

In 1955 he was treasurer of Alpha Kappa Psi (professional commerce fraternity) and this year he has been president of the fraternity.

In 1954 he was International Area Chairman of Circle K Club (service club) and in 1955 he was a trustee of the club as well as convention chairman. He has also been president and secretary of the club.

He is also a member of a commerce club and an accounting club.

Maurice, who is a senior, will graduate in June.

Corn Support Available; Soybean Settlement Near

Farmers have only until May 31—the remainder of this month—to obtain loans and purchase agreements on 1955 crop corn eligible for price support, is was pointed out this week by Alfred V Josten, office manager of the Hancock County ASC.

May 31 is also the date on which all outstanding price support loans and purchase agreements on soybeans mature. It is generally believed there will be a rush of payments of soybean loans since the market price has been running above the support rate. Of the 160,305 bushels placed under loans in this county, 129,421 bushels were redeemed by May 9, according to county ASC office records.

Mgr. Josten stated that due to the currently stronger market prices, considerable demand for price support on 1955 corn is expected in the closing weeks of the application period for that grain. If the pattern of past years is repeated, the final weeks of the period will bring a big increase in purchase agreements, he said.

As of April 15, there were 1,990,109 bushels of 1955 corn under loan and 75,400 bushels uuder purchase agreements in Hancock County. A year ago, there were 1,445,947 bushels of 1954 corn under original loans and 70,865 bushels under purchase agreements.

Only corn raised in 1955 in 1955 in compliance with average allotments is eligible for price support in the current program.

Birthday Party

Friday, May 11th, was the birthday of Mrs Pearl Schwartz. In honor of the event, her daughters Mrs Arlin Olsen and Mrs Kenneth Kluckhohn, planned a surprise party for her at her home.

Neighbor ladies came to spend the afternoon socially and lunch, consisting of birthday cake, ice cream and coffee, was served.

Further Plans for Summer Entertainment

At a meeting of the Klemme Commercial Club held in the basement of the grade school building Tuesday evening, plans were nearly completed for Saturday night summer activities in Klemme.

Music and callers for two evenings of square dancing have already been lined up, and tentative plans call for the square dances to be held on the cement slab in the town park.

In addition to the square dances which are to begin at approximately 9 o'clock on Saturday evenings, plans also call for the usual summer band concerts to be held on Main Street beginning at 8 o'clock on Saturday evenings.

First Saturday night for summer entertainment will be on June 2nd.

Telephone Exchange Now Dial System

A large crew of Central Iowa Telephone Company men were busy in Klemme the past week getting things already to cut over to dial system phones on the local exchange.

Phones in town had been put in some time ago and were ready to go, but rural phones all had to be hooked up Tuesday. The job was completed quite rapidly and about 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the cut-over was made.

Installation of the new system will eliminate the old practice of hanging on the phone for half an hour at a time. Local calls now will be limited to approximately eight minutes, and a warning signal will sound about a minute before this time has elapsed. The time limit is put in for the convenience of all users because of the four-party lines in use in the system.

Stromer Sets North Star High Jump Record

Val Stromer set a new North Star Conference record in the high jump Monday at Ventura when he cleared the bar at 5 feet, 6¼ inches. The old record for the conference stood at 5 feet one inch.

Competing last Saturday in the district track meet at Fort Dodge, Stromer took second place in the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 2 inches. By virtue of his second place in the Fort Dodge meet he is qualified to go on to the state tournament which will be held at Ames Saturday. He will be Klemme's only representative in the state meet.

Wins Prize in Contest

Mrs Bernard Gruis, won a prize this week on the KSMN Safety Slogan contest. Mrs Gruis who got her entry blank at Josten's, received a set of plastic picnic dishes.

Marriage Licenses

Hancock County Clerk Doris Young issued marriage licenses the past week to Alvin Longerbon, 21, Des Moines, and Jo Ann Valley, 21, Des Moines; Calvin C Baumgartner, 26 Garner; and Gail Carol Schaefer, 22, Des Moines; and to Earl Bruce Schock 25, Humboldt, and Alice Rubey Everett, 23, Britt.

Sealed Grain Storage Rules Reviewed by ASC

The responsibility of farmers for both the quality and quantity of grain in storage on their farms under price support loans was pointed out this week by the Hancock County ASC committee.

Everyone who has such grain on his farm should understand that he agreed at the time the loan was made to give adequate care and protection to the commodity so that it will meet certain quality requirements when the note matures.

The county committee stressed that the agreemnt provides that the farmer will promptly notify his county ASC office of any sign or indication of damage or lowering of quality of the loan grain. The ASC committee said that unless damage to the grain is strictly unavoidable and not due to negligence or lack of reasonable attention, the farmer himself must stand the entire loss.

Farmers having farm-stored loans should also understand that none of the commodity may be removed from the crib or bin, no matter how small the amount or for what purpose, except at specific direction of the county ASC office. Such direction can be given by the county committee or the county office only for such purposes as delivering it to the government, moving it to safety from threatened danger, or redeeming it through a sale arrangement made in advance through the county office providing for the proceeds to be applied on the loan. However, farmers have the right to pay off support loans at any time and then dispose of or use the grain as they desire., but the payment must be made before there is any removal of grain.

Removal of loan grain for use as seed or feed or unauthorized sale, regardless of need or intention to reimburse the government, constitutes unlawful conversion, the county committee emphasized. They said that penalties are provided and that the committee itself can refuse to grant support loans to those who break the "care and keep" rules.

The county committee declared that even the county committee and the county office cannot give valid permission for removal of sealed grain for such purposes as seed or feed before an actual settlement is made.

Robert Schulz Honored For Flock's Egg Production

Robert Schulz has been honored for his outstanding care, management and feeding of his laying flock. He was awarded membership in the national "Beat the Experts" Egg Club sponsored by the Moorman Manufacturing Company, Quincy, Ill.

During a recent 90-day period, his laying flock produced each dozen eggs with an average of less than 5 lbs. of total feed.

The national average is 8 lbs of feed per dozen eggs. Poultry experts say that 5½ lbs is "very good" and that 5 lbs. is "outstanding."

A similar "Beat the Experts" national honor club for outstanding chick raisers is being sponsored by the feed company. Poultry raisers win membership by producing each pound of chick growth to 8 weeks of age on 2.5 lbs or less feed.

No longer can you pick up your phone in the Klemme area and hear, "Number, please?" When the Central Iowa Telephone Company cut over to dial on the local exchange Tuesday, they put an end to that time-worn question.

General consensus of opinion seems to be in favor of the dial system, although a few are not happy with the four-party lines. Loudest complaints, though came from those whose phones were not listed in the supplemental directory put out by the company. These few names and their numbers are listed in an ad on the back page of this issue of The Times. We suggest that you clip the ad and keep it with your directories until the new directories come out early in June.

If you want to look over this year's crop of seniors, all their pictures will be on display in the window at Marie's Beauty Shop next week. Marie has had the class pictures in her window each year for many years.

What has always seemed to us to be about as mean a trick as can be is the smiling, cutting remark, made supposedly in fun, to a person who is afflicted in some way or other . . . with the remark poking fun at the affliction.

Normally, the afflicted one has the good grace to either laugh or shrug off the remark, but we feel quite certain that they would like to poke somebody right square in the snoot . . . and we don't blame them.

We would even go so far as to say that the person who habitually makes these not too sly digs, has a pretty bad affliction of his own.

Next time, you feel such a remark coming on, put yourself in the shoes of the person for whom the barb is intended, think how you would like it, and maybe you'll decide to say something entirely different.

It seems to us that in all the hullabaloo in Washington, and elsewhere, about the farm problem, the main trouble spot has been by-passed. If farmers need help, and apparently some of them do, then why not help the ones who have been hurt the worst.

Although grain farmers, have had to take less money in recent years for their products, still most of them have been able to make a profit. It's the feeders who have taken it on the chin, and we can't see where raising the support prices on grain will in anyway benefit them.

We can't offer any solution to the problem, but if help is to be given, we would like to see it given where it is most needed . . . and so far the trend hasn't been in that direction . . . not in either major political party.

VETS BENEFITS

Iowa war veterans and their dependents drew a total of $71-192,882 in benefits and services from the federal Veterans Administration programs last year.

The VA's annual report said that 37,498 veterans with war-incurred injuries and permanent non-service connected disabilities received $29,231,940 in federal benefits.

Death compensation and pension payments went to 11,703 dependents of deceased veterans in the amount of $9,553,017.

Iowans drew $6,177,402 in GI insurance and indemnity paymets.

A wide variety of other cash benefits and services paid under federal veterans laws went to other Iowa vets or their dependents.

RULES ON PRIVACY

The Iowa supreme court has ruled that pictures published in a newspaper of the body of eight year old Jimmy Bremmer of Sioux City did not constitute an invasion of privacy on the part of the paper as claimed in an action brought by the parents in the district court. The ruling upheld the district court's findings. The boy was the victim of a kidnap slaying.

The majority ruling said the incident was "one of proper public interest and a newsworthy event."

A dissenting opinion, written by Justice Robert Larson, and agreed in by two other justices, said the court should limit and define the privilege accorded the press and radio to invade the rights of individual privacy here in Iowa." Larson said pictures were not submitted as evidence in the lower court action before the ruling has been made.

SOIL CONTEST

A contest to develop more interest in soil and water conservation and to encourage young folks to look to better living through conservation of the state's natural resources is being developed by the Iowa State Grange and the Iowa Manufacturer's Ass'n.

The essay contest is open to any young man or woman in the state under 21 years of age. Topic for the essays will be "Better Living Through Conservation."

Contest information is available from any local soil conservatin office, county extension director, vocational agriculture instructor or state conservation officer.

ACTION LAW

A 1953 Iowa law requiring that auctioneers be licensed was declared constitutional by the state supreme court in a unanimous decision. The decision reversed a Polk County district court ruling.

A Chicago auction firm had filed the action in an effort to have the Iowa attorney general temporarily and permanently enjoined from enforcing the law. Also named as defendants in the suit were the 99 county attorneys of the state.

The Polk district court refused to grant injunctions but held the law unconstitutional.

The Steinberg-Baumand company had been holding auction sales in nearly every section of Iowa.

PERSONNEL CHIEF

A Fort Dodge man, George Marchi, a Republican, is the new state personnel director. He was named to the $6,000 a year job by Gov. Leo A Hoegh.

Marchi, who took over his new duties this week, succeeds the late Art Wallace, who died last Jan. 4.

Marchi had operated a sporting goods store in Fort Dodge the last nine years. He has had considerable personnel experience in various assignments before starting his business and directed the intramurals sport program at the University of Iowa for three years. He is a veteran of World War II.

ARMED FORCES

Saturday is Armed Forces Day in Iowa. The day has been officially proclaimed as such by Governor Hoegh. Observances of the day are planned in many Iowa cities and towns.

DEMO PARLEY

Iowa Democrats will hold their state presidential convention in Des Moines Friday, June 1. The meeting, at which delegates to the party's national convention in Chicago will be selected, will be held at the KRNT Theater.

Party officials said that Iowa will send a split delegation to the national convention, with each delegate having a half vote. The Chicago confab is August 12, just a week ahead of the GOP national convention in San Francisco.

TOP GOP LEADER

Miss Bertha Adkins of Washington, assistant to Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall, will be guest speaker at the statewide Republican women's strategy meeting in Des Moines Saturday, May 26.

Particular emphasis will be placed on "Growing Republicanism" with all county vice-chairmen participating in the conference. A panel discussion will highlight the afternoon program with a county vice-chairman from each of the eight congressional districts participating.

Mrs Enid Robinson of Hampton, Republican state vice-chairman, said the strategy meeting for all Republican women has been planned by the women members of the GOP state central committee, the district vice-chairmen.

TRUCK TAXES

A report by the Iowa legislative research bureau indicates a dcrease in truck taxes paid to Iowa by truck carriers in contrast to the increase in registration fees paid to all states by these same carriers.

Trucking companies, the report shows, which paid more than 75 percent of the state compensation tax before 1951, reducd their overall state tax total by about $200,000 in the next two years after the compensation tax laws had been virtually repealed.

The same companies, the report said, paid increased registration fees to other states in which they operate.

The report was prepared for and presented to the Iowa taxation study committee.

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES

Dean R Homer Norton of Grinnell college told a Des Moines PTA audience the other evening that colleges of today devote a great deal of time to teaching subjects that should have been learned in high school. He said five basic subjects are neglected in preparing students for college.

A great number of students entering college these days, he said, are deficient in English, mathematics, history, science and foregn languages. He advocated arithmetic, algebra, geometry and some trigonomtery for high school students.

EGG FEES

Iowa egg dealers paid the state department of agriculture $60,-394 in license renewal fees in the last two months.

The fees were paid by 1,619 dealers and processors, 4,043 retailers, and 4,098 candlers and graders.

The new license year began April 1, but renewals were accepted beginning March 1. The state's new grading law went into effect last year. At the end of the first year fee collections total $72,165.

Senior Class News

The English class is working on commas now. Today we had to learn the seven major rules and then apply our knowledge to an excercise in our book. Doesn't that sound like fun.

We are applying our knowledge in bookkeeping on a practice set for a partnership. This will probably be our last assignment for this year.

We had a quiz in chemistry. The highest grade was 70 percent. Study? Might not be a bad idea at that.

Believe it or not, the geometry class has stopped going around in circles. We are now studying ratio and proportion.

The business law class has been taking up the unit on different types of business, which are the individual business, the partnership business, and the big cooperation business. We receive study guides which help us understand the material.

In American history we are studying about Franklin Roosevelt's second term in office. We are finding some good things he did and also some bad things that he did.

Gossip Around KHS

It seems there is a new romance in the sophomore class. It couldn't be Marcella Nuehring and Richard Meyers could it?

Who is Karen C's visitor from Hayfield lately? How about this Karen. It isn't Alan F is it?

Who was the kid from Alexander that Rosalie and Betty were having so much fun with Sunday night?

We hear that Raymond Helps has found a new girl friend at Swaledale by the name of Dorothy.

Who did Kay B and Bob A take to the show at Britt Sunday night?

Who was with Mart B Thursday night after choir practice? Was it G G ?

Jokes

A staid gentleman honorary judge at a horse show, was upset by the dress of some of the girls.

"Just look at the young person there wih the poodle cut, the cigarette, and the blue jeans," he said to a bystander. Is it a boy or a girl?"

"It's a girl," was the reply. "She's my daughter."

"Oh, forgive me, sir," apologized the old fellow. "I never dreamed you were her fathr."

"I'm not," snapped the other. "I'm her mother."

Cackles from the Coop

"Uh, let's see now, is this my left or my right? is the question in band now. We are marching (we use that term loosely to describe our meanderings around the baseball field). Despite our comments, it is much better than in some past years.

Mr Whitford and Mrs Griesy can take another well-deserved bow because the band and girls chorus both received I ratings in the contest Friday night (the 4th). This makes six years in a row for the band. Everyone in the band had on white shoes, too.

It is very possible that we will not have summer band concerts this year. An audience, has for the most part, been conspicuous by its absence and the feeling seems to be "no audience, no concert." As yet it is not final but it wouldn't surprise us if the town council would decide not to have concerts this year.

DEATH!

The following paragraph is an English assignment by Fred Arnold. I thought it was worthy of notice because it pertains to the situation of the present time.

Lying in wait on every country road and city street and showing neither leniency toward the young, nor respect for the aged is death. It can come as a child rides into the street unsteadily on his first bicycle or chases a ball that he has unluckily missed in a game of "500". That missed ball has cost many a child more than 100 points; it has cost him his life. Death can come as an old, white haired grandmother makes her unsteady way across a busy street and doesn't quite get across in time or fails to see the unthinking and unseeing "speed demon" making a flashing, tire squealing right turn. It can come as a grandfather, his reflexes slowed down by age, realizes that the truck just ahead has topped and there is a car coming from the other way. Death can come to the young couple out for a Sunday afternoon drive with their children, who realize too late, that they haven't time to get back into their lane from passing, before the car they are meeting gets to them. As we stand on street corners or in the buildings and talk about the horrible toll of wars, few people realize that more Iowans were killed last year on our highways than were killed in the entire three years of the Korean War. Terrible? Yes, but it is true. Always there is the brief moment of realization and then death, horrible, blood curdling, head crushing, back-breaking—death.

Studying about the different parts of the car has been keeping us busy in science. We also have been studying different types of engines, such as diesel, gasoline and gas turbine engines.

The math class has been working out time cards for the payroll of different types of invoices.

In English we have been writing themes which consist of concrete details, sentence variation, a topic sentence, and a clincher.

In home ec., Velma C, Dorothy R., Audrey L., and Cozette L. have finished their blouses. Mardell has completed her third project, a pair of shorts. New projects being worked on now are gathered skirts, shorts, pajamas, an a pendleton style jacket.

The shop boys are nearly done with their last projects.

Girls' Sports

Since it has been warm and nice out this week, we had P T outside. It surely seemed good to get out in the fresh warm air again. This has been the first time since last fall that we went outside for P T. We practiced the strokes in golf again and tried our skill at hitting the ball. We have quite the time trying to hit it but with some effort and confidence, we finally are hitting the ball pretty good. This Friday Mr Westberg plans on taking us girls to the golf course at Clear Lake providing the weather is good. I hope we make it there, and I am sure we will all enjoy it very much.

The sophomore news hasn't been in The Times for so long that I thought I'd better get busy and write some just to let you know that K H S still has a sophomore class.

In algebra we've been studying quadratic equations. These sound like they would be hard, but we found that they aren't as hard as they sound. We are nearly to the end of our algebra book and are looking forward to the day when we can turn them in.

Biology has been quite interesting. We have been studying about the birth of the earth. It is really quite surprising to find what kind of living things roamed the earth in the past ages.

Complex sentences have been our difficulty in English. However, difficult as they are, we find them interesting and fun to diagram.

In history we have been learning about Hitler and Stalin. This subject always arouses our interest and the class time passes quickly.

Drivers training is our last subject. In this class we have been parallel parking and angle parking. Also we had a test in which the results weren't so agreeable to Mr Westberg. We tried, but not hard enough!

Junior Class News

We have been learning how to set up tabulation problems and we also have been taking more ten minute writings to typing.

In geography the chapter on "The Nature of Nations" has been our source of study the past week.

The last week in shop has been mostly spent in finishing our projects.

The remainder of the year we will be listening to and giving our final exam speeches. This speech is required of all students whether a junior or a graduating senior. The time required for each speech is 20 to 30 minutes, so the number of two is the maximum given each class hour.

Junior English is drill, drill, drill. Because we failed to thoroughly understand clauses, we are spending extra time working with them. "I forget", seems to be no excuse to Miss Beardsley. We are rapidly learning that fact, if nothing else.

Home equipment has taken our time this past week. We have investigated clothes washers electric stoves, gas stoves, and an electric rotissierie. We also saw a movie on "The Art of Carving Meat."

Liberty Busy Bees

Liberty Busy Bees met at the home of June Mayland on April 21 for their regular meeting. Roll call was answered by 8 members 2 vistors and two leaders. A report was given on the bake sale.

Joyce Hueneman is our voting delegate for Rally Day. Janeiie Johnson and Carolyn Jass are to sing in the chorus. Carolyn Jass is our candidate for county office. Nancy Farquhar is campaign speaker. Marcia Erdman is to help at the registration desk. June Mayland and Winola Zwald are to plan the picnic dinner. Winola Zwald, Carolyn Jass and Marion Stromer are going to say the Country Girls Creed.

We discussed the Mother-Daughter Tea to be held in May.

June Mayland will go to the convention in June. The pledge was said by the club to close the meeting. A demonstration was given by Florence Grieman. A picture study was given by Nancy Farquhar. Lunch was served by the hostess.

[illegible] DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

To people enjoying a happier way of life, the first sight of a robin is the first sign of spring. But to the accident evaluators in the state safety department, the appearance of the first feverish accident report is the sign that balmy weather and like drivers have arrived!

Here's how the season opened one year:

An accident report came in made out by the father for his 15-year-old son. According to the information, the son had been driving and the father sitting alongside instructing.

The boy wanted to make a left turn so he pulled well over to the right side of the road and, suddenly whipped into his turn. The car following nosed into him none too gently, as might have been expected.

Now, this type accident, while foolish, is not exactly rare, so the evaluator thought he had a routine case on is hands until he read the father's explantion at the bottom of the report. Said the father:

"I was teaching the boy how to make a left turn without missing the car behind us."

Spring is here!

But perhaps a thought can be salvaged from this incident. Most of us are members of a generation of drivers that has made an ugly record on the highways.

Maybe it's time we isolated ourselves from the very young drivers. Maybe many of us are "accident-carriers" without realizing it, passing on our bad habits like germs.

Perhaps it's time to leave the education of the young driver in the hands of people who have had the mistakes trained out of them—driver education teachers.

KNOCKOUT

Lyle Cooling, Corydon student was unconscious for 12 hours after colliding with another youth while attempting to catch a football.

RETIRES

At Manchester, Walter Schiess made his last trip as a rural carrier recently, after 37 years. He has used up 23 cars in that time and figures each one was driven about 25,000 miles. He's had three minor accidents in that time; the last one 14 years ago.

LIGHTNING

Lightning struck a bed in the Russell Burns home at Moravia recently, moving it about a foot and ripping a gap in the bedroom wall. Occupants of the bed, Mr Burns and son Jimmy, were unhurt. Plaster was knocked from every room of the house and siding was strewn for 200 feet.

"I'm growing beans, peas, tomatoes and squash — and tired already!"

Sgt. Garfield Bieber, of Clear Lake, suffered loss of his right hand when a 20 millimeter cannon shell exploded recently. The mishap occurred at his station in Puerto Rico.

Board of Review

The Hancock County Board of Review has completed the review of the personal property assessment for the year of 1956 and will make comparisons on various inventories on Monday, May 21. The Board will hold regular meetings on May 21, 28 and 31.

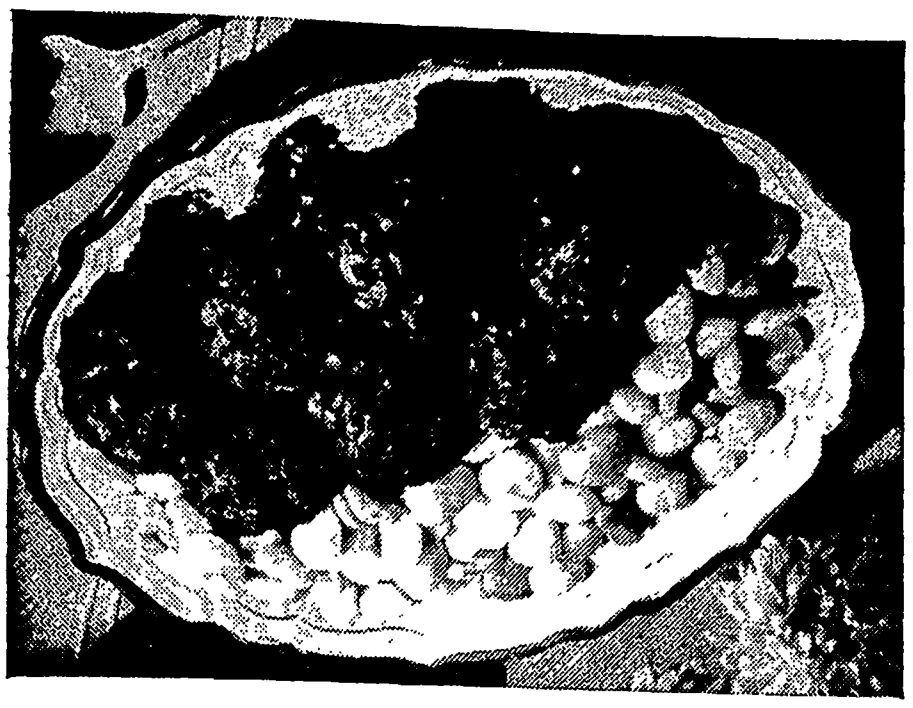
May Is the Month—

Serve Nutritious Beef Often



Try your favorite recipe of savory beef porcupine balls the first chance you get.

In the past year, you've heard a lot about how plentiful beef is—especially here in Iowa. It's still being marketed in abundance—so much so, in fact, that government agencies and retailers have joined together to proclaim May as Beef Month.

Do your part to observe this proclamation. It won't be hard—not with beef products so tasty, attractive, economical and nutritious.

Nutrients and Economy

According to Jewel Graham, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College, beef gives you many nutrients—protein, phosphorus, iron, those three B vitamins—niacin, thiamine and riboflavin—and even a little calcium. Besides all this, beef prices are down because of its abundance. You'll see some especially good beef buys this month.

Iowa State College nutrition researchers report that even though Iowans, on the whole, consume generous portions of meat, there are still many of us who don't get enough meat for really top-notch health. Make sure your family gets its quota of good meat—and what could be better han beef?

Summer Suggestions

You'll be interested in Miss Graham's suggestions for economical and different ways to fix beef during the summer months ahead.

With summer almost here, picnics and outdoor outings are just around the corner, and you're probably in the mood about now for some good outdoor eating tips.

You may be one of many homemakers who assume that steak is really the "only" cut of beef for outdoor meals—and perhaps you feel that you can't afford many summer steak fries. Here are some outdoor beef idas that will "set just right" with your purse strings—and with the family's appetites.

Here's a dandy and different salad—so perfect for those warm weather luncheon meals. It is called beef and macaroni salad. For 5 to 6 servings, you'll need 2 to 3 cupc of cooked macaroni, 1 tablespoon chopped onion and 1 cup chopped celery and leaves; 1 cup chopped cooked beef, some salad dressing, and salt and pepper to taste. This delightful dish is simple to make. Just mix macaroni lightly with other ingredients.

Hamburger Pointers

For one of those outdoor cooking sprees you intend to go on, try some different tricks with hamburgers. Family and friends will "go for" topped hamburger patties in a big way. When your "burgers" are almost done, spread cheese topping on them and finish broiling. Try this for topping: sharp cheese spread with Worcestershire sauce; or blue cheese blended with softened butter and Worcestershire sauce.

Another topping idea is a mold of onion rings, cooked slowly in fat until clear—then perched upon your patties. You might try topping burgers with cheese slices; chili sauce; or with grilled slices of pineapple, too.

For picnics, porch or patio eating, beef kabobs are ideal. Lots of fun to serve and great "conversation pieces," you can cook them either indoors or out. Simply cut beef steak into 1½ inch cubes. Alternate cubes on skewers with thin slices of raw or parboiled onion, bacon wrapped around firm tomatoes, some mushrooms and green peppers. Roll the filled skewers in melted butter. Broil over an open fire or in your range broiler, turning to cook evenly on all sides. Then season. It'll take about 25 minutes for well-done kabobs, but if family or friends prefer their beef rare, they'll need to wait about 18 minutes.

Air Show to be Held at Garner Airport June 3rd

Garner, Iowa. (Special)—Iowa State Air Days will be held here at Garner Airport on Sunday, June 3rd, according to an announcement today by Don C Roe, general chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the event.

Roe said the Chamber of Commerce and other civic and service groups have been fortunate in securing the services of the Sky Kings Air show, one of the largest in the country. The Sky Kings roster includes some of the nation's top stunt pilots and stunt men in an exhibition of all types of stunt flying, parachute jumping and wing-walking. One of the outstanding acts of the Sky Kings will be the appearance of the "Flying Ladder" said to be the only act of its kind in the world.

According to the announcement by Don Roe, the U S Air Force and the Air National Guard will be invited to participate in the air show and it is thought that high speed jet fighters will be seen in action.

Starting time for the show has been set at 2:30 p.m. with gates to the field opening at 11 a. m. so spectators can view the many airplanes on display. Refreshments will be served throughout the day.

Arrangements will be made at Garner Airport to accomodate 10,000 spectators.

Fishing License Not Necessary for Some

Iowa anglers are reminded by the Conservation Commission that fishing licenses are not needed by certain persons.

Owners or tenants of land, and their children, may fish upon such lands without securing a fishing license.

No female resident of the state shall be required to have a fishing license except when fishing in state-owned lakes, and no resident under 16 years of age is required to have a fishing license.

Persons who are members of the armed forces during a time of war shall not be required to have a fishing license, nor shall a license be required of any person who is receiving old age assistance under Chapter 249 of the Code of Iowa.

This does not apply, however, to persons receiving social security. A person receiving social security—but not receiving old age assistance under Chapter 249—is required to have a fishing license.

FISH

The Bob Grenwall and Dwight Good families of Madrid enjoyed good fishing on a recent Ozark trip. A 40-pound spoonbill catfish was the largest catch.

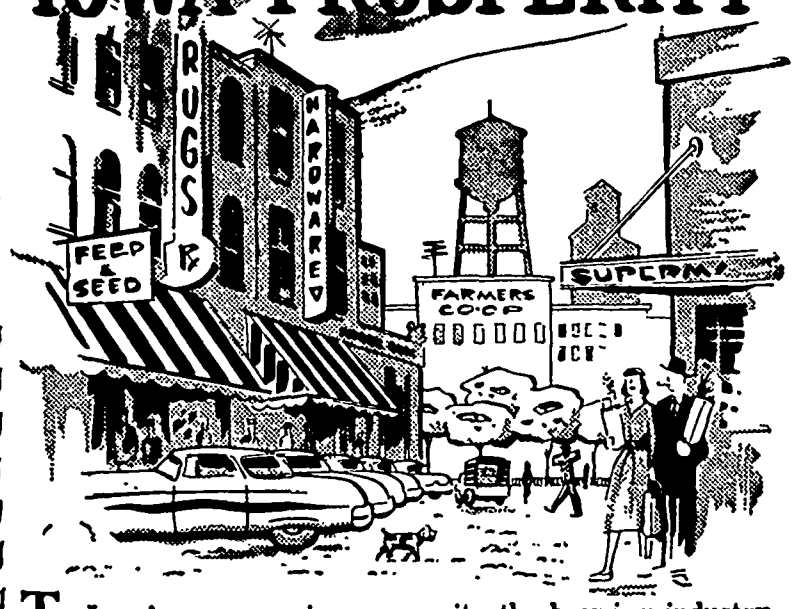
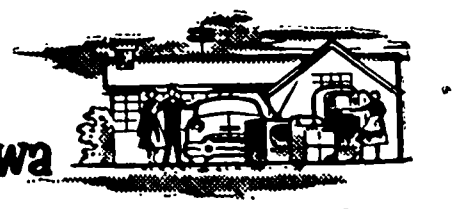
ADDING MORE TO IOWA PROSPERITY



To Iowa's ever-growing prosperity the brewing industry makes a steady and substantial contribution. For example, each year the industry spends more than $27,500,000 for miscellaneous business costs in this state, in addition to its huge Iowa payroll. These business costs range all the way from rent to insurance, from truck maintenance to advertising, from freight to electricty. And these expenditures are a steady source of expanding income to literally every section of our state.

Added Wealth for all Iowa



Yet, this is only one of the many ways in which the brewing industry adds to Iowa's income. For example, take the industry's $30,000,000 per year Iowa payroll, or the better than $62,000,000 it has invested in the state, or the more than $25,000,000 per year in taxes . . . plus the hundreds of thousands of dollars spent for farm products. Yes, in many, many ways . . .

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

We wish the Class of '56 the best of luck. Hope all your dreams for the future turn out just as well as you could possibly want.

When we graduated from KHS 20 years ago, we had no idea that we would ever be publishing The Times . . . but we are.

Just goes to show that a lot of things can happen after graduation to change your life.

When we graduated, we had every intention of working our way through college, but at that time there seemed to be a lot more people who didn't want to hire us than people who did. After an unsuccessful two months in Minneapolis trying to get part time work so we could get in some schooling, we gave up and came home.

Day after we got home we went to work for "Jergie" at The Times Office, learning the linotype, etc.

Since that time, we have worked in the printing business in Illinois, California, several places in Iowa, put in nearly five years in the army, farmed a little, worked as a bookkeeper, and ran a filling station . . . all before coming back to The Times.

We enjoyed everyone of our jobs . . . even our present one . . . learned a little from each one, and are glad of the experience.

Even so, we wish that we had stuck in Minneapolis a bit longer. We might have gotten that job that would have enabled us to get a college education . . . and a college education is becoming increasingly important as the years go by.

We not only would like to have gotten the education for the better job it might have fitted us for, but also for the better understanding of things around us it might have given us.

Sometimes we get to feeling pretty stupid, and although a college education wouldn't have been a cure all for our complaint, still it would have been a help.

What we are trying to say is that although college can't make brains, it can certainly improve them, and make easier the job of properly using them . . . and we hope that as many of you as possible will take advantage of any possible chance to further your education by attending.

We know that if you do attend college, you will never be sorry, and if you don't, the chances are good that some day you will regret the decision that kept you away.

Remember your class motto, "To The Valiant Heart, Naught is Impossible", and when you are tempted into going astray from the path that leads to the fulfillment of your dreams, it will set you back in the proper direction.

Twenty-two Graduate at Commencement Exercises

Twenty-two seniors received their diplomas at commencement exercises Tuesday evening. The exercises held at the high school gymnasium, featured a short address by Allen Stroh, Supt of Garner Schools, as well as presentation of diplomas to both the seniors and to the graduating eighth grade class. There were 29 of the latter who will begin their high school studies next fall.

Valedictorian of this year's senior class was Gracka Gerardi, with an average of 3.50. Margaret Haefner was salutatorian with an average of 3.454. Fred Arnold, Jr., was third high with an average of 3.176. Each of the three high graduates are entitled to apply for an honor scholarship at the college of their choice.

In addition, Gracka Gerardi was presented with a trophy by the Mid-America Foundation for having written the best essay in Hancock County for a contest sponsored by Parsons College at Fairfield, and Fred Arnold received the Music Mothers award for the outstanding senior music student.

Black Bass Season Opens May 26th

The last of the 1956 closed fishing seasons—the season on largemouth and smallmouth black bass—is slated to open in inland Iowa at midnight May 26. The bass season will extend through February 15, 1957, with a daily catch limit of 5 and a possession limit of 10.

For the first time in years, there will be no length limit on black bass in Iowa. The old minimum length limit of 10 inches was lifted this season following a nationwide trend toward liberalized fishing laws.

Fisheries managers point out that undersized bass are often hooked deeply, and may die after they are released. It was thought that it would be better to utilize such fish, rather than allowing them to be wasted. Recent studies by biologists also indicate that most Iowa fish—including black bass—can safely furnish a much greater harvest without endangering the fish population.

With the opening of the black bass season, all Iowa fishing seasons will be open.

Services Will Be In High School Gymnasium

Memorial Day services, which have been planned by the American Legion Auxiliary will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning on Wednesday, May 30, at the high school gymnasium. The Auxiliary has arranged a program to honor our war dead, which will be high-lighted by a Memorial Day address by Rev Vernon E Jaberg.

Musical selections and readings will complete the program at the school. Following the program a parade will be formed outside the school building and will march to the cemetery where the services will be continued.

Graves will be decorated and a firing squad, made up of the members of the local Legion Post, will salute the dead. Following the services at the cemetery, the parade will re-form and march back to their assembly point.

Polio Vaccine Now Available in Doctors Offices in County

A considerable supply of Salk Polio vaccine is now available in Hancock County doctor's offices, a survey revealed this week.

In making this announcement, Mrs Ben Coobs and Mrs Helen Stille, local representatives of the Hancock County Chapter of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis, urged that parents contact their family doctor on when their children may be vaccinated.

The ladies reported that all children through 19 years as well as pregnant women are now eligible, according to the State Health Dept. It has also been recommended that immunization begin before July 1, the start of the polio season. It is estimated that enough vaccine can be provided to all those eligible to make a significant dent in Polio incidents this year.

Gossip Around KHS

How come Gracka did not go with Mart last Saturday night? Could it be that she is used to going with much older men?

Donald and Linda must have had a fight because he did not go to the spring dance at Garner with her.

Barbara and Bob must be getting along fairly well. I see he has been giving her a ride during the noon hour.

I wonder if Larry will come uptown at noon after he is out of school, to give Fonda a ride back to school?

We hear that Donald A is going to take Judy W from Kanawha to Duncan Thursday night.

Dave had some company Sunday. It wasn't Marie, was it Dave?

We hear that Margaret went with Donald K Sunday night. How about this Margaret?

Who is the third party that's causing an argument between Margaret and Keith?

Mrs Mary Steffens, longtime resident of Peterson, recently observed her 100th birthday. The occasion was spent in the home which she and her husband built many years ago and in which she has lived since her marriage in 1887.

We are completing our scrapbooks and themes in drivers training as our semester projects. We are elsb cramming for our exams.

In English we are reviewing gerunds, participles, infinitives, prepositions and other parts of language, which to us seems like Greek.

Biology and World History are also getting a going over. We have almost completed our history books but we probably won't finish them.

Well, this is prbably the last news before vacation, so will close and I am hoping next year to be writing junior news.

Question of the Week

What are your plans for the summer?

Miss Beardsley - I plan to spend the month of July vacationing on the West Coast.

Patton and Bond practice sets have been keeping the bookkeeping class busy. We have only tomorrow in which to get it done.

Students that wanted to get a better grade in history have been working on reports of World War II. Otherwise, we have just been reviewing.

In business law it's all over with, except for the seniors who have to take a test.

The English class has been writing paragraphs on different topics, such as though, time, love, your or your, my or mine, our or ours. For our last assignment we are to write a 250-300 word theme on "This I Believe".

TO CUBA

Seniors of Morley High School have gone abroad in May for their annual class trip. They left May 20, for Cuba. The seniors raised $1,616 this year for their class fund.

Cackles from the Coop

Life in band is getting much more complicated than it has been in the past. We are working on several maneuvers and if and when we get them learned, we should have a snappy band. Th next appearances for the band will be in the Memorial Day parade here on the 30th and the North Iowa Band Festival, June 12th at Mason City.

As this will be the last column I will write, I would like to thank all those who have read these feeble literary efforts, wish my successor the best of luck and hope that they have as much fun writing this as I have had.

Editorial of the Week

The following paragraphs are English assignments written by a couple of seniors.

OURS—

Because we are seniors and the end of the school year is rapidly drawing to a close, our life together as a class will soon be a thing of the past. As we think back to all the things the class has done together, there are many happy memories that will stay with us as we go our separate ways. However, the years we have spent together haven't all been happy times. There have been many disagreements that seemed quite important at the time, but as we remember them now, they were really rather funny. I am sorry to see all these things come to an end. However, I am sure the future will also bring many happy times along with the heartaches and disappointments.

OURS—

What a marvelous heritage is ours! Let us consider some of the reasons why this is true. Sailing an almost unknown ocean in what could scarcely be called adequate ships, and braving the violent storms and long weeks at sea, our forefathers established themelves in the "New World". They paid a great price for the right of religious freedom. Even though many died of starvation and cold, they resolutely forged ahead to conquer new problems. They fought and died rather than be ruled by tyrants. After they had won their freedom, there was the great task of forming the new government. When we stop to consider that we still have the same constitution formed by our forefathers, we realize what foresight the great statesmen of that day had. How thankful we should be for our religious freedom, and for freedom of speech. Since our liberty means so much to us and was bought at such great sacrifice, let us strive to keep our country free for our children so that they may also enjoy our heritage of liberty.

Twin Lake Indians Elect Camp Delegates

The election of delegates to 4 H camp highlighted the monthly meeting of the Twin Lake Indians. They met at the home of Daryl and Roger Hansen.

Junior Class News

Study of house plans has been interesting work to us this past week. We have learned of such things as kinds of windows, kinds of doors, tract houses versus owners, planned houses, and houses to fit various family needs.

Junior English students have been remembering various parts of grammar while reviewing for the semester exam. The results will soon show!

Students from study hall have been an audience to the speech students as each gives his final 20-30 minute speech.

The geography class has been working on reports of different countries in order that they receive a better final grade.

The typing class has been typing the "Eighth Grade Graduate" and they have also been learning how to run the mimeograph.

The boys in shop are now on the home stretch. About 1 more week and they will be all done.

Freshman News

Home Ec. - We're busy finishing our projects for the semester. Margaret has made another gathered skirt and is working on a red sleeveless blouse to go with it. Cozette and Audrey are both making shorts. All of us are busy.

May 15th we had our last assignment in math. We are now reveiwing for our semester test.

In science we are reviewing our chapter on "Making Things Move" and also reviewing the chapters we studied last nine weeks.

Review, review, review. Such is the activity of freshman English, as each student remembers such things as voice of verbs, gerunds, participles, and infinitives.

In shop the boys that have finished their last project are being kept busy by doing small jobs around the shop.

Cresco lost one of its oldest residents recently, in the death of Henry J Webber, 95. He had lived in or near Cresco most of his life.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

As the car moved out of the darkened town, Ed, the district sales manager, settled more comfortably behind the wheel and grinned at the new man sitting beside him. He looked a little worn.

"Well now you see how it's done," Ed said. "We had a pretty good day. Does me good to get out in territory once in a while like this. Keeps my hand in. Keeps me thinking right." He flicked on his brights, pushed the car up to 60 and settled down to the business of getting home before midnight.

The new man wanted to close his eyes. He was exhausted. All afternoon and late into the night he had followed Ed around the town from house to house, knocking on doors, giving the sales talk, the demonstration.

Ed was teaching him the business. After every sale that day, Ed would look at him sternly and say, "Now, this is the crucial moment. You've just made a sale and you feel like knocking off for an hour. If you're any good, you keep moving. Keep moving!" And they had kept moving.

"I'm a little tired myself," Ed said as the car moved swiftly into the night. "I guess I'm a little out of shape. I envy you young guys just getting started. Half the fun of success is getting there. Just take a good look at where you're going and then keep moving. Yes sir!"

At the moment he spoke, Ed had absolutely no idea where he was going. He was driving 60 miles an hour. The car was covering 88 feet of highway every second, rushing into the void of darkness beyond the headlights where Ed could see nothing.

Ed fell silent and the new man began to doze. Just before his eyes closed he thought he saw some darker object just beyond the headlights. But he was too sleepy, too sleepy. If it was anything, Ed would see it.

But Ed's older eyes saw nothing unusal until about a second later. Then they were 88 feet too close. A few seconds more and Ed stopped moving.

To Form Archery Group For Children

A move is underway to form an archery group for boys and girls not older than 15 in the Klemme community.

Purpose of forming the group is to teach boys and girls to properly use the bow and arrow as well as interesting them in a fascinating hobby.

Herb Greimann, president of the Klemme Archers Club, will be the instructor for the group, and anyone interested is asked to contact Mrs John Clements, before May 30th.

Later in the summer a national Robin Hood Archery tournament will be held for different age groups and local shooters will be able to enter. If you are interested in learning archery and maybe entering this tournament, be sure and contact Mrs Clements before Wednesday, May 30th.

LOST ARM

An accident with a mechanical post-hole digger resulted in loss of an arm for Felix Netcell, 72, of Red Oak. The digger caught his sleeve, twisting it so that three compound fractures resulted. Amputation was necessary.

Poppy Day Means Paper Flowers, Saturday

Mrs Melvin Schlei, Unit President, explained that the American Legion Auxiliary Poppy Day has a three-fold purpose. No. 1. The poppies are presented to the public to be worn in memory of our War Dead. No. 2. The disabled veterans in the V. A. Hospitals receive a nominal sum for each assembled poppy, which enables them to help support their families. No. 3 The proceeds are used for welfare work for the disabled and needy families of World Wars I and II and the Korean Conflict.

The American Legion Auxiliary Poppy Day Workers who will distribute poppies on the Street this Saturday, May 26, are all unpaid volunteers, said Mrs Roy Schaefer, Unit Poppy Chairman; she also said that the workers will be on the streets early Saturday asking each citizen to wear a memorial poppy.

The poppies are made of crepe paper, bearing the label The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, Hand-made by Veterans, In Memoriam 1956. The American Legion Auxiliary uses the crepe paper because it gives more hours of occupation to the veterans assembling the flowers and they look more like the wild flowers which grew and bloomed between the crosses, row on row, in the battle cemeteries.

It is hoped that in exchange for the poppy each citizen will contribute as generously as he can and thus "Serve the Living by Honoring the Dead."

Form Special Services Group for County

Hancock County Public Health, Welfare, Education and Special Education personnel have recently formed a new group, the Hancock County Council on Special Services. The group meets once a month in the Court House in Garner to discuss common problems and projects, and to help in maintaining better cordination of indivduals with varied training, knowledge, and jurisdiction.

Members of this group have found through the years that many times the work of the county education, health, welfare, and special education groups overlaps. When it does, there is apt to be unnecessary duplication, such as seeing that medical and dental problems receive attention, testing of hearing and vision in public schools, and correction of problems which seem to exist. At times, too, each group will assume that another is handling an existing problem, with the result that nothing is done about it. The new group is formed to remove this inefficiency.

Members of the group are as follows: Miss Marcia Mitchell, R. N., Hancock County Public Nurse, chairman; Mrs Bevelin Wallace, R. N. Britt Public School Nurse; Mr Charles Whitney, Hancock County Superintendent of Schools; Mr Donald Pottor, Special Education Supervisor for Hancock, Kossuth, and Winnebago Counties; Mr Elwin Hodges Hancock County Director of Social Welfare; and Mr Eric G Allen, Speech Therapist for Hancock, Winnebago, and Kossuth counties.

To the date most of the discussion has centered around problems in dealing with children who may have health, education and social or all of these problems. Some twenty cases have been handled, and the group feels that they have been handled with much greater efficiency then in the past. This is the first such group to be formed in the state and it has received widespread approval. Several other counties are in the process of forming similar ogranizations, following the pattern established here.

Services Held for Mrs. Gates at Garner

Funeral services for Mrs Fred Gates, 80, were held at the Bohn Funeral Home in Garner on Saturday at 2 p. m. with the Rev. Trevor Baskerville, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Garner, in charge. Interment was in the Concord Township Cemetery at Garner. The Bohn Funeral Home was in charge.

Mrs Fred Gates formerly Celia Jane Nesbit, was born in Port Sarney, Ontario, Canada, on September 22, 1875, and passed away in her home last Wednesday morning, May 16, at the age of 80 years, 6 months and 25 days, after suffering for 6 weeks from a paralytic stroke.

Mrs Gates was the 4th child of a family of 6 children of Margaret Ann Smith and William Nesbit, all of whom are now dead except for one brother Raliegh E Nesbit of Garner.

On November 4, 1896 she was united in marriage to Fred Gates of Garner, Iowa. The Gates lived in Hancock Counnty until 1919 when they retired from farming and moved to Ingram, Wis where they lived for 7 years. They then moved to Klemme where they made their home for seven years, then to Clear Lake where they lived 12 years. Mr and Mrs Gates were married 56 years, celebrating their Golden Wedding Anniversary nine years ago at Clear Lake.

To this union was born seven children, including two sets of twins. The children are (Cora) Mrs Roy Schaefer of Klemme; (Hattie) Mrs Ben Ridder of Liberty Township; (Mattie) Mrs Ben Reimer of Garner; (Florence) Mrs Robert Martinson of Minneapolis, Minn.; Laurence Gates of Reseda, California; and (Margaret) Mrs Kenneth Garver of Waterloo. Mrs Ridder and Mrs Reimer are twins as are Mrs Martinson and Laurence Gates.

Mrs Gates is preceded in death by her husband and one son who died at birth. She leaves to mourn her passing her six children, 13 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren, and her brother Raliegh.

Due to circumstances beyond his control, her son Laurence of Reseda, California, was unable to be here for the funeral.

Dial System Takes Large Investment For Telephone Company

At the expense of approximately $125,000, Central Iowa Telephone Company has completed changing the local telephone exchange to the dial system. The new system is as modern as is possible and the company is standardizing their whole system with this equipment. When the time comes that long distance dialing is an actuality for Klemme, no changes will have to be made in the equipment. All that will be necessary will be the hookup.

The system here employs what is called selective ringing, which means that regardless of whether or not you are on a rural or a town party line, when your phone rings, it will be the only one on the line to ring. Calls are also limited to six to eight minutes, with a one minute warning signal prior to cut off. This is to aid in keeping lines open.

One other good feature of the new system is that regardless of where you move in the exchange territory, you will always retain the same telephone number.

The new building which houses the dial controls was built on the property just east of The Times office, and at the rear of the lot. It was built not only to look nice, but to be very durable, and to offer a maximum of protection from moisture and dust to the controls.

Installation of the new system was under the supervision of K L Henderson, general plant superintendent of Toledo, R G Wilmarth, district manager of Leroy, Minnesota, Roger McIntosh, dial supervisor, Manchester, Ia., and Layton Sonerholm, local manager.

On the day of the cutover to the dial system 20 crews were on hand to expidite the work. The work began at 8 o'clock in the morning and was completed by 2:45 in the afternoon, making a minimum loss of service to any user.

In the above picture Mayor V A Cook is shown in the control building making the first long distance call on the new dial system. Layton Sonerholm was on hand to give the Mayor any necessary instructions.

Spearing of Rough Fish Now Lawful

Iowa bowfishermen and spearmen are reminded that the 1956 rough fish spearing season is now open in all Iowa waters normally open to fishing.

This spearing season—which officially began on May 1 but which is awaiting spring freshets to begin in earnest—will extend through October 31, 1956.

Legal spearing hours are between the hours of sunrise and sunset, when rough fish may be taken by either bow and arrow or spear. Rough fish include carp, dogfish, buffalo, gar, quillback and gizzard shad.

Although there has been some successful spearing this spring in the lake regions, most stream and river spearmen have been handicapped by low, clear water. The best bowfishing and spearing is usually during periods of high water, when large rough fish congregate in shallow, muddy backwaters and may be easily taken.

This spearing season is a regular open season similar to other fishing season and bears no relation to the emergency all-fish spearing that was legalized in some waters for a short period last winter.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

PRIMARY ELECTIONS

The Iowa primary election campaign is swinging into its final week. The election is June 4 when Republicans and Democrats will nominate their party candidates for the November general elections.

Observers have noted that in most areas in the state the interest in the 1956 primary races has been somewhat less than average. Some candidates for state office report considerable apathy in some areas in the primary contests.

This is somewhat unusual for the Republicans have contests for party nomination for the U S senate, lieutenant-governor and attorney general. The Democrats on the other hand, have contests for the senate, governor and lieutenant-governor.

The secretary of state's office is predicting a turnout of about 300,000 Republicans and 90,000 Democrats. There were 417,000 votes cast for governor in the 1952 primary.

Many of the veteran campaigners, however, are predicting the total vote will not exceed the 300,000 mark. They believe the Republican turnout will be about 250,000 with about 50,000 Democrats voting.

BUDGET BOOST

The state board of regents has approved of $9,769,993 for the University of Iowa in the fiscal year beginning July 1. The budget carries an increase of $302,655 over the current fiscal year. It covers teaching, research and service functions of the university.

ON RAIDS

Norman Erbe, Republican candidate for the GOP nomination for attorney general, pledged at a Buena Vista county meeting that he will not make raids in any community "without consulting local officials." He told TOP leaders "that's a pledge."

Erbe has been quoted as saying that law enforcement activities of the attorney general's office have been over-emphasized.

In past months there has been some questions in state circles as to whether chief enforcement duties rested with the commissioner of public safety or the attorney general.

POLIO SHOTS

Nearly a million Iowans now are eligible to obtain polio vaccine. Under the present programming in this state the amount of vaccine available will permit the polio shots for all Iowa youngsters under 19 as well as the expectant mothers.

Because of supply, the shots were restricted to use of children 3 through 12 and pregnant women.

The state health department estimates that there are about 975,000 Iowans in the eligible groups, and that about a third of the total already has received at least two injections.

NAME AGENTS

Three new agents have been appointed by the state bureau of criminal investigation to begin duties June 1. They are Richard Pettit, 24, Marshalltown; Richard L Klein, 23, Iowa Falls; Floyd H Mallette, Jr., Fort Madison.

Their assignment means that four new agents have been added to the bureau in recent weeks.

Gov Leo Hoegh who recently conducted an investigation of the department as a result of complaints made by a group of sheriffs, said the bureau was undermanned and that more agents would be added to the staff.

TAX RETURNS

An attorney general's ruling holds that husband and wife, filing a joint state income tax return, are entitled by law to only one standard deduction.

The opinion was asked by the tax commission and it upholds a commission regulation governing such deductions.

HIGHWAY HAY

The Iowa state highway commission is taking steps to fufill a request by Gov. Leo Hoegh that grass along the state primary roads be permitted to grow into hay for needy farmers.

The right-of-way hay would be used to supplement the hay crop, the governor suggested. He said the hay crop has been reduced sharply in parts of the state by spring droughts.

The plan might produce 16,000 tons of hay, the governor estimates.

HUNT, FISH

Nearly 20,000 more hunting licenses and 17,000 more fishing licenses have been sold by the state conservation commission than in the previous year. The commission said the increases were in the year's period ending March 31 and compared with sales the year before.

The tally showed 215,701 Iowans took out hunting permits, while 241,206 obtained fishing licenses, and 156,755 took out combination hunting-fishing permitts.

Hunting and fishing permits cost $1.50 each and the combination permit is s2.50.

PENSION RULING

The state employment security commission said an Iowa supreme court ruling in a pension case could cost the Iowa public employee pension system a maximum of about $15-millions. The state treasurer's office, however, which invests the pension funds in securities, said that, as of now, the benefit fund amounts to nearly $53-millions.

The present outgo is about $275,000 monthly to about 8,400 retired employees.

Meantime, State Sen Duane Dewel of Algona has again urged the governor to appoint a committee to study the pension program as requested in a senate resolution.

GI HOMES

The average veteran buying a GI home during the last two years was 32 years old and had a monthly income of $494. He paid nearly $11,800 for his home, said the Veterans Administration, which made the report.

SAND

Vandals recently ruined the motor of an automobile owned by William Norton, Cedar County attorney, at Tipton. The sand was poured in through the oil intake.

Music Mothers Elect Officers; Report On Last Year's Activities

The Klemme Music Mothers met in the band room on Wednesday, May 16th for their last meeting of the school year.

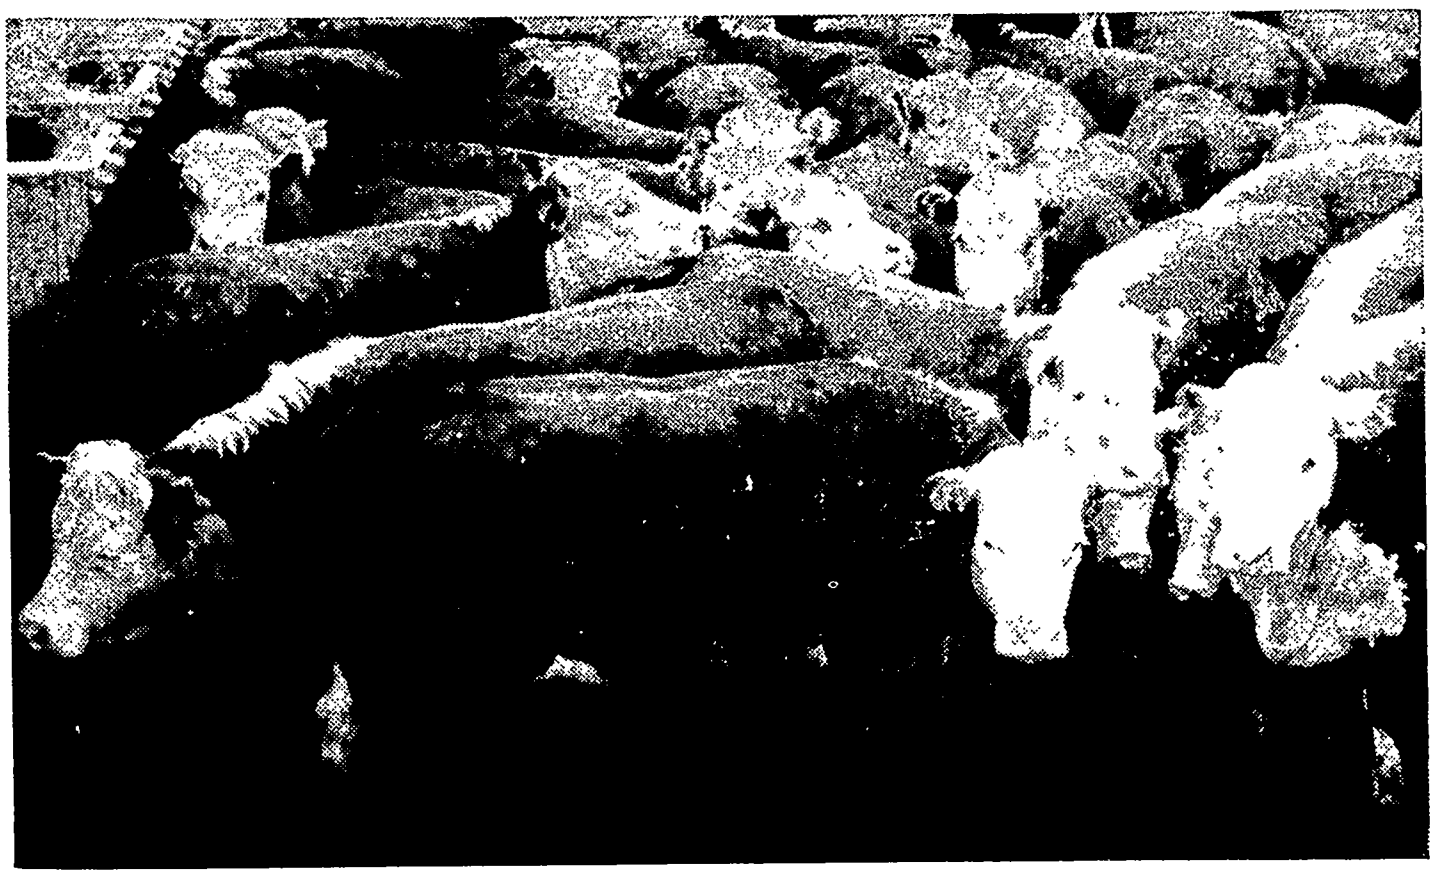
An election of officers was held and the following were chosen for the coming year: Mrs August Josten, president; Mrs Ewald Josten, vice president; Mrs John Waddingham, secretary; Mrs Roy Swanson, treasurer. The uniform committee for the coming year includes Mrs Art Kudje, Mrs Karl Huenemann, Mrs Clarence Lenz and Mrs Carol Brager.

Mrs Chester Renner is the retiring president of the group.

Several mothers brought white shoes and shirts that their children had outgrown. The shoes and shirts will be used by smaller children in the band. The Music Mothers like all band members to wear the white shoes and boys' white shirts at all band appearances. They feel that the uniformity is one of the reasons for Klemme's band being one of the outstanding bands in north Iowa.

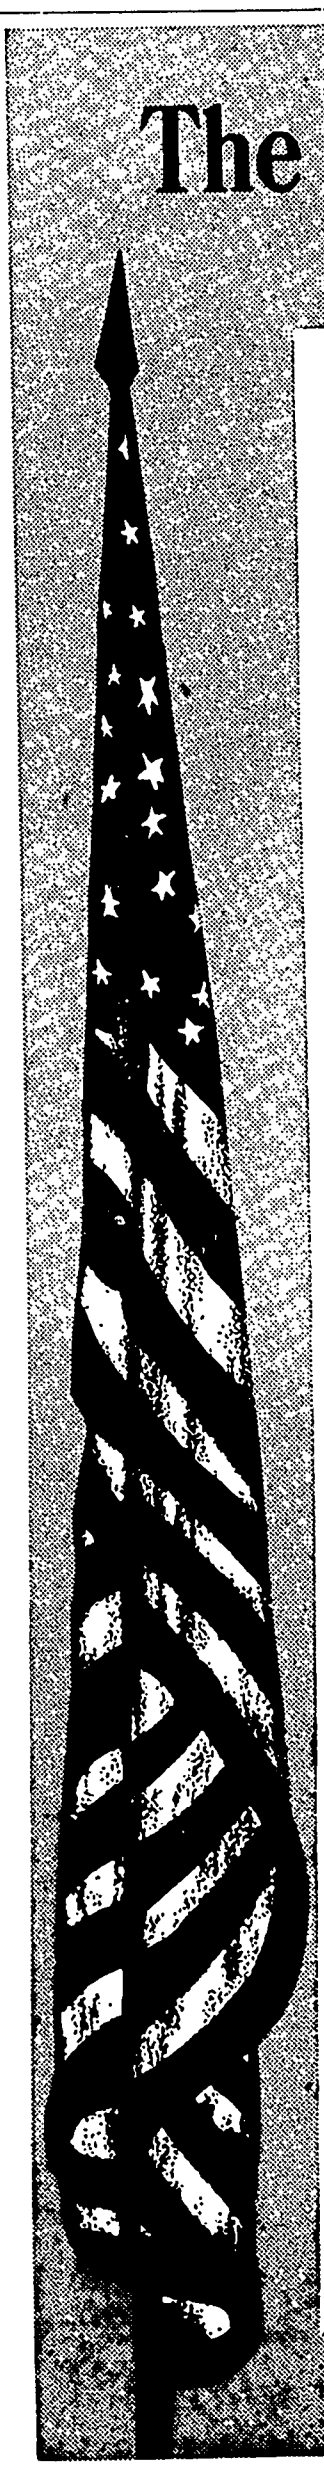
The band and chorus contest held here was the largest activity for the group for the year. Lunch was available for the nearly 1700 students who were at the contest. Profit from serving lunches at the contest was approximately $170.00.

Items purchased from some of the club's earnings for the year were three new band uniforms, a tuner, and a parade snare drum.



These choice white-faced heifers were shipped to the Sioux City market by Edgar Buss, Klemme, Iowa. The heifers sold at Sioux City on Wednesday, May 9. Thirty-four head averaged 988 pounds and sold for $20.75.

The Power of Memorial Day
by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale



I had the privilege of growing up in small Ohio communities in the early part of this century, and one of my most inspirational memories centers around Memorial Day and the old soldiers of the Civil War.

To me, Memorial Day was one of the most moving of all the national holidays. I was stirred by the speeches and martial music from the bandstand or cemetery on what we called "Decoration Day." There was something about the newness of life that the Spring had brought; soft sunshine falling on the fresh green grass of early summer, the misty hills in the distance, the sound of stirring national songs, and above all, the softly flapping flag in the gentle breeze as the speaker told us of our country, the deep devotion of its heroes, and recounted once more the stirring episodes of our heroic past.

And many a lazy summer afternoon, I sat on the coping around the old courthouse listening to the veterans of the Civil War tell of their experiences in the epic struggle between the States. A boy's imagination quickly sent him off behind long columns of blue or grey, and to him, such names as Antietam, The Wilderness, Shiloh, and Gettysburg became very real and meaningful.

Those old soldiers used to talk gratefully of Lincoln's insistence that those who had borne the heat of the battle and the burden of the struggle, the widow and the orphan, were to be given not charity, but their rightful due as the dependents of those brave men who had fought to preserve liberty and to keep the Union intact. It was regarded as a sacred duty of the nation, and the nation kept faith with its veterans.

In those days, as now, were many who had been disabled by the struggle. Their ability to compete in life had been reduced by wounds suffered in battle. Even as a boy I remember hearing how it seemed they were thought of only on such days as Memorial Day, when orators, fervent in their patriotism, remembered, if only for a day, the long continuing sacrifice made not by those who had died in battle, but by the disabled who were to live for many years following the great struggle.

The heroes of World War I and World War II and the Korean War are, of course, men who, with no concern for themselves, gave their lives that freedom might live. We can never do them adequate honor. And, we must never forget them. They died in their young life, forsaking the opportunities of the years that the rest of us might live and develop our highest hopes and dreams.

However, there are other living heroes who deprived themselves of either physical, emotional, or mental health for us and for their fellow countrymen. It would be as wrong for us to neglect or forget them as their buddies who today sleep on some Pacific Island or in a European cemetery. A hero dead or a hero maimed and disabled are both due our equal gratitude and our unceasing devotion.

We must never forget that the most effective way of honoring those who have died is to remember the living disabled, that their lives may be rich and full. They are a great asset to our country as the living embodiment of devotion to freedom. A country is recreant indeed which does not everlastingly keep alive grateful appreciation to those who suffered disability to perpetuate everything that we Americans hold dear.

There could be no better time than on Memorial Day to resolve that we shall gratefully support the honored men and women who have suffered disability from the wars of the United States.

(Written especially for the Disabled American Veterans, the Idento-Tag organization)

THE KLEMME TIMES

OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER | KLEMME, IOWA, MAY 30, 1956 | VOLUME 61 | NUMBER 22

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Memorial Day. Old times on parade in too tight uniforms . . . high school band members strutting their stuff in fancy uniforms . . . older old timers in Legion caps and comfortable civvies . . . scouts and cub scouts in uniform, not fully realizing what the day is all about but proud to be a part of the parade . . Auxiliary members neat in white uniforms decorating graves.

After ceremonies old timers rehash old times, re-fight old battles, remember old buddies, some gone . . . older old timers remember other buddies—more of them gone . . . high schoolers drink their pop and beat it to enjoy the holiday with their families and friends . . . scouts and cubs go home and probably don't want to take off their uniforms, but probably find that Mom still rules the roost . . . Auxiliary members turn into moms who rule roosts and know what's best for their youngsters.

Through it all runs the serious thought of why the special day, and memories come to many of loved ones lost in battle or preparation for battle . . . and deep in the heants of all is a prayer that similar sacrifice may never again be necessary.

"To be sorry for your mistakes is good—to say so is better!"

We hope that parents of many Klemme youngsters will give their children a chance to learn to swim by signing them up for Red Cross swimming lessons this summer. Chances are they'll never really need to know how, but if the time should ever come that they did, they would certainly be thankful that they had the training. And even if swimming never became necessary, there is lots of good clean healthful fun to be had in the water.

We have heard some talk about young fellows out with .22's using insulators, song birds, etc., for target practice. Better cut it fellows! Insulators and many song birds are protected by law. Besides, you'll feel lots better hearing the cheery songs of the birds than you will thinking about how they look after you put an end to their music.

Growing things look nice and green again following the some over an inch of rain that we had the fore part of the week. Makes lots of yard mowing, but is also makes crops grow better.

Bet those old timers and older old timers would like to change places with some of the high schoolers in the band on Memorial Day.

"Slow Down and Live" Campaign is Underway

A campaign to convince Iowa drivers they should "Slow Down and Live" is underway in the state today.

The drive to ease traffic speeds will continue until Labor Day in an attempt to cut the increase in the highway death rate that usually accompanies the summer months.

Russell Brown, state safety education director, pointed out that "every driver in the state can make a direct contribution to this campaign simply by easing the pressure on the accelerator."

He warned that the majority of fatal traffic accidents have speed too fast for conditions as a direct or indirect cause.

"The faster your speed, the less time you are allowing yourself to react in the face of danger. The loss of a second or two in reaction time can mean the loss of your life," he warned.

Brown said "speed too fast for conditions isn't necessarily 60 or 70 miles an hour. Forty miles an hour can be too fast under certain conditions."

Gov Leo Hoegh recently proclaimed "Slow Down and Live" months in Iowa and issued a call for support to officials of communities and state-wide organizations.

Enforcement officers throughout the state have been asked to be particularly watchful for all violators related to speed.

Judges and justices of the peace have been asked to keep the needs of the safety campaign in mind when dealing with motorists arrested for speeding and for other violations related to speed.

Livestock Farms Are 'Price Risky'

Lack Support, Control That Crop Farms Have

During the past few years, the most vulnerable or "price risky" part of farming in Iowa has been on farms where livestock provides the major share of the income.

Gordon Bifens and H B Howell, extension farm economists at Iowa State College, point to two major influences which have resulted in livestock programs carrying more risks that some of the other sources of farm income.

No Price Supports

In the first place, farm price supports for corn and soybeans have helped stabilize income from crops. While net income also dropped last year on most Iowa crop farms, the average drop wasn't as great as it was on farms where livestock was the main source of income. For livestock, there have been no controls on market prices. They have been free to vary with changes in livestock supplies.

Secondly, livestock prices have been hit by the backlash from acreage controls on wheat and cotton, the economists point out. Most of the 30 million acres taken out of these two crops since 1953 has gone into the feed-grain production. This in turn has swelled livestock supplies and has depressed prices.

Keep Program in Line

In view of the current price risk in a livestock program, the economists advise keeping the livestock program in line with the resources available — including management ability.

The farm economists say it might be economically sound to cut down the livestock program in some farm operations. This might be done if more money can be saved on expenses than would be lost through a cut in the size of the farm business. On the other hand operators with sufficient funds and low debts may decide to carry a relatively large livestock program.

Bivens and Howell emphasize that under the present weather and price conditions, cutting unnecessary costs is the key for all types of farming enterprises in Iowa. Such costs, for example, include spending that isn't matched by immediate income when "cash on hand" is needed. Expenditures for machinery and buildings or labor for livestock may fall into this category on some farms. Productive expenses —those which give a fairly immediate return higher than cost —should be cut with caution, they say.

Open House Sunday

Mr and Mrs Elmer H Anderson of Goodell will observe their silver wedding anniversary, Sunday, June 3, 1956, by holding open house at their home for friends and relatives. Open house will be from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening.

Olson who had reached to close a door on his car, swerved and rammed into the rear of Kluckhohn's car which was locked and parked for the night.

There will be no charge for the dancing and plans call for at least eight Saturday nights of this free entertainment to be held this summer. In addition to the square dancing, the Klemme Band will play a concert on Main Street beginning at 8 o'clock.

Members of the Commercial Club hope that you will avail yourself of the opportunity to have a good time square dancing, listening to the band, or just watching others enjoy themselves.

Red Cross Swimming At Britt This Year

Again this year there will be Red Cross swimming instruction for Klemme youngsters. Main changes from last year's program is that this year the classes will be held at Britt in the indoor pool.

Ye Ed will take registrations for the classes at The Times office and in next week's issue of The Times we will print a schedule of the classes, which will start on June 10th.

In a telephone conversation with Supt Earl Miller of the Britt Schools, we learned that the practice there is to take children who have finished kindergarten, and that there is no maximum age limit. Supt Miller said that they liked to have one group from kindergarten to third or fourth grade, and those older than that in another group.

The only cost to swimmers will be the bus fare which we imagine will be the same as last year.

All registrations should be turned in at The Times office not later than Wednesday, June 6th.

SEEK REAPPORTIONMENT

The Iowa League of Women Voters, long interested in the proposition, will begin an active campaign for reapportionment of the state legislature.

The group, in state convention, adopted a motion that would obtain reapportionment through a constitutional amendment.

The action left open the question of which house would be elected on a population basis and which upon an area basis.

Delegates approved a plan providing "a constitutional amendment to secure more equitable representation in the Iowa legislature by population with provisions to assure regular and adequate reapportionment."

NEW PROPOSALS

Four recommendations on real estate taxation have been made to the Iowa taxation study committee.

Presented by Dr W G Murray, research director of the unit, they called for:

Legislation setting assessments at not to exceed 60 percent of the actual value; more efforts to equalize assessments; removal of tax exemptions on any real estate endowments acquired by educational institutions after July 1, 1957, and removal of the requirement that persons appointed county assessors be residents of the county.

Murray said the present level of assessments is not in excess of 35 percent, or not far from half the required level of 60 percent of actual value.

POSTAL RATES

At a state meeting of Iowa postmasters, an official of the National Association of Postmasters recommended postal rate increases to put the department "on an equitable financial basis."

The suggestion was made in Des Moines by Charles E Puskar, executive secretary of the NAP.

LAWYERS LEAVING

Iowa's younger lawyers are leaving the state because they can get better jobs elsewhere. That's what President Virgil Hancher of the University of Iowa has reported to an Iowa legislative committee.

Hancher said that half of this year's law school graduating class "are leaving Iowa because they can get better jobs elsewhere." He said they can command better salaries than lawyers in the state are paying.

University officials said that 30 of a class of 55 will not remain in Iowa to practice.

Hancher made his report to the taxation committee in a discussion of funds for a building expansion program at the three state schools of higher education.

AVOID DUPLICATION

A legislative subcommittee has recommended that the state board of regents, supervisory policy-making group over the three institutions of higher education, review courses offered to avoid duplication in courses offered at the University of Iowa and Iowa State College.

TYPHOID INCREASE

An increase in typhoid fever cases in Iowa has been noted by state health authorities.

Although not alarming, the noticeable hike caused Dr Abraham Gedperin, Des Moines-Polk County health director, to suggest "you might say we have an outbreak of typhoid fever in our county." Presently there are five cases in the county where as only one was reported all last year.

State authorities report 12 cases in the first four months of '56. The state average had been 24 cases a year, but there were 28 last year.

SALES TAX

One senator has recommended changes in the Iowa sales tax picture. He made his recommendations to the special state taxation study commitee.

State Sen Herman Knudson, Mason City Republican, suggested a plan that would up the sales tax to three per cent, expand it to services, or increase the state income tax schedule slightly.

Knudson's plan would provide substantially greater funds to replace school property taxes, it would also provide payment of 2 percent of collections to merchants for expense in collecting the sales tax.

He would reduce the present 2 and-a-half percent sales tax to 2 percent, which would cut the income to the state treasury by $13 million. The lost income would be replaced through expansion of the sales tax to services or be otherwise raised. Then the sales tax would be upped to 3 percent with one-third of the income distributed to counties to replace school property taxes.

HEADS IOWA BAR

R R Bateson, Eldora, has been named president of the Iowa State Bar Association, at the 83rd annual convention.

Shirley Webster, Winterset, is the new vice-president.

Bateson, former State senator, succeeds Henry J TePaske, of Orange City. The president serves one year.

TePaske and Neill Garrett, Des Moines were elected to represent Iowa on the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association.

Obituary of John Henry Suckow

(By Arthur Wellemeyer)

John Henry Suckow, 65, a lifetime resident of the Klemme community, died suddenly Tuesday afternoon, May 29, 1956, while supervising a construction job on the Erwin Nuehring farm in Twin Lake Township.

He was born December 16, 1890, on a farm in Liberty Township, the second of seven children born to Henry Suckow and Taldine Brouwer Suckow. He attended the rural school nearby. And after receiving the usual religious instruction, became a member of the Liberty Methodist Church.

On September 27, 1916, John Henry Suckow, age 25, and Edna Schuldt, age 22, were married. Mr. Suckow was a carpenter by trade, and for many years, was foreman of the construction crew, at the Northern Lumber Company of Klemme, Iowa. And while the husband, John, built the home with its pleasant front porch, with his own hands, the wife, Edna, was busy planting shrubs and flowers to beautify the setting.

Truly there is no place like home. Especially if you build the place with your own hands. Here they lived, loved, and enjoyed their own home for the nearly forty years of their married life.

So many things can happen, and do happen, in a home during forty years.

There was rejoicing in this home, from time to time, when babies were born—three of them—Irene, Wesley, and Helen.

There was weeping in this home, now and then, throughout the years, when the angel of death called and took their loved ones.

Again there was gladness within the walls of this home, as the children grew up, were married and left the parental roof. And now a most joyful noise eminates from this home, as the eight grandchildren call to romp and play, and eat of grandmother's cookies.

And finally, after a lifetime of service to his family and friends, and just before the infirmities of old age arrive, the Master says "well done", and John Henry Suckow is taken from us. His age, 65 years, 5 months, and 15 days.

He leaves besides his wife: three children: Irene, Mrs. Arnett Waddingham, Clear Lake; Iowa; Wesley Suckow, Klemme, Iowa; and Helen, Mrs. Thomas Roths, Jr., Klemme; Iowa.

Two sisters: Etna, Mrs Herman Paul, Klemme, Iowa; and Mae, Mrs Lawrence Schaefer, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Three brothers: Carl Suckow, Springfield, Missouri; Rev. Wm. Suckow, Shueyville, Iowa; and Louis Suckow, Mason City, Iowa.

Also eight grandchildren, and many other relatives and friends.

A few days ago city clerk Milan Blake of Osceola walked past the Burlington depot there, found a water leak due to a break in the main. 15 years ago, before he was city clerk, Mr Blake had reported the same leak. Estimates are that the leak has cost the city about 23 million gallons of water in 15 years. Osceola has been through severe water shortages since then.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Two nice showers this week have done much to improve the looks of growing things. The two showers amounted to just under an inch of moisture and gave crops in the area a much needed boost.

Big John Eenhuis says that he believes that he can find nine men in town who can beat any nine men from surrounding countryside in a game of soft_ball. In fact, he says he'll chal_lenge. Might prove rather in_teresting.

If you like to see people enjoy themselves then be down at the cement slab in the park Satur_day night. Last Saturday night the older dancers had a good time, but the school kids really enjoyed themselves. They have been having some square dancing lessons in school, and their eyes really sparked as they pranced through the various routines. Fun to watch, and probably more fun to do.

In a way voters can't really be blamed too much for not turning out for Monday's primary elec_tion. There just wasn't enough competition to make the thing interesting. By next fall, though, after the two major political parties have heckled one another all summer, there should be enough interest generated in some of the races to bring out a better representation at the polls. Hope so, anyway, cause that's the only place that John Q Public has anything to say about who's going to run the country.

Local youngsters should be able to swim like fish by the end of the summer. If they continue on the schedule as set up for the Red Cross swimming lessons, they will have had twenty_one lessons by the end of the course. That's twenty_one more than we ever had, and we have always managed to stay afloat. Power to 'em.

Even though they learn to swim, and learn it well, there are still a number of safety rules to remember in order to stay aive.

1. Never swim alone.
2. River currents are danger_ous and river depths unpredic_table. Swim in properly super_vised pools. They are the only safe places to swim.
3. Wait one hour after meals before entering the water.
4. Don't swim after vigorous exercise or tiring work.
5. Swim reasonably close to the shore. Don't venture into deep water trusting to the sup_port of water wings, an inflated tube, or another swimmer.
6. Muscle cramps are warning signs. They mean get back on dry land.
7. Night bathing is for expert swimmers only, in familiar water and when accompanied by other swimmers.
8. Swimming from anchored or unanchored boats in deep water is unsafe . . . even for accom_plished swimmers.
9. Come out of the water be_fore you feel tired or chilly. Staying in the water after you feel tired and cold not only en_dangers your safety but lowers your resistance to various infec_tious diseases.
10. Make your swimming holi_day a happy one by keeping it safe.

Carol Bridges Will Represent Klemme at Annual Band Festival

Carol Bridges, daughter of Mr and Mrs Orvel Bridges, has been chosen as Miss Klemme to re_present our community as a can_didate for the title of Miss North Iowa at the annual North Iowa Band Festival at Mason City, June 12. Ninety_six girls are hopeful candidates for the title.

Miss Bridges has been a mem_ber of the Klemme band five years. She played clarinet in the woodwind chamber group two years, and has been in the girls glee club and mixed chorus three years. She has been a cheer_leader four years, vice_president of her junior class and secretary of the student council in her freshman year. She was in the junior and senior plays, on the annual and newspaper staffs, and a queen attendant at the Han_cock County junior_senior prom. She sings in the Methodist Church choir and is secretary of the Girls Society of Christian Ser_vice.

Primary Election Was Quiet Affair As Few Voters Cast Ballots

Monday's primary election was a rather quiet affair with only contest in the county being be_tween two democrats seeking their party's nominaiton for the office of supervisor . . . and even that was not much of a contest. Ed Malek out ran his opponent Paul Schott by a five to one margin.

All other county officers were unopposed and will be on the ballot for the November general election.

U S Senator Bourke W Hick_enlooper easily outdistanced his younger challenger, Dayton Countryman, and will campaign this fall against "Spike" Evans, who won the Democratic nomi_nation from Lumund Wilcox.

Herschel Loveless of Ottumwa won the Democratic nomination for the office of governor and will be on the ballot this fall opposing Gov Leo Hoegh, who was unopposed in the Republican primary.

James I Dolliver of Fort Dodge, incumbent Republican represen_tative from the 6th district will again be on the ballot this fall and will be opposing Democrat Merwin Coad.

Curtis G Riehm, incumbent Republican state representative will again campaign against De_mocrat Rex Austin for the fall election.

Less than 25% of the eligible voters in the county exercised their privilege and went to the polls Monnday.

Two Local Girls Elected to County 4-H Offices

On Saturday, June 2nd, the Annual Rally Day for Hancock County 4_H girls was held in the Klemme High School Gym. The purpose of Rally Day this year was to make clearer to all, the rich purpose and living power that lie on the 4_H symbols and pledge. Their emblem is a 4_leaf Clover—one leaf for head, one for heart, one for hands, and one for health. Their pledge is:

I pledge, My head to clearer thinking, My heart to greater loyalty, My hands to larger ser_vice, My health to better living for my club, my community, my country and my world.

Clearer thinking comes when they read and discuss things. They learn Parliamentary Pro_cedure for their meetings. They learn to use their minds to plan work carefully and efficiently. They are training themselves for responsibility in the community.

Greater loyalty is expressed when they show sympathy for the less fortunate, when they share with others what they pos_sess of beauty, good ideas, high hopes and dreams. They are learning to be tolerant of people of other races. As they learn to be loyal to their inner selves, they are learning to be true and loyal to their friends and commu_nity.

Larger service means they are, as the homemakers of tomor_row, learning through their pro_jects (this year it is Home Fur_nishing) to understand the value and true pleasure of doing home work efficiently and happily.

Better living means they are feeling well enough to receive an active joy in everyday affairs because a true 4_H girl is clear_eyed, upstanding, alert, because she follows the rules of health—good posture, plenty of sleep and proper food habits.

The county organization, through its county officers, tries to make their citizenship activ_ities real and important to them. Each rally day, officers are elec_ted by campaign speeches, vot_ting and then an installation ceremony.

The new officers elected at the rally are: President, LaVohn Josten, North Ell Tip Toppers; Vice President, Bonnie Eckels; Secretary_Treasurer, Sharleen Swanson, South Ell Tip Toppers; Historian, Esther Edwards.

It is only through the cooper_ative efforts of many adults that the 4_H program can be carried on so successfully. Each year the girls try to show their ap_preciation by making some adult an honorary member. This year she is Mrs Elmer Jante from Garfield Township.

SQUARE DANCE

A large crowd, both young and old, was on hand last Sat_urday night to enjoy the square dancing on the cement slab in the Klemme Park. Calvin Smith of near Kanawha was the cal_ler and furnished the orches_tra, and everyone seemed to be really enjoying themselves.

Previous to the square dance which began at nine o'clock, the Klemme band played a concert on Main Street, be_ginning at eight o'clock.

This Saturday night will again see the band concert at eight, and the square dance at nine. Loyd Krazee of Bassett will be the caller for the dance. He calls to records, and we understand that his wife gets out among the dancers and helps to get the beginners going.

A good time is in store for everyone in Klemme Saturday night, so come and join in the fun.

Swimming Classes Will Start Monday; Will Be Three Classes Per Week

Ninety_two children have sign_ed up for Red Cross swimming classes which will begin at Britt on Monday, June 11th and con_tinue for approximately seven weeks.

Local swimmers will ride school buses to Britt on Monday, Wed_nesday and Friday of each week until completion of the course.

The buses will leave from the Klemme Park each swimming day at approximately 12:15 and 1:15, with the younger children going in the first bus and swimming at 1:00 p. m. and the older chil_dren going in the last bus and swiming at 2:00 p.m.

Parents of all children who have enrolled for the classes are asked to have them at the park by 12:15 this coming Monday, June 11th, so that they can be put into their proper age group, and each child is to have his $2 transportation fee with him. If you send checks, make them payable to the Klemme Com_munity School District.

It will not be necessary for any mothers to go with the groups this year as there will be super_visors in the locker rooms at the pool. However, any parents who wish to go and see what takes place at the classes are more than welcome, according to Supt Miller of Britt, who is in charge of the program.

George Matthews, Tenor To Sing at Local Church

At 8 o'clock on Sunday eve_ning June 17th, one of the out_standing Negro tenors of the country will present a concert at the E & R Church. This is no ordinary singer and the public is cordially invited and urged to be present.

Horace G Smit, president em_eritcs of Garrett Bibical Insti_tute says of this "Singing Mis_sionary": "George Matthews, dis_tinquished Negro tenor, pre_sented his Sermon in Song in our chapel before faculty and stu_ dents. His appropiate selections and timely comments for the oc_casion were rendered in a man_ner that deeply touched and moved us all . . .Although I am not a music critic, I know when music lays hold of me and I am equally aware of the occasion when a body of men and women are lifted up by an artist."

Other ministers are equally loud in their praises of the fine spirit and excellent artistry of this man.

Mark the date on your calen_dar, Sunday, June 17th, and plan to hear this fine Negro singer.

Music Recital

The students of Mr and Mrs E A Gerardi will be presented in a recital at the Klemme High School Gymnasium on Sunday, June 10. There will be two pro_grams, one beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the other at 7:30 in the evening.

The public is invited to attend and there will be no charge.

With the candidates now selected by their respective party's members of both political organizations will draw the battle lines for the November general elections. At stake will be one of Iowa's two seats in the U S senate, the congressional seats, the governorship and state offices.

Party platforms for the state battle will be drawn at the regular state conventions this summer. The Republicans will hold their convention Friday ,July 20 and the Democrats will convene Tuesday, July 31.

EGG SALES

The state department of agriculture has approved a plan whereby Iowa farmers can legally circumvent the new Iowa egg law passed by the legislature. A plan for selling eggs direct to an eastern buyer or market and bypassing certain state requirements has been approved.

The Iowa egg law requires that all eggs be bought and sold on the basis of graded size and quality. It also requires licensing of egg dealers, retailers and graders.

The agriculture department, after conferring with the attorney general. contends the law does not affect sales in instances where the farmer sells direct to a egg buyer who does his own grading upon receiving the Iowa shipment.

TRUCK STUDY

A $30,000 study of Iowa truck transportation will be made by the state legislature budget committee. Half of the funds will come from the federal government.

The Iowa highway commission will cooperate in the study and has approved the expenditure of $5,000 of its share of the cost.

The study, to determine wear and tear on trucks on the primary highways, will be conducted by William Price. commission safety engineer.

Chairman of the state budget committee is Henry Stevens of Jefferson, state representative.

GAS RECORD

State gasoline tax collections set a new record in May when the state treasurer's office reported $6,288,650 collected in the month. The total is about $100,000 higher than the previous record set in August. 1955.

Collections for the first five months this year is about $25,000,000, a gain of about $5,000,000 over the same period a year ago.

BUTTER OUTPUT

Iowa creameries are really churning out the butter. In April a total of 17,500,000 pounds were produced, an increase of a million and a half pounds over April of 1955.

The output also represented a 10% increase over the 1950-54 five year average April production of 15,970,000 pounds.

HOUSING NEEDS

Des Moines' chief sanity officer, W O Fuller, said that Iowa is willing to accept federal subsidy for cows, chickens, airports, highways and pigs but not for housing of its citizens.

There are now, he said, 45 of 48 states which have federal subsidy for housing but "there is none in Iowa."

SUSPENDED 30 DAYS

A Des Moines liquor store manager was suspended from his duties for 30 days because one customer was permitted to buy 432 bottles of liquor in the state in about three and a half months.

The customer later admitted the whiskey later was sold by the drink in a tavern only a few blocks from the Iowa statehouse.

The suspension was given by the state liquor commission which has issued orders against excessive sales to customers.

LABOR BOSS?

Mayor Ray Mills of Des Moines may be challenged for the presidency of the Iowa Federation of Labor AFL-CIO when the two unions amalgamate later this month.

A A Couch, veteran Des Moines labor chief and one time president of the Iowa Federation of Labor AFL, has announced that he plans to oppose Mills.

Mills defeated Couch for the AFL presidency in 1951, and has been heading the movement ever since.

Insiders report that Mills will not be unseated by Couch for the CIO vote has been pledged to Mills for this first joint election of the two labor organizations in the state. Mills would also get a good share of the AFL vote in a contest for the top spot.

GETS BAR AWARD

Jessie E Marshall, Sioux City attorney, has received the Iowa State Bar association annual ward of merit.

The award is made in recognition of personal standards and accomplishments as a lawyer and as a citizen with years of service to the state bar association.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

The recent price push in the livestock markets is the result of a substantial reduction in marketings, according to Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. First it was lambs that put on the big price boost, then hogs.

With lambs. Kutish says that the main force behind the climbing prices was the cut back in supply. He explains that we always get some price rise with the shift from old crop lambs to new crop springs but that the price rise was more than can be explained by this shift in crop basis.

The early spring lamb crop was down slightly this year, and existing supplies moved rapidly. Since the supply available for for the Greek Holidays was limited, prices shot up to $30 in Chicago—it's been sometime since any livestock brought that kind of money.

These market conditions point out the desirability of having early lambs ready for the June or early July market. That's when the market is usually best for early Iowa lambs. In the hog markets, Kutish again says that it was the let-up in marketings that gave the push to hog prices. Marketings had been declining in eastern Corn Belt for sometime, but sales were heavy in Iowa and southern Minnesota until recently. The pork provisions market has strengthened with the rise in the live market and Kutish says that the hog price outlook is good for the next 6 to 8 weeks.

Taking a longer look at the hog market. Kutish predicts that hog prices during the late fall and early winter definitely will be higher than the depressed figures of last December—probably somewhere between $2 to $4 higher than last year's bottom.

He cites the smaller pig crop being raised this spring and indications of a reduction in the summer crop; narrower killing margins, and forecasts of further increases in consumer incomes as the forces behind this predicted price level. He also warns that the possibilities of a larger supply of lower grade beef this fall, a possible loss in demand for pork and a change that business could turn downward, instead of showing strength as forecasted by the USDA, will tend to pull hog prices down.

In any event, however, Kutish believes that summer and early fall marketings will more closely approach the levels of a year earlier than will marketings in late fall and winter. Thus, prices this summer and early fall will be more nearly in line with the figures of a year earlier.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

There may be a false impression that a highway patrolman's rating with his superiors is based entirely on the number of contacts the patrolman makes with the public.

As a matter of fact, the patrol has a standard rating sheet containing 14 items for the evaluation of each officer. Supervisory officers complete a form on each patrolman twice a year. Here are the areas of evaluation:

Knowledge of work - does the patrolman know his job?

Carrying out orders - is he dependable?

Enforcement effort - weak, satisfactory or good.

On the job - does he loaf or is he a conscientious worker?

Contact with radio - is he in his car to receive radio calls?

Personal appearance - careless or neat.

Courtesy - is he discourteous or always courteous?

Deportment in public places - is he a loud show-off or does he create a good impression?

Ability to take constructive criticism - does he resent it or does he want to improve?

Loyalty - does he knock the organization and other officers or is he proud of the patrol and loyal to members?

Public speaking - does he prepare for speeches and do his best to get across a safety message when called on?

Operation of patrol car - is he sometimes careless or always careful.

Promptness with reports and cost per mile of operation of his patrol car complete each patrolman's rating. Enforcement is only one out of 14 items used in evaluating a patrolman's worth to the taxpayer.

ASC Urges Reseoling of Corn in Hancock County

Hancock County farmers having price-supported corn on their farms will be urged to reseal as much of it as possible for another year to help solve the big grain storage problem which has developed in the state.

Under the program reported this week by the Hancock County ASC Committee, the benefits from resealing will include a storage payment of at least 15 cents a bushel for eligible corn kept on the farms a full extra year.

Eligible for resealinng this year will be 1955 corn under original loans, 1955 corn under purchase agreements which are converted to loans, and 1954 corn now under reseal loans. There will be no further extension of loans on resealed 1953 corn still on the farms.

The statewide storage problem results from the fact that around 165 million bushels of price supported corn will be eligible for delivery to the government when the loans and purchase agreements mature on July 31. With most of the present binsite and commercial warehouse space already filled with government-owned corn, there is an estimated 78-million bushel storage of off-farm storage room.

To meet the state-wide situation, these steps are planned: Urge farmers of Iowa to reseal at least 50 million bushels of their price-supported corn; increase binsite space in the state by 18 million bushels by immediate erection of 5,535 bins recently purchased by the government, and make full use of all available old and new commercial space.

Hancock County will get 170 new bins having a total capacity of 552,500 bushels. Under terms of contracts awarded by the Department of Agriculture, these additional government bins are to be erected and ready for use by July 31. The county ASC office emphasized, however, that these new bins provide only a partial solution to the local problem and that considerable resealing will be necessary to meet the situation entirely.

A total of 1,060,484 bushels of 1953 and 1954 corn was resealed in Hancock County last year. The County Committee predicted that at least that much 1954 and 1955 corn will be resealed this year and even more if weather and crop conditions are unfavorable at delivery time.

Pointing out that some producers lack sufficient storage space to participate in resealing, he mentioned that government loans are available to finance as much as 80 percent of the cost of needed cribs and bins. These loans draw 4 percent interest and are repayable in four annual installments.

The County Committee also mentioned that the cost of grain storage facilities completed prior to January 1, 1957, can be charged off over a five-year period on income tax returns.

In explaining the benefits of resealing, the chairman emphasized that delivery of resealed corn to the government is not required to earn a storage payment. At the end of the reseal period, the farmer may either deliver or repay his loan and in either case receive a full year's storage payment. The farmer also has the right to redeem his grain at any time during the reseal year and receive a pro-rated payment for the period beginning October 1, 1956.

Farmers having resealed 1954 corn who desire to continue the reseal another year will receive the storage payment for the past year when they extend their loans in the coming settlement period.

In addition to providing an opportunity to earn a storage payment, resealing permits the producer to retain title to and possession of his corn. This protects him against a feed shortage and places him in position to profit if market prices should climb above the support rate. Quality and storage requirements for resealing are the same as for obtaining original loans. The interest rate on resealed loans remains at 3½ percent.

When You Shop—

Look at Popular Nylon Carpeting

The distinctive block pattern of this nylon carpeting shows off the ability of the nylon rug to blend equally well with either modern or traditional home furnishings.

* * *

If you're planning a "new look" for your home's interior this spring—by means of a brand-new carpet—remember nylon.

Nylon Prices Down

You may burst out with "but nylon's so expensive!" But don't speak too quickly, because a change in prices has recently come about. So many folks are so pleased with the jobs their nylon carpets are doing for them that manufacturers have upped their production of these rugs. And, of course, a production increase usually means a downward trend in prices for the retailers and for us. The new and more popular price ranges from $9.95 to $13.95 per square yard—which is decidely less than the rugs cost when they first came out a few years ago.

June Brown, extension home furnishings specialist at Iowa State College, says an outstanding quality of nylon is its toughness and strength. Actually, it's difficult to believe that the same nylon fiber used for gossamer sheer hosiery is suitable for the carpeting that claims strength as its number one asset

But it is true—and actually, the same qualities that make nylon an ideal fiber for stockings have gained a famed reputation for it in the carpeting field. Elasticity, strength, toughness, and abrasion resistance are just a few of the wonderful features this fiber boasts.

Array of Colors

When you shop, you may be surprised to see that nylon carpets boast a most startling array of colors. You'll find hues that blend nicely with most any color scheme you have. One reason for this is that nylon fiber has such an outstanding affinity for color (as you've probably discovered if you've washed white nylons in the same washer load with some non-colorfast colored garments). Nylon picks up color more than any other man-made fiber. Because nylon takes clear, bright colors so easily, manufacturers are offering a wide variety of shades in rich, luscious colors. And best news of all—they are all colorfast, so no worries about fading—from sunlight or other common faders.

There's one thing of which you can be sure if you invest in a nylon carpet—it pays high dividends. You'll get extra wear and your carpet will live a long, useful life. Its abrasion-resistant qualities, strength and general toughness assure you of this.

Takes Lots of Wear

Since nylon is both exceptionally resilient and highly elastic, a carpet of this fiber resists crushing and matting. In other words, you and Dad can walk on it as much as you like with no fear of crushing—the kiddies can romp and play more than they could on other varieties of carpeting. Even after long, hard wear and repeated cleaning treatments, your rug of nylon will keep its perky, attractive texture.

The latest in nylon carpeting is the addition of an anti-static agent. Previously many folks had one big objection to nylon rugs—the way they conducted static electricity—thus causing small "shocks" and "sticking" clothes. We don't need to fret about that any more, for a conductive neoprene latex coating has been developed. This coating is put on the backing of nylon carpeting and it reduces static effectively.

Avery Sunbeams Met

The Avery Sunbeams held their annual Mother's Day Tea at the home of Della Mae Avery, Saturday May 26th. Each girl presented her mother with a corsage. There were 17 present who recited the Flag Pledge and answered roll call, "The Vegetable I plan to Plant and Why."

June 20th was the date set for our tour and each girl will bring a dish for our picnic dinner. We discussed plans for Rally Day.

Diane Avery and Norma Lacey gave a team demonstration on "How to Use a Mitre Box." Dorothy Ostendorf gave a demonstration on "Use Your Favorite Color to Make up a Room."

Lunch was served by the hostess.

Date Changed for Soil Conservation Anniversary Meeting

Commissioners of Hancock County Soil Conservation District have changed the date of their tenth anniversary meeting from Tuesday, June 12th to Thursday, June 14th. This change was made because of a conflict with other activities.

The meeting will be held at the Garner Memorial Building with the VFW Auxiliary serving the dinner at 7:00 p. m.

Main speaker on the program will be Herb Plambeck, Farm News Editor of Radio Station WHO, DES MOINES, Iowa. He will speak on his trip to Russia and show some pictures on that trip.

Tickets are $1.50 each and may be purchased from District Commissioners and others, or at the district office in Garner. A limited number of tickets will be sold.

Election of a District Commissioner will be held at the meeting with polls open for voting from 6:30 p. m. to 10:00 p. m. Candidates for election are Ed Formanek, Garfield Township; Jake Blumer, Concord Township; and Merle Hall, Ellington Township. Land owners and operators are eligible to vote at Commissioners elections.

Minimum ADC Grant Declared Unconstitutional

District Court in Des Moines has declared the $175.00 ceiling on Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) in the State of Iowa unconstitutional. During the last session of legislature it was passed that the maximum ADC grant would be $175.00. This became effective July 1, 1955.

Judge Harvey Uhlenhopp of Hampton ruled in a case brought by Pearl Collins, Des Moines mother of six. She sought more aid for her children. Judge Uhlenhopp is temporarily assigned to Polk County District Court.

BILL OF RIGHTS

Judge Uhlenhopp based his ruling on the Iowa Bill of Rights, which, he said provides that "all laws of a general nature shall have a uniform operation; the General Assembly shall not grant to any citizens privileges of immunities which upon the same terms shall not equally belong to all citizens."

The new law, Judge Uhlenhopp ruled, is the same as though the Legislature had written, "Children in small families shall receive their full needs. Others shall receive two-thirds".

All families receiving ADC with needs exceeding $175.00 per month either had to go without or request general assistance to supplement the deficit between their actual needs and the $175. Any supplementation was direct from county funds. This of course costs some counties, especially those in the metroplitan area, a great deal of money. In Hancock County so far it has not effected the county fund to a great extent. If the ceiling remains as it presently is it will drain a larger amount from the county Poor Fund. It is quite evident that at least 98% of the people of Hancock County do not know of this ceiling and it is true that it did not effect many of our people in Hancock County. We are very fortunate in that respect.

We feel that the Legislators did not fully intend for the ceiling or maximum on certain items, but not necessarily to put a ceiling on our large families only. Since we did not approve of this action, the Iowa County Directors Association initiated and sponsored the court action. The Iowa County Director's Association is made up of all County Directors of Social Welfare in Iowa.

We are not a group of so called "do-gooders" and under no circumstances will we knowingly place anyone on our polls whom we thought was ineligible for assistance. It is always the children who are victims and the ones who suffer. Before you complain about "so and so" or "such and such a family" as receiving money they are not entitled to, think it over and put yourself in their place and ours. If we can get the ceiling entirely removed then it will be a good deed well done. We all want to work for laws that are beneficial to children.

Some Farmers Now Eligible for Social Security Benefits

April 1, 1956 marked another milestone in the history of the Social Security Act. On that date thousands of self-employed farm operators became eligible for Social Security benefits based entirely upon their farm income.

According to Paul George, manager of the Mason City Social Security Office, many farmers are not aware of this fact and may lose benefit payments as a result. Inquiry should be made of the Mason City Social Security Office, located in the basement of the post office building, by all self-employed farm operators who paid self-employment social security taxes in 1955 and who fall in one of the following categories:

1. Those who are at least 72 years of age,
2. Those who are at least 65 years of age and do not expect to have earnings over $1680 for 1956,
3. Those who have sold their farms in 1956,
4. Survivors of those farm operators who died on or after April 1, 1956.

Beef Producers Tour To Be June 15

The Hancock County Beef Producers Association board have a tour planned for Friday, June 15 to start at 8:30 a. m. at the Gilbert Guenther farm 5 miles southwest of Britt. Feed lots in the west half of the county will be visited in the morning.

A representative of the beef buying department of Wilson and Company, packing company, Albert Lea, Minnesota will appraise some of the lots of cattle on the tour and try to answer questions concerning grades, prices and kill.

All feeders and producers of beef in Hancock County are invited to participate in the tour.

The group will break up for lunch. They will eat either in Britt or Garner after which they will assemble again at 1:00 p. m. at the Memorial Building at Garner to continue the tour to herds and feedlots in the eastern half of the county starting at Lawrence Radloff's, 2 miles south and 3 miles east of Garner. Some may want to attend the tour only half a day. Pick out any or all of the tour.

The board of directors think you will profit by attending all day according to Robert Schneider; secretary.

North Ell Tip Toppers

The Mother's Day meeting of the North Ell Tip Toppers was held at the home of Lois, Luaine, and Linda Weiland. The meeting was called by Delores Greiman. Roll call was answered by having the girls introduce their mothers and presenting them with potted plants. Later we gave our mothers satin pillowcases as Mother's Day gifts. Joyce Thiemann, Elaine Jurgemeyer and Virginia Schubert made the extra cases for the guests, Mrs Jay Howlett of Britt and Elsie Mae Van Wert of Garner.

We talked about camp and a tour, but they will be discussed at the next meeting. We talked about Rally Day and we decided to bring sack lunches. Carol Humphrey sang a Mothers' Day song. Luaine Weiland played a piano solo. Diane Lewerke gave an illustrated talk.

The next meeting is to be at Lewerke's on June 4th and not June 2. In my last report, I am sorry that I didn't mention that the Brekke sisters were hostesses at Jurgemeyer's.

Association for Retarded Holds Annual Meeting

The annual convention of the Iowa Association for Retarded Children met at Hotel Ottumwa, Ottumwa, June 2nd and 3rd. The theme of this year's convention was "The Forward Look."

Speeches and reports during the two days covered recent developments in residential care and training in Iowa's schools, New Hope for Iowa's retarded children and adults, and governmental action and community planning in Iowa. Panels made up of prominent citizens and parents discussed the future of the retarded child, diagnostic and guidance clinics and services, and public relations and publicity.

Saturday dinner meeting was addressed by Dr Elizabeth Boggs, New Jersey, director of National Association for Retarded Children. Her topic was "Changing Viewpoints Toward Education of the Retarded". The Sunday luncheon meeting featured an address by Frank Powell, Director of Wisconsin Bureau for the Handicapped. A fund raising forum followed the luncheon.

Mrs August Josten, Klemme, represented the local group at the convention and was reelected treasurer for another year.

The Council for Retarded Children of Hancock and Winnebago Counties at its May meeting discussed future plans for the mentally retarded people of the area.

The classrooms sponsored by the group for the school-age children have proven successful. Both classes have adjourned for the summer vacation, but will resume their activities in September. Plans for the 1956 fund raising drive were started. In order to continue supporting the two classes already established, and in order to start a program of training for the older mentally retarded, a county-wide house to house solicitation of Winnebago County was decided upon again this year. The group will also be included in the East Hancock County Community Chest.

The handicrafts class was suggested for the older retarded people, and the Council is looking for in individual (or individuals) who would be interested in working with such a group, teaching embroidery, weaving, leather craft, or any other such craft which the members of the class might show an appitude for.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Although Carol Bridges, Klemme's candidate for Miss North Iowa at the annual band festival in Mason City, Tuesday, was not chosen queen, still we thought she made a very good appearance. We watched a few of the bands in the parade on television, and for our money, Carol was a fine looking candidate. Her parents, Mr and Mrs Orvel Bridges, should be mighty proud of her.

We knew that a printer's devil is often called on to learn to do a lot of strange things, but our exdevil, Merlyn Olson, who is now serving in a medical detachment with the army in Germany just about wins the gold makeup rule for the problem he solved in the line of duty recently.

Merlyn, who was on call as ambulance driver for the day, had to take an expectant mother to the hospital in Frankfurt. The lady was apparently much more expectant than either she or the doctor or Merlyn had thought, for the baby was born enroute with Merlyn acting as doctor, nurse, assistant, and what have you.

In a letter to his mother, Mrs Arlin Olsen, Merlyn said that when they finally arrived at the hospital, the doctors gave the baby only about a hundred to one chance to live. However, he said that hospital attention brought the little fellow around and both he and his mother are getting along fine.

Now if that isn't some duty for a printer, we'll put in with you! Glad it was him and not us. We think we might have been inclined to throw up our hands in despair and "go over the hill".

Middle of June and we've been visited by August weather for over a week. Hot, dry, unseasonable, and everything crying for rain. Sub-soil moisture is not plentiful enough to enable crops to stand to long a siege of such weather.

Electric fans are humming early this year . . . air conditioning units are turned on . . . light clothes are much in evidence . . . or in some cases hardly noticeable . . . mosquitoes no problem yet . . . too dry . . . birds hopping about beaks agape . . . river mighty low . . . not enough water in the ponds to hold kids fish derby . . . has to be in river this year . . . dust comes in faster than it can be cleaned out . . . rain would be more than welcome.

You can tell the air conditioned places before you get inside. They keep their doors closed against the heat. We still prefer the warm weather to the 20 below stuff, but we like a little more precipitation with it.

Sunshine magazine comes up with the following pert observation: "I see in your church conference," said an old farmer to a minister, "that you discuss the subject how to get people to attend church. I have never heard a single address at a farmers' convention on how to get the cattle to come to the rack. We spend our time discussing the best kind of feed."

Plan To Spray Town Latter Part of Week

Plans have been made to spray the town the latter part of this week if weather conditions are favorable. The spraying will be done from the air as it has the past two year, and Bill Evans of Garner, who does the spraying, will buzz the town a time or two before he begins, so that residents might get their cars under shelter.

The spray, which makes life miserable and pretty nearly unbearable for mosquitoes, is not harmful to humans, flowers, etc., but if it gets on your car and is allowed to dry it is almost impossible to remove.

Basic Rules on Soil Bank Announced by A S C

May Choose From Four Corn Plans

Basis requirements for Iowa farmers to qualify for the maximum price support on 1956 corn to participate in the newly enacted soil bank plan were announced this week by the Hancock County ASC office

As the first step in putting the new law into effect, every farm having a corn acreage allotment will also have a corn soil bank base acreage. The corn soil bank base acreage will be 17.8 percent greater than the corn acreage allotment fixed earlier this year. The corn soil bank base acreages are now being computed for individual farms by the county ASC office.

The individual farmer may follow any one of four possible plans of corn raising operations in the present crop year. In considering the plans, he should keep in mind that compliance with certain production adjustment requirements will qualify him for price support on 1956 corn at a national average rate of $1.50 per bushel, and that if such requirements are not met the support rate on his 1956 corn will be at a national rate of $1.25 per bushel.

He should also keep in mind that for compliance with soil bank provisions for corn he will earn a soil bank payment in addition to qualifying for the higher price support on his harvested corn. For the purpose of computing corn acreage reserve payments at a nationtal average rate of 90 cents per bushel, per-acre corn yield factors for the idle land will be fixed as soon as possible. It has been announced that the yield figures to be used in computing corn acreage reserve payments will reflect net income had the idle land been planted to corn under average conditions.

The four plans open to the individual farmer for his 1956 corn-raising operations follows:

1. He may comply with the corn allotment fixed for his farm earlier in the year and not participate in the soil bank. Under this plan he will be eligible for the $1.50 national average support rate but he will not earn a soil bank payment.

2. He may raise corn on 85 percent of his corn soil bank base acreage and put an amount of his cropland equal to 15 percent of his corn base acreage into the soil bank acreage reserve. He cannot harvest any crop, cut hay or graze this soil bank land in 1956. Under this plan he will be eligible for the national average support rate of $1.50 per bushel on his 1956 corn and will also earn an acreage reserve soil bank payment.

3. He may put this full corn base acreage into corn and put an acreage of his cropland equal to 15 percent of his corn base acreage into the conservation reservation. This conservation reserve land will be covered by a contract with the government running from 3 to 15 years, depending on the type of conservation measures applied to the land. He cannot harvest a crop, cut hay on or graze the conservation reserve land during the life of the contract. Under this plan, the farmer will be eligible for the national average support rate of $1.50 per bushel for his 1956 corn. He will also receive an annual rental for the conservation reserve land at a national average rate of around 110 per acre. The rental rates applicable to Iowa will be announced as soon as they can be determined.

4. He may decide to comply neither with his corn acreage allotment nor the provisions of the soil bank. Under this plan he will be eligible only for the non-compliance support rate on his 1956 corn, which has been fixed at a national average of $1.25 per bushel, and he will not receive a soil bank payment.

In order to qualify for the higher corn support rate and to participate in the soil bank in 1956, farmers will be permitted to clip or plow under plantings already made up to a certain time. The deadline for getting into compliance under the soil bank plans will be announced as soon as it is fixed.

The State Sheriffs Association warns that the hitch-hiker sign of the upraised thumb is a request to put your life and property in the hands of a stranger.

My Neighbors

Although making arrangements for Red Cross swimming classes takes a little time and causes a little inconvenience, still we felt more than repaid when we drove to Britt, Monday afternoon and watched the 5 to 9 year olds in the pool. They were just having a whee of a time. I had no trouble at all finding the pool, the squeals and laughter of the youngsters were a dead giveaway.

We liked, too, the manner in which the instructors handled these little tykes. They did nothing to make them afraid and everything possible to instill confidence.

Only trouble with the first day's classes was the size of them. When we began registering swimmers we expected to have somewhere in the neighborhood of 80. We wound up with a hundred and ten. Fifty-five kids are a lot to handle so the instructor asked that we make three classes out of the group. Beginning Friday, there will be three classes and we will announce to the kids today (Wednesday) what time they will leave for Britt for the rest of the course.

Supt Earl Miller of Britt, who is in charge of the program has issued a cordial invitation to any parents who would like to see one of the classes, to do so. The pool is in the old school building and we're sure you will enjoy watching the youngsters enojy themselves while they learn.

We participated in our first square dance at the park Saturday evening, and even though we were mighty green, we enjoyed ourselves immensely. Little strenuous for a softy , . . but fun.

"Pete" Larsen, proprietor of Larsen's, is now equipped to pick chickens in good order. He has a brand new mechanical picker. Last Wednesday, though, was a different story. "Pete" thought he had a used machine bought to be installed before that day, but the deal fell through. Consequently, he and his force picked some over 60 chickens by hand. Some fun!

Litterbugs cost the taxpayers of this state somewhere in the neighborhood of $150,000 last year. The highway commission spent some $81,000 just to pick up trash along the 9,500 miles of road maintained by the state. The rest of the $150.000 was spent in repairing machinery damaged by trash thrown in roadside ditches by litter bugs.

It cost approximately $8,500 just to pick up the liquor bottles thrown into ditches, and another $42,000 to pick up the beer cans. The rest of the cost involved a number of items from Kleenex to dead dogs . . . and the highway commission says that the amount being thrown out of cars is increasing every year.

In addition to the fact that the $150,000 spent because of litterbugs could be used for highway improvement, there is a law against throwing trash along the road It might be well to provide a trash receptacle in your car . . . thereby saving the state some money, and yourself the possibility of a fine.

"Money isn't everything, but it helps until everything comes along."

We can neither pronounce nor spell ileitus, the infliction that put President Eisenhower under the surgeon's knife, but we understand that the center of the trouble . . . now removed . . . was a long ways from his brain . . . and brain is what he most needs in his job.

We wish "Ike" a speedy recovery and hope that he will be troubled with no more illnesses during his tenure in office . . . be it only till next January or four year from next January.

A fellow who sounds as though he might have learned through experience says, "The wise husband meets a marital crisis with a firm hand—full of candy or flowers."

Even though summertime in Iowa can be awfully hot, still it has many advantages over winter. Among these are the many opportunities for fun outdoors . . . picnics, fishing, swimming, etc.

Last summer we became partially acquainted with charcoal cooking outdoors, and heard that barbecued chicken was about the most tasty meal that could be cooked over charcoal. We wanted to try it, but didn't know just how to go about it. A couple of weeks ago we heard a fellow on the radio give all the directions, including barbecue sauce, how to cook, and even how to build your own charcoal burner.

We tried it. . . liked it . . . we thought perhaps some of you would too, . . . so here goes.

First of all you need a charcoal burner. They can be purchased in most any hardware store, or you can make your own.

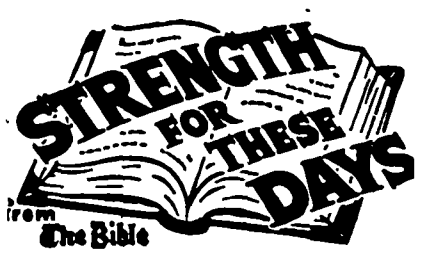
If you make your own, an easy method is to find something similar to an oven shelf approximately eighteen inches square, then using building blocks, bricks, or cement blocks, build up four walls approximately 6 inches high on which to lay your grill.

Next you need charcoal. That, too can be purchased in most any hardware store. Get your charcoal all burning, then spread it evenly in one layer inside your burner. Put your grill on top of your burner walls, and you're ready to barbecue.

You need a frying chicken weighing 2 to 3 pounds. Split the chicken in halves or quarters, and start it cooking skin side toward the coals. Season it and then baste with barbecue sauce consisting of one cup vinegar, one cup of water, one fourth ounce of tabasco, one fourth ounce of Worchestershire sauce, and a teaspoon or so of lemen juice. The chicken should be turned and basted with this sauce every ten minutes until done. Cooking time is an hour to an hour and ten minutes.

Serve along with whatever picnic fare you may have on hand and if your taste is at all similar to our's you'll find it delicious.

One word of warning. If you've never started a charcoal fire, don't expect it to blaze up and be ready to use in a few minutes. Use either a small wood fire to start it or a commercial charcoal starter, and figure on about an hour before it's ready to cook over. It's burning when it looks grayish or white. One briquet will start from contact with one of these discolored places. It takes time, but the result makes it worthwhile.



But your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid His face from you.... —(Isaiah 59, 2.)

It is our own willfulness, selfishness, weakness, that keep us from most enjoyable living and being fully in God's love, His perfect good—and yet, His mercy forgives and accepts the truly repentant heart.

INSPECTION TRIP

The Iowa highway commission this week inspected the farm-to-market roads in Davis and Appanoose counties. Davis had requested addition of more roads in the county to the farm-to-market system.

For the commission the inspection trip represents a change in procedure, it was revealed. Chairman Russell Lundy said that the commission will now hold once-a-month regular meetings with the entire commission making inspection trips where "policy matters are involved."

Previously the commission has held twice-a-month meetings at Ames with the inspection being done only by the commissioner in each district plus, of course, the engineers.

There are five members of th commission. The commission wanted a look at the Davis farm-to-market system before it reached a decision on including additional rural mileage in the network.

SAVE LANDMARKS

An Iowa organization to preserve state landmarks has been formed. and temporary officers named. They include: R Rev M M Hoffman, Dyersville, president; Mrs Otha Weairn, Hastings, vice president; William J Wagner-Dallas Center, secretary-treasurer.

About 70 persons attended the organization meeting held at the Iowa governor's mansion. The governor's wife served as temporary chairman.

HARRISON POST

Albert P Loveland, Janesville farmer, and former U S under-secretary of agriculture, has accepted appointment as Iowa state chairman of the Harriman-for-president drive .

YOUNG NOMINEE

A 23-year old Oelwein man, Donald Kimball, was nominated for state representative by Republicans in his home county. Kimball defeated Grant Lauer of Eldorado, who sought renomination.

If elected in November Kimball would be one of the state's youngest legislators, possibly the youngest in history.

IS NAMED

Dr John Martin, Carroll, has been reappointed to the Iowa board of Optometric Examiners, and Mrs August Brandt, Jr, Dallas Center, was reappointed to the board of funeral directors and embalmers examiners.

Renamed to the board of pharmacy examiners was Oscar E Johnson, Kanawha.

All appointments were made by Gov Leo Hoegh.

OLYMPIC TEAM

Governor Hoegh has formally proclaimed June as U S Olympic Team Month.

In his official proclamation he points out that the 1956 Olympic games will be held in Australia this year and that funds are necessary to finance the sending of U S athletes to the games.

The governor urged voluntary financial support for the games.

URGES RESEARCH

An eastern specialist on mental health told the Iowa Pharmaceutical Association, in state convention, that greater expenditures are needed for research in mental health problems.

G Frazier Cheston, Philadelphia, told the Iowans that "only three cents of every dollar spent for medical research is devoted to research on mental disorders."

He said that chances of being mentally ill today "are one out of 10 whereas 20 years ago they were one out of 20."

EIGHT ARE OUT

Eight Iowa legislators, all Republicans, were defeated in bids for renomination or in efforts to move from the Iowa house to the senate in the next session. Among them were two members of the important legislative budget committee.

Russell Patrick, Hawarden, and Henry Washburn, Hastings, both members of the budget committee were defeated in the primaries. Patrick sought a senate seat, after years of service in the house, and Washburn was seeking reelection to the senate.

Other legislators to lose out in the primaries included Frank Thompsan, Guthrie Center; Ray Pim, Lucas; Conway Morris, Dallas Center; Fred Voigtmann, Marengo; A F Klein, New Virginia and Gran Lauer, Eldorado.

SEEK CHANGE

The Iowa Pharmaceutical Association wants a change in state law to permit physicians to make oral prescriptions over the telephone on certain approved narcotic drugs not considered as habit forming.

This change, the association reports, would thus bring Iowa law into conformance with federal legislation. Under present law only written prescriptions are permitted.

The state association also went on record again as "unalterably opposed" to retail trading stamps and their use in the state.

UNINSTRUCTED

Iowa's Democratic delegation to the party's national convention this summer will be uninstructed.

The 24-vote 48-member delegation, named at the party presidential state parley, is about evenly divided between Stevenson and Kefauver delegates although the convention did not act to send the delegation committed on a presidential choice.

State Chairman Jake More will head the delegation of Iowans who will have a half-vote each. In addition to 32 district delegates the convention selected 16 at-large delegates with a half-vote each.

Of the 48 delegates, an informal poll indicated that 21 were for Stevenson and 14 Kefauver. Other listed themselves as uncommitted.

One alternate, Al Loveland of Janesville, is a Harriman supporter, and many attending the convention expressed the thought that a "darkhorse" would finally come up with the party nomination.

SOIL BANK

Ezra T Benson, U S secretary of agriculture, after a one-day tour of Iowa's drought area last week, said the new soil bank farm program can be used to advantage this year by farmers in areas where the moisture shortage has reduced crop prospects for 1956.

It was noted that Benson and Gov Leo Hoegh an anti-Benson man, did not meet during the secretary's whirl-wind tour. The governor declared, after the Benson visit to Iowa, that "he knows where I stand."

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

Let's take a name out of the air. Let's take Joe Smith, just to be original. Let's describe Joe by saying he's more like you than different. And let's say Joe is a perfectly fine guy on his way to kill or be killed in an automobile.

Now, how do we save Joe's life or save his victim—right now, today, in the next 15 or 30 minutes?

Do we rely on all the safety messages Joe should have absorbed in the past few years through newspapers, radio, television, club meetings? Is it enough that Joe's been warned repeatedly?

Before we decide, let's remember two things about Joe: First, we can't be sure Joe ever really thought the messages were being sent to him. Joe might very well be a victim of that almost universal illusion that accidents happen to somebody else.

Second, when Joe's out on the highway he's a little like a man moving through mid-air. In a sense, he's isolated from the world and the people that have warned him so often to "be careful." He's a man alone, moving at considerable speed, functioning on habit, and reaction patterns that may be dead wrong.

So there he is, a man moving along out of reach, approaching the critical moment when he will kill or be killed.

How do you save Joe or his victim? Short of alert, on-the-spot enforcement that can gather Joe in for his own safety before the accident, how do you save the life that is within minutes of being lost?

That, perhaps, is the question that most needs answering in the safety problem that plagues Iowa and the nation.

Rural Young People Have Night of Fun

On the evening of May 29th there was a scene of a gay R Y P party. We started off with a picnic at the home of Eunice, Rachel and Lois Hueneman. After this we piled into a truck of hay and took off for the Drive-In. On the way we sang songs and ate potato chips. Finally we arrived at the Drive-In about nine o'clock and found out that the admission was 65c per person instead of a buck a load as we had planned but we made out a deal and came out of that alright.

We enjoyed two good shows and fire works. Also we had planned to stay for the midnight show but the rain came then and disappointed our plans. Luckily we had a canvas which sheltered us on the way home. What a night we had. All of us really had a wonderful time.

A Lakota truck driver "rode it out" recently, when his brakes failed on the main street of Mankato. The impact punched a hole 15x25 feet in the side of the building.

Tips on Using Gasoline And Kerosene Safely

There's only one right way to handle gasoline and kerosene around the farm—any other way spells disaster, warns Paul Henderson, County Extension Director.

"Now during Spring Clean Up Week", say Henderson, "it is a good time to check whether the way you use and store flammable liquids is the safe way."

Be sure you can say yes to the following questions:

1. Do you kepe your tractor and other gasoline-using equipment stored in and out buildings separate from the barn and other farm structures?

2. Do you store your gasoline and kerosene outdoors at least 40 feet from any building (in accordance with National Fire Protection Association standard for Farm Storage of Flammable Liquids)?

3. If you do keep small amounts of gasoline and kerosene in buildings, do you use only safety cans of types labeled by Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc?

4. Do you fuel your equipment at a safe distance (at least 40 ft.) from all combustible structures?

5. Do you firmly prohibit any smoking near storage areas and while gasoline and kerosene are being handled?

6. Do you make sure the equipment is cool before refueling?

7. Are light bulbs protected from breaking and electrical circuits in good repair wherever flammable liquids are used or stored?

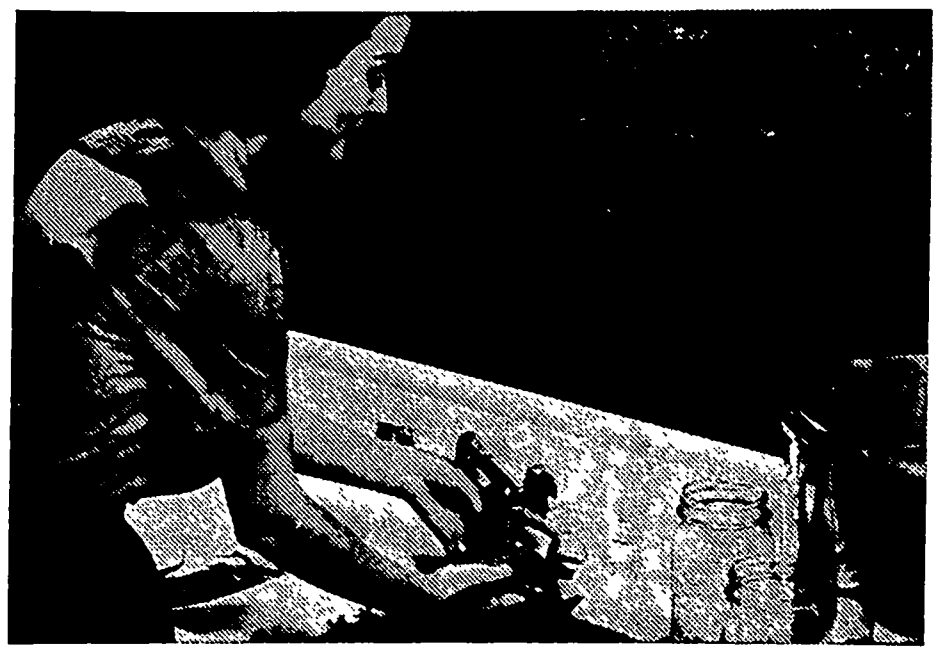
Now's the Time—

Prepare for Canning Season



Thoroughly wash, rinse and drain beans before cutting or breaking. If no sink is available, lift beans from the pan in which washed rather than pouring off the water. Pouring off will just put the dirt right black on the beans.

* * *

Before the canning season begins, check to see that all your home canning equipment is in top-notch condition, says Leslie Smith, Iowa State College extension nutritionist.

This means: Have the gauge and safety valve on your pressure canner tested. Check jars; discard any with defects. Examine your jar tongs and favorite trimming knives. Make a list of all canning supplies you'll need.

Study New Rules

You'll want to take some time out to study the new rules of the canning game, too. Recent reports from Department of Agriculture home economics researchers tell us they've "sharpened up" processing times to give us better, safer-to-eat products—foods that will really keep. Time tables for raw pack fruits and vegatables are now included.

You can raw pack cherries, peaches, berries (except strawberries), apricots, pears, plums, tomatoes asparagus, fresh snap and lima beans, carrots, corn (cream style and kernel) and peas.

Time Changes

To pack raw fruits, place cold, raw fruit in containers (leave ½ inch head space) and cover with boiling hot sirup, juices or water. Press tomatoes into the containers so they are covered with their own juice. Omit liquid. Pack cold, raw vegetables in containers, and cover with boiling water. Pack raw foods tightly—they shrink during processing.

Researchers discovered that heat penetrates the less solid foods more quickly that they had previously thought, so these processing times are shorter. The end product, then, is still safe to use—but retains more of its color, flavor and, in some cases, its vitamin C.

Other processing times have been lengthened. This is true of many compact food such as greens, pumpkin, squash, dry baked beans and carrots.

Yields Given

You're probably interested in the amount of food you'll need to yield a quart of canned food. Of course the exact number of quarts you get from a given amount of fresh food depends on quality, condition, variety and maturity, size of pieces and whether you decide to raw pack your products or hot pack them. But, when you're estimating yields, you'll find these figures helpful.

To yield 1 quart of canned fruit, plan on the following amounts of fresh fruit or tomatoes; 2 to 3 pounds apples, peaches and pears; 1½ to 3 lbs. (1 to 2 quart boxes) for berries (except strawberries); 2 to 2½ pounds unpitted cherries; 1½ to 2½ pounds plums. For 1 quart tomatoes, you'll need 2½ to 3½ pounds.

In 1 pound, there are about 4 medium size apples, peaches or tomatoes; 3 medium pears and 12 medium plums.

Explains Laws Which Govern Welfare Workers

All income must be considered by the welfare worker in determining the monthly grant for recipients of Old Age Assistance, Aid to Blind, and Aid to Dependent Children. "Welfare workers have no choice in this matter," says L L Caffrey, chairman of the state board of social welfare. "Federal and state laws both make that clear and the workers who have the responsibility for correctly computing the amount of the monthly checks our recipients receive must work within the framework of the public assistance laws."

The programs administered by the state department of social welfare and its 99 county offices are assistance programs designed to meet the basic needs of people. They are not pensions in any sense of the word, though they sometimes supplement inadequate pensions and other income. For example, an aged person may have needs of $70 monthly which may be considered by the welfare worker. From this figure must be subtracted any income available to the recipient such as Old Age and Survivors Insurance (Social Security), Workmen's Compensation, Unemployment Benefits, private pensions, earning, annuity payments, rentals, contributions from relatives, etc. So if the aged person with needs of $70 monthly receives Old Age and Survivors Insurance of $30, he would be eligible for Old Age Assistance of $40 per month.

It is only in the Aid to Blind program that any exception to the "all income must be considered" rule may be made. Revisions in the federal laws of 1950 required that states disregard the first $50 per month of earned income. This exception applies only to the current earnings of a blind recipient.

Mr Caffrey mentioned the difficulties and disappointments occurring when changes in income and resources are not reported by recipients to their welfare workers. "Recently our attention was called to an elderly blind woman who, under devised social security regulations, learned she was eligible for Old Age and Survivors Insurance of $30 monthly and a $400 retroactive payment, based on her deceased husband's earnings. She didn't report this to her welfare worker because she trusted the advice of a poorly informed acquaintance who told her that this social security payment would not affect her blind assistance. So she went ahead making plans to pay back bills, and to buy herself little extras she needed and wanted badly and hadn't been able to squeeze out of her assistance check. When the matter finally came to the attentionn of the welfare worker it became her duty to tell the recipient that her assistance grant would have to be reduced $30 monthly and that the $400 would have to be paid to the state and federal government as it represented excess assistance. Everybody concerned was unhappy over the situation. Our recipient was upset as she had already made her plans and told creditors she was going to pay up back bills. The welfare worker, who knew that the assistance grant allowed none of the extras to make daily living more comfortable, and sympathized with the elderly woman's desires to pay old bills, didn't like having to wreck her client's happy plans but under the law she had no choice in the matter."

Recipients of assistance are always told that it is their responsibility to report any changes in their circumstances to the welfare worker so that required and permissible changes in grants may be made promptly. "But", said Caffrey. "They forget, misunderstand, or take the advice of others. We wish people, our recipients as well as others, would understand that the welfare worker is the best source of information about the laws under which assistance may be granted. While it is true that when income increases assistance grants must be reduced, it is also true that when income is reduced grants may be increased to offset the resulting deficit. Of course, all increases or reductions in assistance grants must be in accord with the law and state department policies."

Old Age Assistance, Aid to Blind, and Aid to Dependent Children grants would all total considerably more each month if various forms of other income were not considered in computing the monthly payments. Old Age Assistance alone would probably cost approximately $397,000 more per month if we did not deduct these income payments before setting the amount of the individual monthly payments," Mr Caffrey said.

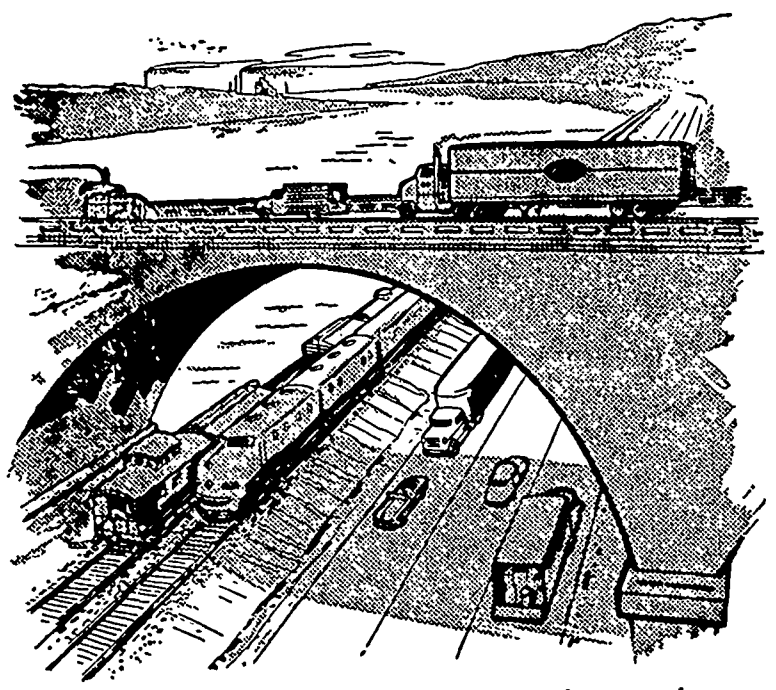
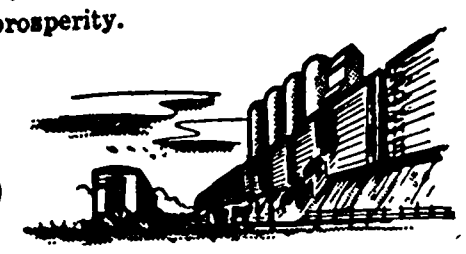
ADDED MILLIONS FOR IOWA TRANSPORTATION



Iowa's thriving transportation business has an income of more than $6,640,000 per year from the brewing industry. This includes $3,467,604.30 spent with railroads and truck lines, plus $3,173,017.69 for deliveries from wholesaler to retailer. These expenditures reach into virtually every section of the State, to add that much more to Iowa's wealth and prosperity.

Still Further Benefits, too



In addition, Iowa benefits in many other ways from the brewing industry. Take the industry's $30,000,000 per year Iowa payroll, or the more than $25,000,000 spent for taxes, or the huge sums which go into the purchase of farm products. These and many other items add up to the fact that . . .

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

We were quite certain that an airplane was coming in our bedroom window about 5:30 Tuesday morning, until we got enough of the cobwebs cleared out of our brain to realize that it was only Bill Evans buzzing the town preparatory to spraying for mosquitoes. We'll bet that not too many people overslept.

Must be fun flying that low in an open plane, but we imagine it is also slightly more than a little bit dangerous.

We keep hearing reports over the radio about this town getting two inches of rain, this one getting an inch, and so on. We haven't seen anything in the way of moisture but a few drops and we are ready! In fact, we think that everyone in this locality is ready for it to open up and pour down rain . . . especially if there would be any hope of a break in the heat.

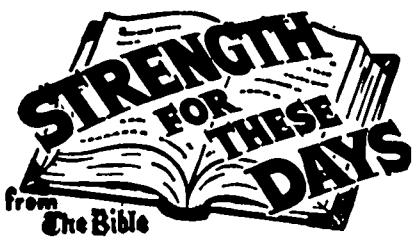
If it stays this hot all through the summer, it will seem like an eternity till fall. Only good feature we can see is that here is no snow shoveling to do when the thermometer stays around 90 or better.

"He who carries a tale makes a monkey of himself!"

This has been one of those weeks. We have been involved in several rush printing jobs and our linotype operator, Mrs Cliff Montgomery, has been on vacation. We just didn't have time to properly work on the paper this week.. Hence, the small issue. Maybe next week things will be back to normal . . . if their is any such thing as "normal" in a print shop.

The widening project on highway 69 is now pretty well completed between here and Forest City. Makes a nice road. The extra room makes it possible to relax a little instead of being consantly on edge.

The crew has started south now and is paving just a shade over a mile a day. Won't be long until we have a nice wide highway both north and south from the intersection. Good deal!



For there stood beside me this night the angel of God, whose I am, and Whom I serve.—(The Acts 27, 23.)

The wonderful, all-enveloping presence of our Heavenly Father, His love and protection, His never-ending good, are ever with those who love and serve Him, whose surrender to His will and guidance are complete, without reservation.

Square Dance Popular; Frazee Back Saturday

The square dances being held in the Klemme Park are proving quite popular with young and old. A good sized crowd is always on hand for the dancing and as many or more can be found on sidelines watching.

Last Saturday night, Calvin Smith of Kanawha was the caller, and this coming Saturday night will see a return engagement by Lloyd Frazee, who called the dances the second evening they were held here.

The square dances start in the park at nine o'clock each Saturday evening, and for an hour previous to that time, the band presents a concert on Main Street. A relaxing and enjoyable time can be found in Klemme on Saturday nights.

Sprayed Town Tuesday

The few mosquitoes who had begun to make their presence known in Klemme took it on the chin Tuesday morning when the town was sprayed from the air.

The spraying should last for some time, but town council plans call for another shot later in the year if necessary.

Farmers Can Use Soil Bank This Year

Hancock County farmers who had hoped to gear 1956 farming operations to the then-proposed soil bank, will want to get in touch immediately with the Hancock County ASC office in Garner. The suggestion comes from Paul Henderson, Hancock County Extension Director.

Officials in the ASC, he said, report that farmers can still get into the soil bank program, which was provided in federal legislation that became law within recent weeks. The program is available to all farmers who wish to participate in it, Henderson pointed out. He added that there is still time for those who wish to qualify for this year's crop.

Henderson urged farmers to discuss the new farm law with the county ASC officials. The law offers several alternative participation patterns, which local officials can clarify. Representatives of the county ASC office have just received information on the law from federal and state officials this week. They have now in their offices the most complete information available on the provisions and requirements for participation under the farm program, including the soil bank.

Approve Construction Of Drainage District

Hancock County Supervisors Monday approved the report of a damage commission heretofore appointed to make an appraisal of damages which would result from the construction and establishment of a drainage improvement petitioned for by David Schwichtenberg et al and approved the petition for the improvement and the report of drainage engineer William Henschen recommending the setablishment and construction. The district is a new improvement and is located in Twin Lake Township and will henceforth be known as Hancock County Drainage District No. 152. Serving on the damage commission were drainage engineer Henschen, J N Steil and William Boehnke.

The Board will hold a public letting on the construction of said district at the courthouse in Garner at 1:30 p. m. on Monday, July 24th.

Obituary of John William Waddingham

(By Rev. Vernon E. Jaberg)

Mr. John William Waddingham, or "Bill" as he was affectionately known, whose death is mourned by his family and friends, was born on June 27, 1876 in Hampton, Franklin County, Iowa. He was the son of George Johnson Waddingham and Hannah Simpson Waddingham.

As a youth he received his education in the rural schools of Franklin County and worked on his father's farm.

On February 28, 1905, William Waddingham was united in marriage with Miss Louisa Jahnke of Meservey, Iowa. God in His providence blessed this union with seven children.

The Waddinghams made their home on a farm four miles east and three miles south of Klemme. Mr. Waddingham was a very industrious farmer and one who was cooperative with his neighbors. The Waddinghams retired from farming in 1945 and have made their home in the town of Klemme. Mr. Waddingham has been a member of Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church of Klemme for the past 20 years.

After an extended period of declining health, he was taken to Mercy Hospital in Mason City where he underwent major surgery. He was a patient in the hospital for approximately eight weeks and was called to his eternal home on Sunday, June 17, having attained the age of 79 years, 11 months and 20 days.

Those who survive are his wife, and the following sons and daughters: Belle (Mrs. Martin Karsjens) of Klemme; John of Klemme; Roy of Rockwell; Doris (Mrs. Tony Tebbens) of Corwith; Virgil of Meservey; Lucille (Mrs. Harm Dirks) of Meservey. Besides these sons and daughters, Mr. Waddingham is also survived by the following brothers and sisters: Charles of Meservey; Ralph of Nashua; Mary (Mrs. Peter Hanson) of Paynesville, Minn.; Mrs. Rebecca LaFevre of Portland, Oregon; Mrs. Myrtle Osborn of Seaside, Oregon; Mrs. Dora Boyes of Trail, B. C., Canada; and Mrs Emma Jahnke of Alberta, Canada.

Twenty-four grandchildren and four great grandchildren, and a host of more distant relatives and friends also survive.

He was preceded in death by his parents, three brothers, Fred, Timothy and Eward, and by one son, Robert, and by one grandchild.

Recently, two deer passed through Osceola, apparently taking a short cut through town instead of going around. Lack of water in the area has apparently made deer less fearful of humans.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

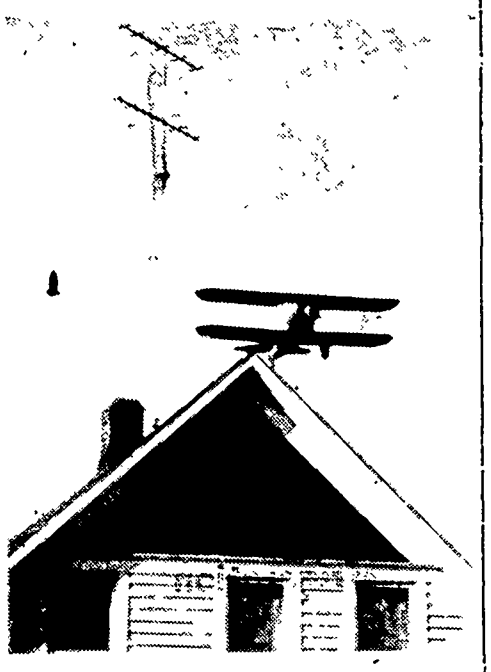
If you are planning on doing your week's trading in any of the local business places next Wednesday, you are going to be in for a rather unpleasant surprise. Klemme stores will follow the old custom of closing so that owners, managers and other employees can celebrate the Fourth of July.

Which reminds us, that we will be short a working day in which to get out The Times next week, and we would appreciate your best efforts in turning in your news and ads as early as you possibly can.

And all this talk about the Fourth makes us think of all the people who will be on the highways, the beaches, in the parks, and on the lakes fishing. We imagine that many of you who read this column have plans for the holiday that will take you to one of these places, and we ask you to please be careful. We can use all the readers for this column that we can get, and every time we print an obituary we feel like that's one less reader . . . so take it easy and be around for many more Fourths of July . . . and to see what that corny column will have in it next week.

There is an old saying about using your head to save your heels, but when you are out to celebrate a big holiday like the Fourth, a little brain exercise can save a lot more than your heels. There is just no substitute for common sense when it comes to driving, boating, swimming, etc.

One good thing about the Fourth nowadays is that since the State Legislature banned the private use of fireworks, there will be more fingers to work with and more eyes to see with than used to be the case the day after.



The above picture taken last week Tuesday morning shows a plane piloted by Bill Evans of Garner coming right over Albert Lange's house. In fact, it looks as though Albert might be on the verge of losing his TV antenna. He didn't though, but a lot of mosquitoes hit the dirt. Bill was spraying the town and it was a damp, still morning so that the spray was settling to the ground almost immediately. Makes it rough for the little pests.

Mosquitoes are a type of wildlife that we are glad to be rid of. but there are other types that we would like to see kept alive . . . at least until hunting season . . . and cars account for a lot of wildlife deaths. A recent count of dead animals on the highway in Buena Vista and Cherokee counties revealed the following types of wildlife killed by cars on the highways:

18 hen pheasants, 20 cock pheasants, 46 cottontail rabbits, 10 jackrabbits, 2 deer, 5 raccoons, 3 badgers, 3 opossums. 18 squirrels, 4 striped skunks, 6 spotted skunks. 20 songbirds.

The list includes a couple of critters with whom we wouldn't care to be friendly, but a little care on the part of motorists would have saved the lives of most of these wild things Sure. they might be killed later on by a hunter, but at least someone would get some good out of them This way it is just a waste.

A blast of the horn and a slight easing of speed would probably have driven most of these critters off the road. saving both the animal and possible car damage. A pheasant can smash a windshield or a radiator grille, while several cars in Iowa have been completely wrecked from colliding with deer.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

About one-half of the states have taken some reapportionment action in their state legislatures since 1950, according to a report of the Iowa Legislative Research Council.

The report said at least four states have rearranged legislative districts by constitutional amendment. On the other hand, the voters of four other states have turned down a constitutional redistricting proposal in the last 10 years.

The Bureau points out that the Iowa constitution provides that the 50 senate districts should be formed primarily on a population basis, but no county may have more than one senator. House seats must be allotted one to a county with an extra representative given to the nine most populous counties.

"These constitutional provisions," says the report, "were adopted some 50 years ago. Since then. the less populous counties proportionately have received increased representation in both houses. This has happened because of increases and shifts in population and because there have been only partial reapportionments of senate seats."

The Bureau said that making constitutional changes in legislative districts is difficult. One big reason is that there is such a conflict of interests as to what is proper and fair apportionment.

GOOD ROADS PLANS

The Iowa Good Roads association has approved a recommendation that the distribution of the road use tax in Iowa be changed, and be allocated as follows: 42 percent to the primary road fund; 44 percent to the secondary road fund; 14 percent to cities and towns.

Under the present allocation primary roads get 42 percent, secondary roads 50 percent, and cities and towns 8 percent.

Other recommendations. approved at the annual meeting, include:

The legislature take necessary action to assure the continuing availability of state funds for highway construction at least equal to the amount presently available; that net proceeds from a one-cent motor fuel tax currently earmarked for hard-surfacing of primary roads now having a gavel or crushed rock surface be continued; that net proceeds from a one-cent motor fuel tax currently earmarked for widening and modernizing of primary roads and bridges be continued and more emphasis placed on moderization features; that the present road use tax fund be continued; that the highway commission make broad use of its power to control access on heavily traveled primary highways; that the ommission expedite action on four-lane highways east-west and north-south across Iowa.

AIR QUEEN

Joann Van Arkel, 20, a flying secretary, is Iowa's candidate for Miss Airpower of 1956. The winner of the national contest will be named at the annual convention of the Air Force Association at New Orleans in August.

Miss Van Arkel, who has won her solo pilot's license, lived on a farm near Prairie City. She was born at Montezuma. She is now a secretary of a flying service in Des Moines.

STATE APPOINTMENTS

Appointments made to state commissions recently by Gov Leo A Hoegh include: Dr Frank R Peterson, Cedar Rapids, reappointed to state board of medical examiners; Charles R Chaffee, Council Bluffs, and William O Herteen, Iowa City, reappointed to board of examiners of watchmaking; Sister Mary Immaculate, St Joseph's sanitorium, Dubuque, reappointed to board of nurses examiners.

Harry Fahrenkrog of Council Bluffs was named to state board of barber examiners succeeding Lou W Skinner of Council Bluffs. Dr V E Wicks, Mason City, to state board of chiropody examiners, succeeding Dr Ralph Kirkwood, Des Moines.

LIQUOR STAMPS

Latest report from the attorney general's office shows that a total of 1.236 federal retail liquor stamps have been sold in Iowa in this fiscal year.

Atty Gen Countryman, many months ago, had warned that possession of such a stamp would indicate to him that the holders were showing an intent to violate the state law which prohibits sales of liquor-by-the-drink.

The stamps sell for $50 and protect an establishment from federal prosecution on liquor charges but are in no sense a permit to sell liquor in states where laws prohibit by-the-drink sales.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Collins Radio Company, Cedar Rapids, this year is granting $6,000 in educational scholarships for student teaching and research assistantships at four midwest universities.

The $6,000 will be divided into amounts of $1,500 and presented to the University of Iowa, Iowa State College, University of Minnesota and University of Illinois for the academic year 1956-57.

The deans at the schools will administer the grants and select the recipients who may be either undergraduates or graduate students in electrical. mechanical, or other engineering fields.

JEEP PATROL

Iowa Sational Guardsmen will operate a jeep control as an augmenting force to the Iowa highway patrol for a nine-day period beginning June 30 when holiday motor travel reaches a summer peak.

Highway safety officials feel this period may become the worst traffic fatality year in state history and know from past experience the July 4 period is a high-fatality time.

Already this year 35 more Iowans have been killed in auto crashes in the state than in the same period a year ago.

The jeeps. manned by two guardsmen in each, will operate June 30 through July 8, on the weekends of July 14-14, July 21-22, July 28-30 and August 4-5.

TAXATION REPORT

State Sen X T Prentis, Mt Ayr, chairman of the Iowa taxation study committee, said the committee's report probably will not be completed until after the November 6th election. The report had originally been scheduled for completion Sept 1.

Prentis said the after-election completion date will offset political involvements that may have occurred with an earlier deadline.

"We don't want the report kicked around and made a political football in the general election this fall," he declared.

He said the governor and legislature would have the report in ample time to meet all the qualifications provided in the law on a completion deadline. The governor has indicated he may call a special legislative session in December for the legislature to act on the recommendations of the tax study group. Next regular session of the legislature is scheduled for mid-January.

AAA OBJECTS

The Motor Club of Iowa has filed a letter with the Iowa taxation study committee protesting any attempts to levy a property tax on automobiles. The Motor Club said that such a tax, discussed informally by the tax committee members, would be "overburdensome and unfair."

ISSUES WARNING

Robert Beck, Centerville, newly elected chairman of the state highway commission, said that in spite of proposed federal legislation that would help the interstate network in Iowa, this state's "road problems are still basically Iowan and must be resolved by Iowans."

"I cannot emphasize too strongly," Beck told the Iowa Good Roads Association policy meeting, "that Iowa's basic highway problems are not affected by this interstate system."

Evergreens or other trees planted recently may need extra water to pull them through the summer.

Hog slaughter receipts dropped rapidly during the first half of May but climbed equally rapid during the last half of the month. They reached unexpectedly high levels as compared with a year ago, reports Steve Hiemstra, Iowa State College farm economist.

On May 3, federally inspected slaughter receipts at the major centers were 21 percent higher than receipts for that date in 1955. But by May 17th, receipts were only 5 percent above those for that date a year ago. However, by June 7th, receipts had risen to 24 percent above those of June 7, 1955.

Hiemstra believes this sudden increase was caused by the unseasonably warm weather and the recent rise in feed prices. If these factors have been the cause says Hiemstra, we can expect receipts during the last half of July to become nearly in line with last year. If this happens he believes the top of the market may come a little later than in 1955.

The wholesale fresh pork market showed a rapid increase during May, boosting live hog prices. However, live hog prices were off somewhat during the first week of June because of a lowering in the price of pork loins and an increase in hog slaughter receipts. Hiemstra points out that this year's live hog prices are more closely related to the wholsale prices than those of last year because of a lower amount of pork storage.

The Iowa State College economist also notes a downward trend in the lard market since the first part of May. This is in line with the declining vegetable oil market. June 1, pasture conditions stood at their lowest level since 1934, says Hiemstra. Iowa pastures were at 61 percent of normal on that date as compared with 92 percent in 1955. The average pasture condition for the past ten years is 89 percent. Soil moisture conditions are especially critical in the southern one-third of the state. Because of the lack of subsoil moisture, crops will be easily affected by hot, dry summer weather.

Iowa oats are heading out short and the hay crop is below normal, but recent rains have given corn and soybeans a satisfactory start in most parts of the state.

Crop conditions are considered good in the eastern part of the Corn Belt, but in the western half of the Corn Belt and in the Great Plains area the subsoil is unusally dry.

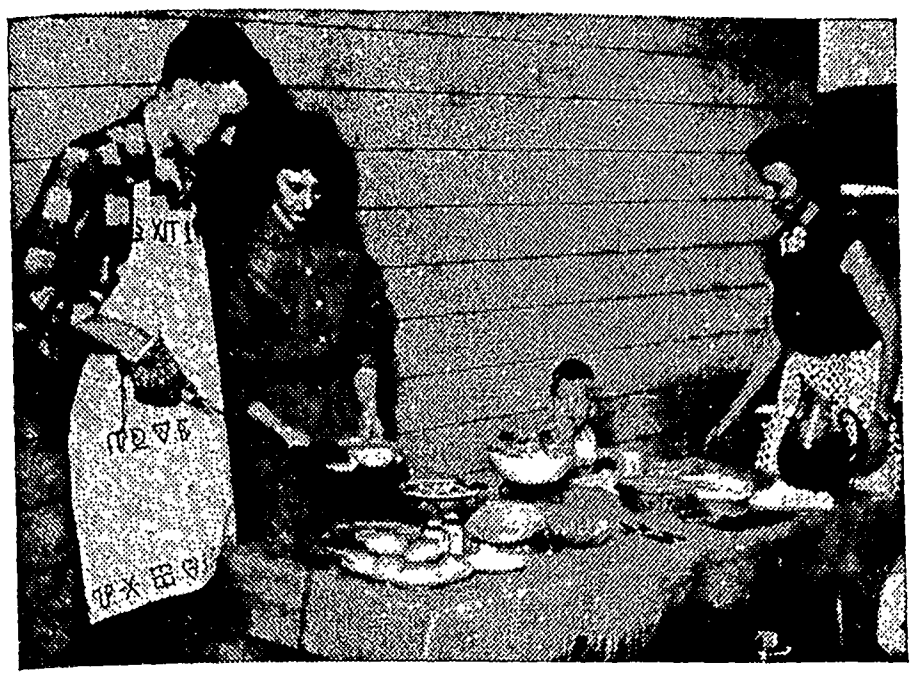
At Home or Away—

Summer's the Time to Cook Outside



Picnic in your own backyard! Outdoor cookery can be as elaborate or as simple as you care to make it. This family is ready for an easy home barbecue buffet in the drive way.

* * *

Summer—the season for outdoor cookery—is here again. Harriet Roberts, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College, has some suggestions on ways to make your outdoor cookery quicker, more fun and easier.

The Foil Method

No plates, pots or pans to tote with you—no dirty dishes with which to contend—simplicity at its peak. This is aduminum foil cooking.

Just wrap your foods in double thickness, lightweigrt foil or a singlt thickness of heavyweight foil; place the package in hot coals. Soon you'll have a meal "fit for a king"— and you can use the same foil in which you cooked for your plate.

Remember these tips for foil cookery: (1) Sprinkle a few drops of water in each packet to aid steaming; (2) use glowing coals—not a flame; (3) use drugstore wrap Lay food in center of foil. Place two edges together and fold them over.

Most anything you can cook out of doors, you can cook foil style. For instance, you may want to serve a fresh air breakfast. For bacon and eggs, fold the foil into a frying pan shape and place directly on the coals. You can even bake breakfast biscuits in foil. Use a biscuit ready mix or use your own recipe, whichever you prefer You can even mix the biscuit dough on a piece of aluminum foil. Then loosely wrap biscuits in foil, leaving room for dough to rise. Bake biscuits on the coals about 10 minutes.

Baked fruit is good, too. Try baked bananas or apples. Cut off the tip top of the apples, remove core, sprinkle in teaspoon of sugar. Place in middle of foil, bring corners up over apple—then twist them together. Wrap your bananas, skin and all in foil. Then place fruits on hot coals. Apples take about 15 minutes, bananas, only 10.

For a top notch dinner, try broiled steak and Lyonnaise potatoes. Cut a large potato and onion into thin slices. Mix them; salt and butter them, wrap in foil, cook about 15 minutes. Place steak on a piece of foil directly atop hot coals. Cooking time depends on how you like your steak. Miss Roberts suggests 6 minutes each side for rare; 8 minutes, medium; 10 minutes, well-done.

Roasting ears make delightful treats cooked the foil way. Pull shuck away from ear, but do not remove it entirely. Clean out corn silk. Then spread the ear with butter or margarine. Season to taste. Now pull shuck back over ear and wrap in foil. Lay on grill or directly on coals and turn frequently. It will probably take about 10-15 minutes. Or you might like to remove shuck completely from ear, season, wrap in foil and cook as above.

Try Some Kabobs

There are many varieties of kabobs you can try. If you plan to use meat for your, marinate veal, beef or lamb steak for several hours or overnight in refrigerator in a mixture of equal parts vinegar and oil seasoned with salt, pepper and majoram. Chopped onion adds a nice flavor, too.

Now cut meat in 1-inch cubes. Place meat cubes together or skewer or alternate them with slices of onion, tomato or bacon. Use skewer of heavy wire or long green stick for kabobs. Place meat cubes ¼ inch apart, and broil over coals 20 minutes.

You might try fruit kabobs for dessert. Alternate marshmallows and pieces of fruit on green sticks. Toast until browned. Place between graham crackers to eat you could use apples, bananas, oranges, apricots, prunes or many other fruits.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

In the time of open pollinated corn it was thought that if the crop was knee high by the Fourth of July it was well on its way. Since the advent of the many hybrid varities, corn is usually well over knee high by the Fourth, and this year it is even higher than usual. Many fields in this area are at least waist high and some would no doubt hit around the shoulders of the average man.

The combination of warm weather and a little moisture has been just what the corn needed. The past week has seen considerable rain in this vicinity, and although the weather is chilly now, if it warms up a little, the corn should continue its rapid growth.

If you were up in time Sunday morning to see that storm cloud working up, you no doubt wondered just what all might happen. We took one look at it just before it hit, decided there was hail, wind, rain and goodness knows what all in the thing. We just barely got our windows closed in time to keep from getting things in the house soaked, and then we sat back to see whether or not we were going to blow away.

We were fortunate. We got a strong wind, only a few hailstones, and about an inch of rain. Other localities, suffered a lot of wind damage. and had crops flattened by hail. Tornado funnels were sighted in various sections of the north half of the state, but none seemed to come down and do as much as they might have.

Iowa Electric Reports Sales of Over a Billion Kilowatt Hours in Year

A new milestone in the history of electric service in this area was recorded last month when the Iowa Electric Light and Power Company reported that, for the first time, sales of electric energy in any 12-month period had exceeded one billion kilowatt hours.

The significance of a billion kilowatt hours per year becomes apparent when it is compared with changes which have taken place during the last four decades, according to Duane Arnold, Vice President and General Manager. The Company's record of kilowatt-hour sales during the past four decades is as follows:

1926	------	76,000,000 kwh
1936	------	166,648,000 kwh
1946	------	387,418,000 kwh
1956	------	1,001,166,000 kwh

The problem of meeting the rapidly growing demand for electricity in this area is complicated by the fact that the increases have been coming at an accelerating rate, Mr Arnold pointed out. During the first 10-year period, from 1926 to 1936, the increase was 90,684, kwh or 119%.

For the 10-year period from 1936 to 1946, the increase was 220,734,000 kwh or 132%.

For the last 10-year period, since 1946, the increase has been 613,747,000 kwh, or 158%.

It is frequently stated, Arnold said, that the demand for electricity is doubling every ten years. It is apparent, from the above figures, that the increase in this area for the last ten years has been two and a half times, dramatic evidence of the increasingly important role electricity plays in our daily lives.

Budget Time and Time To Consider '57 Taxes

The 1956 property taxes to be paid in 1957 are now in the process of budgetary deliberations by taxing bodies. Public hearings will be announced shortly by the various tax levying bodies and all taxpayers should be interested in the financial requirements necessary to operate efficiently.

A government, or any subdivision thereof, no less than a family, must exercise restraint in keeping it's expenditures within the level of its forseeable income, and with our high level of necessary expenditures to live, there is some question if we can afford the luxury of some of the improvements and innovations which seem necessary and certainly desirable to be paid for from tax funds.

Economists tell us that the red light flashes in our economy when property taxes reach 2% of the sale price. In some areas this figure has already been reached and surpassed.

It is evident that our tax laws are outmoded and need revision. As we move from an agrarian economy to an industrial economy in our state, a trend that is developing rapidly, we of necessity must explore and develop new tax laws and revenues that are compatible with our present economy.

A tax study committee, appointed by the last General Assembly, is making a study of our tax situation and laws and will shortly file their report with the governor. A special session may be called in attempt to correct some of the existing evils.

It is evident that a larger percentage of our taxable revenue must come from sources other than a levy on real and personal property. Perhaps sales and income taxes should be increased and this earmarked to pay the basic cost of education, thus relieving real and personal property from a part of its present load.

Taxing bodies should remember "The Power to Tax is the Power to Destroy," and taxpayers should remember that only by restraining our demands for additional or unnecessary services to be paid for from tax funds can we reduce taxes.

It is budget time again and it is the time of year when taxpayers should co-operate with levying bodies to determine the expenditures necessary from tax funds to provide the services that are necessary and can be paid for without serious threat to our economy and standard of living. Remember taxes are made now, not when tax payment time arrives next January 1st. If our demand for services are greater than previously, it will follow that taxes of a necessity will be higher. If our wants are curtailed than taxes could be less.

Iowa Farm Commodity Price Index Shows Gain

The index of prices received by Iowa farmers for all farm products registered a slight (1 point) gain during the month ending June 15, according to the Iowa Cooperative Crop and Livestock Reporting Crop and Live- mid-June index, at 233 percent of the 1910-14 base period, may be compared with the May 15 index of 232 percent and the June 15, 1955 index of 242.

No change was recorded in the livestock and livestock product index, which stood at 230, as an 8 point drop in the poultry and egg index was offset by a one point gain in each the meat animal and the dairy product index. In the meat animal price changes from mid-May to mid-June, beef cattle gained 40c per cwt. while hogs were down 10c, lambs lost 90c and calves declined 30c per cwt. Chicken prices averaged 8c per pound lower and eggs were down 1.8c per dozen for the month ending June 15.

A gain of 2c per bushel for each of the major crops, corn and oats, more than offset price losses in other crops to cause a 3 point gain in the crop index. At 247 percent of the base period, the June 15 index is 6 points more than the June 15, 1955 index of 241. Soybeans were down 9c per bushel and wheat and rye each dropped 6 c per bushel in the crop price losses from May 15 to June 15.

POLITICAL PARLEYS

Regular state conventions of the two major political parties in Iowa are slated for this month.

The Republican regular state convention will be held in Des Moines, Friday, July 20, and the Democratic state convention will be in Des Moines Tuesday, July 31.

At both conventions state party platforms will be adopted. Also delegates to these conventions will pick the state central committee for each party, the party district chairman and vice-chairman, who in turn will select the state chairman and vice-chairman.

ASKS JURY ACTION

The chief of the Iowa bureau of investigation has recommended that the father of an escapee from the state boys' training school tell his story to the Polk county grand jury in Des Moines.

The father, Axel Anderson, a custodian in the state historical building, had contended that he paid $150 as a political contribution to an unknown person to keep his son from being returned to Eldora. His son was eventually apprehended and returned to the training school.

R W Nebergall, chief of the bureau, said the father's statement indicated evidence of "aiding an escape". Nebergall, who investigated the case at the request of the governor, also recommended the Anderson youth be tried on recent felonies "he is known to have committed" and, on judicial determination, be sentenced to the state men's reformatory.

LOSES JOB

Axel Anderson, a state employee, who reported that he paid a political contribution of $150 to keep his son from being returned to the boys' training school at Eldora, has lost his state job.

State Curator Claude Cook, head of the department where Anderson worked as a custodian, said he is dismissing the man on his own and "that there is nothing political" in my action. He said the report of the state bureau of investigation prompted him to take this action.

Arthur H Peterson, onetime employee at the training school, is now in custody on a charge of assisting an escape.

TURNS 'EM OUT

That's the title Gov Leo A Hoegh has almost won for himself. An AP report says the governor is building toward a championship among Iowa governors in the matter of issuing official proclamations.

So far this year the chief executive has issued 77 of them. In the first six months of 1954, the last year of Governor Beardsley's first term, he has issued 22 in the same period.

The Beardsley output was greater than that of Governor B. B. and Governor Hickenlooper.

HOPPER SPRAY

The Iowa department of agriculture has launched a roadside spraying program in an effort to control grasshoppers. The program, involving spraying of roadsides and railroad right-of-way, is underway in 32 southern Iowa counties.

Department officials report the grasshopper infestation this year is the worst since 1938.

An emergency fund of $7,000 will be used to conduct the program. A request for another $13,000 made orally to the legislative budget committee was postponed by the committee until its July 9 meeting.

TRAFFIC SAFETY

Floyd Link, Davenport, an official of the Motor Club of Iowa, is the chairman of a new state-wide organization to encourage and permit participation in a large scale traffic safety program in the state.

The organization and programming is in the formulative stages. First meeting was held last week in Ames, where a 10-member study committee was named to explore the possibilities. The meeting at Ames was held under the auspices of the Governor's Lay Committee for Traffic Safety.

The study group plans its first meeting in Des Moines August 1.

UNIONS MERGE

Iowa's labor unions—American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations—are now merged under one organization. The merger of the AFL and CIO organizations in the state was approved last week at the statewide conventions of the two unions held in Des Moines.

Approximately 100,000 members, affiliated with labor unions are affected by the merger in Iowa.

Ray Mills, 53, mayor of Des Moines, president of the Iowa Federation of Labor (AFL) was elected the first president of the new organization. Other officers of the newly merged group are:

Edris H Owens, Newton, secretary-treasurer of the Iowa CIO, executive vice-president; Earl J Baum, Des Moines, secretary-treasurer of the Iowa AFL, as secretary-treasurer; and vice presidents-at-large, Wilton M Seymour of Des Moines (AFL) and Vernon Dale of Muscatine (CIO).

Mills will be paid $8,000 annually and Owens and Baum $7,000 each plus expenses.

FEDERAL GAS REFUNDS

First refunds of federal gas taxes should reach farmers in early August. That's the prediction of Frank Halpin, Iowa district director of internal revenue.

Halpin estimates there may be as many as 200,000 claims filed in Iowa. Filing deadline is Oct 30 for claims for federal refunds for gasoline purchased after 1955 and used during the six months ending June 30. The refunds are on the two-cent federal gasoline "used on a farm for farm purposes."

REFORMATORY PROFITS

Industries operated by the state men's reformatory at Anamosa showed a net profit of $8,388 in fiscal year 1955.

In the previous year, according to a state auditor's report, the industries showed a net loss of $17,943.

The industries sell their products to tax-supported bodies.

The canning and cheese factories combined had a profit of $2,144 and metals industry which makes license plates and highway signs, showed a profit of $32,439, up $10,812 from last year.

RUBBER ROAD

A new kind of "rubber road" top dressing will be applied to highway 6 between Des Moines and Ames. The resurfacing mixture includes rubber latex.

The Iowa highway commission said this will be the first road in Iowa to use the stretchy latex, purpose of which is to make the road surface more flexible and less likely to crack or break up.

In addition to the latex, which will be sprayed on, the mixture will include gravel and hot asphalt.

VFW CHIEF

Joseph G Maher, Sr., Muscatine's chief of police, is the new state commander of the Iowa department Veterans of Foreign Wars. Maher succeeds Edward M McConnel of Oakland. Howard McAlpine of Sheldon is senior-vice-commander.

Mrs Joseph Glaza of Waterloo is the new auxiliary president succeeding Mrs Forest Miller of Leon.

---

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

This accident traveled around for years in three parts. Then came a day and a moment when the three parts came neatly together.

One part was a man who wouldn't put out his hand to signal a turn if he had a better than even chance of plucking a $10.00 bill out of the air.

The second part was a careless man who brought neglect and decay to everything he owned. His property simply went to pot for lack of care. His car had no tail light.

The third part was what the patrolman telling the story called "a city driver." He was a hurried, hard-pressed man—or he thought he was—who always followed the car ahead by as close as 5 to 10 feet.

Taken separately, each man, each part of the accident to come, would have excused himself as not so bad.

The man who never signalled could say, "But they can see my tail lights go on." The man who had no tail lights could say, "But I seldom drive at night." The man who followed too closely could say, "I've got good brakes."

Then came the day and the moment. The man who wouldn't signal stopped in the middle of highway to make a left turn. Right behind him, the man who had no tail light jammed on his brakes. Right behind him, the man who followed too closely had no warning, no chance to use his good brakes.

He crashed into the car ahead and his three year old son, riding in the front seat, was thrown through the windshield. His life was lost before he could be taken to a hospital.

A far-fetched and improbable story? The patrolmen who were there swear it is true.

Roy Rogers' Troup To Be At State Fair

Des Moines, Iowa:

Roy Rogers, cowboy star of the movies, television, and radio, has just signed contracts to appear in person at the Iowa State Fair Rodeo here in August, Fair Secretary L B Cunningham announced today.

With Roy Rogers in his guest appearance at the fair will be Dale Evans, who also stars in motion picture and television shows. In addition, Cunningham said, Rogers will bring with him his famous trained horses, Trigger and Trigger, Jr.; Pat Brady and Nellybelle, the trick jeep; and the cowboy sextet, the Sons of the Pioneers.

Rogers and his group will appear in the state fair rodeo four afternoons, from Thursday, August 30 through Sunday September 2, plus one evening, September 1.

Secretary Cunningham said today that the contracts call for Rogers to do trick and fancy riding on his horse, Trigger, Jr, also to give an exhibition of trick shooting at flying targets, with Dale Evans assisting. In addition, Rogers and Dale Evans will do a series of western songs Pat Brady will do comedy routine with his jeep, and the Sons of the Pioneers will sing several of their western numbers which have been popular record sellers, including "Tumbling Tumbleweeds", and "Cool Water".

"This is the biggest 'name' feature we have engaged for the Iowa State Fair in many years", Secretary Cunningham said today. "It took several months of negotiations to sign up Rogers and his group and we are sure they will be a big attraction at this summer's exposition."

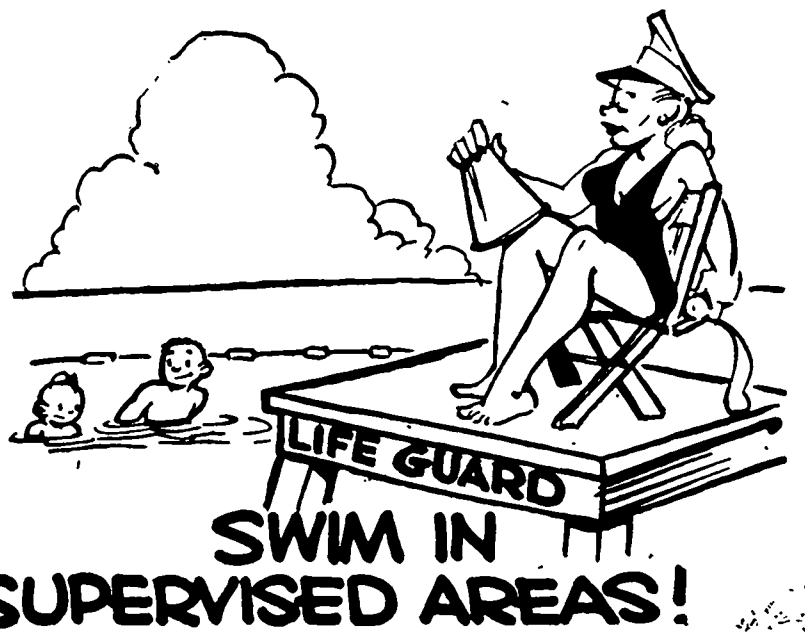
Water Safety



SWIM IN SUPERVISED AREAS!

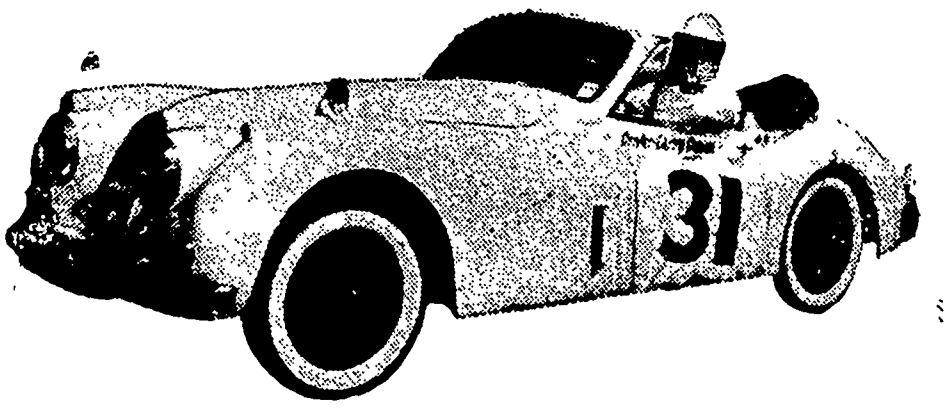
Iowa waters have been struck by tragedy several times in recent weeks, with a number of youngstres drowning in lonely gravel pits or unsupervised lake areas.

In most cases the kids were swimming in or near deep-water areas without adult guidance, and most of the tragedies could have been prevented by a trained lifeguard.

Water safety experts caution everyone—youngsters and adults alike-against swimming alone. Sudden cramps or nausea from over-exertion can strike even the expert, and the non-swimmer can easily wade beyond his depth in unknown waters.

Parents are urged to send their children to supervised pools and beaches. If this isn't possible, they can choose safe, shallow water areas and watch young children closely.

And grownups—even Olympic champions—should never risk swimming in waters without nearby help.



Jaguar entered in Iowa International is shown here with Larry Doran, weathy sportsman-race driver of Lincoln, Neb., at the wheel. Doran will race the European sports creation in the 250-lap "International" which will feature "free-for-all" action between Foreign and American sports cars and standard stock and convertibles of American make. The July 15 racing classic will get under way with time trials at 1 p. m. with the race slated to begin at 2:30.

Selective Service Classifications Explained

"Every family in the county is interested in Selective Service classifications and what they mean in terms of their own son and his past, present and future military life. Selective Service registrants may qualify for any one of seventeen different classifications based on the current written information contained in their files at the local board office", said Mr Ernest A Haes Chairman of the Hancock County Local Board.

"When a young man reaches the age of 18 he is required by law to register with the nearest Selective Service Local Board. Following registration he is required to complete a "Classification Questionnaire" setting out in detail facts upon which classification is based. In the event the "Questionnaire" does not adequately cover the subject to the satisfaction of the registrant, he may file additional written material for the information and guidance of his local board. A registrant may review his file at any time at the local board office."

"Each registrant should understand", said Mr Haes "that his classification is determined solely upon the written information contained in his file. From the time he registers at eighteen until he has completely satisfied his military obligation it is the responsibility of the registrant to keep his local board informed, in writing, of any change in status which might affect his classification. Any change of address, school, work, marital status, or information that he has a child or is expecting a child must be filed with the local board prior to the time the Order to Report for Induction is mailed to the registrant. When the registrant is expecting a child, he must file a certificate of a licensed physician stating that the child has been conceived, the probable date of its delivery, and the evidence upon which the positive diagnosis of pregnancy is based."

Selective Service Regulations provide that each registrant shall be classified in one of the following classes:

CLASS I-A:

Available for military service. Callable in the following order-

1. Delinquents,
2. Volunteers,
3. Non-fathers, 19 through 25, oldest first,
4. Fathers, 19 through 25, oldest first,
5. Registrants, 26 and older, youngest first, and
6. Registrants, 18½ and not yet 19, oldest first.

Jolly Workers Plan Picnic In Klemme Pork Sunday

The Jolly Workers Club held their June meeting at the home of Mrs Paul Kramer. We answered roll call by giving ideas how to make money for our club.

Miss Lydia Pearson and Mrs Kenneth Dryer and baby were visitors.

Plans were made for the club picnic to be held this coming Sunday, July 8th in the Klemme Park. Each family is to bring their own dishes and silverware, two covered dishes, sandwiches and a beverage. Dinner will be at 12 o'clock.

Mrs Peter Trampel was having a birthday in June so we all sent her a card. Lydia Pearson showed us a film on conservation and one of a former club picnic

A lovely lunch was served by the hostess with Mrs Walter Blumer as co-hostess.

The August meeting will be at the home of Mrs Wemkie Cavitt with Mrs Bernard Gruis assisting.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

The recent hot weather is expected to make production fall off even more rapidly than usual during this, the season of declining egg production, says Steve Hiemstra, Iowa State College farm economist. So Hiemstra expects prices to begin soon, boosted upward also by unusual low egg storage.

The Iowa State College economist anticipates the rapid production drop and resulting price increase because of the fact that laying flocks this year have been made up of a larger proportion of 2-year old hens. These older birds go out of production rapidly with the coming of hot weather and must be culled. The number of hens reaching the market has shown an upsurge during recent weeks causing prices to drop. Hiemstra points out that here are the same birds that caused hen prices to go up when they were withheld from the market a year ago.

Also, Hiemstra reports that there should soon be a greater price spread between egg grades, as hot weather tends to damage quality. This will increase the incentive to produce high quality eggs.

Egg prices are not expected to remain higher than last year throughtout the fall, however, as the large increase in early-hatched chicks will tend to limit the fall price advance, particularly in the case of smaller eggs.

Hiemstra indicates that the total chick hatch this year has not been much greater than is needed to replace culls. In view of this, he believes we can look forward to a stronger winter market comparable with last year.

Production of broilers has been running about 20 percent ahead of last year and is expected to continue this rate for at least 2 more months, says Hiemstra. This estimate is based on the number of eggs set for broilers in the 22 primary broiler-producing states.

Broiler prices have been running 6 to 8 cents below last year's high levels in these states but until recently have been fairly profitable because of low feed prices. However, points out Hiemstra, the recent rise in feed prices has now made broiler production less profitable than last year.

On the other hand, farm chicken prices have held up well and are nearly in line with last year, thus decreasing the price spread between these birds and commercially grown broilers.

Advice on Controlling Crop Pests at Field Day

Ways to control insects, disease and weeds that are harmful to farm crops will be emphasized on the program of the Northern Iowa Agricultural Experimental Association Field Day at Kanawha, June 12, says Paul Henderson, Hancock County extension director.

Grasshopper control will be stressed by Iowa State College entomologist Harold Gunderson, Henderson says. He adds that Gunderson will touch on other insect problems during his talk.

Weed control specialist E P Sylwester will clear up questions on the many new weed control chemicals now being pushed onto the market. He will tell what they are, and how they should be used for best results, Henderson adds.

Mal Shurtleff, Iowa State College plant pathologist, and field day chairman, has listed a plant pest clinic as the program opener. Starting time is 9:30 a m. Farmers are invited to bring in specimens of insects, weeds, and diseased plants. Shurtleff, Gunderson and Sylwester will identify them, answer questions and suggest controls.

"Forage Stand Management" is the title of the next item on the program. Agronomist Ralph Krenzin will discuss management of forage crops in seedling and following years. The presentations by Gunderson and Sylwester will follow during the morning.

Free lunch will be provided to all visitors at noon. The meal will be furnished by the Northern Iowa Agricultural Experimental Association. An added attraction "Agriculture in Egypt," will be presented during the noon hour by Iver Johnson, in charge of farm crops at Iowa State College. Johnson recently returned from a three months' visit in Egypt.

From 1 to 3 p m a tour of the farm has been scheduled, indicates Shurtleff, Burnett, the new oat variety, will be one of the attractions at the small grain plots. Other new varieties, close to release, will also be inspected. Wheat, barley, and flax varieties, new and old, will be looked over by the visiting farmers. New varieties and selections of soybeans will be on display at the soybean nursery. Seed and soil treatment for potato diseases will be the subject of another tour.

A report on weed control experiments in corn should be of top interest to farmers according to Shurtleff. D W Staniforh of Iowa State College will present weed study findings. Corn, soybean and oats disease studies will be discussed for persons interested, as will chemical control for sweet clover weevil, seed treatment for sugar beets, and weed control in beets and flax.

From 3 to 3:45 a tour of the new Clarion-Webster Experimental farm 1 mile south of Kanawha is planned.

Cook Anywhere in Your Home—

Use an Automatic Electric Fry Pan

Barbecue meat balls in your electric fry pan and serve with Italian spaghetti. Complete this summertime dinner with tossed salad, fruit and cup cakes for dessert. If you like, use rice instead of spaghetti.

There's no need for your range to heat up the kitchen on these hot summer afternoons. Use an automatic fry pan instead of the range. Take your skillet out of the kitchen and into the dining room and prepare dinner there. Or go anywhere inside or outdoors—all you need is an electrical outlet. You'll find this cool, easy way of cooking just right for informal summertime living.

And there are even more advantages to cooking in an electric fry pan. One of its most important assets is the built-in heat control which takes the "guess work" out of surface unit cooking, much as oven controls have for baking. Skillets very often have a time-temperature chart on the heat-resistant handle. Temperatures usually go to $500 degrees F. Some have water-sealed elements so they can be completely immersed in water for washing. Square models hold around 20 percent more than round fry pans of the same diameter.

Fry Pan Is Versatile.

What can your electric fry pan do for you? You can use it many ways, and these many uses increase the value of your fry pan per dollar of purchase price. You can fry chicken, eggs and meat. Electric skillets are wonderful for braising meats and making stews. They'll even do small-quantity baking. They'll thaw and cook frozen foods and are just the right size for heating frozen pies. Use your frying pan to heat or brown rolls, too. Casserole cooking is another use for this versatile appliance, and your fry pan can act as a chafing or serving dish or warmer right at the table.

Jewel Graham, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College, offers some suggestions for correct frying.

One of the most important points is to have the fat hot enough so that the food will not absorb an excessive amount. The automatic skillet, with its signal device, notifies you when the fat is heated to the desired temperature, then maintains that heat throughout the cooking period.

Study Instruction Book

Be sure to study and follow your automatic fry pan instruction booklet for best results, advises Miss Graham. You will find many suggested recipes there, too.

Why not do your barbecuing in an automatic skillet? Here's a recipe for barbecued meat balls. (Serves 6.)

1½ lbs ground beef
¾ cup rolled oats
1 tbsp minced onion
1½ tsp salt
¼ tsp pepper
1 cup milk
Flour to dredge balls
3 tbsp fat

Combine meat, oats, onion, salt pepper and milk. Form into small balls (about 18). Roll in flour and brown in fat in a heavy skillet, or in an electric fry pan set of 360 degrees F. Cover with a barbecue sauce. When the sauce boils turn heat low—200-220 degrees F and simmer until done, and sauce is fairly thick. Serve with Italian spaghetti, tossed salad, fruit and cup cakes.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Some of the corn is beginning to tassle . . . combining of oats is underway, slowed some by showers . . . soybeans look good . . .. pastures are greening up again after the rains . . . golf courses are getting in shape again . . . carp are due to begin biting as the river goes back to normal after a slight rise . . . vacationers roll along the highways . . . summer activities are getting well underway, and chances of a bountiful harvest look good in this section of Iowa.

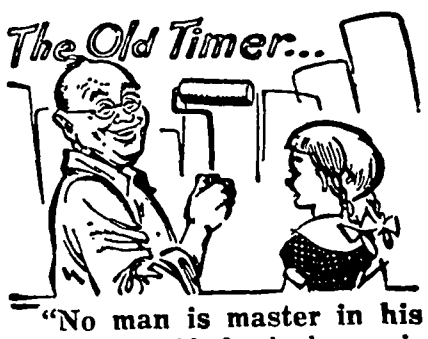
It's the time of year when hopes run high in farming communities like this one, and an occasional shower will be more than welcome.

If you're planning on buying a new automobile or any of the major appliances, you might be wise to make your move now. After the steel strike is settled, all of these items will no doubt be selling at higher prices.

A feller has come up with a new definition of the eternal triangle: income, overhead and upkeep!

The way that new soil bank works, it sounds to us as though a feller could get hail damage, collect this hail insurance, put some of the acres into the bank and collect there, too. Deal like that would turn adversity into good fortune.

And a good thing to remember is that kindness is the oil that takes the friction out of life. We don't know who said it, but it sounds like a good idea.



"No man is master in his own house if the bedroom is painted pink!"

We notice that an effort is being made in Des Moines to cut down the number of car thefts. The city council has approved on the first reading proposal to make leaving keys in a car a punishable offense. Punishment can be either $100 fine or thirty days in jail, or both. Such punishment seems rather harsh for an offense which on the surface seems to have possibilities of harming only the offender.

However, we think that the law has another purpose other than to just cut down the number of car thefts. We think, that a car without keys will not offer such great temptation to an amateur. The lack of keys would be no deterrent to a professional. He would just hook on a jump wire and drive away with the car, but an amateur might never think of stealing a car if no keys were available. and the theft weren't so easy. Consequently, he might never get started in a life of crime.

We think it is a good law, and would like to see the Des Moines

Time Is Short For Soil Bank Sign-up

Farmers of Hancock County were reminded this week that they have only a few more days to decide whether they will participate in the soil bank program in 1956 or to what extent they will participate

July 20 is the final day—the deadline—for operators to make their decisions and to sign agreements for 1956, it was emphasized by the Hancock ASC committee.

As of July 6 of last week, 446 agreements had been signed by farmers of this county but many more operators are believed planning to sign up. Because of the time required to work out each individual agreement, the County Committee urged all who are interested to call at the ASC office at the earliest possible time.

The ASC chairman said the following soil bank facts are of major importance at this time:

1. July 20 is the final day for operators to make agreements for 1956. It is also the final day for farmers to terminate previously made agreements which they have decide not to carry out fully. To avoid a penalty for "willful" failure to carry out an agreement, a farmer has until July 20 to terminate his original agreement and withdraw entirely from the program or he may terminate and make a new agreement which he will carry out fully.

Agreements must be signed by participating farm operators by July 20 but landlords may affix their signatures as late as August 31 which is a month later than originally announced.

2. July 15 is (was) the final day for making any necessary cutback in wheat acreage to meet soil bank requirements and clip barley, oats or rye on land going into the acreage reserve.

3. July 31 is the final day for making any necessary cutback in corn acreage to meet soil bank requirements and to plow under or clip flax, grain sorghum and soybeans on land going into the acreage reserve.

4. Before destroying any crop, farmers should know exactly what is required of them to qualify for soil bank benefits. This information should be obtained at the county ASC office.

Speech Therapist and Elementary Supervisor For County's Schools

Proposed additional services for the school districts in Hancock County and a change in sponsorship of an exsisting service are reflected in the proposed expenditures for the 1957 school year.

The speech therapist who has been serving this county has, for the past number of years, been financed by the Garner Independent School District.

This year the County Board of Education will make the expenditures and receive the state and local reimbursements. The actual cost will be more than if the service were financed as in the past, but the budget will reflect the expenditures and receipts and not just the net cost as it has in the past.

The County Board has been petitioned by school boards in the county and requested by the Hancock County Schoolmasters Club to provide an elementary supervisor from its office to work in all public schools in the county. The Board has approved the request and will provide the service. The budget estimate includes an expenditure to pay the costs of the services.

BEING WOOED

Iowa's delegates to the Democratic national convention next month are being wooed hot and heavy by party presidential aspirants.

Latest to come into the state was Adlai Steveson, considered generally, as the man to beat for the Demo nomination.

Stevenson, who in the 1952 campaign all but ignored Iowa, was here twice last week. He spent the large part of one day touring southern Iowa counties, then departed the state to return two days later for a buffet supper and meeting with delegates at Des Moines.

In the 1952 campaign, Stevenson was in Iowa only once, for a very few hours, during which time he made an address at the Fort Dodge airport.

Averill Harriman, governor of New York, another candidate, was here only a few days ago, and Estes Kefauver a frequent visitor in this state, was here last month.

LARGEST TO EMIGRATE

A Dutch family of 15, including 13 children, largest to emigrate to the U S, has arrived in Iowa to farm near Bouton in Dallas County.

The farm on which they will work is owned by State Sen. George O'Malley, Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor.

If the Dutch family of Mr and Mrs Nicholas Moon reunion often with the O'Malley family the farm house will bulge at the seams. Mr and Mrs O'Malley have 10 children.

The Dutch family was sponsored by John Connolly, Jr., a brother-in-law of the Iowa senator. They are also law partners.

CAMPAIGN COSTS

U S Senator Bourke B Hickenlooper spent $6,916.11 in the last primary campaign to successfully win renomination against Atty Gen Dayton Countryman. The senator, in filing his expense statement, said he received donations totaling $6,187.50.

Countryman spent $3,555 and listed donations of $1,842.

HIGHWAY WORK

Contract lettings for primary road construction by the Iowa highway commission in the fiscal year ended June 30 totaled about $58,432,626. The total was nearly twice that spent in the previous fiscal year.

The letting report, issued by the Iowa Good Roads Association, said that the commission spent $29,980.893 on the primary system a year before.

Of the funds this year, figures show, $15,906,400 was spent in the widening program.

NEW RULING

A precedent setting decision was handed down on jobless pay by the Iowa Employment Security Commission recently.

The commission ruled that non-striking union employees of the Des Moines John Deere plant are entitled to unemployment compensation for all idle time resulting from the strike earlier this year by members of the UAW.

Iowa law prohibits direct unemployment compensation to strikers.

The decision was reached after 75 union members contended their failure to cross picket lines to work during the strike was due to violence and threats of violence on the part of the striking workers.

GOVERNOR GETS CAR

Gov Leo A Hoegh has a new official car, a 1956 air-conditioned Oldsmobile. The Iowa executive council approved purchase of the auto for $900 with a $1,099.99; trade-in allowance on his year old model.

Secretary of State Melvin Synhorst voted against the purchase on the grounds the state is evading the law limiting to $1,999.99 the amount it can pay for any passenger car.

A car of the type the governor will use usually costs in the neighborhood of $4,000.00.

SOIL BANK TIME

The Iowa ASC, acting under authority of the U S department of agriculture, has extended to July 15 the deadline for plowing under, clipping or removing oats, rye, wheat and barley from land in order to qualify for payments under the soil bank acreage program.

The former deadline had been June 30 for wheat, rye and barley and July 4 for oats.

Acreage reserve payments will average about $44 an acre in Iowa.

AMVETS ELECT

Charles Scherrer of Dubuque is the new state commander of the Iowa Amvets, succeeding Ralph Juhl of Waverly.

Robert Dubois of Fort Dodge is the new first vice-commander and Eldon Crippen of Manchester was elected second vice-commander. Third vice-commander is Kenneth Thorton of Radcliffe.

The Amvets held their annual state convention at Clinton. They voted to hold the 1957 parley at Fort Dodge.

DISASTER COUNTIES

Gov Leo A Hoegh, and his emergency state drouth committee, have declared 33 Iowa counties as disaster areas.

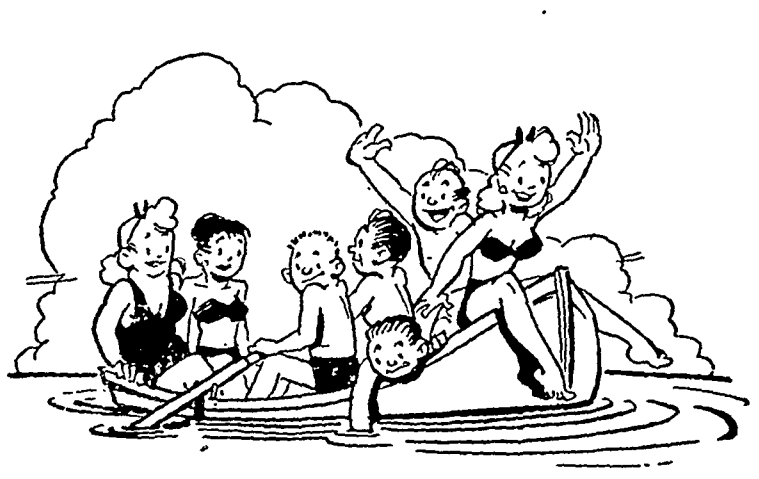
A U S department of agriculture fieldman toured the area last weekend to present his recommendations on the Iowa request to President Eisenhower.

Shortage of rain has knocked out pastures in the areas and grain crops, because of the dry weather, are expected to be considerably short of their normal production.

Many farmers in the counties are short of hay to feed livestock.

Approval of the "disaster" tag, would permit farmers to graze land in the acreage reserve program, or feed the grains to be clipped from the reserve land.

WATER SAFETY



DON'T OVERLOAD!

One of the most common dangers in boating is the overloading of the craft—filling it with people until it is not stable or easily handled.

Most commercial 12 or 14-foot boats have a capacity of 3 passengers, and no more. Four passengers in such boats may be a dangerous overload. The capacities of rental boats at public boat liveries are rated by law, but private boats are not so rated and their capacity is up to the judgment of the operator.

A heavily loaded boat may ship water easily, is sluggish to handle, and will not respond properly. Persons moving or shifting weight may cause it to capsize, sometimes throwing several non-swimmers into deep water.

If you're not sure of your boat's capacity, have it checked by a lake patrolman or by your local state conservation officer.

Be sure, and then be careful!

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

"I personally assume that every driver is trying to kill me."

That is one highway patrolman's answer to the question: "How are you going to protect yourself in July traffic?" The patrolman went on to explain that his answer came out of a philosophy of "defensive driving".

"I watch the cars ahead of me, the cars behind me and the cars coming in on the left and right. I think about the cars I can't see just over the hill or around the next curve," he said.

"I always assume there's a car coming over every hill, that a train is coming at every crossing, that the car coming onto the highway just ahead won't stop for the stop sign, that the car I'm following will make a sudden left turn at the next intersection."

The patrolman said he felt the most common mistake drivers will make during July will be too much speed. "That's the basic mistake and when a driver adds a little carelessness or inattention to it, he wakes up to find someone like me holding up his head in a ditch."

The patrolman passed on what he feels is an important safety habit he has developed in his own driving. "It sounds like a small thing," he said, "but I keep both hands on the wheel all the time.

"That gives you greater control of your car, and it gives you a sense of really doing something important. When you use both hands to drive ,you naturally feel that what you are doing deserves all your attention."

Traffic this month may be the heaviest in the history of the state. Perhaps, like the patrolman, we'd better assume when we drive that every other driver is trying to kill us.

The number of pigs farrowed between last December and June 1, 1956 was 8 percent less than last year, reports Steve Hiemstra Iowa State College farm economist. A total of 53,085,000 pigs was farrowed during this period. An average of 6.94 pigs per litter was saved, thus establishing a new record. In Iowa and other western Corn Belt states, the number of pigs farrowed this spring was 15 percent less than a year ago. At the same time farrowing in the eastern Corn Belt was down only 4 percent. Some southeastern areas of the country showed an increase of as much as 6 percent over last year. All other areas were down, however.

The fact that pig numbers here in the western part of the Corn Belt are down as compared with the rest of the country will aid the local markets. Pressure on our interior and river makets slaughteing facilities should not be as great as that experienced last year. These markets should therefore be bidding much closer to Chicago prices than they were able to do last fall.

The Iowa State College economist also reports that the trend toward earlier farrowing is continuing. The period of December to February showed a 1 percent increase, but the March through May period was down 4 percent. Hiemstra believes this should be enough to maintain a strong winter market.

The hog slaughter level is currently well above a year ago. But, says Hiemstra, by fall the level will be running lower than that of last year. This should allow prices to hold well above those of last fall during the heavy marketing months of October through December. This does not mean there will be no seasonal price decline, warns Hiemstra, but merely that last years's severe price drop is not expected to be repeated this year.

Hiemstra advises farmers to top out hogs as soon as they reach market weight. He points out that feeding hogs to heavy weight during the fall is nearly always a losing proposition.

Breeding intentions for fall farrowing indicate a reduction of 7 percent under last year, says the Iowa State College economist. This projected decrease appears to be evenly spread over the June through November period. If this decline materializes, says Himstra, we should get a strong market with more than a normal chance for a market rise in the December through January period.

Charivari Jostens

Seventy-five friends and neighbors gathered together at Ell Center school Monday evening to charivari Mr and Mrs Calvin Josten who live in the tenant house on the W F Greiman farm.

Lots of noise was furnished by the noisemakers. Mr and Mrs Josten treated the "charivariers" to a delicious treat.

The "charivariers" would like to thank Mr Wm Greiman for letting them come to his place and make all the noise they wanted.

12 year old Virginia Marble of Manchester caught a 20 pound carp near Guttenberg recently. She was using a cane pole.

Iowa's Governor Sees New York Sights

Like thousands of other visitors to New York City, Governor Leo A. Hoegh of Iowa lost no time in visiting the observatory atop the famous Empire State Building when he was in New York City recently. Governor Hoegh, who was in New York for a short holiday before the Governors' Conference in Atlantic City, is shown in this photograph looking over the sights from Empire State's 86th floor. With him are, left to right, his 8-year-old daughter Janis; Garry Tandy, son of Major General Fred Tandy, Iowa's Adjutant General; Governor Hoegh, and Frank Powell, Empire State's observatory manager. The Governor told Mr. Powell he was "thrilled by the view" and asked Mr. Powell to visit him at the Iowa State capital. "We don't have any tall buildings but we sure do have some tall corn," he said.

Incidentally, Mrs. Hoegh and daughter, Kristin, 12 years old, who were also on the eastern trip, were not present when the picture was taken. "They're shopping," the Governor explained.

Records Show Boating Increase In Iowa

Boat use in Iowa has shown a strong increase, and Conservation Commission license officials report that nearly twice as many boats have been registered this year than in 1955.

Up to July 1, 1956, 4,855 boats were registered with the Commission, as compared to 2,760 for the same period in 1955. A total of 21,720 boats has been registered since 1949.

According to law, any boat used in state waters that is capable of a speed of 8 miles per hour or more must be registered with the Conservation Commission.

It is believed that increasing boat use reflects the strong national trend toward more outdoor play, as well as additional artificial lakes in Iowa.

Minnie Pearl Show To Headline Hancock County Junior Fair

America's foremost country comedianne—Cousin Minnie Pearl—will bring her star-studded Grand Ole Opry show to the Hancock County Junior Fair in Britt on August 14, it was announced today by Mitchell Bock, secretary of the Fair Board.

Star of the Saturday night NBC radio show "The Grand Ole Opry", the past 15 years, Minnie Pearl's tag line, "Howdee! I'm just so proud to be here", is one of the most famous in show business.

The popular radio and TV (viewed by millions on the ABC-TV network) will be ably backed by some of the folk music's greatest entertainers, including Decca singing star, Justin Tubb; and the king of the five-string banjo—Stringbean, the "Kentucky Wonder." Like Minnie Pearl, Stringbean is a real veteran at the Grand Ole Opry, having been there for twelve years.

Justin Tubb is the son of a 17-year vet at the "opry"—Ernest Tubb. And, he's considered the "rage of the teen agers."

Mercury recording band—Merl Lindsay and his Oklahoma Night Riders, will be with the show, along with those pretty "rock 'n roll" artists, Joyce Moore and Bobbie Heider. Columbia singing star, Yvonne McGowan, aids in rounding out a colorful show.

Both Joyce and Bobbie are recording stars and their current releases, "Ain't Got No Time" and "Reaping Heartaches" are climbing on the rhythm and blues charts across the nation.

Annual Schlei and Beier Reunion Held Sunday

The annual Schlei-Beier reunion was held Sunday July 8th at the Liberty Methodist Church parlors. After the picnic dinner, the president, Mrs Lydia Beier, opened the program with group singing and following, the Rev Melvin Miller offered prayer and gave a short talk. This was followed by a piano solo by Kathy Gast, and a few short talks, some games and a quiz by Mrs Herold Ridder.

During the business meeting, Edd Schlei of Fenton was elected president; Elmer Beier, vice president; Mrs Loren Gast, secretary and Mrs Elizabeth Beier, treasurer. On the program committee are Mrs Herold Ridder, Marcele Josten, and Mrs Russell Thorson. An offering was taken and turned over to the Liberty Church.

There were three births since the last year's reunion: a daughter, Connie Jo, to Mr and Mrs Ray Wicks; a daughter, Carol Lynne, to Mr and Mrs Paul Ridder; and a son, Scott, to Mr and Mrs Daniel Harrington.

It happened to be Mrs Ida Ridder's birthday so the group sang "Happy Birthday" to her. It was voted to meet again the first Sunday after the Fourth of July at the Liberty Church parlors.

Those present were: Mr and Mrs Edd Schlei, Mrs Ella Waite of Fenton; Kathy Harrington, Minneapolis, Minn., Mr and Mrs Walter Kalm, Ricky and Billy, Milwaukee, Wisc.; Mr and Mrs Wm Ridder, Mr and Mrs Wm. Kulper, Miss Lydia Beier all of Waterloo; Shirley Beier and Douglas Doolittle of Des Moines; Dr and Mrs E J Ridder, Clear Lake; Mrs Ida Ridder and Walter of Leland; Mr and Mrs Herold Ridder of Nora Springs; Mr and Mrs Frank Sherwood and Debbie, Mason City; Mr and Mrs Clarence Cook of Kanawha; Mr and Mrs Frank Ward, Mr and Mrs Edwin Josten and Marcele, Rev and Mrs Melvin Miller, Bengie and David; Mr and Mrs Russell Thorson, Mr and Mrs Wilbur Haefner and Margaret; Mrs Elizabeth Beier, all of Klemme, Mr and Mrs Ben Ridder; Mr and Mrs Elmer Beier, Gordon, Ronald, Janis, Joann, James and Roger; Mr and Mrs James Ridder and Rose Marie; Mr and Mrs Loren Gast, Kathy, Doran and Eldon of Garner and Miss Ione Rosendahl of Klemme.

Researchers Give Tips—

How to Wash Kiddies' Clothes

Remove nylon dresses and shirts of Dacron from washer before final spin to avoid wrinkles. Hang each garment free, smooth on hanger and allow to drip-dry: The children's clothing project was done at Iowa State.

* * *

"One minute they're clean, and the next minute they're covered with dirt." Such a comment could well be your own, if you're the mother of young children. For every mother knows that kiddies can get themselves and their clothes, dirty in a big hurry—especially in the summertime.

What to do about this problem? We'll just have to accept the fact that kids will be kids and will go right on coming in covered with dust, sand, mud and what have you. Children scrub up pretty easily, but their clothes are more of a problem. Good laundry methods and man-made fiber garments seen to be a good combination.

The new synthetic garments have really come into the family wardrobe within the past few years. These man-made fiber clothes have outgrown home facilities for handwashing and drip-drying. And besides, you may have recently invested in a new automatic washer and dryer in order to conserve your valuable time and energy.

Research Finds Answers

You may wonder how you can take advantage of the benefits given by the new fibers and new automatic laundry equipment and how much time it takes to care for clothing made of synthetic fibers in comparison with natural fiber clothes. The children's clothing project, recently completed at Iowa State College, came up with some answers to these questions.

Man-made compared to natural fibers, hand washing and drip-drying compared to machine washing and drying—here are the pros and cons.

In general, it takes less time to care for synthetic clothes because they require little, if any ironing. Just a touch up here and there, perhaps. However, synthetic garments tend to wrinkle if they go through the spin of the automatic washer. You will have fewer wrinkles if you hand-wash clothing, but machine washing is much more thorough and usually takes less of your time.

Here are some guides from the researchers at Iowa State College. Follow them and you will wash with most satisfactory results.

Remove Before Final Spin

Wash white clothing of man-made fibers in hot water Don't include any colored clothes in the white load. Remove synthetic garments before final spin to avoid setting wrinkles. Dry these clothes for 10 minutes at low temperatures setting of the dryer or allow clothes to drip dry. No ironing's needed except for shirts or dresses, possibly.

White clothing of natural fibers should be washed in the same way. Remove the clothes that need to be ironed from the dryer after 13 to 15 minutes at hot setting. Other clothes will be dry in 45 minutes.

How should you wash heavily soiled clothing? It's easy. Wash in hot water. Dry knits—underwear and socks—for 30 minutes at hot setting. You won't need to iron them.

Wash colored dresses in warm water. Remove nylon dresses before final spin to avoid wrinkles and let them drip dry. Touch up with the steam iron if necessary. Cotton dresses need to dry for 15 minutes at hot setting. Take them out of the dryer and steam press.

Wash sweaters of nylon and Orlon yarns in your washer. Use warm water and put them in a mesh bag to prevent stretching the sweaters out of shape. Lay them flat on a table to dry.

New Book on Farmhouses At Extension Office

A new system of chosing the farmhouse you want has been put together in a new book called "Contemporary Farmhouses." Extension Director Paul Henderson of Hancock County says a copy of this book may be seen at the extension office in Garner.

The book was published for the colleges of agriculture in the North Central States. It not only shows 576 different house plan combinations on 24 divided pages, but has 22 pages of information the home planner needs to bring his or her ideas up to the minute on house design, construction, materials and equipment.

This book is not intended as a do-it-yourself handbook, but rather as a guide for rural families planning home building and for builders, dealers, architects and rural leaders. It is expected to help you make decisions now that will allow for future changes and perhaps save costly mistakes.

The book is officially listed as Regional Publication 58, "Contemporary Farmhouses." Iowa was one of 12 states cooperating with the United State Department of Agriculture in preparing this book. It was printed at the University of Illinois Press. Those who wish to have their own personal copy may buy it from the printer, but anyone interested may look the book over in the Extension Office in Garner, Paul Henderson says.

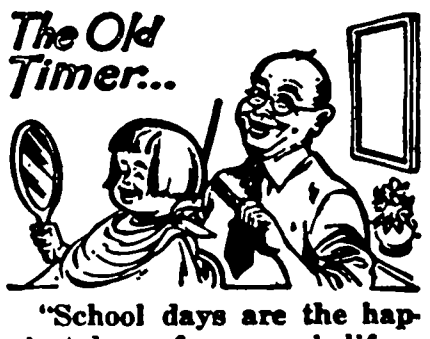
Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

The annual Music Mothers Ice Cream Social in the park this Saturday night should draw quite a crowd. In addition to the social there will be the usual Saturday night square dancing in the park and the last band concert of the season will be held on Main Street at eight o'clock. Those who are on hand should be in for a good time.

Plenty of rain the past week, mostly in showers, and plenty of mosquitoes. The hot muggy weather really brings them out. Seems to us that it's getting about time to give the town another spraying. Those little pests can get in a lot of nasty digs when you're out doors in the evening.



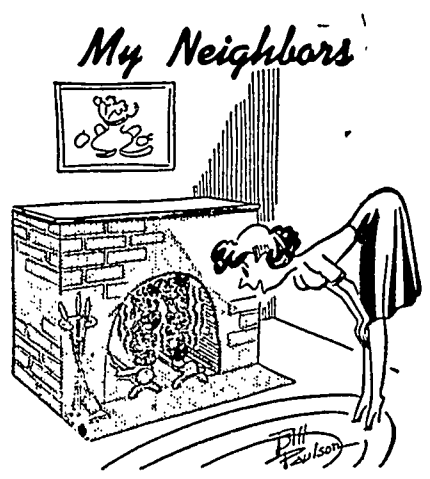
"School days are the happiest days of a person's life—if she's a mother!"

If we were on the highway and it was necessary . . . as it has been said . . . to write so many tickets a month, we believe we could get our full quota in short order right on Klemme's main street. We almost believe some drivers speed up to go through town.

Word has been put out . . . supposedly officially . . . that the new interstate highway 69 will pass to the east of Klemme about three or four miles. The Belmond Independent carried a story last week to that affect, and went on to tell that the present highway 69 would still be maintained as a state highway.

Such an arrangement will take the burden of through traffic off the present highway and make it much better to drive on. Such an arrangement will make quite a difference to business located on the present highway. Especially those who depend to quite a degree on transient trade.

Works out about as usual. Any improvement usually makes it inconvenient for someone. But in the long run it's better for most of the people.



"You can come out now, dear. All the Internal Revenue man wanted to know was the best road to Mayville!"

Oats combining is just about a thing of the past for this year,

Pallbearers were: Virgil Buntenbach, Lew Hansen, C L Conroy, Lynford Back, Rodger Marpe, and Gus Pappas. Ushers were: Earl Weber and James Rygh. Mrs Rygh was laid to rest in the Memorial Park cemetery near Mason City.

In June of 1943, she was married to Lieutenant Harold Wicks of Klemme. On Christmas of 1944, Lieutenant Wicks lost his life in World War II.

Following that she became office girl for the Garner Sales Company and for several years taught Bible School in her home church at Klemme. She then attended McConnell's Air Line School and became a stewardess for Northwest Airlines.

On December 26, 1949, she was joined in marriage to Earl Rygh of Lake Mills, at which time the couple transferred their membership to the United Presbyterian Church of Garner. In August of 1951, a daughter, Leslie was born into the home. In October of 1954, she was stricken with a lingering illness.

In spite of her illness, she tried valiantly to teach in the United Presbyterian Church School during her last year, but was forced to resign because of her weakened condition.

She leaves to mourn her passing her devoted husband, Earl, a daughter, Leslie; her parents, Mr and Mrs E C Buntenbach; a sister, Mrs Elaine Keraus; a brother E D Buntenbach; three nephews and two nieces

Penalty Involved in Soil Bank Agreements

Farmers who have signed or plan to sign soil bank agreements should keep in mind that they must either comply with their agreements or terminate them by July 20 if they wish to avoid certain penalties provided by the soil bank law.

In cases of willful failure to carry out an agreement, the law provides for a civil penalty of 50 percent of the payment which would have been due had the agreement been carried out, was emphasized this week by the Hancock County ASC committee.

They said this announcement was directed particularly to any farmers who have signed or plan to sign acreage reserve agreements calling for greater cut-backs in corn or wheat acreage than the farmers would actually expect to make.

Under the law and Department of Agriculture regulations, the farmer who signs an agreement prior to July 20 has only through July 20 to decide whether or not he will comply with his agreement. If he decides he cannot or will not comply fully, he must terminate his agreement by July 20 at the county ASC office. Up to and including July 20, he may terminate his agreement and retire entirely from the soil bank program for 1956, or he may terminate his original agreement which he intends to carry out fully.

Although July 20 is the final date for termination, for making original agreements and for making new agreements, Iowa farmers have until July 31 to make any corn acreage adjustment required under their individual agreements. However, the decision to do so must be made by July 20.

June 30 was the deadline date for making any necessary adjustment in wheat acreage involved in the acreage reserve program. June 30 was also the deadline for clipping barley and rye on land to be designated for acreage reserve. July 15 is the deadline for clipping oats on land going into the acreage reserve. July 31 is the deadline for clipping flaxseed, grain sorghum and soybeans on land going into the acreage reserve, as well as the deadline for making any necessary adjustment of corn acreage.

Record Crowds Expected At North Ia. Bible Camp

Outstanding speakers, pulpit personalities and musicians are expected to bring record crowds to Iowa's Great Lakes region for the North Iowa Bible Conference at Okoboji's Methodist Camp, July 29 to August 5.

Featured speakers on Sunday, July 29, will be F Gerald Ensley, Methodist Bishop of the Des Moines Area and Dr J Richard Palmer, Morningside President.

Two visitors, from England, Dr A Raymond George, Wesley College, Leeds, and Dr W E Whilding, Bristol, will be featured speakers, Monday through Friday.

Dr James K Mathews, world traveler and executive secretary of World Missions for the Methodist Church will speak of conditions in areas vital to the interest of every American—India, Pakistan and Central Africa. Many other noteable church personalities will also speak during the 8-day session.

He will be assisted by a group of outstanding student-performers, including Georgia Hix, contralto, Odeboldt; Carol Lehnuss, coloratura soprano, Rolfe; Ronald Haddock, tenor, Hornick; and Connie Davies, Paullina, organist.

Sessions are so arranged that those in attendance will have ample time to enjoy the wide variety of recreations offered in the lakes area. Lodging and meals are available at the Methodist Camp at reasonable rates for those wishing to stay a few days or all week.

To Check for Unknown TB Cases In County

A search for possible—but as yet unknown—cases of tuberculosis begins soon in Hancock County, according to Mrs Ray Baker, president of the County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

The program will directed by, Marcia Mitchell, R. N., public health nurse.

Supported by Christmas Seal Funds, the nurse will work with the family physician in an effort to locate those who have been in contact with persons known to have active tuberculosis.

The nurse visits the physicians in the community, who advise her of any persons they know who have been in contact with an active case of tuberculosis. These individuals, plus any other the family physicians recommends, are visited by the public health nurse.

Information gathered by the nurse in the interviews in the home is strictly confidential. Each contact is urged to have a tuberculin skin test made by the physician. Those who react to the test are urged to have a chest x-ray.

The "Contact Program," which has the approval of the Hancock County Medical Society, has been credited by public health officials as finding the greatest number of unknown cases of tuberculosis of any case-finding plan in the state.

Will Issue Separate Deer License for Bow Hunters

A separate license for bow-and-arrow hunters will probably be issued for the 1956 Iowa deer season, Conservation Commission officials revealed today

The special bowhunting license would be required only for deer hunting, and the regular hunting license will be needed for hunting small game with bow and arrow

Bruce Stiles, Director of the Commission, suggested that two types of deer hunting licenses be issued, one reading "Restricted to bow and arrow", and the other "Restricted to shotgun". Only two types of weapons are lawful for hunting Iowa deer: bows and arrows, and shotguns shooting rifled slugs.

Conservation Commission officials said that the state attorney general's office has given "a favorable opinion" of this method of licensing, and the Commission has directed that necessary steps be taken to have such licenses printed.

The 1956 Iowa deer season has not yet been set. Most 1956-57 Iowa hunting seasons will be set during the August session of the Commission.

and although oats are not yielding as well this year as last, still it is a pretty fair crop of good quality grain. Now all the farmers have to do is sit back and relax at a few little odd jobs like making hay, fixing fence, filling silo, and a million and one other jobs that always seem to be there to be taken care of. Then they can pick corn and combine.

We hope that we continue to get enough moisture to keep the beans and corn growing as they have been. If such be the case, those crops should be very good in this area.

CAPITOL LETTER

SCHOOL REORGANIZATION

School district reorganization continued at an increased rate in the fiscal year just ended, the Iowa department of public instruction reports.

The number of districts was reduced from 4,142 to 3,691 in the 12-month period.

This reduction of 451 districts during the year leaves Iowa with nearly 11 percent fewer districts. This is an increase over the 6 percent reduction or 275 districts eliminated during the previous 12 months.

If the merger of school districts continue at the present rate, the reduction in the number of districts one year hence may well be 600-700 which could bring the total number of school districts in the state under 3,000.

J C Wright, department superintendent, said that "while an overall increase in the number of districts is a healthy trend, the most important factor is not the number of good districts formed."

IOWA REPUBLICANS

Delegates to the regular Republican state convention will meet in Des Moines tomorrow morning for that event.

Main item of business will include selection of the state party platform for this fall's general election campaign, and the selection of a candidate for the Iowa commerce commission. No candidate obtained the necessary 35 percent margin in the primary elections in June.

In addition, members of the GOP central committee will also be named by the various districts in caucuses just ahead of the convention.

STEVENSON HERE

Adlai Stevenson, leading candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, was in Iowa twice last week, the first extensive stay he has made here since he became involved in the national political picture some four years ago.

But Stevenson said he was here to see and hear about agriculture and was not campaigning. He apparently meant what he said, for at a reception and buffet supper for delegates and party officials he stayed away from politics. He told a few after-dinner stories, answered in the affirmative to a question as to whether he could win the election, shook hands with all comers. He made no special pitch for delegate support.

This was the former Illinois governor's first visit to Iowa since 1952 when he spent less than four hours at Fort Dodge at an airport ceremony before the national convention that year.

CORN CROP

The Iowa crop reporting service says that corn continues to make good growth and development is ahead of normal. Virtually all of the corn crop was "laid by" July 9. This progress is the earliest of record and is several days ahead of last year and may be compared with the 1946-54 nine-year average of 70 percent.

While some areas have been getting moisture spread over the growing season to maintain growth since subsoil moisture reserves are lacking in many sections.

CHILDREN ELIGIBLE

The Veterans Administration reports a large number of the some 2,050 children of deceased veterans living in Iowa are expected to be eligible for government grants to further their education under a new law recently signed by the president.

The parent who was a veteran, must have died of injuries or diseases resulting from their military service. Children between 18 and 23 whose deceased parents served in World War I and World War II or the Korean conflict may apply for the educational program if opportunities for education have been or will be impeded or interrupted by reason of the death of the veteran-parent.

The monthly schooling payments will begin Oct. 1, 1956. Education may be taken in colleges and universities as well as below-college-level schools. In some instances children will be permitted to begin school before their 18th birthday and to finish after their 23rd.

INTERSTATE POLICY

The Iowa highway commission was scheduled to meet this week to determine a priority program for interstate highway construction in Iowa in the next 13 years. This action is prompted by passage a few days ago of a federal interstate highway program, biggest in the history of this nation.

This state has about 700 miles on the interstate network that will benefit through federal funds. The federal interstate roads here are highways 6, 69 and 75-275.

Under this program for interstate road modernization—the building of four-lane highways—the federal government contributes 90 percent of the cost which the state matches with a 10 percent cash outlay.

TO EUROPE

Guy M Gillette, former Democratic U S senator from Iowa, is on a two months tour of Europe with his son, Mark. Gillette, one of the delegates from this state to the Democratic national convention in Chicago next month, is expected to return in time to participate with the Iowa delegates.

YELLOW LARD

Sale of artificially colored yellow lard has been approved for the state of Iowa by the department of agriculture.

A large Iowa packing company plans to put yellow lard on the market soon, department officials say.

There is nothing in Iowa food laws to prevent a firm from making lard any color it wishes.

TO AID CHILDREN

The Iowa legislature budget committee approved a program for some remodeling in University hospitals at Iowa City to add a program for emotionally disturbed or mentally retarded children.

The committee approved the plans of the state board of regents to begin to obtain $65,000 of federal funds to be used with $130,000 appropriated by the last state legislature for setting up a program of observation, diagnosis, care and treatment.

Plans call for converting about 7,500 square feet of the hospital for use in the new program, the budget committee has advised

IOWA GETS LAB

Congress is expected to approve location of a federal $19-million animal disease research laboratory at Iowa State College. If approved the laboratory will be completed in two years. Land for the proposed research center will be donated by the state of Iowa. It is an area north of the present campus.

Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson approved the Iowa site after a 10-man investigating committee had recommended location of the research activities, the relocation of a Belleville, Md, center. at Iowa State College.

Location of the center at Iowa State. President James Hilton of the College said, "means Iowa will become the greatest animal disease research center in the world."

"We at Iowa State will do everything we can to assist and cooperate with the U S department of agriculture in making this laboratory truly a national center so that it may be of service to the livestock interests in every state in the union," he said.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

Harry hustled out of the house early on the first morning of the vacation and packed the suitcases in the trunk of the car with precision that made him feel proud. When he finished, the lid and lock worked perfectly as he closed the trunk.

Later, with the whole family in the car, Harry's wife stowed a few last small items in the glove compartment. It was working well, also. Then Harry touched the started, the things that happen under the hood happened without a hitch, and they were off.

As they moved down the highway, things continued to work as they should. Harry turned on the radio and they had music—radio worked fine. As the day warmed the kids in back rolled down the windows with no trouble at all—windows were in good working order.

Just before they stopped for lunch, Mrs Harry turned the rear vision mirror so she could get a look ot her lipstick. The mirror swiveled on its ball joint as well as it ever had.

So it went through most of the afternoon. All the parts of the car worked smoothly except, perhaps, the tie rods. They were coming loose.

But Harry, driving the car every day, had failed to notice that more and more play was coming into the steering wheel. He hadn't bothered to have his car checked for safety before the trip.

He was traveling 65 when he gave the steering wheel a slight turn that should have brought the car away from the edge of the highway slab. It didn't. He didn't have that kind of precision control. A wheel hit the shoulder.

No doubt, all the minor and convenient part of the car worked perfectly until the last moment.

KILLED

Jack Bernhard, 8 year old Monona youth, was killed recently when he fell or jumped from a wagon and one wheel passed over him.

Farm Safety Week July 22nd to 29th

Will Promote Safety In All Phases of Farming

Efforts to reduce the number of accidents on Iowa farms will cover all phases of farm safety during National Farm Safety Week, July 22 to 29.

Norval Wardle, extension safety specialist at Iowa State College, points out that the number of farm workers killed by accident last year was higher than the accident fatality rate of any other major industry. He says safety promotion campaigns such as Farm Safety Week have done much to the need for observing more safety precautions on farms.

Improve Safety Practices

During Farm Safety Week, farmers are urged to take special note of the safety precautions which are being practiced on their farms, Wardle says. They are urged to add improved safety practices to those already in operation.

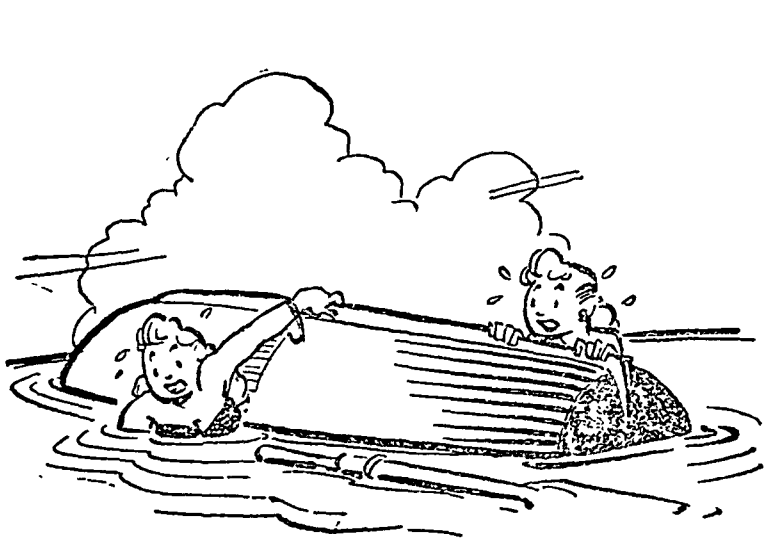
In a year's time, about 14,000 farm residents in the United States lose their lives in accidents. Another 1,200,000 are seriously injured each year. The National Safety Council estimates that the annual economic loss to the country from farm accidents averages about $275 per farm family.

Vehicles Main Killer

The main killer of farm people is motor vehicle accidents. It is estimated that over 40 percent of all accidental deaths to farm people occur in motor vehicle accidents, most of which happen off the farm. About 1,100 farm people lose their lives in tractor accidents every year, with children under 10 years of age accounting for the largest percentage of these fatalities.

Falls kill about 2,000 to 2,200 farm residents each year and injure thousands of others. Work falls occur chiefly in barns and other outbuildings. Falls from hayracks, haystacks, scaffolds, ladders and trees are also prevalent. Home falls tend to happen most frequently on stairs, but they also include many slipping and tripping mishaps, says Wardle.

WATER SAFETY



IF IN TROUBLE STAY WITH THE BOAT!

Capsizing your boat is bad enough, but leaving it in deep water in an attempt to swim to shore is even more dangerous.

Many drownings in Iowa have occurred to persons trying to reach shore after their boats have swamped or turned turtle.

When filled with water, a 16-foot wooden boat can support a dozen persons clinging to the sides where they can safely await help. Modern metal boats, most of which have air tanks, will also float when turned over or filled with water. A water-filled boat is better than no boat at all.

And remember: It's always farther to shore than you think. The boat may be your only link with life. Don't leave it.

Armed Forces Provide Standards for Draftees

"The Armed Forces, not the Selective Service System, prescribe the physical, mental and moral standards, and conduct the examinations, for determination of acceptability for military service," said Earnest Haes, Chairman of the Hancock County Local Board.

Normally registrants who are classified in Class I-A, I-A-O, or I-O are ordered for Armed Forces physical examination when their turn is reached, although registrants in any class may be ordered for a pre-induction physical examination if induction is reasonably imminent.

No thorough physical examination is attempted at the local board level. If a registrant has an obvious physical or mental defect which very clearly disqualifies him for military service, such as loss of an arm or an eye, he may be ordered by the local board for a medical interview with the local board medical advisor and upon the basis of such interview, may be classified in Class IV-F without being forwarded to the Armed Forces Examination Station for final determination of physical fitness. The normal procedure, however, is for the registrant to take his pre-induction physical at an Armed Forces Examining Station set up by the Armed Forces for that purpose.

Examinations to check acceptability for military service involve a determination of physical mental and moral fitness. Registrants who cannot read or write are disqualified for service.

Registrants with criminal records are not acceptable although, in meritorious cases, moral waivers may be obtained permitting induction. No appeal to the State Appeal Board may be taken from the determination of the registrant's physical or mental condition.

Registrants may be ordered for a second or even a third pre-induction physical examination. This is made necessary by two conditions: (1) A registrant may have corrected or recovered from a disability which previously disqualified him; or (2) Armed Forces physical and mental regulations change from time to time and a registrant not acceptable six months ago may be acceptable today by a change in physical or mental standards.

A registrant may transfer for his Armed Forces physical examination from his own local board to another if reporting to his own board would result in a hardship to him. However, he always remains under the jurisdiction of the local board with which he is registered. He cannot transfer his records or file from his own local board to another local board even though he may change his place of residence.

Those physically, mentally or morally disqualified for service are classified in Class IV-F.

Understand Label Before Using Insecticides

The best insurance for the safest and most effective use of chemical insecticides is to read, understand, and follow directions on the label, says County Extension Director, Paul Henderson of Garner.

Henderson explains that chemical insecticides recommended for use on hay or pasture crops have varying degrees or residual carry-over which govern the waiting period between application of the chemical and use of the crop for feed. If the prescribed number of waiting days is fulfilled and the directions are closely followed, there is no danger of injury to livestock or humans, says Hendersn.

Where you have a choice of insecticides, he recommends using the safest material, even though it may cost a little more.

Henderson says that entomologists at Iowa State College report insecticides recommended for use in Iowa are not absorbed by plants. These poisons which are lethal to insects, they explain, are soon broken down by a combination of such factors as sunlight, heat, bacteria and fungi.

Henderson added that farmers should be especially careful when storing chemical insecticides, keeping them out of areas accessible to children.

DITCH

Rex Burns, Bedford farmer, lost his life recently when cleaning a drainage ditch, which caved in on him. A brother, Francis, was the first to reach the buried man but too late.

SHOT

Harlan Arjes, of Allison, has been hospitalized with a gunshot wound in his chest. While hunting alone, he accidentally discharged his .22 rifle while climbing a fence.

Hancock County Boy and Girl to Attend Health Camp Near Madrid

LaVohn Josten and Richard Eliason will be among about 100 delegates from 50 northern Iowa counties studying health and out-door living July 30 to August 4, County Extension Youth Assistant Ed Bruns announced this week.

The young people will attend the state health camp at the 4-H camp near Madrid. Richard is the son of Mr and Mrs Ole Elaison who live at Kanawha and LaVohn is the daughter of Mr and Mrs August Josten of Klemme. The camp is sponsored by the Iowa State College Agricultural Extension Service with the financial assistance of J A Folger and Company, Kansas City, Missouri. George Boehnke, Assistant State Boy's 4-H leader is chairman of camp arrangements. Co-chairman is Harriet Roberts, Extension Nutritionist.

Delegates to the camp will be given an opportunity to learn more about health and outdoor living, to participate in group living and take part in inspirational actvities planned for work and play.

Leadership for the camp will include Dr Leonard Murray of Des Moines, director of the division of health education of the State Department of Health; Mary Bodwell, Iowa State College district extension supervisor; Mrs Buena Mockmore, extension family life specialist; Mrs Madge Bowers, physical education department staff members; Earle Raun, extension entomologist Ramona Esbeck, assistant state girls' 4-H leader, and Mrs James Kiser of Ames, recreation leader.

Judging Workouts to Be Held for 4-H Members

A series of livestock judging workouts will be held around the county so that 4-H members will have an opportunity to improve their ability to select good livestock.

These workouts will start Monday, July 23 on Clifford Anderson's farm at 8:00 a. m. It is hoped that these workouts will start right at 8:00 and be over by 10:00 a. m. so as not to interfere with harvest. July 24 members will meet at Gilbert Guenthers, July 25 at Everett Sheets and at Harold Rockow's. Later on there will be a county wide workout held.

From the members attending the judging workouts a livestock and dairy team will be selected to represent Hancock County at the North Iowa Fair. State Fair, and Dairy Cattle Congress.

North Ell Tip Toppers

The meeting of the North Ell Tip Toppers was held at the home of Deanne Kubly on July 7th at 2 p. m. Roll call was answered by showing the dusting mitts we had made. We then planned some more of the Local Achievement show. We made 2 new committees. They are: Publicity, Linda Weiland and Patty Flack, and Invitation, Elaine Jurgemeyer. We talked about our tour which was July 10th.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Delores Greiman instead of the home of Inez Nuehring. Delores Greiman and Deanne Kubly gave a demonstration on block pillow cases. Carol Humphrey gave a demonstration on staining wood. Joyce Thiemann gave a demonstration in refinishing wood.

The girls in the club are working very hard on projects for the Local Achievement Show so we urge you to come and inspect them. The show is July 27th in the evening. It is to be held in the Klemme Grade School.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and her mother.

Fishermen Foul Up The Party Line

Fishermen in the Liscomb area have been breaking in on telephone conversations and the local sheriff has asked them to "Get off the Line".

It seems that some anglers fishing from a bridge west of Liscomb have been fouling telephone wires as they cast their fishing lines into the river.

The sheriff's office has received complaints about disrupted phone conversations and telephone officials are concerned about such disruptions in times of emergency. So the bridge has been posted against fishing and violators will be prosecuted.

Probably as disgruntled as anyone is the angler who drapes his line over the telephone wires. Especially if some wag happens to comment: "What are you trying to catch? Flying fish or electric eels?"

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

The hog market is now in a clean-up stage of old-crop fall pigs with a few runs of spring pigs beginning to trickle in reports Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. He says hog receipts continue to run ahead of last year because of a greater number of early-farrowed litters. However, the total spring pig crop is lower than a year ago.

Kutish says the June pig crop report indicates slaughter will continue to run ahead of last year for awhile. It is not likely to fall under last year's marks until early fall, with the bid difference beginning to appear in November and December.

July hog prices are not likely to average as high as a year ago, with the greatest difference during the first half of the month, says the Iowa State College economist. Interior hog prices during August and September, however, should run about the same as last year. August prices are expected to run a bit lower than July, and September prices should be somewhat less than August, even though no sharp summer drop is expected.

Kutish warns farmers that at this time of year it seldom pays to hold hogs after they reach the 200 to 220 pound weight range. The eastern Corn Belt will begin to market early spring pigs shortly, and from then on the market will begin its seasonal slaughter expansion.

When You're Picnicking Remember—

It's a Hot Time for Foods

Whether you're packing a lunch box or a picnic basket, you need to make sure that the foods you pack won't spoil before eating time. Avoid salads with mayonnaise dressing. You can carry hard-cooked eggs in their shells, and fresh fruits are safe, too.

July picnic weather may tempt you to pack a basket full of fried chicken, potato salad and pie and go on a day's outing with the family. Sounds like fun, don't you think? It will be too, if you take proper precautions against food spoilage—that old bugaboo that's still with us. The same food that caused food poisoning today if we're not careful.

Foods that are most likely to spoil and cause illness are pastry, cake and pie with cream filling; poultry; ham; prepared luncheon meats; salads such as potato that have a mayonnaise or cream dressing. Most of these are popular picnic foods, too. The tiny bacteria which cause the trouble develop when the food is between 50 degrees and 120 degrees F.—a nice comfortable temperature. So you can see that a hot summer day is perfect for growing bacteria.

Foods which have been handled during preparation are the most likely to spoil rapidly and dangerously if kept in a warm place, states Jewel Graham, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College. Chicken that has been cooked and taken off the bone is a good example of this.

Keep Foods Coln

Speedy refrigeration and short time storage are your best precautions against warm weather food spoilage. Remember, you can't always rely on taste, odor or appearance of spoiled food. Many times spoiled food shows absolutcly no signs of spoilage, so you really have to be on your guard.

If you plan to keep foods awhile before eating, get them into the refrigerator as soon as they stop steaming after cooking. You want to cool food down below the danger zone—50 degrees to 120 degrees F—as quickly as possible. Don't allow food to cool at room temperature longer than 15 minutes or half-an-hour after it's cooked.

If you want to include such foods in your picnic basket, better pack them in ice, and don't hold the food for a long period of time. You can pack ice cubes in a plastic bag. Insulate the wrapped food and ice in newspapers or in an insulated bag. Or you can use chemical "canned" ice which you can buy at your grocery store. Just freeze the can and put it in your picnic basket. Better yet, get a picnic refrigerator chest. If you go on a lot of picnics, a small portable refrigerated box is a good investment.

Pack Lunches Carefully

If you are going to have some corn detasselers in your family come the latter part of July, you'll want to remember these precautions when you're packing their lunches. This applies to lunches for anyone who is working outdoors if the lunch has to be outdoors, too, for the whole morning.

Here again remember that to be on the safe side, don't pack lunches that include foods that have had a lot of handling. Fancy cheese spreads, ground meats with pickles and mayonnaise, as well as left-over fried chicken should be left at home in the refrigerator. It's best to stick to such foods as plain cheese, bread and butter and peanuts butter and jelly sandwiches. Freshly hard-cooked eggs that have been well cooled will be safe until noon if you carry them in the unbroken shell.

Almost any kind of fruit is safe—apples, oranges, plums and so on. Cookies are a good dessert. Omit cream-filled cakes, cream puffs and eclairs from sack lunches.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

A card, postmarked Yarmouth, N. S., Canada, from Miss Novella Bredbenner informs us that she and her mother are having a very enjoyable time on their eastern trip. The card dated July 17, reads as follows: "Mother and I are certainly enjoying our trip trhough the esat. We have been in Canada the past nine days but will be back in the U. S. A. tonight. We took a boat trip through the Thousand Islands in the St Lawrence River, visited Toronto, Canada, Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec and St John; and are now on a five hour boat trip in the Bay of Fundy enroute to Nova Scotia."

Sounds like fun to us. We enjoy traveling and seeing new country. We are just a bit envious . . . especially, since the weather is quite hot here. Bet they are enjoying cool weather.

Our big brother, C A Kilgore, who has just returned to Spokane, Washington, after a week of visiting here, is in the lumber business in that state. He is a member of the Hoo Hoo Club in Spokane (a lumberman's club) and on a recent meeting notice card was inscribed the following: "Drive legally and sanely—Life or death is under your right foot."

Never had thought of it just that way, but it sounds about right. Too much heavy foot can certainly crowd the cemeteries . . . especially if no judgment is used. Traffic rules and regulations are made for the protection of everyone who drives, rides, or walks. They were not made to create some sort of game where you try and see how often you can get by without being caught or killed while disobeying them.

Which reminds us. There are evenings here when on strategically located minion of the law could reap a rich harvest . . . not only for the breaking of traffic laws, but also for disturbing the peace. And if there is any law against being cruel to rubber, he could have an even better night. We have heard tires complain on paving many times and have had occasion when we have had to be the cause of the complaints, but we have never heard such downright cries of anguish from tires as when throttles are floorboarded and gears engaged simultaneously.

Some time, we are going to park in the drive of the Co-op Oil Station and see just how long it takes us to get from there, one block east, make a U turn and get back to the station. It doesn't take long, and it must be fun, for there are certainly a lot of nights when goodness knows how many cars make the trip . . . and just as fast as they possibly can . . . and mostly with twin stacks and Smittys. Wow!

The square dances in the park Saturday evenings have proved so popular that the Commercial Club is planning to extend them clear through August: Good deal! Old and young alike enjoy them.

Formers' Aid Asked In Poisoning Survey

Hancock County farmers can aid a sudangrass poisoning sorvey by reporting all cases of prussic acid poisoning to the county extension offices, says Paul Henderson, County Extension Director.

Henderson says he is assisting Harvey Thompson, an extension agronomist at Iowa State College in compiling information that will help college specialists determine the conditions under which prussic acid poisoning occurs.

Give More Time To Sign For Soil Bonk

Because the time for making soil bank acreage reserve agreements was extended to next Friday, July 27, more Hancock County farmers will be able to participate in the program for this year, according to the Hancock County AS Committee.

A total of 704 agreements had been signed at the ASC office in Garner by Friday, July 20, they said, and many more are expected to be signed before the new deadline of Friday. July 27.

The department of agriculture gave state ASC committees authority to allow more time for meeting certain requirements of soil bank agreements, they stated, and the Iowa committee immediately directed that additional time be granted in Iowa.

The new dates fixed for Iowa—in addition to the July 27 deadline for signing agreements—are as follows:

July 27 - Final day for cutting back wheat to meet acreage reserve requirements and for clipping barley, oats and rye on land going into the acreage reserve. July 15 was originally fixed as the deadline for these operations.

August 3 - Final day for cutting back corn acreage to meet soil bank requirements and also to meet corn price-support eligibility requirements. August 3 is also the final date for plowing under or clipping flax, grain sorghum and soybeans on land going into the acreage reserve. The original deadline for these operations was July 31.

Tall Corn Requires Extra Precaution

A part of highway safety is disappearing behind Iowa's growing corn crop, the state safety department warned drivers today.

"Tall corn at rural intersections is beginning to obscure driver vision," according to Russell Brown, safety education director.

"Drivers must make up for this loss of vision by entering intersections as warily as they would step into a strange path in the dark," Brown said.

He pointed out that the danger is especially great at rural intersections without stop signs. If corn blocks the driver's vision on both sides, he has no assurance he won't meet a speeding car in the intersection, Brown said.

"The drivens best protection is to enter such an intersection slowly until he can see the intersecting road both ways for several hundred feet," Brown said.

He warned that Iowa has a series of serious traffic accidents because of blind intersections each year.

"The rural driver may be so familiar with an intersection that he will forget it has become more dangerous," Brown said, "and the city driver may feel so secure driving in the country that he will ignore the threat of the intersections."

He reminded all drivers that the success of the current "Slow Down and Live" campaign depends on individual coperation.

Standing in a single line of march formation, Red Cross volunteers who served during the past year, would form a line 800 miles long, the approximate distance between New York and Chicago, Illinois.

Services Will Be Friday For George Albers, Sr.

George Albers, 82, pioneer resident of Hancock County, died Tuesday afternoon at his home here. He had lived in the county 65 years and had farmed east of Klemme 43 years, having retired and moved to town in 1941.

Surviving are five sons and five daughters. He was preceded in death by his wife in September 1954.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. at the Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church at Klemme.

Premiums Up At North Iowa Fair

The North Iowa Fair to be staged Aug 6 through 12 at the new fairgrounds west of Mason City will offer more than $20,000 in premiums to exhibitors.

Robert B Miller, secretary-manager, expects more than 100,000 spectators and competitors from 15 North Iowa counties to jam the grounds during the seven-day event. The gate has topped that mark for the past four years.

Livestock numbers are expected to be at a record high. Last year, auxiliary tents were erected to handle the increase. Miller said several 50 by 80 foot tents would be used this year in addition to an 80 by 200 foot livestock building now near completion on the new grounds. A similar building is being erected to house other exhibits.

IN EARLIER

Miller said entries in the various departments are coming in earlier, indicating an increased interest in the fair.

The fair entertainment this year includes seven days of fun by the Movieland Animal Stars, stock and big car races, the Aut Swenson Thrillcade, Tiny Hill and his band and a program by the members of the county 4-H, FFA and Rural Young People's clubs.

The gates to the fairgrounds will open Aug 6 at 4 p m, according to Miller. The grounds will be dedicated that evening by Gov Leo Hoegh. The grandstand will be open after the dedication to a free performance by the Movieland Animal Stars. Fireworks will round out the show:

The animal stars will put on free performances Tuesday and Wednesday, both afternoon and evening.

KIDS DAY

Friday will be Kids Day with special rates on rides at the midway for children under 16. The 20th Century Shows will be back on the midway, Miller said. All children will be admitted free to the grounds on Kids Day. A special matinee will be held at 10 a. m. at which the Aut Swenson Thrillcade of 1956 will perform.

Saturday afternoon's show will feature Al Sweeney and his stock car races. The big event will be the 100-mile race. Tiny Hill and his band and eight acts will make up the evening program.

Al Sweeney will put on a 7-event program of big car races Sunday afternoon in which Fay Taylour, women's world champion race driver, will appear. The fair will close at 6 p m that night.

Before each afternoon and evening grandstand performance a North Iowa high school band will entertain, a custom of long standing and especially popular with the younsters.

Bible Conference at Okoboji to Open Sunday

The North Iowa Bible Conence will get off to an auspicious beginning on Sunday, July 29, when F Gerald Ensley, Bishop of the Des Moines area of the Methodist Church, addresses the gathering at 10:30 A. M.

Noted for his to-the-point sermons and his dynamic pulpit personality, Ensley is extremely popular and in wide demand as a speaker.

Following Ensley on the program, Dr J Richard Palmer, president of Morningside College will be featured as an afternoon and evening speaker, Sunday, with subjcts of "Conviction, Commitment, Courage and Continuity" and "You are More Important Than You Dream".

All week long, the program will be packed with sermons, addrseses and forums calculated to help 'average' people learn how to live together, gain greater enjoyment from each day, and make the most of the blessings which they have inherited, according to Program Chairman Rev J E Feller, of Cherokee.

Two featured speakers—Dr W E Whelding of Bristol, England, and Dr A Raymond George Wesley College, Leeds, England, will appear on the program Monday through Friday with subjects of unusual interest.

Dr James W Mathews of the World Missions of the Methodist Church, recently returned from India, Pakistan and Central Africa, will speak on Saturday and Sunday, August 4 and 5.

A native of Spirit Lake, Iowa, Dorothy Middleton, will tell her exciting story of communist imprisonment, and the dramatic events leading to her release.

New addition to the program will be a series of educational sessions held daily for teachers and leaders of adults, led by Dr A Merritt Dietterich in charge of area adult work, and Rev Leroy E Bouman, conference counsellor of adult work. Another new feature is called Camp Challenge, a special session for young unmarried people under the direction of Rev George W Brighton on August 3, 4 and 5.

The Bible Conference program is arranged so those attending will have ample time to enjoy recreation facilities in the Iowa Great Lakes area - swimming, boating, fishing, golf, and just relaxing. Economically priced meals, rooms and cabins are available at Methodist Camp for those attending.

Local Veterinarian Attends Conference

Among the more than 250 persons attending the annual Conference for Veterinarians at Iowa State College July 17 and 18, was Dr John Baker of Klemme.

Highlight of the two-day session was a banquet and a dedication and tour of the new Veterinary Medical laboratory. The $600,000 diagonotis building has just recently been completed. Banquet speaker was V B Hamilton, Hampton, a member of the State Board of Regents.

New information in the field of veterinary medicine was presented at the various program sessions, and several segments were given through closed-circuit television through the facilities of WOI-TV. Surgery was performed in the veterinary clinic and was shown to conference attendants in Memorial Union meeting rooms.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

SEES TAX LOSS

A state tax employee, plugging for a state withholding tax plan, estimates Iowa is losing about one-and-a-half million dollars in revenue annually in evasions.

Elmer Heckinger, director of the income tax division, said thousands of wage earners are not even filing returns.

He feels evasions will be avoided through payroll deductions from salary checks, similar to the federal income tax collection program.

ONLY FIVE NAMED

Only five counties were tagged as disaster counties by the federal government after Gov Leo A Hoegh recommended the secretary of agriculture place 36 Iowa counties in that category.

The counties so selected include Apponose, Davis, Decatur, Van Buren, and Wayne.

Farmers in the counties can raise livestock on land that is in the soil bank acreage reserve program.

IDLE FUNDS

The Iowa taxation study committee has drafted proposed legislation that would put idle state funds to work.

The committee approved bills that would alter state laws to permit state unused funds to earn money.

They authorized the state treasurer to put an estimated $13-million either in government bonds or in banks which would pay interest rates to the state.

Some funds, legislators found in recent sessions, are on deposit in Iowa banks and not drawing interest. Some of the so-called dormant funds have been on deposit and unused for many years.

ANNUAL WAGE

The Iowa attorney general's office has ruled that a guaranteed annual wage plan plus full state jobless benefits could be collected at the same time by laborers in this state.

The opinion said GAW payments may not be used as a basis for reducing or preventing payment of regular unemployment compensation.

ASK TAX AID

Transit companies in Iowa, finding it financially hard to keep the wheels of public transportation rolling, have suggested to the governor's transit study committee that "some tax relief" will be necessary.

Bus firms in Iowa made one report to the governor some weeks ago that their passenger load business had declined 57 percent in the last eight years.

Some proposals suggested include elimination of motor fuel tax for city buses: eliminatin of registration fees; exemption from compensation tax payments, and exemption from gross receipts or franchise tax.

GOLFERS' PRAYER

A Creston minister, the Rev Leslie J Barnette, has just begun a special golfers' worship service every Sunday at 6:30 a. m. The early service has met with enthusiastic reception from city golfers.

After starting the service, the Rev Mr Barnette was low qualifier in the opening round of the Creston golf club tournament with a 75, and his wife was winner of the Southwest Iowa Women's Open meet.

DEMO KEYNOTER

U S Sen Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota will give the keynote address at the Iowa Democratic state convention in Des Moines, Tuesday, July 31.

Humphrey, a candidate for reelection, and a member of the senate agricultural committee, will discuss agriculture at the regular state parley.

Other speakers will include R M "Spike" Evans, candidate for the U S senate, and Herschel Loveless, the party candidate for governor of Iowa.

VOTING RECORD

Iowa Labor's committee on political education has announced it will mail voting records of the Iowa congressional delegation—all Republicans—to rank and file labor union members throughout the state.

One labor official said "We're going to make their records public whether they like it or not."

GOP PUBLICIST

Robert Waggoner, administrative aide for U S Sen Thomas Martin, has been named publicity director for the Iowa Republican state central committee for the fall election campaign.

Waggoner, who worked for the Iowa Republican state central committee before taking the Martin post, is on leave of from Martin's office.

The Democratic state central committee is functioning without a publicity director and has been for the last two years.

AN IOWA RECORD

A state record for employing handicapped and disabled persons has been established.

A total of 1,105 such persons were rehabilitated into useful work in the year ending June 30, the department of public instruction reports.

This total is an increase of 70 percent over the previous 12 months and 20 percent greater than the best previous year, 1951.

LIQUOR SLEUTHS

Att'y Gen Dayton Countryman reports that next month he will assign men to check on holders of federal retail liquor tax stamps in Iowa.

Countryman said he will use state, county and local officials in an effort to control liquor law violations when he receives from the federal internal revenue department first lists of new stamp purchasers.

New stamps for the fiscal year which began July 1, have just gone on sale this month.

SPECIAL SESSION

Gov Leo A Hoegh repeated before the GOP pre-convention resolutions committee a statement he has made several times in recent weeks—that he'll call a special session of the legislature to act on state tax problems.

The governor told the committee he favors repeal of the half-cent sales tax increase voted by the last legislature, and signed by Hoegh. The law was to be effective for two years only.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

All morning Wayne itched to get his hands on the wheel. He watched Jim, who was driving, for signs of fatigue and hinted, "Be glad to spell you Jim anytime you get tired."

The two of them were driving west in Jim's car, an automobile with more horsepower than Wayne had ever had under his hands.

"You just don't get tired driving this car," Jim said.

But late in the afternoon, the lowering sun became hard to drive against. Jim gave it up when they stopped for gas and Wayne slid under the wheel.

It was there, all right, more power than his foot had ever stepped on. With the slightest urging the car lifted easily into a kind of speed that was new to him.

It was a dominating kind of power, an authority of speed that seemed to operate in a level above ordinary considerations, deserving privilege.

"I'll never be able to drive my old clunker after this," Wayne said. "This car will do anything."

That must have been in his mind when he drew up behind a comparatively slow moving car on a hill. He must have felt the automobile in his hands could pass in a flicker.

He tried it and, a few seconds later, was turning desperately for the left ditch, trying to avoid the oncoming car. Unfamiliar with a car he over-estimated, Wayne lived to wonder if the three who died had passed quickly and without too much pain.

45 STARS

A flag which A H Hintz unfurled at Manning, July 4th, aroused considerable interest there. It had only 45 stars. The last three states, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona, came into the Union in 1912, so the flag is believed to be at least 60 years old. Originally, it was flown over a bottling concern there around the turn of the century.

Children and Tractors Don't Mix

This youngster could be he ading for a fall—and death. No extra person should ever ride on a tractor, especially when machinery is attached. Be firm when he asks to ride on or drive the tractor.

* * *

"I wanna ride with daddy on the tractor". It's an appealing plea that you, a farm mother, have undoubtedly heard time after time. Don't ignore that plea, but don't yield to it either. You as a parent have a great responsibility to your child—to keep him safe. That's why you have to use good judgment when your child begs to ride or drive the tractor.

No one—neither a child nor an adult—should ride on a tractor unless there is a special seat built for him, warns Norval Wardle, extension Safety specialist at Iowa State College. The hazard? The person who is not sitting in the seat cannot "feel" what the tractor is going to do next. A sudden bump in the road and he is tossed off.

12 MINIMUM AGE

When should a child begin to drive a tractor? He should be at least 12 years old. Children have not developed good enough judgment or muscle coordination before this age. If your child is small he may have to wait a couple of years more. Remember, his arms and legs must reach all the controls and move them while he is sitting in a normal position on the tractor seat.

You wouldn't think of letting your 10 year old drive the family car. You'd probably be hysterical if you saw your 4 year old riding on the car bumper, the car going 20 miles per hour. Just apply these situations to a tractor. The conditions are almost the same.

Dad or some other qualified person should take plenty of time to teach your child to drive the tractor. The instructor should start up the tractor and explain to your child what he is doing while he's doing it, and he should emphasize how the brakes work. The new driver can watch all of this from the drawbar.

Remember this is the only time it's safe to stand on the drawbar. When the demonstration's over, dad and son trade places. Dad's right there to give suggestions.

Your new driver should practice in a level field or a large level yard before attaching equipment to the tractor or doing actual work. When dad declares him proficient, he can practice with attached equipment. A little later he can begin doing simple jobs for short periods of time. Under no circumstances should an extra person ride on a tractor when equipment is attached.

SAY "NO"

When a child asks to ride on or to drive a tractor it's the natural reaction of parents to wants to let him to do it. And it's easy for a mother or father to think that what a child wants is all right.

Sometimes it's awfully hard to say "no" to a child. However, the first time he asks to ride on the tractor is the time to say "no", gently but firmly. If you hesitate or allow your child "just one ride," you're lost.

Last year 30 Iowa tractor operators under 15 years of age were in tractor accidents that were serious enough to be reported to newspapers. This is National Farm Safety Week—July 22 - 28. Take stock of your tractor policies. Don't let your child become another statistic.

Lowered farm income and higher costs have probably caused some parents to allow their child to drive a tractor before he is really able. For some families, it's out of the question to hire full-time labor, and it's difficult to locate temporary labor. The third reason that parents let their child drive a tractor at an early age is the misconception that machines are easy to operate—so easy that even a child can manage them.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Corn Belt corn and soybean crops looked good according to the July 1 crop report, says Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. But, he points out that the shortage of reserve subsoil moisture in many areas will make the crop vulnerable to short periods of hot dry weather.

The report further indicates an average crop for the nation as a whole, says Kutish. Corn will be up about 1 percent over last year while oats will be down nearly a fourth. Although no soybean estimate was given, Kutish figures the crop should be over 400 million bushels judging by the acreage planted and assuming average yields.

If these conditions are fulfilled, says the economist, this year's harvest will be well under last year. However, conditions over the Corn Belt since July 1 have been favorable for corn and soybeans. The crop looks especially good in the eastern Corn Belt. Kutish believes both these crops could exceed the yields indicated by conditions of July 1. Of course, he points out, dry weather could cut the yields.

Turning to the oat crop, Kutish reports that yields in many parts of the western Corn Belt have been disappointing. Final figures on this crop could turn out even lower than the July 1 estimate indicated, as test weights are light. Because of this, oat prices are not showing the usual harvest weakness this year. In fact, says Kutish, some price advance is likely.

Cows are beginning to move to market in number. So far the runs haven't come mainly from drouth areas and this indicates a sizeable sale of cull cows this fall. This is because of the record number of beef cows on farms and ranches last January 1.

Kutish urges farmers who plan to sell cull cows this fall to consider selling soon instead. He points out that cow prices normally drop during summer and fall and that the expected large runs of grass cattle may lower prices more than usual.

County Farm Bureau Resolutions Committee Meeting Set July 30

The Hancock County Farm Resolutions Committee attended a district committee meeting in Mason City on July 17th to develop ideas for drafting the County Opinionnaire for 1957. County, state and national issues were discussed and county ideas were exchanged on suggestions for getting more participation.

The Hancock County Resolutions Committee will be meeting on Monday evening, July 30, to draft the Opinionnaire for this county. All members of this committee will welcome any suggestions on what you would like to see this county take a stand on, from any of you members. Please contact them before the July 30th meeting.

Members of this committee are: Mrs Kenneth Schultz, Britt; Mrs Ernest Pringnitz, Garner; Mrs Tjeran Nerem, Corwith; Roy Hovey, Forest City; Don Durant, Forest City; Gordon Upmeyer, Garner; Ben V Greiman, Garner; Merle Bertilson, Klemme; Harold Oxley, Corwith; and Henry Seebeck, Britt.

Most people do what they are requested to do, successful people do a little more.

It's always easier to arrive at a firm conviction about a problem after you know what the boss thinks.

Which reminds us. What with square dancing, ice cream social and band concert in the park Saturday night, the place was pretty well crowded. More people than when there used to be school picnics on the last day of the school year.

A big bouquet to the Music Mothers for their annual ice cream social. It is one of the most pleasant events that take place in the community.

National Stock Shows Come to Iowa for '56

With the National Hereford Show and the National Shetland Pony Congress scheduled for this year's Iowa State Fair, Aug 24 - Sept 2, officials were optimistic today that a new record for coast-to-coast entries may be set in the 1956 livestock show here. Over 8,000 horses, cattle, swine, and sheep are expected to compete for the more than $138,000 in prizes being offered.

All judging rings will be open to the public. Above is a prize Hereford, typical of the hundreds of animals of this breed which will compete for $11,000 in the national Hereford event at the state fair.

South Ell Tip Toppers

The South Ell Tip Toppers held their July 14 meeting in the Klemme Park. We decided to get gifts for the judges at local achievement and for the mothers who helped with the demonstrations. Gift committee is Melva and Maurine Johnson, Ellen Waddingham and Myrna Barz.

Committees were chosen for local achievment. They are:

Lunch, Myrna Barz, Melva and Maurine Johnson; arranging furniture, Jane Renner, Rosalie Rosendahl and Sharleen Swanson; Advertising, Jo Anne Jacobs and Ellen Waddingham; Program, Judy Swanson, Janet Murray, Ellen Waddingham and Linda Jernigan.

Rosalie Rosendahl gave a talk on "Daily Care of My Room."

The South Ell Tip Toppers held their June 16 meeting at Ellen Waddingham's.

We decided to go to Clear Lake with the North Ell girls and go swimming, have supper at the North Ell girls cabin and then go to Bayside. We also planned our tour of Mason City.

We are going to have Local Achievement on July 30 at the grade school building.

Talks were given by Linda Jernigan on "Planning a Rug for My Room", Judy Swanson on "Mixing Colors to Get Various Hues" and Ellen Waddingham on the song "Mr Rabbit."

The demonstrations were picked out for County Achievement. The demonstrations were gvien by Jane Renner and Jo Anne Jacobs on "Pillows"; Ellen Waddingham and Melva Johnson on "Making Lampshades"; Myrna Barz and Rosalie Rosendahl on "Refinishing Furniture"; and Margaurite Keeper and Maurine Johnson on "Table Mats".

Jane Renner and Jo Anne Jacobs are going to county for the intermediate demonstration team and Sharleen Swanson and Rosalie Rosendahl are the senior team.

Women Vie For Cooking Honors

Who is Iowa's champion baker, canner, pickle maker for 1956? Those questions are to be decided in a statewide culinary show at the Iowa State Fair here, Aug 24 - Sept 2. Over 250 categories of competition for $1,460 in cash prizes have been announced for women seeking this year's culinary honors. The picture above show the judging of the thousands of entries at last year's Iowa State Fair, where tasting and sampling the delicacies is a real art.

Officials report that the women's exposition at this year's fair will include everything from style shows to model gardens, and from sewing competition to home making demonstrations.

Young People Form "Nifty-Fifty" Club

Approximately seventy Farm Bureau Young People, advisors and counseling couples from District II, consisting of representation from ten counties, Cerro Gordo, Hancock, Kossuth, Franklin, Wright, Mitchell, Winnebago, Floyd, Butler and Wort dined at the Hotel Hanford in Mason City to make plans for their fall "Nifty-Fifty" Club membership campaign to be held the month of September.

Following dinner, Lois Hueneman, present advisor of the State FBYP Committee led the group in sinfing songs.

The Districe Chairman, and State Secretary, Rachel Hueneman, explained the State "Nifty-Fifty" membership plan and reviewed possible suggestions for the 1957 ciunty membership campaigns.

Les Rhodes, the Farm Bureau Regional Organization Supervisor nformed the group of materials available to the Farm Bureau Young People and Les Neese, Worth County Fieldman, gave an inspirational talk on membership.

A sales demonstration was very capably presented by two active FBYP leaders from Kossuth county, Donna Schoby and Joanne Rocheau.

The Farm Bureau Young peoples organizatiin consists of a three-point program of education, recreation and service. Young people between the ages of eighteen and twenty-eight who are interested and desire to become betttrinformed, have fun and be of service to their community are invited to jiin the Farm Bureau Young People's organization.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

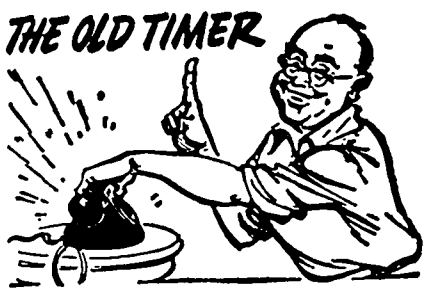
Whether we realize it or not, summer is drawing to a close. We have had a couple of days when there was just a hint of fall in the air. And the first thing you know school will again be open, vacation season will be past and everyone will more or less be back to a more normal existance . . . hate to see it happen, but it seems that it does happen every year.

Of course, there is still plenty of time for hot summer weather. August is usually a scorcher, and even September can offer days that are more like mid-summer than any other time of the year.

Anyway, if you have been putting off any summer activities, better be taking advantage of them, for the season will soon be gone.

Farmers in this vicinity have no doubt heaved big sighs of relief now that a good rain has finally fallen in this area. This is being written just after dinner Tuesday, and since Monday morning we have had approximately two inches of rain. Just what the crops were asking for.

Crops here have looked exceptionally good since they came up this spring, but they have been getting along on the showers that fell, for there is very little sub-soil moisture. Most farmers have been somewhat worried about the outcome of their crops, but this rain came just right. Some farms would have good crops if they got no more moisture during the growing season. Light soil farms, though, could use another good rain in a couple of weeks in order to have a good crop.



"Sometimes confidence is that feeling you have before you know better!"

We clipped the following editorial from Monday's Mason City Globe Gazette. We thought that it contained information that should be of interest to most drivers.

"The cause of traffic safety got a wonderful lift the other day when the Iowa Supreme Court ruled that Iowa's "reasonble and proper" speed law is sufficiently broad to give the state highway patrol full authority to prosecute speeders.

The opinion, handed down on an appeal from Burlington involving a driver clocked at 100 miles an hour at night, was on an appeal initiated by State Commissioner Clinton Moyer. The lower court had held that the state law did not sufficiently inform the driver of the penalty.

But the high court took a contrary view. Its decision, by unanimous vote, was that "operators of motor vehicles . . . know or should know what

Riehm Reports Progress In Movement for Improving Highway 18

The following letter from Representative Curtis G Riehm tells of work being done toward improving Highway 18 west of Garner.

"I wish to report to you the results of our delgation which met with Highway Commission on July 24th at Ames, Iowa. We had representation from Clear Lake, Garner, Britt, Algona, Luverne, Kossuth County generally, Emmetsburg, Ruthven, and Cylinder. The delegation consisted of approximately thirty men who were representatives of Chambers of Commerce and interested people in improving Highway 18.

In the delgation was Senator Herman Knudson of Clear Lake, senator for the Cerro Gordo and Hancock district; Senator Duane Dewel from Kossuth County district; State Representative Ed Norland, State Representative from Palo Alto County; and myself as State Representative from Hancock County and I acted as Chairman of the delegation in our presentation of material to the Highway Commission. Our presentation consisted of one representative from each of the different localities speaking for their individual locality, stating their thoughts on the Highway 18 and its improvement. I first spoke generally and for Hancock County.

Through the cooperation of Hugh Bush, secretary of the Garner Chamber of Commerce, we were able to present to the Highway Commission, a late traffic count taken on July 19th and July 20th from the hours 7:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m. It was quite interesting to note that the traffic count on Highway 18 west of Highway 69 showed a total of approximately 2,000 trucks and cars during that 12 hour period, while Highway 69 going north during the same 12 hour period showed approximately 2,200 cars.

The pictures taken by the Editor of the Garner Leader and Signal were marked and presented to the Highway Commission as an excellent portrayal of the condition of Highway 18 and the dire need that exists for its improvement and relocation.

After our presentation, Chairman Robert Beck advised us that there is scheduled for the 1957 program tentatively, in other words, they have not yet made up a rigid 1957 program as yet, but they have proposed to put in seven miles of new pavement west of Highway 69, together with one new bridge which will mean an estimated cost of $800,000.00; which will represent approximately 10% of the money available for 1957 in District No. 2, which has its headquarters in Mason City.

The State of Iowa is divided into 6 different engineering districts and the money available for road construction is divided up among the six districts in accordance with highway count, population, miles of road, and other factors they have to consider.

The Highway Commission stated they realize Highway 18 is a very heavily traveled highway. However, they have many miles of primary roads that are still not hard surfaced.

I believe it was the feeling of the delegation that the Highway Commission was sympathetic to the needs for a Highway 18 improvement and felt that if a start is made on it next year, that they have accomplished something.

With the estimated cost of $100,000.00 per mile for new pavement construction, costs of building roads is a deciding factor when there is limited money to spend.

Junior Fair Entries Reach New High

4-H and FFA entries for the Hancock County Junior Fair which is August 14, 15, 16 and 17 have reached an all time high. 236 baby beeves and 10 beef heifers are entered to fill the beef barns to overflowing. 50 dairy heifers and cows will occupy the new pole type barn built for expansion of housing. There will be 43 pens of market pigs and 15 purebred litters. Sheep will take 15 pens and horses and ponies require 25 stalls. Other entries include 11 electricity, 6 rabbits and 5 poultry exhibits.

The judges that have the job of placing this record number of entries are: Gerald Parks, Beef; Floyd Arnold, Dairy; Carroll Plager, Swine; Dewey Jontz, Sheep; and Ken Fain for electricty.

Preparing for this year's fair started about a year ago. It has taken a great deal of work from leaders, 4-H members, the Fair Board and many others.

County Budget Hearing Continued; 50 Objectors

Hancock County Supervisors Monday continued the hearing on the 1957 budget for Hancock County to 10 o'clock a. m. on August 6, when some fifty tax payers appeared and objected to certain phases of the budget.

The 1957 budget calls for a tax levy in the sum $739,190 which represented a substantial increase in certain funds, particularly, Poor, County Insane, State Institution and Soldier's Relief. The proposed budget also increased the levy necessary in the Emergency Fund which is being levied to make repairs to the roof of the courthouse and for repair of the courtroom, requested in several recent grand jury reports and by the Court.

The Assessor's budget was approved at a hearing held on Monday afternoon. The budget calls for a tax levy of $18,300, the same levy as was levied for the past two years. Twelve tax payers were present at the hearing on the assessor's budget.

Enjoy Dad and Lad Weekend at Clear Lake

At 1:30 Saturday afternoon, July 28th, eleven Cub Scouts and nine dads left Klemme for Dad and Lad Weekend at Camp Roosevelt on Clear Lake. Klemme dads and lads had the Lake View camp site.

Upon arrival, after getting the camp setup, the campers enjoyed a swim (rather cold).

Following the swim, the midway was enjoyed and then chow! The big campfire and story time proved very entertaining.

After a cool, mosquitoless (too cold for them) night the boys were very early risers with time to hike around before breakfast. After breakfast, the morning worship service in the open, was very impressive.

Before the noon lunch, all the Klemme lads and dads had a boat ride. After lunch was clean up time and homeward bound. A very tired, but happy group returned home on Sunday afternoon.

Those attending were John and Jerry Clements, Albert and Roger Schmidt, Melvin and Douglas Schlei, Dean and Kenneth Rasmus, Glen Alden Mark Huenemann, John and Bruce Waddingham, Roy and Bill Arnold, Kenneth and Larry Kluckhohn, Arlin and Harland Olson, and "Lindy" and Terry Kaduce.

Rev. Jaberg Accepts Call to Wisconsin Church

Will Move Fore Part of September

Rev Vernon E Jaberg, who has served as pastor of Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church here for the past six years, has accepted a call to St Peter Evangelical and Reformed Church at Kiel, Wisconsin. He read a message of resignation to the local congregation at the services Sunday morning, and will move his family to Kiel the fore part of September.

Rev Jaberg, who came here from Talmage, Nebraska in 1950, will succeed Dr E. L. Worthman, who has been pastor at Kiel for the past 25 years. Dr Kiel will retire from active ministry but will continue his work on the board of directors of Mission House College and Seminary at Plymouth.

The move will mean that Rev Jaberg will be serving a congregation of some over 800 in a town of approximately 2,000. It also mean that both Rev Jaberg and his wife will be going back to their home territory. Rev Jaberg grew up in Sheboygan which is 20 miles distant from Kiel, and attended Mission House College and Seminary at Plymouth, 8 miles from Kiel. Mrs Jaberg's home is at Oostburg, which is 30 miles distant from their future home.

So far as we have been able to learn, no replacement for Rev Jaberg has yet been found by the local church.

speed is proper and reasonable under different traffic conditions."

On the basis of concensus among top authorities in the field of traffic and safety, Commissioner Moyer had instructed highway patrolmen to arrest anyone driving more than 65 miles an hour at night.

By a mere extension of this logic, now that it has sanction from the highest tribunal of our state, the "reasonable and proper" speed language can likewise be made more specific for daylight driving.

In a companion ruling the principle was established that a driver is at fault and responsible for what happens when he or she fails to take into account such factors as highway curves, road conditions and other conditions which suggest special preeautions.

A Texas woman who last November bashed into an Iowan's car making a left turn, was found to have failed to have her car under control on a curve.

"It would be impossible," said the high court's opinion, "to specify a mile-per-hour speed that would be proper or practical for all differing highway conditions. The best a legislative body can do is to inform the motorist in pertinent general language."

Under the language of the Iowa law a motorist is required to drive at a "reasonable and proper" speed and be able "to stop within the assured clear distance ahead.

More and more it's being recognized by legislators, and by courts, as well as by our enforcement officials, that driving an automobile is a privilege, not a right.

Slowly but surely more rigid requirements are being set up for those who wish to enter upon that privilege. Examinations for driver's licenses are becoming stiffer.

By the same token the privilege is being withdrawn from those who demonstrate by their habitual disregard of rules of safety that they deserve no consideration.

It doesn't make sense but motorists are manifesting a much greater concern about losing their licenses than in the past they have manifested with respect to losing their lives.

The new interpretation of Iowa's laws having to do with behavior on the road is going to lead a greater acceptance of responsibility by all drivers and a weeding out of our chronic accident-makers.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

REAPPORTIONMENT

Gov, Leo A Hoegh who has favored reapportionment of the state legislature, told a Drake University audience he is confident Iowa will have legislative reapportionment. But he didn't say when.

Hoegh said the action will place one house on a population basis, the other on area. He said the overwhelming passage in the house last session of a bill to reapportion is an indication of increased interest in such action.

The house measure would have based its representation on county areas and the senate on population.

At the governor's suggestion a reapportionment plank was again placed in the Republican state party platform this year.

SIX NEW MEMBERS

Six new members have been added to the Republican state central committee, governing organization for the party in Iowa. The new committee members were elected at district caucuses and approved by the regular state convention delegates.

Newly elected are: Roy Pierce, Morning Sun, first district; Mrs Charles J Knickerbocker, Fairfax, second district; Mrs Miggie Cramblitt Ottumwa, fourth district; Arthur T Donhowe, Des Moines and Mrs Irene Laverty, Indianola, fifth district; Fred Benson Sheldon, eighth district.

ROAD DESIGN

Minimum standards for construction for new federal interstate roads have been approved by the American Association of State Highway Officials. Some 700 miles of the interstate system runs through Iowa. Chairman Robert Beck of the highway commission, Chief Engineer John Butler, and Design Engineer Fred Schnedier participated in the AASHO meeting which set the standards.

This network, due to be completed in 13 years, will be four-lane divided highways and there will be no stop lights on the system, no railroad crossings, few if any intersections, and no motels, cafes or service stations.

Highway shoulders will be at least 10 feet wide and of all-weather construction. Hills will be cut down, curves widened.

Safety and durability will keynote the construction of the federal network the Iowa officials said.

DRAWS FIRE

A member of the state printing board has criticized the Iowa highway commission for spending $10,000 for publishing a bookelt without obtaining approval of the printing board. Fifty thousand booklets "Progress on Iowa Highways 1955-56" are being printed.

Melvin Synhorst, secretary of state, said the procedure was "very unusual" because the printing of detour maps, annual reports and other commission data is handled through the board, Synhorst said. According to law, all state printing jobs should be filed with the printing board.

Total cost of the project, handled by a Cedar Rapids advertising agency, is reported to be about $15,000. Synhorst quoted a Des Moines printing firm as saying the first 700 copies were sent to the governor's office. The publication was authorized when Russell Lundy was chairman of the commission.

RAW MILK

The raw milk bottle trade is passing from the Iowa picture. The state department of agriculture reports only a dozen dairies are bottling raw milk for sale to retail outlets.

Twenty years ago probably not more than 10 percent of the bottle milk sold was pasteurized, a department official said.

GOP PLATFORM

The Iowa Republican regular state convention has approved its platform for the fall campaign in the state. Here are some of its planks;

A shorter ballot in the state elections by changing some positions now elective to appointive.

Consideration of legalizing voting at 18 years of age.

Rentention of homestead tax credits and veterans' tax exemptions.

Continuation of road use taxes at present levels, and a study to see if road money is being spent to best advantage.

Recommended a four-year term for elected county officials except supervisors.

Endorse reapportionment of the Iowa legislature.

THOMPSON IS NAMED

Iowa Republicans named Ray H Thompson of Newton as their candidate for commerce commerce commissioner in the November elections. Thompson defeated H M Reed of Panora and B M Richardson of Des Moines for the convention nomination. Neither of the three candidates all of whom sought the GOP nomination in the primary, obtained a sufficient primary election margin for the victory. Thus it had to be settled in convention.

Thompson polled 1,895 ballots, Reed 1,266 and Richardson, 207 on the first convention ballot.

AUTO SALES DIP

Sales of new motor vehicles and trailers by Iowa dealers dipped about one-third in June compared with sales in June of a year ago.

The Iowa tax commission reported sales in June totaled $23-303,009, down about $9,770,597 from the June total of 1955.

The commission said this was one of the sharpest declines so far this year in the month-to-month comparative figures.

GO HAPPY, BE LUCKY

Gov A B "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky came into Iowa seeking to influence Iowans to join the draft-Chanlder-for-president movement. Chandler talked baseball and politics. He was interviewed by policital reporters and baseball writers. He is a former commissioner of baseball.

He didn't have any Iowa delegates pledged when he arrived in the state; may not have had any when he departed. Iowa delegates who talked with him, however, admitted they "liked" him. But Stevenson, Kefauver and Harriman have the bulk of the Iowa Democratic delegates' votes.

Chandler urges a vote for him under a "Go 'Happy' Be Lucky" solgan on badges he handed out in Des Moines.

HIRED BY STATE

Kent Emery, former first assistant general who resigned June 1, has been hired as a special counsel by Atty Dayton Countryman for several court cases in which the state is involved. The action was approved by the state executive council on a 3-2 vote.

Members who didn't vote for the action said they wanted to study the matter further. One councilman, Melvin Synhorst, secretary of state, said he hoped the attorney general's staff could be gotten in shape "so they can handle their own cases."

Countryman said Emery had been working on these cases for several months, and is familiar with them. They involve a drainage action in Monona county and conspiracy cases in Crawford county.

FENCE GONE

At Treynor, thieves stole most of the steel posts used in building the fence around the city dump.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

As the lights of the patrol car flashed over the scene, the patrolman saw the automobile piled up like a drift of junk against the wall of the underpass. Two men were pulling at the wreckage with their bare hands.

The unbelievable thought hit both patrolmen at the same time: "Someone's still alive in there." Almost before the patrol car stopped, the younger officer was running back up the highway to set out warning flares while the older officer hurried toward the wreck.

One look and he knew it was the kind of accident he sometimes had nightmares about. Two teen-age boys were dead in the front seat, their faces incredibly young in the glare from the flashlight.

From the back, the white, drained face of another boy stared at the light. He was apparently so far beyond the threshold of pain and fear that his mind did not comprehend all that had happened.

"Lie quietly, son, We'll get you out of there in a second," the patrolman said. He kept repeating the phrase while the patrolmen worked to pry away the twisted metal. When he stopped talking, one of the patrolmen reached in to feel for a pulse. There was none.

From down the dark highway came the wail of the approaching ambulance. The young patrolman held his light on the face of the dead boy. "I guess there is no hurry now," he said softly.

"Turn off the flash," the older man said. "He almost looks like my own boy in there. I guess they all look something alike when they die that young."

Recommend New Canning Methods

Before you do your late summer canning of peaches, tomatoes and corn, bone up on new canning methods. Now we're sure that the raw pack way is really safe. Processing times are even more exact.

There's something new in canning. Not that the old canning methods aren't basically sound. Yet, home economics researchers with the United States Department of Agriculture have come up with some new, surer canning methods.

For one thing, they've given as a sure method of raw pack canning—a method that was used by many homemakers in the past but was not perfected. They also have given us processing times that are even more exact and safe. By practicing these new canning methods, your canned fruits and vegetables will be as nearly like the fresh fruits and vegetables as possible. They'll keep their characteristic color, flavor and texture.

The new recommendations are based on heat penetration—how long it takes heat to go through the food to make it safe for eating. Here are the changes to note: (1) Tested time tables for both raw and pre-cooked foods have been set up. (2) Some processing times have been shortened and others lengthened.

NEW TIMES FOR CORN

You will probably be canning many quarts of corn, tomatoes and peaches during the next month or so. Let's take a look and see how the new canning recommendations affect these three foods.

To can cream style corn by the raw pack method, use pint jars only. Never use quart jars because heat penetration through cream style corn in quart jars is too slow to make a safe product. Fill jars loosely to 1 inch of top. Do not press down or shake. Add ½ teaspoon salt to each jar. Fill jar to top with boiling water. Adjust lids and process at 10 pounds of pressure for 95 minutes. The hot pack method for cream style corn has not changed. Process pints for 85 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. Don't can in quarts.

If you're canning whole kernel corn, use the same raw pack method as for cream style corn. Only the processing times are different. Processing pints 55 minutes and quarts 85 minutes. Use these same processing times for the hot pack method.

Tomatoes should be processed in a boiling water bath. Have the water in the canner hot, but not boiling, when you put in the jars of raw tomatoes. This forestalls breakage. Bring the water to boiling, then start counting processing time. Processing times are: pints, 35 minutes and quarts, 45 minutes.

HOT PACK TOMATO JUICE

The method for putting up tomato juice hasn't changed. The processing time for both pints and quarts is 10 minutes. The shorter processing time gives brighter color and saves vitamin C.

To can peaches by the raw pack method, wash, scald, cool and slip off skins. Then remove pits and slice if desired. It helps to prevent darkening if you drop the fruit into water containing 2 tablespoons each of salt and vinegar per gallon. However, a solution of 1 teaspoon of ascorbic acid in a quart of water is more effective, according to Jewel Graham, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College. Drain the fruit and pack, cover with boiling sirup, leaving ½ inch space at the top. Adjust lids. Process pints 25 minutes and quarts 35 minutes. The hot pack method hasn't changed, but the processing time is longer. Pints take 20 minutes and quarts 25 minutes.

Large supplies of California peaches are on the market now. You'll find most of the Michigan and Colorado peaches ready for canning between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15.

40 YEARS AGO

The Iowa Falls Electric Co. has a large force of men here setting poles and rearranging the wiring of the local wires. It begins to look like that there is not doubt but what the company will be in here with the high tension before snow flies.

Russia wants closer trade relations with the United States. That's easy. All we want is the cash for our goods.

The Garner Ball tournament which is on this week has been attracting large crowds each day and Klemme has been furnishing her quota. The games have been very good but they have a bum carnival company for attractions. Get your money quick seems to be the motto of the gang.

The Iowa farmer is turning an inquiring eye toward the tractor, investigating its merits for farm work. Iowa fields are broad and call for handling on a large scale. With the marked improvement in tractor type the question of horse versus tractor power for the medium size and even the smaller farms is one that calls for careful and unbiased consideration.

30 YEARS AGO

A G Koerner purchased the 60 acre piece of land adjoining his property on the west, the fore part of this week. Al is perhaps going to do a little farming on a small scale. The addition of the land makes a fine improvement to his town property.

An airplane flew into town last Friday evening about 5:30 on the way from Belmond to Clear Lake. The aviator took up quite a number of passengers here for a short trip over the town.

Frank and Donald Gibbs, sons of Postmistress Emma Gibbs, returning Friday night from their hike to Northern Minnesota, the land of "sky blue waters and ten thousand Swedes". The boys are again helping in the post office and so we might say they have returned to the old stamping grounds.

Bill Keraus, at the Wellemeyer Store, and his family are on vacation this week in Minnesota. Bill wired the fish he was coming and expects to bring some specimens home with him. In case he has bad luck, he will at least eat fish—he packed along a can of salmon and some sardines.

20 YEARS AGO

Miss Mildred Johnson, who directs the Klemme Band was ill the past week so Franklin Kluckhohn took charge of the band concert last Wednesday evening. Along with the regular concert "Tiny" featured his Little German Band in several numbers.

Patrolman Clair West and another member of the patrol force spent their vacation last week taking in the Texas Centennial Exposition at Dallas. Patrolman West spent the fore part of the week in Klemme and returned to his duties this Wednesday morning. He brought back a 98 pound watermelon and some corn from Louisiana. The corn is on display at the Kluckhohn store.

Thursday just before noon, a fire started in the oats field at the Albert Kehl farm north of Klemme, and about 35 acres of grain in the shock was burned before the fire was brought under control. The field in which the fire started was approximately an 85 acre field.

Twin Lake Go Getters Hold Achievement Show

The Twin Lake Go Getters held their locol achievement show Monday evening July 30th at the Goodell Hall with at least 100 people present. Mrs Glenn Osman, Mrs Don Bacon and Mrs Elmer Schneider judged our show with over 150 entries and then a table of miscellanoeus articles, the girls recieved the following ribbons:

Senior girls, 14 years and over Gloria Hansen, 8 blue and 1 red; Patty Burk, 7 blue and 3 red; Marcella Neuhring, 10 blue, 9 red.

Intermediate, 12 and 13 years Marilyn Pals, 1 blue, 3 red; Theresa Lowenperg, 1 blue and 4 red; Janet Lange, 3 blue and 6 red; Judy Eliason, 11 blue and 3 red; Rita Hansen, 10 blue; Dorothy Roul, 1 blue and 3 red;

Junior girls, 10 and 11 years Janice Blank, 2 blue and 3 red; Kathy Koerner, 1 blue and 5 red; Linda Abele, 1 blue and 3 red; Janet Muerk, 1 blue and 4 red; Wanda Mason, 2 blue and 3 red; Carol Eliason, 4 blue and 3 red.

The judging contest was won by Gloria Hansen.

Wanda Mason and Judy Eliason will be the intermediate demonstration team to enter county contest; and Gloria Hansen and Marcella Nuehring the senior team. These girls will represent our club at the Junior Fair at Britt.

The leaders are Nora Eliason and Mrs Erwin Nuehring, assisted by Josephine Dominy, Miss Eliason is on a two months trip to London and Norway.

Liberty Busy Bees

The monthly meeting of the Liberty Busy Bees was held July 18th at the home Janelle Johnson. The 4-H Pledge opened the meeting. Roll call was answered by 8 members, 2 leaders and four visitors. Local achievement show was then discussed.

Janelle Johnson and Marsha Erdman were chosen to get gifts for the judges. We decided that we would have open house at local achievemet show from 3 to 5 p. m. on August 3 at the community building. The Junior demonstration team will demonstrate at 3:30 p. m.

A talk and demonstration was given by Marsha Erdman and June Mayland. June Mayland gave her talk on 4-H convention at Ames. The Junior demonstration team then practiced the demonstration "Our Slips Shok." Then we worked on record books.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

July Farm Prices Below June Level

Prices received by Iowa farmers for all farm products at Mid-July as measured by the index, averaged 3 points (1 percent) less than the average farm commodity prices one month earlier, according to the Iowa Cooperative Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The July 15 index at 230 percent of the 1910-14 base period average, may be compared with the June 15 index of 233 and the July 1955 index of 235.

Livestock and livestock product prices averaged lower from June 15 to July 15 as a gain of 30c per cwt. in the average beef cattle price was more than offset by losses for 60c for hogs, 40c for calves and 90c per cwt. for lambs. Chicken and egg prices also declined during the month, being respectively, 1.4c per pound and 1.4c per dozen less than on June 15.

The crop index, at 246 percent of the base period, was 1 point lower than at mid-June. Price losses of 5c per bushel for wheat and 46c per bushel for soybeans were nearly balanced by gains of 1c for corn, 3c per bushel for oats and $1.30 per ton for baled hay.

Tractor Rodeo at Hancock County Fair

The Hancock County Farm Bureau Young People are making plans to sponsor the Iowa Tractor Rodeo here at the Hancock County Fair this year.

This is a skill and safety contest sponsored by the Iowa Farm Bureau Young People, WHO, Iowa State Fair Board and the Iowa Farm Equipment Club. It offers the driver a chance to demonstrate the ability to operate tractors with speed and skill without endangering themselves or abusing the implement.

Frank Brcka is serving as chairman of the committee responsible for this rodeo Entries will be limited so any one interested contact either Frank Brcka or the Farm Bureau Office, Garner, right away. The only qualifications are that you be between the ages of 18 and 25 and from this county. Both boys and girls may compete and a winner will be picked from each. The contest will be run on August 16 at 2:00 p. m. at the Fair Ground. Winners from the county compete for state honors at the state fair on Aug. 23-24 for a victory trophy given by the Iowa Farm Bureau Young People and a total of $100.00 of cash awards given by radio station WHO.

Minnie Pearl Show At Junior Fair Will Have Variety of Music

Teen-agers who like their "rock 'n roll" music are in for their share of it at the Hancock County Fair on Tuesday, August 14 when Cousin Minnie Pearl brings her big Grand Ole Opry show to Britt from Rymnam auditorium in Nashville Tenn. Show time will be 8:00 p. m.

Bobbie Heider and Joyce Moore, RCA-Victor singing stars, are considered two of the finest "rock 'n roll" specialists in the business. These pretty misses—both only 19—have two of the big hit tunes in the rhythm and blues field—"Ain't Got No Time," and "Heaping Heartaches."

Bobby Heider & Joyce Moore

Coupled with Bobbie and Joyce is the 21-year old University of Texas singer, Justin Tubb. Son of Opry favorite, Ernest Tubb, Justin is a Decca singing star and one of the newest members at the Grand Ole Opry. He's another reason why teen-agers flock to "opry" shows.

Cousin Minnie Pearl, for 15 years the big commediane at the Grand Ole Opry, has a well-balanced, family-type show, Fair Secretary Mitchell Bock said this week.

Mercury recording stars, Merl Lindsay and his 8-piece band, the Oklahoma Night Riders, along with pretty Columbia singing star, Yvonne McGowan, are also with the show. String-bean, the Kentucky wonder, with his five-string banjo, will occupy a prominent spot on the Minnie Pearl Grand Ole Opry show.

The fourth annual Hancock County Junior Fair opens Tuesday morning with entries in all divisions. The fair continues through Friday, August 17.

A record number of livestock entries are expected and a new 120 ft. pole barn has been put up to shelter the overflow of stock.

Obituary of George Albers, Sr.

By Rev. Vernon E. Jaberg

George Albers, Sr., eldest son of Mr. John Albers and Jennie nee Luben Albers, was born on January 11, 1874, at Oldersum, Ostfriesland in Germany.

He was baptized in the Christian faith at the Oldersum Reformed Church and was received into the fellowship of the church through the rite of Christian confirmation on Palm Sunday, March 22, 1891, by Pastor Wyckgram. The confirmation blessing was taken from Psalm 92:13, "Those that be planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of God."

As a youth, George Albers learned the shoemaker's trade in Germany. He came to America with his parents in May of 1892 at the age of 17. The Albers family settled on a farm near Belmond, then moved southeast of Klemme.

On October 13, 1897, he was united in marriage to Evawina Wientjes of Belmond by the Rev. Reeverts, pastor of the Immanuel Reformed Church. They lived southeast of Klemme for three years and in 1901 they purchased their home place, two miles east and three-fourths of a mile north of Klemme. This was their home for 40 years until they retired from farming and moved to Klemme in January of 1941.

Mr. Albers was a member of Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church of Klemme and at one time served the congregation in the capacity of Elder.

Mr. and Mrs. Albers were privileged to observe their golden wedding anniversary in 1947 and their 57th anniversary in 1954.

George Albers fell on May 1, 1955, at his home and was hospitalized for a period of seven weeks at Mercy Hospital in Mason City. He was taken home where he was cared for by his family with the help of nurses. He had been a wheel chair patient until a month ago when he became bedfast. He was called to his eternal home on July 24th at 2:50 p. m., having attained the age of 82 years, 6 months and 13 days.

Mr. Albers is survived by ten children. Five sons: John and Menno of Klemme, Lubbe of Ventura, Theodore of Swaledale, and George, Jr. of Clear Lake. Five daughters:, Jennie (Mrs. William Reuben) of Kanawha, the twins, Carrie (Mrs. Fred Pringnitz) and Winnie (Mrs. Edgar Buss) of Klemme, Elsina (Mrs. Walter Lauster) of Thornton, and Helen at home. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. George D. Pals of Belmond, ten grandchildren, six great grandchildren, and other more distant relatives. Mr. Albers was preceded in death by his wife on November 13, 1954, and by his parents and by two brothers.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Supplies of stored pork were 5 percent greater than a year ago, but were 18 percent less than an June 1 of this year, reports Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. This stored pork will tend to work against development of any significant strength in the hog market during the summer.

Hog slaughter is now showing its season rise, say Kutish. However, some packers have been operating at less than full capacity leaving some of their workers idle. Under labor contract terms, the packer must pay these men during the slack period.

Because of this situation, no sharp price rise is expected unless hog marketings should suddenly dwindle. The early pig crop was ahead of last year, says the economist. There might be a temporary let-up in marketing this summer, but any such temporary let-up is not predictable. During the first weeks of July, barrows and gilts averaged heavier than a year ago at the eight main markets. This was the first time this occurred this year.

Cattle Outlook

Cattle feeders in the main feeding states were feeding 10 percent fewer cattle on July 1, this year, than they were a year ago, says Kutish. The Corn Belt states alone showed an 11 percent decline. On July 1, there were 22 percent fewer cattle on feed than on April 1 of this year.

The reason for the drop during April through June months says Kutish, is that cattle slaughter increased 8 percent during this period while at the same time only 5 percent more cattle were placed on feed than a year ago.

Most of the decrease since April 1 was in heavy cattle. Cattle that had been on feed 3 months or longer were 18 percent fewer than a year ago. Those on feed less than 3 months had increased by 4 percent. Kutish says the increase in short feeding occurred mainly in the west.

This situation supports the expectation for summer and early fall strength in the fed cattle market, says the Iowa State College economist. Supplies of finished cattle in the last half of this year will be significantly less than in 1955, although total cattle slaughter will be about the same as last year.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Our fingers are crossed for the fields of corn and beans in this area. They are beautiful. Every time we see a cloud coming over the horizon, we are fearful of hail and wind that might damage or destroy what at present appears to be the best crops seen in tnis area for a number of years. So far, though we have been lucky. There have been hail and wind-storms in many sections of the state . . . and they have been bad ones. So far we have been getting only welcome moisture from the storm systems while the storm centers have struck elsewhere.

Speaking of storms, the one brought on by this year's county budget estimate was a good one. It blew itself out Monday when some 130 taxpayers appeared at the courthouse for the adjourned hearing on the budget, but after affects of the storm will probably make themselves felt for years to come.

The budget was sliced some over $200,000 at the hearing, with nearly all taxpayers present giving their approval with a show of hands. Probably of more importance than tthe cutting of this year's estimate is the fact that out of this hearing is liable to come the formation of a county taxpayers association. Such a group could be of great help to county officials and taxpayers alike, and could serve as a guiding light in the future.

In addition, county officials were made aware that taxpayers want the most for their money and are willing to put forth some effort to see that they get it. They want to know where their money is going and why.

A large measure of credit for the cutting of the budget must go to Representative Curtis G Riehm of Garner, who acting as a taxpayer, spoke for the group at the hearing. He did considerable fact finding before the hearing went into a huddle with an official of the Iowa Taxpayers Association and with the County Board of Supervisors, and came up with the recommendations for where the budget should be cut. In addition, he called for the forming of the county taxpayers association.

Riehm served well as a freshman legislator during the last session of the Iowa Legislature, taking on stature in the eyes of his colleagues and writers who have covered legislative news for years. If his actions at Des Moines parallel those he has taken in the case of the county's budget estimate, then it is easy to see why.

Credit is also due county officials who cooperated very well in explaining points to the assembled taxpayers at the hearing, and to the Board of Supervisors for their cooperation in helping to decide where to cut the expenditures in the estimate.

In any case, it was quite a storm. The wind that blew had strength, was pointed in the right direction, demolished some long-standing habits, and should bring about some improvements within the structure of county government.

"Uni-Farmorama" To Be Here August 16th

Larson Farm Supply has been chosen to co-sponsor the August 16 presentation of the Minneapolis-Moline "Uni-Farmorama" show at Klemme. Iowa. Billed as the "greatest farm show on wheels" the Uni-Farmorama Caravan will visit Klemme as part of a state-wide tour of Iowa, according to Carold Larson.

Traveling in huge semi-trailer trucks with a full entourage of entertainers, demonstration experts and service personnel, Uni-Farmorama features the unique "Unifarmor" manufactured by Minneapolis-Moline. The Uni-Farmor's a multipurpose self-propelled machinery system operated by a single power source. This power source, a 3-wheeled Uni-Tractor with a V-4 engine and hydraulic power steering mounts, powers and propels six interchangeable harvest machines. With these machines, a farmer can windrow hay or grain, bale hay, field-chop forage crops, combine grain, beans or seed crops, pick corn, or pick and shell corn.

If possible, field demonstrations of these machines will be included in the Uni-Farmorama program, according to Mr Larson.

In addition to the machinery display and demonstrations, Uni-Farmorama will present a cast on popular midwest entertainers in a complete stage show. Movies in full color and door prizes for all guests are other attractions of the show.

Farmer guests are invited to register for a state-wide drawing to be held at the end of the Uni-Farmorama season, when two Uni-Farmors will be given away as special prizes.

Free tickets to Uni-Farmorama are available now at Larson Farm Supply.

Cut Proposed Tax Levy For County by $233,690

The board of supervisors of Hancock County approved a budget Monday calling for a reduction of $233,690 in the proposed tax levy. The levy was reduced from $739,190 to $505,500.

The poor fund was cut from $96,000 to $60,000. The relief program thus will be drastically curtailed authorities said, and it will be necessary to stamp warrants for payment of these services.

The reduction of road funds amounted to $171,690, which will mean a sharp cutback on the road improvement program inaugurated in 1954, road department spokesmen said.

There were 130 taxpayers at the meeting. Their spokesman was Rep. Curtis G Riehm, who proposed the reduction in the levy. Various departments for which levies were requested were explained by Gus Pappas, county auditor; Elwyn Hodges, relief department, and County Engineer Charles K Paulson, road department.

"It would be easier for youngsters to learn good manners if they saw more of them."

Lillian Wille, daughter of Mr and Mrs Carl Wille, has reason to believe that most peole are honest. She teaches in the Eldora Schools and this summer she furthered her education by attending classes at Colorado University at Boulder, Colorado. She arrived in Boulder on June 14th and before the day was over, lost her billfold containing important papers and $30.

Miss Wille reported the loss to Boulder police but heard nothing more about her billfold until she returned to Klemme, July 24th. Then came a letter from Miss Lane Alverz, student at the university, telling of a young man who had found the billfold but was leaving Boulder immediately. He had turned the wallet over to Miss Alvarz and asked her to see if she could find the owner. Miss Alvarz apparently had heard of Miss Wille's loss and the upshot of the whole affair is that the billfold, complete with contents, is now back in possession of its owner.

Miss Wille, who had assumed that she had seen the last of the billfold and its contents, was surprised and pleased to get it back after so much time had elapsed.

Next week the Democratic Convention will be underway in Chicago and the Democrats will be in a big hassle trying to decide who to run for president. They would like to get someone with a chance of beating "Ike", but the feeling seems to be in the air that they will have to settle for the candidate over whom "Ike" will win by the least number of votes.

"Stub" Lewis has a multitude of gladiolus at his place in the south part of town. They are all colors and the blossoms are huge. He left us a big bouquet of the flowers the other day, and they really look nice in our living room.

If you like good home made ice cream then you'll want to be sure and attend the ice cream social at the Methodist Church Saturday night. The social is being put on by Mary Circle of the WSCS, and the ladies say that in addition to a lot of good ice cream, there will be a lot of other goodies.

Guess this country can't be going to pot too fast. Statisics show that while 10,000 theaters have closed in the last three years, more than that many new church buildings have been erected.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

NATIONAL PARLEYS

State delegations to the Democratic national convention in Chicago and to the Republican national parley in San Francisco will depart this weekend and next.

The Democratic contingent, 48 delegates with a half-vote each and 32 alternates, will hold their first national convention caucus in Chicago's Palmer House, Sunday afternoon, August 12. The convention officially opens Monday, August 13.

The official Republican traveling squad, 26 delegates and 26 alternates, the delegates with one vote each, will depart early next week, for their convention. The Iowans' first caucus will be held at the Hotel Whitcomb, San Francisco, Sunday, August 19.

The Palmer House and Whitcomb are headquarters hotels for the Iowans.

SAME PERSONNEL

Iowan's two major political party organization's, their leaders securely in the saddle for the coming November elections, are going ahead with campaign plans for this fall.

The Democrats reelected veteran State Chairman Jake More who had some opposition in at least three congressional districts, while the Republican's reelected State Chairman Don Pierson, who had no opposition for the top post in the state central committee setup.

SOILS MEN QUIT

Four officials of the Iowa Association of Soil District Commissiners have submitted their formal resignations. They are: Merle Travis, Bedford, the association president; Fred Cherry, Rowley. Vice-president; B A Dodds, Ames, and Alvin Peterson, Stanton both directors.

Policy disagreements with in the organization were listed as reasons for the resignations. One factor was the dismissal several months ago, of Allen Schroeder, Des Moines, executive secretary and editor of the group's soil magazine.

NEW MISS IOWA

A new Miss Iowa has been crowned. She is Martha Barsness, a native of Minnesota, who represented Decorah at the Miss Iowa Contest at Clear Lake during Governor's Days there.

Miss Barsness, a petite blonde, was prescented her crown by Gov Leo A Hoegh. She's a student at Luther College, will compete in the Miss America contest in Atlantic City later in the summer.

RESEARCH SITE

The new federal $16-million animal disease laboratory at Iowa State College will be located on a 318 acre site about two miles east and one-half mile north of Ames.

The site, which will cost about $150,000, has been finally selected by a committee of U S agriculture officials. Purchase price for the two farm tracts where the lab will be built is $470 per acre.

Construction on the project will get underway next year. The state of Iowa pays for the cost of the land for the laboratory, the federal government pays for the cost of construction.

NO SALK STRINGS

All restrictions for the use of Salk pilio vaccine in Iowa have been removed.

The Iowa Department of Health said that now anyone will be eligible for the shots regardless of age. Removal of restrictions was possible, the department said, because the supply is now exceeding the mand.

HOMESTEAD CREDITS

Gov Leo A Hoegh, speaking in Dubuque, said he is opposed to reducing the Iowa homestead tax credits, that it is "one of the things that makes home owning in Iowa attractive."

The Iowa taxation study committee has discussed the possibility of reducing homestead tax credits from $62 to $50 a year.

The Democratic state platform, adopted at the party convention July 31, called for retention of the homestead and veterans' credits program in Iowa.

REAPPORTIONMENT

Both state party platforms this year have adopted legislative reapportionment planks.

The Republicans were first to approve reapportionment of the legislature at their regular state convention, and last week the Democrats approved a plank calling for "early passage of a legislative resolution in the next session of the legislature to revise the state constitution" to bring about "speedy" reapportionment of the general assembly.

The resolution pointed out that such a move would give all citizens of the state "equal voice in the government."

NO TAX EXEMPTIONS

The Iowa attorney general has ruled that a veterans' organization cannot obtain tax exemption on a property, any part of which is a clubroom which holds a federal liquor dealer permit.

The ruling held it is the opinion of the attorney general "that so long as the building of (veteran's post) is the location of a federal retail liquor sales permit, no exemption should be granted as to any part thereof."

The law says no exemption shall be granted any property which is the location of a federal retail liquor sales permit.

The ruling had been asked by the Cass Sounty attorney, Joseph T Shubert.

ESTES FOR ADLAI

Iowa Kefauver-for-president supporters were surprised when their state chairman announced from the speaker's rostrum of the state convention, that Sen. Estes Kefauver had withdrawn from the Democratic president race.

Cecil Malone, Atlantic, Iowa chairman for Estes, made the announcement as it was being released by news services. He said that Kefauver was urging support for Adlai Stevenson for the party nomination.

All of the Kefauver strength in Iowa will not line up behind the former Illinois governor, Right after the Kefauver announcement, Herschel Loveless, Demo candidate for governor, said he would now support Harriman. Six or seven other Kefauver delegates indicated they would follow the Loveless lead.

FOR SAFETY

Plans are underway; headed by a sub-committee, to draft plans for a statewide safety organization. The move is being spearheaded by the governor's lay committee on traffic safety.

The state's rapidly mounting traffic death toll prompted the governor to urge support of a statewide organization to promote highway safety.

In the past Iowa has had such statewide units as the Iowa Safety Council and the Iowa Safety Congress. They died because of lack of funds and public apathy.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

There are many pictures in highway patrol files that would cause the most confident driver to question himself—if not miss his dinner. There are pictures taken under the wheels of trains of things that look like damp, scattered sacks.

There are pictures of people who seem to be hiding or resting in ditches until you look more closely. There are pictures of people who seemed to be dressed entirely in tight, rough, black rubber suits—they have burned to death in wrecks.

But there is one picture that should be seen by those drivers who feel that the natural position of the gas pedal is on the floorboard. It isn't a picture of horror. It is simply the picture of a shoe.

The shoe looks new, shined, and it is fully laced. But there isn't any foot in it. Nor is it where you might expect a shoe to be.

This particular shoe is actually wedged halfway into the floorboard of a wrecked automobile. It is just to the right of the gas pedal. The man who wore the shoe came over a small hill at just about the top speed his car could make. He found another car crossing the highway just below the crest of the hill.

He didn't even have time to shift his foot from the gas to the brake. The crash came so suddenly that his foot was still plastered to the gas pedal and the impact was so great that his shoe was driven into the floorboards.

Many pictures in highway patrol files tell more disagreeable stories, but none tells the story of an accident in more pathetic detail than this one picture of a shoe.

INJURED

A five year old farm boy suffered severe head injuries near Albia recently. Tommy Mock fell backward from a tractor driven by his brother. He was taken to Blank Memorial hospital in Des Moines.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Cattle prices are beginning their long-expected summer rise, reports Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. Between July 15 and July 25, the market advanced about $2 with upper cattle grades showing the greatest advance.

During the last few weeks, the average weight of slaughtered steers dropped, approaching the weights of a year ago. This is a good sign, says Kutish, as it ends a long period during which slaughter weights were as much as 50 to 60 pounds heavier than a year ago.

Good and better grade cattle weighing more than 1,050 pounds showed much of the recent cattle price strength. As of July 1, there was a greater decrease in the number of cattle on feed weighing more than 900 pounds than in any other weight group as compared with April 1.

Kutish also notes that the number of cattle being fed for long periods is below a year ago. On July 1, the number of cattle that had been on feed 6 months or longer had decreased 24 percent as compared with last year.

He also points out that the reduction in fed-cattle marketings, as compared with last year, should be largest in later summer and early fall.

The over-all picture, says the Iowa State College economist, indicates that the cattle feeding outlook for the next few months is improving. However, he says shipments of feeder cattle and calves are increasing in number. Such shipments from the 10 main feeder cattle markets were 20 percent greater during the middle weeks of July than they were a year ago. This indicates that the best cattle prices should occur during early and mid-fall this year.

Kutish reports that contracting is light so far, with cattle feeders apparently marking time. The present price strength did put some interest in the feeding business, however.

Hogs . . . The hog situation indicates little prospect for a sustained price rise, says Kutish. Loins have recovered somewhat from their June price low, but they haven't regained the price levels they maintained during the late May price peak. Boston butts and lard have also shown some price increase, but they, too, are still less than during the May peak.

Grass Seed Costs Money!

GET THE MOST FROM YOUR GRASS SEED DOLLAR WITH Fertilizer!

In this area we enjoyed a good oat harvest, and the harvesting of a good crop gives us all a warm feeling. However, we mustn't forget—a good crop removes more soil fertility than a poor crop.

That grass seed you invested your money in this spring needs every break possible to do well and be of maximum value to you . . . either as feed or as green manure. Fall top dressing with fertilizer will replace the fertility taken out by the oat crop, thus protecting your grass seed investment.

SIX GOOD REASONS FOR Fall Top Dressing

1. Gives better spread of work, speeds spring planting.
2. Soil is in best physical condition and can carry heavier loads.
3. Bulk spreading trucks save time and labor.
4. Encourages legume and grass growth, helps prevent winter kill.
5. Produces more tons and more nutritious hay.
6. Builds up soil fertility and tilth for future crops.

Three Divisions for Girls Demonstration Teams at Fair This Year

Thirty girls' demonstration teams will be giving demonstrations at the Hancock County Fair on August 14, 15 and 16. Three divisions will be demonstrating instead of the two divisions which were at the fair last year. The divisions and when they will be demonstrating are: Junior division on August 14 starting at 1:30 p. m. ; Senior division on August 15 starting at 8:30 a. m.; and Intermediate division on August 16 starting at 8:30 a. m.

The topics that will be covered by our seven junior teams are: making lap back pillow covers, slipping plants, flower arranging, cleaning kits and decorative hat boxes.

From the ten senior teams, three will be selected to compete out of the county. They will represent the county at the State Fair, the Dairy Cattle Congress and at the Spencer Fair. The topics covered by the senior teams will be box pillow covers, flower arranging, lamps, refinishing furniture reupholstering chairs, bulletin boards, picture framing and storage boxes.

The intermediate division is the largest division. There will be thirteen teams demonstrating all day August 16. In this division the girls will give demonstrations on lap back pillows covers, reseating a chair, matting pictures, refinishing wood, making portfolios, footstools lampshades, flower arrangements and dressing table skirts.

1956 Iowa Deer Season Is Set

The 1956 Iowa deer season has been set by the State Conservation Commission, with few changes over last year's regulations.

The season will be divided into two parts, the bow-and-arrow season from October 13 through November 12, and the shotgun season on December 8 and 9.

Daily hunting hours for the bow and arrow season will be from 6:30 a m to 5 p m. Hunting hours for the shotgun season will be from 8 a m to 4 p m daily. The bow-hunting season is a week longer than last year while the shotgun hunting season has been reduced one day.

All counties will be open to deer hunting, and deer of any age or sex may be taken.

The deer license fee will be $10, and licenses will be issued only to Iowa residents. Shotgun hunters will be limited to 6,000 and all applications for hunting deer with shotguns must be postmarked not later than October 12. These applications should be sent with a check or money order for $10 to the State Conservation Commission in Des Moines. If the number of applications for hunting deer with shotguns exceeds 6,000, a drawing will be held to determine who shall receive licenses.

Application for bowhunting licenses is not required, and an unlimited number of bow hunting license will be issued.

This year's deer licenses will be stamped "for shotgun only" or "for bow and arrow only." The license may be used only for the season designated on the license, and bowhunters will not be allowed to hunt during the gun season with their "bow and arrow only" licenses.

All other regulations will be the same as last year.

Commission biologists report that the deer herd is "about the same as last fall", with a population estimate of 14,000 animals.

During the 1955 deer hunting season, 6,000 licensed hunters reported killing 2,550 deer, including the 58 deer taken by bowhunters. Hunting success with bow and arrow was much higher than in 1954, when only 10 bow and arrow kills were reported.

In addition to the kill by licensed hunters, at least 338 deer were killed by landowners, bringing the 1955 total kill to 2,888.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

This is one of those weeks. Nothing to put in the column. The weather has been slightly wet and mighty hot . . . activity in town has been curtailed by the fairs, celebrations, etc. going on at this time of year . . . the Democrats have been whooping it up in Chicago . . . school will get underway September 3rd . . . crops here look wonderful . . . next week the Republicans will whoop it up in San Francisco . . . lots of local people have been or are presently on vacation . . . traffic on highway 69 would indicate that people from all over the country are vacationing . . . the world is in a tizzy over the Suez Canal . . . Mickey Mantle stands a chance of breaking Babe Ruth's home run record . . . and the season is still on for outdoor cooking and outdoor fun.

While kids are having a short opening day session at the school on Monday, September 3rd, Klemme business and professional people will be enjoying their last big summer holiday. The day will be Labor Day and stores will be closed. No doubt workers will enjoy the brief respite from their jobs as no other holiday is in sight locally until Thanksgiving Day which is on November 22. Local businesses will not observe Veterans Day this year as they have for the past few years.

PLANE SPOTTERS
ESSENTIAL TO AIR AND CIVIL DEFENSE

In the event of a surprise air attack the trained Civilian Plane Spotter would be of vital importance both to the Air Force and Civil Defense. Early warning of approaching planes would give our fighter pilots a better chance to challenge the invaders in the sky—would give civilians in target areas more time to reach shelters. Will you serve as a Plane Spotter two hours a week?

Join the Ground Observer Corps Now!

Contact Ground Observer Corps, c/o Don Schaefer, Klemme, Iowa, or phone Don at 72141 or 72248.

Those six fellows that made that weekend trip to Milwaukee, Wis. would have made poor ground observers Monday. They could hardly see for want of sleep. First rain delayed the ball game they were to see Sunday afternoon and then their bus had to make a lot of the trip back to Mason City in fog. The bus didn't get into Mason City until 4:00 a. m. Monday so by the time they got back to Klemme it was almost too late to get any sleep.

Two 7-year old boys admitted starting a fire that destroyed a barn near Humboldt last week. Quick work by firemen saved other buildings. "Playing with matches," the boys reported.

Drought, Hail, Wind Cut Crop Prospects In Part of Corn Belt

Although in this particular area of the corn belt, we are blessed so far with the prospects of bumper crops of corn and beans, there are many areas . . . some close by . . . that have not been so fortunate. Hail and wind have done terrific damage to crops in large areas of this state, and dry weather has been an unwelcome visitor in other sections and in other states.

The western part of the Corn Belt continued to show increasing crop deterioration during the latter part of July.. Lack of rain coupled with low subsoil moisture hurt many fields of corn in Central, Northwest and Southeast Iowa and in much of Nebraska and part of South Dakota. In Nebraska except for a narrow strip along the Missouri River and in irrigated fields, corn was heading for failure for the third year in a row.

Rather heavy rains occurred in dry areas, particularly in the Northwest, but many fields were beyond much help, having already been stunted and blasted beyond redemption. In Illinois, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, however, rains of one to two inches probably added five bushels per acre to an already bumper crop.

Soybeans promise to be a tremendous crop. Large acreages in Illinois and Minnesota have had plenty of moisture and yields will undoubtedly be high. Even in areas of short moisture, soybeans are able to thrive much better than corn. They will make a fair yield where corn may fail completely.

Continued dry seasons in Nebraska, Kansas and Western Iowa have given a tremendous boost to irrigation equipment. When fields side by side can have a yield differential of 100 bushels of corn due to irrigation, more farmers will turn to irrigation even at a considerable investment. This added expense of farming under irrigation is another factor tending toward a larger farm size as an economical and efficient unit.

Plan to Reactivate Local Ground Observer Corps With Volunteers

A/1c Don Cooper of the Des Moines Filter Center was in Klemme Monday to push for the reactivation of the local Ground Observer Corps. He has the cooperation of the Klemme Lions Club in the project, and it is hoped that volunteers will swell the ranks of the local unit and make possible greater participation in GOC activities.

Cooper has just returned from a Ground Observer school at Tyndall Aiforce Base, Florida and reports that the Airforce and Civilian Defense Command think it essential to the defense of our country that as many observer posts as possible operate throughout the country. They feel that until such time as guided missiles make obsolete the use of planes in atomic or hydrogen attack, the need for observers is acute.

Radar can pick up most planes coming into the country, but holes in the radar system and the possibility that low flying planes can sneak under the radar, make the Observer Corps an essential part of the overall defense plan.

The Klemme Lions Club is sponsoring tthe local GOC with the backing of the Legion Auxiliary whose members have agreed to help in standing watches. It is felt that other civic groups will also back the Corps, and in addition many volunteers will be needed.

Depending on the number of volunteers, the post will operate as often as possible, and volunteers are desired from any age group or any occupational group. Housewives, businessmen farmers, everyone is capable of taking part and helping in a movement which defense officials of the country feel is essential.

If you would like to volunteer, mail a card to Klemme Ground Observer Corps, c/o Don Schaefer, or call Don at 72141 or 72248.

Given in marriage by her brother, Clarence Christians, the bride was attired in a floor length gown. The fitted bodice and long pointed sleeves were of delicate rose-point lace and featured a portrait neckline bordered with folds of nylon net. The bouffant skirt of nylon net had an underskirt trimmed with insets of the rose-point lace over an underskirt of white satin taffeta. The fingertip veil was of imported French illusion held in place by a small crown of pearls and sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses. Her only jewelry was a small pearl necklace, a gift of the groom.

The maid of honor was Miss Lois Jacobs, Clear Lake, a friend of the bride, and bridesmaids were Donna Christensen, Scarville, friend of the bride, and Janice Johanns, Osage, sister of the groom. They wore identical floor length gowns of blue crystalette with princess style waistline and a bouffant skirt with a butterfly bow in back. They wore matching Juliet caps of crystalette and pearls, and carried colonial bouquets of yellow daisies.

Sue Ellen Christians, niece of the bride, as flower girl, wore a gown styled identical to the attendants in yellow crystalette. She carried a colonial basket of white daisies.

Clarence Hrubes of Duncan, uncle of the bridegroom, served as bestman. Groomsmen were Carl Hemesath, Ossian and James Christians, brother of the bride.

Bernard Nedved, Duncan, and Joe Fox, Osage served as alter boys and ushers were Donald Hrubes, Duncan, cousin of the groom, James Kuhn, Osage, Raymond Christians, Klemme, brother of the bride, and Alvin Lass, Cartersville, cousin of the bride.

The bridegroom and his attendants wore navy blue suits and boutonnieres of white carnations.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue lace dress with pink accessories and the mother of the groom was also attired in navy blue linen with white accessories. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

A dinner for 220 relatives and friends was served at noon by Sacred Heart Guild and was served by 18 waitresses, friends and relatives of the bridal couple. They wore white organdy aprons, gifts of the bride.

For the reception, Mrs P E Christians of Ventura, aunt of the bride, and Mrs Syl Malek of Hayfield, aunt of the bridegroom, poured. The five-tiered wedding cake, decorated with roses and lovebirds, was cut and served by Mrs Clarence Christians and Mrs Raymond Christians, sister-in-laws of the bride. They were assisted by Mrs Harvey Hubbard, Swea City, Mrs Myrtle Jacobs, Clear Lake, Mrs Ormsby, Mrs John Moore, Mrs Comisky and Mrs Frank Aricks, all of Osage.

School to Open Here On September 3rd

According to word from Supt. Harlan Shafer, the 1956-57 school year will open for the Klemme Community School District on Monday, September 3rd. There will only be a short session on the opening day with buses due to return the children to their homes at 11:00 a. m.

The faculty for the coming year is complete and in next week's issue of The Times will be pictures of all the faculty with background information on each, and some information with regard to details parents of students should know.

One change in the setup for this year will see the closing of all country schools in the district. This change has meant the moving of one more building in from the country and some other rearranging of classrooms, but it is felt that the change will benefit all concerned.

Bridal Shower

A bridal shower, honoring Miss Lois Chrisitians, was held recently in the home of Mrs Louisa Wistey at Clear Lake with Miss Lois Ann Jacobs as hostess.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

IN SPOTLIGHT

An Iowan has been much in the spotlight at the Democratic national convention, and will also command his share of attention at the Republican national parley next week.

He's William O McMains of Oskaloosa, official organist at both conventions.

Folks in the music business contend that McMains. who was also official organist at the party conventions four years ago, has played to bigger audiences than anyone in the business—it runs into the millions who have watched the activities on T V.

He played something like 2000 musical numbers in the 1954 sessions and will probably work that hard again this year.

FOR STASSEN

Iowa Republican delegates to the national convention next week are almost solidly behind Richard Nixon as the party candidate for vice-president. Informal newspaper polls have indicated that.

Before the recent move by Harold Stassen, former Minnesota governor and one-time presidential contender himself, one of Stassen's closest friends in the delegation was Gov Leo A Hoegh. However, the governor has indicated he feels that Vice President Nixon has done an excellent job, and will get his support.

The vice-president controversy stirred by Stassen may well be the only conflict in the GOP convention. However, some delegates are predicting that Governor Herter's name will not even be presented to the convention. Stassen is pushing Herter for Nixon's spot.

NFO ELECTS

Iowa's newest farm organization, National Farmers' Organization (NFO), elected Corbin Crawford, 43, Ainsworth, as its first president, G W Mullins, 58, Earlham, is vice-president and Duane Orton, 47, Atlantic, treasurer.

The NFO's Iowa chapter held a one-day organization meeting in Des Moines. The chapter's constitution provides for annual membership of $5.

Reportedly there are about 73,000 members in Iowa.

ROAD FUNDS

The Iowa highway commission may, if an experiment is successful, tell Iowa counties how to spend their need money, from the state, which goes into the county farm-to-market road programs.

The commission last week voted to conduct an experimental project in Marion county to advise where and how certain farm-to-market money should be spent.

Commission Chairman Robert Beck, after being assured support from the Marion county board of supervisors, says such action may help build roads where they are most needed and where the traffic is heaviest. He pointed out that in many counties roads are built or improved on a "political pressure basis."

NOT FOR IKE

Dan Turner, former governor of Iowa, and co-chairman of the state Eisenhwer-for-president organization four years ago, said he will not be for President Eisenhower this year.

Turner has been leading the NFO fight against the Eisenhower farm program in general, and Agriculture Secretary Benson in particular.

He supported Atty Gen Dayton Countryman, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for U S senator this year. Turner supported Countryman against Senator Hickenlooper, because the senator supported the administration farm program. Countryman was critical of it.

NOMINATE FOUR

Four Iowa attorneys have been nominated as the Democratic candidates for places on the Iowa supreme court.

L M Hullinger, Sr., Cedar Rapids, was chosen by the party state judicial convention to seek reelection to a short term resulting from the court resignation by Justice John Mulroney of Fort Dodge. The term runs through 1960.

Nominated for three six-year terms that expire next year are: J C Prior, Burlington; Harry Garrett, Corydon, and Frank F Messer, Iowa City.

The Republicans in an earlier convention had nominated the four justices now serving as candidates for reelection. They are: Henry K Peterson, Council Bluffs, who succeeded Mulroney; W L Bliss, Mason City; Norman R Hays, Knoxville, and G K Thompson, Cedar Rapids.

WANTS PHYSICIAN

Governor Hoegh said he hopes a plan can be worked out whereby the state of Iowa can acquire the service of at least 10 German refugee physchiatrists to ease a shortage in the state mental health institutions.

The governor's refugee committee had reached agreement on some 19 German doctors to take staff jobs in Iowa institutions but the state board of mental examiners said that none had graduated from "approved" medical schools and hence could not be licensed in Iowa.

Refugee doctors now serving in Iowa institutions, and brought here several years ago are working out very well, the governor reports.

IOWA SIGNUP

Last figures reported are that 64,891 Iowa farmers have signed up under the soil bank program of the federal government.

They'll put more than one-million acres of corn into the soil bank this year, Iowa ASC officials report.

The farmers who signed up qualify for $47,902,031 in government payments for keeping a total of 1,116,420 acres of corn out of production.

Federal department officials report Iowa farmer signups is among the tops of all states.

FAVOR INTEGRATION PLANK

Two Iowans serving on the Democratic national convention platform committee favored a plank upholding the U S supreme court decision on racial integration. The two are State Sen E J McManus, Keokuk; and Mrs Herbert Arthur, Ames.

The Democratic convention opened in Chicago Monday. It is scheduled to adjourn Friday.

MORE FOR ENTERTAINMENT

Iowans are spending more money for entertainment these days.

The state tax commission reports that first official sales figures reflecting 1956 spending 88 percent more for amusement and athletic events than last year.

The estimates are based on sales tax returns. The expenditures are about $2-million more than a year ago in the first three months comparative period. The estimates do not include movie ticket expenditures.

STATE WITHHOLDING

Elmer Heckinger, state income tax director, favors a state with holding tax plan for Iowa. He said one is being worked out that will be simpler and easier on the employer than the federal plan now in effect.

A withholding program, Heckinger contends, will gain an additional $1-million from persons such as transients who make no returns now. He said the system would assure collection from 9,000 others who make returns but are not able to pay anything or more than a token amount on the total due the state.

He said the tax commission this year received 4,000 returns involving $140,000 in taxes from persons who acknowledged their tax but made no payment.

$104-MILLIONS

Iowans paid a total of $104-034,973 in sales and income taxes in the fiscal year that ended June 80, 1955.

State Auditor C B Akers, in a tax commission audit, said the collections total $2,505,489 more than those collected in 1954. He said it cost $103,000 more to collect the 1956 income too.

Rates for both taxes have increased since the period covered by the audit.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

After a week of traveling the back roads of the county, Art still couldn't tell one country corner from another. Corn rows and fence rows converging at an intersection all looked the same to him.

He got lost at least once a day which was embarrassing and costly because Art was supposed to be selling things to farmers.

"Keep thinking while you drive. Know where you're going," the county sales manager told him.

"Find a good landmark and work from there," a farmer suggested.

Art made an effort. He found one intersection where a farmer had cut back the corn in the corner of his field to give driver a view of the converging road.

Art could always recognize that intersection. There was no other like it in the neighborhood. It became his major landmark. Every time he drove through it he had a feeling of friendship for that unknown farmer who had shortened his corn rows to give drivers a safe intersecction.

For about a week after he found his landmark, things went better for Art. He began to know his directions so well that he no longer drove slowly and uncertainly wondering where he was.

Now he drove with speed and confidence, spraying up gravel, making time. Then he "got lost" again.

It happened one morning as he was clipping through an intersection. His vision to the left was cut off by a corn field, but Art knew where he was, no need to slow down.

The milk truck slid into the left side of the car like a tank. Art was lost again. This time he would never find his way back.

Olsen and Johnson Coming to Iowa

Des Moines, Iowa:

Olsen and Johnson, funny men stars of Broadway, movies, and radio, have been signed to headline the opening six nights nights at the Iowa State Fair here, it has just been announced. The zaney comics will be featured in the fair's musical revue the evenings of Friday, Aug. 24 through Wednesday, Aug. 29. The two hour musical extravaganza will also include a Broadway beauty chorus, other well-known stage and TV personalities, an outdoor circus, and a fireworks spectacle, fair officials report.

Record Study May Cause Suspension of 12,000 Drivers Licenses

This might be the day when a worker in the state safety department in Des Moines pulls your driving record out of the file to give it a long, questioning look.

The look at your record may be part of a continuous examination of 43,000 driving records is Iowa this year.

The program is part of the department's search for an estimated 12,000 Iowa drivers whose records are bad enough to warrant suspenion or attendance at one of the driver improvement centers now being set up throughout the state.

These are drivers who have accumulated a record of accidents, convictions of traffic violations or both, according to Russell I Brown, state safety education director.

'Under present conditions, it doesn't take too much of a record to be counted in among the 12,000," Brown said.

Brown said the estimate of 12,000 Iowa motorists "eligible for driver improvement centers" is based on result of the search of license files so far this year.

"These 12,000 drivers may cause or be directly involved in as many as 50 percent of the traffic accidents in Iowa this year", Brown said.

Brown said the department's aim is to find the 12,000 and face them with a choice of immediate license suspension or attendance in a nine-hour course at a driver improvement center.

"Hancock County housewives can contribute to easing the current shortage of fats and oils by saving every available ounce of waste fats," said Alfred V Josten, chairman of Hancock County AAA Committee.

The M E Parsonage basement has been excavated and new walls laid up and the floor cemented. A new furnace will be installed. Men from Liberty and Klemme did the work.

The gasoline engine on the paving crew's concrete mixer was damaged by fire early this morning. Conrad Quandt saw the blaze sometime after midnight and extinguished the blaze with a chemical gun. It is not known how the fire started. The damage amounted to burned off wires, burned fan belt and damaged gas task.

Verle Kleraus left for Swea City last week where he has accepted a position with the Northern Lumber Company.

Henry Thieman, son Paul and daughter, Luella, drove to West Bend Sunday to see the Grotto.

Walter Rosendahl and family accompanied by Ronald Barz and Emma Kothenbeutal visited the clocks at Spillville Sunday.

30 YEARS

Oats around Klemme is very good this year. Reports coming to the Times Office give oats as making all the way from thirty-five to sixty bushels per acre. Corn is growing by leaps and bounds here and prospects look mighty good for a big yield around this vicinity. Many localities in Iowa have dried out, others have been hailed out and a lot of fields are spotted. Hancock farmers have about as good a prospect for big yields as any place we have seen this summer.

The auto license plates for Hancock County for 1927 will carry the prefix number 36, instead of 47 as is the case this year.

Fred Pannhoff is driving a new Ford touring car which he purchased recently.

Happy Johnson says there's about as much sense in advertising milk from contented cows as in advertising sausage from hogs that died happy.

River Side Club Met

The Riverside Club held their annual picnic at the Elmer Arnold home, Sunday evening, August 12 at 6:30. There were sixty three who came to enjoy the evening. The Arnolds have a beautiful park that makes a very nice place for a picnic.

Kiddies Clothes for Fall Follow Adult Fashions

Kiddies' clothes for fall are taking the cue from the adult fashion world. When you're buying school clothes for fall—whether they be ready-made or patterns and fabrics—buy the practical new fashions.

Sports coats are just a little longer. The new "car coats," making big fashion news this fall, come just below the finger tips. This gives a child plenty of leg room for walking and active play. The "car coat" can be worn from late fall to early spring. In the wintertime, your child can wear it with ski pants or slacks.

Many little girls' dress-up coats are empire style with princess lines, a fashion particularly becoming to a young lady. And she's taking over mom's rough tweeds, too. The salt and pepper and bright popcorn tweeds will be very very popular. Of course, these tweeds won't show soil nearly as quickly as the lighter pastel tweeds do. Side or back belts provide extra fashion interest. Some have a double-breasted closing. Hooded coats are back again. The hoods are often fleece-lined—just the thing for Iowa winters. The hood forms a cape when it's worn down.

Dark Cottons Popular

You'll find the empire line in dresses. Some dresses and skirts have the slim line effect that is so important in women's wear this fall. The effect is created by hidden pleats which give your daughter plenty of room for activity. Dark cottons are popular for now through late fall and winter, depending on how warm the classrooms are. Dark cottons are easy to care for and don't muss like the lighter colors do. When you're machine washing turn the garments inside out to avoid lint. Take a clothes brush and whisk off any lint that does collect on the dark fabric.

Knits in cotton, wool and wool and synthetic blends are one of the newest trends in youngsters dresses. These dresses are styled with gathered skirts. What kind of dress would be easier to care for! The Alpine influence is everywhere, especially in bulky sweaters.

Elegant wide sashes of everything from grosgrain to satin are seen on Sunday school dresses. Shirley Jean Smith, extension clothing specialist at Iowa State College, suggests you take an old dress, discard the worn plastic belt for bright new sash. Or simply take a school dress and substitute the sash on dress-up occasions for the everyday belt.

Glen Plaids Are Back

You'll see lots of stripes and plaids. (Little boys will love them.) Glen plaids are making big news. They're found in gray and brown, as well as in bright colors.

Jeans may be standard school garb for your boys. Corduroy trousers are popular, too. Cotton knit tee shirts and clothing of seersucker and plisse will save you ironing time.

Buying a snow suit? A two-piece zipper snow suit is a better long-range buy than a one-piece suit. It can be either a boy or a girl and has "grow" features because it's two-piece. Nylon is an excellent snow suit fabric because of its wearing qualities.

NO DRIVER

Young Gerald Boehm started up his father's tractor near Buffolo Center, then fell off. The machine, at highspeed, ran wild for some minutes, crossing the highway several times and through a dozen sections of fence, on four different neighboring farms.

Good State Fair Wildlife Exhibit Expected This Year

Snakes, fish, animals and birds will soon be arriving from all over Iowa to take their place in the Wildlife Exhibit at the State Fair, and Conservation Commission officials are predicting a "good show".

An exhibit highlight will be a new outdoor area measuring 80 x 200 feet on the west side of the exhibit building. Outdoor tanks and roomy cages for waterfowl and larger animals are being erected on the site and a well has been dug that will furnish fish and game with cool, untreated water. Officials believe the deep well will keep all species in good showing condition.

The new area will hold a waterfowl pool and 7 outdoor pens and enclosures for deer, bear, coyote, fox, coon, and beaver.

Within the exhibit building, an outstanding display of Iowa rattlesnakes will be shown termed by officials as "one of the best collections in recent years". All species of large fish will be shown in the exhibit building including the 68 pound lake sturgeon, "Big Mac".

The building will house many types of small birds and animals and exhibits including parks, forestry and game. There will be a special demonstration of fox and coyote trapping methods and equipment.

The new edition of Iowa's fish book, "Iowa Fish and Fishing" will be available in the Exhibit Building, the first time this new edition has been on public display.

Annual TB Contact X-ray Program Will End August 21

Tuesday, August 21, 1956, has been set as the date for the climax of the annual 'Contact' X-ray program when the mobile x-ray units will be brought to Garner by the Hancock County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

Miss Marcia Mitchell R. N., public health nurse, has spent the past four weeks interviewing persons who may have been in close contact with an active case of tuberculosis and who may have become infected, but not yet be aware of it. If these persons have had positive tuberculin skin tests, they will have a chest x-ray in the mobile unit.

The 'Contact' Case-finding program has been sponsored by the Hancock County Tuberculosis and Health Association. A portion of the cost is borne by the sale of Christmas Seals each year.

This program has the approval of the Hancock County Medical Society, and is conducted by the division of tuberculosis, State Department of Health and the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association.

"Practically everyone I visited has been willing to participate in this program," said Miss Mitchell. "We anticipate about 56 persons to be x-rayed when the mobile unit parks on the East side of the courthouse in Garner."

"Only those persons who have been previously advised of the x-ray clinic can be accepted at the mobile unit on Augut 21," the public health nurse said. "This survey is not for the general public."

"It's this kind of cooperation which will lead to the ultimate eradication of tuberculosis," said Mrs Ray Baker, president of the local tuberculosis association, adding her appreciation to all persoss who have helped carry out the project.

The x-ray films will be interpreted by physicians of the State Department of Health and the confidential findings reported to the family physician. It is from him that the individual may receive his x-ray report.

Follow-up will be done in the community by Miss Mitchell, R. N., county pubic health nurse. This follow-up work will be done in co-operation with the doctors of the community.

New Scout Camp Near Marble Rock Will Replace Camp at Clear Lake

At a special Council Meeting of the Winnebago Council of the Boy Scouts of America, held Sunday, August 12th at Marble Rock, the Council took official action for the establishment of a new campsite for the Council. The new site will extend for a distance of one and half miles along the east shore of the Shell Rock River in Floyd County and about four miles north of Marble Rock, Iowa. It will include about three hundred acres of land, with the possibility that some adjoining tracts may be purchased at a later time.

The proposed purchase of this land will be the first step in the realization of the long felt need for larger and more adequate camping facilities for the growing boy membership of the Council. The decision to locate the new campsite is the result of more than two years of intensive study by two committees especially appointed for that purpose as well as many other interested Scouters, all of whom have recognized for years the absolute necessity for additional land for camping use of the Council.

In addition the action of the Council, its President, Dr K B Kerr of Charles City, said, "There is in the minds and hearts of Scouts and Scouters a mixture of exultation and regret in this step which will mean the moving within a few years of the Camp from Camp Theodore Roosevelt where Scouts have camped continuously since 1920."

The site of about twenty acres has been somewhat enlarged by the purchase or gift of some adjoining lots but it has been recognized for many years that the campsite was wholly inadequate in size. In fact the present site has been made practical at all, only through the generosity of adjoining owners, including Mr and Mrs Charles Woodford and later Mr and Mrs Earl Ashland who have permitted the use of their land as access to the swimming beach and Mr Howard Elder who donated the use of his farmland to the west for a markmanship range.

For the past several years the Council has endeavored to purchase additional land adjoining the present campsite but it not being for sale, the Council was forced to look for another location. It is well known that land sufficient in extent for an adequate Boy Scout Camp is no longer available on the crowded shore of Clear Lake.

With the question of the site settled, the Executive Board will proceed with plans for developing the new site and for financing such development. It was stated that funds for the purchase of most of the original land are now available, largely from the gift in 1954 of Mrs Way as Trustee of the B C Way Estate. No estimate has yet been made as to the final cost of developing the new campsite but it is considered that among the early improvements will be a clear water swimming pool and cooking facilities.

No plan has yet been determined for disposition of the Camp Roosevelt site.

To Pick New King At Britt Hobo Day Tuesday, Aug. 21

No Business—No Phone—No Address—No Money. That's what you read on the official business card of Ben Hobo Benson, the little—he weighs about 100 pounds—but fiery man who still claims he is king of hoboes even though he was defeated at the election during Britt's 1954 hobo convention by Scoopshovel Scotty and was so angered that he didn't even show up for the 1955 convention.

Well, Britt's annual Hobo Day and the National Hobo Convention (completely independent from the two national political conventions)—but just as big—is coming up Tuesday, August 21 and it appears that Benson might be here for the occasion in an effort to dethrone Scoopshovel, whose address the past 10 days was the city jail in Cedar Rapids, but who is a candidate for re-election as hobo king.

If Benson does arrive, with the backing of the Hobo News, New York Publication; Scoopshovel refrains from imbibing in strong waters; and a few other candidates put forth a strong bid for the royal crown, you can expect a hot campaign for the title of King of Hoboes this year. There will also be a queen elected and Crown Prince Gilman Collamore of New York will be here.

The annual convention held in Britt each August is attended by thousands of persons and no doubt is the biggest one day convention and celebration in the country. Along with the hobo convention is the giant parade in the morning; the big free mulligan stew dinner to all visitors at noon; the hobo king election and crowning after the dinner; free acts afternoon and evening, plus a full line of concessions, shows and rides.

The convention opens on Monday evening with a new feature for the convention. A big free square dance with $30.00 total prizes for various events. The Royal United Shows will also be in operation Monday evening to entertain the many pre-Convention day visitors.

Former king Benson has pointed out strongly on his many visits to the convention that a hobo is a respectable, itinerary worker—he works, but not too hard—and that a hobo should never be classed or mentioned with tramps or bums who just don't like to work at all.

Farmers May Try New Corn Harvest Methods

Modern ways to harvest corn give a wide variety of harvesting alternatives from which Hancock County farmers may select, according to Extension Director Paul Henderson of Garner.

Most of this year's crop in Hancock County will be picked and husked with the conventional mechanical picker, and the ears put into a crib for natural drying. But some of the newer ways may be better on several Hancock County farms.

One of the most recent innovations, says Henderson, is the modification of self-propelled combines for corn harvesting. Replacing the pick-up or cutter bar and elevator canvas assembly with a detachable unit containing gathering chains, snouts and snapping rollers sends ear corn through the dual purpose combine and into the wagon as shelled corn, Kenneth Barnes, agricultural engineer at Iowa State College, says several manufacturers report certain models of their combines now are available with the detachable conversion units.

Picking with a picker-husker at a high moisture content and drying the corn artificially in a crib is one harvesting alternative that may be used, especially when frost hits early, or in cases where it's desirable to minimize field losses by picking the corn before the field moisture fall to 20 percent or below.

Some farmers, says Extension Director Henderson may use a picker-husker when the corn contains about 30 percent moisture. They then process the corn with a burr mill, and store it in an upright silo.

Henderson says that Barnes reports a possible harveting alternative with the picker-sheller type machines includes harvesting at about 26 percent moisture and artificially drying in the bin. Or, the high moisture shelled corn in the silo with no artificial drying.

Barnes says that comparative tests of the various corn harvesting method showed that when the harvtsted acreage averages over 125 acres each year, the pick-shell-dry-bin method is less expensive than methods requiring cribbing of ear corn. The decrease in storage costs makes up the greatest part of this savings, says Barnes.

He adds, that one thing to keep in mind if you are considering adopting a different method of harvesting this year's crop is that field-shelled corn in Iowa usually is too wet for safe storage. It must be artificially dried or ensiled.

Also, if you're enlarging your livestock feeding program, you may want to investigate further the possibility of ensiling either chopped or shelled corn.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

HOGS

Weights of barrows and gilts sold at the eight main hog markets since the first of July have run heavier than a year ago, reports Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist. This situation contrasts with the markets of the past winter when marketed hogs weighed 12 to 15 pounds less than the previous winter. This would indicate that farmers are not in as great a hurry to slaughter their hogs as they were during the winter.

Hog slaughter is showing its seasonal increase, report Kutish. It is also still running ahead of last year. Kutish estimates that federally inspected slaughter for July totaled about 4 million head. The July 1955 hog slaughter totaled 3.4 million head. And July was a month of relatively steady hog prices. The price at the end of the month was about what it was at the beginning. Kutish predicts that August will also exhibit steady prices although they will probably average somewhat lower than July because of increasing slaughter.

CATTLE

Cattle marketings are also picking up, with most of the increase in grass-fed cattle and in stockers and feeders. Runs of cattle from the West are also beginning.

The market is showing sign of increasing price spreads between the various cattle grades with the lower grades showing less strength than the upper. Kutish hays the tocker and feeder market has been strong—with greatest strength in the heavier feeders suitable for a short turn in the feedlot.

Some observers believe the strong fed-cattle outlook, plus the generally good corn prospects over the Corn Belt, mean there will be little seasonal weakness in feeder cattle prices this year. Kutish says the feeder demand is likely to become stronger as the season progresses.

August Farm Bureau Board Meeting Report

The regular meeting of the Hancock County Farm Bureau board of directors was held on August 7, 8:00 p. m. at Hotel Allison in Britt.

Roll call was answered by the following: Kenneth Olson, Gordon Upmeyer, Verne Grau, Richard Thompson, Wm Rinehart, Jack Richter, Ray Hagen, Roy Rogness, Harry Fosse, Bill Weiss, Aaron Wille, Richard Farquhar, Paul Steiff, Lyal Fox and Harlan Nuehring.

Bill Weiss reported on the county annual program committee. Plan will be to try to set the meeting at Duncan in October and to engage Mrs Goldman of Titonka as speaker and the Songfellows from Des Moines for entertainment.

Gordon Upmeyer reported on progress of the resolutions committee. The Opinionaire will be be ready to go to the country around September 1.

It was voted and carried that the question of different Farm Bureau quarters be delayed until March 1, 1957.

Reports were given by Chas. Jackson; agency manager; Paul Synder, Farm Service Manager and Lumen Jacobsen, Farm Bureau Fieldman.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

The news and the ads didn't come out even this week. We had too much material for a regular eight page paper and not enough for a larger one. Consefuently, considerable news had to be left out this week, including the listing of the local ribbon winners at the Hancock County Junior Fair.

Although, the Republican convention is not yet over, it seems quite certain that Ike and Dick are going to battle it out with Adlai and Estes for the two top spots in our nation's government. We feel that both Republicans and Democrats have able men at the head of their tickets and we hope that they will conduct a campaign that is free of name calling and mud slinging . . . actions that serve only to belittle them and the high office for which they aspire.

Most of those who study the political picture, seem to give the Republicans the edge in the coming battle but expect a hot contest which will call for some hard work on the part of the GOP if they are to win.

"Every man has an equal chance to become greater than he is!"

We don't know how many of our farmer readers have cornfields adjacent to rural intersections, but we do know that cutting the tops of the corn off for o ways back from the corner makes such an intersection a much less dangerous place. Warren Bier, who lives four miles south of town has treated the corners of his fields in this fashion, as have many other farmers about the country, and their efforts are appreciated.

Of course, the sensible thing for the motorist to do when approaching one of these cornfield intersections is to get his car slowed down enough so that he can stop on a dime. You never know when some "joker" may come busting through at 70 per . . . and if two of these 70 mile an hour boys arrive at the same time, what a mess that will be!

While we are on the subject of driving, we would like to repeat again this year that portion of the Iowa Law which pertains to a driver's actions when approaching or overtaking a school bus. School will open on Monday, September 3rd, and knowing what actions are required of you might save you some embarrassment and a lot of grief.

The driver of any vehicle overtaking a school bus when flashing stop warning signal lights are flashing and shall bring to a complete stop not not closer than fifteen feet of the school bus when it is stopped and stop arm is extended, and shall remain stopped until the stop arm is retracted and school bus resumes motion, or until signalled by the driver to proceed.

The driver of any vehicle when meeting a school bus on which the stop warning lights are flashing shall reduce the speed of said vehicle to not more than twenty miles per hour, and shall bring said vehicle to a complete stop when school bus stops and and stop signal arm is extended and said vehicle shall remain stopped until stop arm is retracted after which driver may proceed with caution.

Further food for thought is contained in a release from the State Safety Department. They say that there were 307 persons who died in 262 fatal traffic accidents during the first six months of this year—45 more deaths in 33 more fatal crashes than in the same period of 1955. Thirty-two of these 307 were killed when their vehicles hit fixed objects and 78 of them were the result of running off the road. Goes to show that it's not always the other fellow who is at fault.

Of course, there were 140 collisions, and in those cases it could have been the other fellow's fault. At least, he'll bear watching . . . just as much as you need to watch yourself.

On top of everything else, high horsepower motors, crazy drivers, etc., there was an increase of 20,000 vehicles registered in Iowa the first six months of the year over the first six months of last year. If they keep on it will get crowded on the highways. We met ninety-six cars between here and Belmond last Sunday evening. That's about eight per mile. Doesn't leave much time or relaxation at the wheel.

According to word from the DeKalb crop and weather reporting service, Illonois will replace Iowa this year as the leading corn producing state in the Union. Crops there are uniformly good from north to south and especially good in the central section, the state's main corn producing area. The report goes on to say that corn has been damaged by drouth in southern and western Iowa, with many fields in the northwest part of the state being failures. Northern and northcentral Iowa finally got enough rain to save the crops as it was starting to deteriorate.

We don't know about the rest of the north part of the state but right here we could use a little more rain. Corn on the lighter soils is beginning to suffer. However, most fields still show evidence of producing bumper crops.

Remember, one more week and the kids will be on their way to and from school. Look out for them!

CRUSHED

On the Leff estate farm near Nelo, a big corn crib was crushed by high winds recently. A truck that was inside the bin was twisted and bent when the building went down.

SAN FRANCISCO

Iowa's top Republicans will be in San Francisco this week, to re-nominate Dwight D. Eisenhower as president of the United States. His running mate Dick Nixon is a top-heavy favorite with the Iowa delegation.

The Stassen drive to "dump Nixon" does not appear to have made any headway in the Iowa delegation.

Republican interest in the convention will center upon the answer given in San Francisco to the Democratic platform in Chicago.

As the party's most publicized sounding-board, Republicans will rely on the convention to provide fresh ammunition to meet Democratic claims in Chicago. Early reports indicate there'll be no shortage of answers.

Final exams, of course, will come in November.

In the interim, there's renewed prospect of a real old-time political battle.

CAROL'S HOME

It was a triumphant homecoming recently for Ottumwa's Carol Morris, the new Miss Universe.

Ottumwa turned itself inside out to honor the popular and gracious daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Morris.

And Governor Hoegh, who participated in the welcome, hit the jackpot among politicians who sometimes complain they have to "kiss babies" to win votes; he planted a healthy kiss on the cheek of the 20-year old Morris "baby".

90 PER CENT

Democrat delegates to Chicago didn't quite get the guarantee of 100 percent parity to which the party pledged its support in recent state convention.

The national platform came pretty close, however, with 90% by way of fixed supports and a pledge that the additional ten per cent would be made up by other means.

BACK PAY

Nearly 4,000 Iowans have voluntarily paid a total of $121,690 in the year ended last April ac- in the year ended last April, according to a recent report of the Iowa Tax Commission.

Most of the collections resulted from the "own efforts" of the commission's tax division, according to director Elmer F. Heckinger.

A provision of the 1955 legislature provided that if such delinquent payments were made to the dead-line, there would be no penalty or prosecution.

From now on, the penalties will apply.

TOO FAST

that many of those who have

A recent tabulation indicates met death on Iowa highways were driving more than 60 miles an hour. Of 348 deaths during the first six months, 101 of the drivers involved were driving at that speed—or worse.

Forty-six of them met death at more than 70 miles an hour.

Sixty of the 384 were teenagers; a substantial increase over the 36 killed in the first half of '55.

Other statistics from the first six months report; 54 of the fatally injured drivers had been drinking, 14 had no driver's license, 47 had physical defects and 15 were driving defective automobiles.

In 43 instances, the driver's vision was obscured at the time of the fatal crash.

HAIL

There's a ray of comfort in the wake of the hail-storm that recently damaged crops heavily in some parts of western Iowa, Aug. 6.

The U S department of agriculture notified the governor that emergency loans would be available for farmers in certain precincts of Audubon, Carroll, Clarke, Crawford, Guthrie, Madison and Union counties.

But the department indicated to Governor Hoegh that there would be no special federal action to "open" the soil bank in that area, to permit payments for some of the destroyed crops.

CATTLE

A sharp rise in cow marketings occurred during the last month, reports Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist.

This contrasts markedly with the cow-marketing lag of the first year. As a result, utility peef prices have dropped. While there was some price rise for utility beef during the latter part of July, most of this has since disappeared. However, there was an advance in fat cattle prices which has continued steady, especially in the upper grades.

The Omaha market reports that most of the utility cows sold there during the second week in August brought prices of $9.25 to $10.75. At the same time, cannens, and cutters sold for $7.50 to $9.00.

Kutish points out the contrast between the price weakness in cow beef and the upturn in fed cattle prices as an indicated that the market in widening. While the utility grades were losing their price advance of late July, choice and prime cattle have kept the increase.

The economist believes the chance for further weakness in lower cattle grades is greater than that for increased strength as the grass runs expand. But, supplies of grain-fed cattle will decrease during the next 60 to 90 days. And margins between fed cattle and feeder cattle should be good during this period.

The present situation should cause increased feeding of short fed cattle, since feeder cattle prices have stiffened. The farmer who short feeds cattle in a year like this tends to do well if he starts early and doesn't overdo it, says Kutish. It's the late comer who often takes it on the chin, he warns.

PORK

Looking at the pork situation, Kutish says that pork holdings are about equal to last year. This stored pork is one of the factors preventing any substained price rise this summer. However, this pork will be used up during the coming months.

The hog market is strong strong enough to allow hogs to be carried up to around 220 pounds, says Kutish. During the first week in August, buyers at the Sioux City market preferred animals weighing 225 to 240 pounds. There will be price spurts, says Kutish, but the chance of price decline is too great to advise holding hogs beyond good market weights.

LAMBS

We're entering the period when the lamb market is traditionally weak. There is a wide spread between good and choice lamb prices. Kutish advises farmers to sell lambs carrying finish and push the others to finish as soon as possible.

Applications for Deer Licenses Now Available

License applications for the 1956 Iowa deer season are now available, and hunters are urged by the Conservation Commission to make applications as soon as possible.

The deadline for gun hunting license application is October 12, 1956, and no shotgun hunting licenses for deer season will be issued after that date.

Applications are also required for bow and arrow deer licenses, but there is no deadline for such applications.

A maximum of 6,000 gun hunting licenses will be issued, and if applications exceed that number a special drawing will be held. There is no limit on the number of bow and arrow deer license that will be issued.

Applications for deer licenses are available from state conservation officers and from the Commission's Des Moines offices. Each application must be returned to the Conservation East 7th and Court, Des Moines, with $10 in cash, check, or money order. Only Iowa residents will be issued licenses.

Two type of 1956 Iowa licenses will be issued: one stamped "for shotgun only" and the other "for bow and arrow only". Each license application specifies whether the applicant intends to hunt with bow or gun, and the type of licenses desired should be carefully checked.

The bow and arrow deer season will extend from October 13 through November 12, and the shotgun deer season will be held on December 8 and 9.

of Grasses and Legumes

The following suggestions are the recommendations of Iowa State College and the Extension Service for fall seeding in Iowa:

What to Plant?

ALFALFA—Will provide good pasture or hay next spring. Can be sown with grasses. Performs well in drouth years.

TIMOTHY—One of the better grasses for fall seeding. Good to plant with legumes.

BROMEGRASS—High yielding. Usually more tolerant to drouth than other grasses.

RYE—Will provide early spring grazing.

Seeding Suggestions

Prepare a good seedbed.

Disc rather than plow stubbleground.

Seed at recommended rates.

Discing controls fall weeds.

Plant FELCO QUALITY SEED.

Complete seeding by September 10th.

Innoculate legumes with FELCO INNOCULATION.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

The old school bell no longer rings each morning and noon, but just the same children will be getting to school on time (optimism) just as they did in the days when the bell did call them to class. We can remember many a morning getting up late and rushing like mad to try and be in our seat before the tardy bell rang. Didn't always make it either.

We can also remember the feelings we had on the day that school began for the first time after we graduated. We were working on the farm for Mitchell Bock and were out in the field when the school bell rang. It gave us a strange mixture of sadness and gladness. We were sad because we were going to miss the old carefree good times of high school days, and we were glad because we would no longer have to face the daily routine of the classroom.

You kids that graduated last spring are going to miss your high school good times too, but we hope that you will be smarter than we were and continue the classroom routine in a college or university. Some of you, we know, have your plans already made for furthering your education, some of you don't intend going any further, and some of you plan to wait a year or so before going on to college.

If you are in the group that has already made the necessary arrangements, well and good, if you are in the group that doesn't intend any further schooling, that's rather a shame, and if you are in the group who intends to go later, we would say that if it's at all possible, do it now. Every year that you put it off will make it that much harder for you to get started. There will be habits and associations that will make it more and more difficult for you to break away and continue on with your schooling, and as you grow older you will regret more and more the fact that you let your opportunity slide by.

Anyway, school opens this Monday, September, 3rd, and whether you are going on to college or not, you will feel a little strange not to be heading back for school with the rest of the kids.

Which reminds us . . . there will be a lot of kids around beginning next week. Drive carefully. The life you save may make it easier for you to live with yourself.

My parnets and yours had one purpose in life—to give their children a better education than they had. And we got it. Thus our plane of living was much improved over that known to our parents . . . We in turn, want our children to have a better education than that which we received—and they're getting it. Thus, their way of living will reach a higher plane. Perhaps 100 years from now our descendants will be living in that Utopia we've heard so much about in years past . . . Forty years ago very few parents could claim a high school diploma. Today a great majority of

A two car crash on the newly widened bridge just south of town on highway 69 early Sunday morning put six young people in the hospitals. The injuries sustained by Annette Swenson, 17, of Belmond proved fatal and she died this morning (Wednesday) in the Belmond Community Hospital where she had been taken following the accident.

The other three who were in the car which Miss Swenson was riding are also in the Belmond Hospital. They are Arlen Pals, 21, owner of the car, Sandra Didio, 18, and Terry Johnson, 19, who was driving, all of Belmond. They are reported to be in good condition.

In the other car were two Hayfield young men, Mark Mary, 22, driving and Dean Geddes, both of whom received severe facial cuts and shock. They were hospitalized in Mercy Hospital at Mason City, and have now been released from the hospital.

The car carrying the Belmond youths was traveling south as they were on their way back to Belmond after a trip to Clear Lake for a late lunch and the two Hayfield young men were driving north when the two cars sideswiped on the bridge. Details as to how the accident happened have not yet been made public.

The accident could have turned into one of these chain affairs, except for some quick maneuvering and good driving on the part of Lawrence Giesenberg of Garner who was the first on the scene. He was driving a big Merchants semi rig and when he came on the scene just a few minutes after the accident, the cars had no lights and all the passengers were still inside. He barely managed to swerve his way between the cars. Patrolman Elmer Angle said that if his truck had hit either of the cars it would probably have killed all the occupants.

As it was, Giesenberg stopped and controlled traffic, and sent for help.

How Old Can an Egg Get?

If the barn was built in 1881 and the egg was put in at that time it would mean that the egg is 75 years old. The shell was perfectly preserved when they broke the pictured chunk out of the wall, but Mayor Cook broke a little piece out of the shell while he was bringing it to town. The egg white and yolk are still in the shell, but have dried and shrunk to only a small fraction of the size they would be in a fresh egg.

We don't know how old an egg can get, but this one was so old that it had gotten way beyond the rotten stage.

In case you are wondering as to just what the above picture is trying to show, we'll tell you. It's a hunk of concrete and rock from a barn wall, and it contains one egg which was placed in the wall when it was built in 1881.

Mayor V A Cook and his wife own a farm five miles southeast of Clear Lake and on the farm is a basement barn which was built in 1881 by Jim Heath. Virgil and a crew of men have been tearing out the old deteriorated basement wall preparatory to building a new one, and while at their work they found the egg in the wall.

"The spare tire around your waist is the most expensive one you can buy!"

From down in southwest Iowa where it was dry for so long comes the following comment from C C Caswell in the Clarrinda Herald: "Shucks, now it keeps raining so often we can't get into the fields to destroy crops for the soil bank!"

We haven't been bothered that way with rain here, but through most of the this growing season we have been blessed with just enough rain at the right time. We missed out quite a bit last week and considerable crop damage took place, but the half inch of rain that fell here Tuesday morning should slow down the burning for a few days.

Did you hear about the Texan who was in Chicago and placed a long distance call. When told after his conversation what the charges would be he complained that back home in Texas he could have called hell for less than that. The operator replied, "No doubt, sir; the distance is so short."

Which reminds us . . . we spent a lot of time during World War II in Texas and it's a state where the wind blows hard and often. But even Texas wind will be as nothing compared to the wind that is brewing up to break on this country in a couple of weeks or so when the politicans get underway with their campaign charges and oratory. In fact, the first breezy forerunners of the storm to come have already hit. Hang on to your hats!

The only responsibility the voter has when this political wind hits is to pick out the good grain as it settles, let the chaff blow by, and cast his ballot accordingly.

If you want striking proof that there are two sides to the same story, get a doting mother and an irritated neighbor to each describe a small boy's excursion into said neighbor's flower bed. —Violet Lundquist, Anthon Herald.

CAMPAIGN

With both political conventions concluded, the campaign in Iowa and elsewhere will get into full swing immediately.

Democratic nominees Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver were scheduled to be in Sioux City, Wednesday of this week, in the first visit to Iowa on the national level. Stevenson is also expected to attend the national plowing contest at Colfax.

There apparently will be no hard feelings between Stevenson and Jake More, state Democratic chairman. They held a cordial conference in Chicago at the conclusion of the Democratic convention.

INCREASES

There'll be increases in old-age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children, in Iowa, as of October first. Announcement was made by Rolla R. Glenn, chairman of the board of social welfare.

The increases were made possible by changes in the federal social security law, which passed Congress July 28 and were approved by President Eisenhower Aug. 1.

This change provides additional matching funds for state public welfare programs.

The increases are $4 each month for those receiving old-age and blind benefits and $2 to each individual receiving payments under the aid to dependent children statute.

The new increase makes a total of $6.50 per month which has been added to the old age payments.

DOWN 5 PERCENT

Iowan's, on the average, earned about 5 percent less in 1955 than they did in 1954.

The department of commerce recently announced that the national income went up 7 percent during that year, with four states—Iowa, Nebraska Kansas, and South Dakota, showing a smaller take for the individual.

The income per-person in Iowa was $1,577, the department says, as compared with a figure of $1,669 in 1954.

50,000 IOWANS

The annual "Iowa picnic" in Long Beach, Calif., apparently isn't getting any smaller.

50,000 persons attended the latest one there, earlier this month.

Gov Leo Hoegh, who spoke at the 51st annual affair, showed the transplanted Iowans a 23½ foot corn stalk and urged them to be "good salemen" for Iowa. Group singing was led by Mrs Hoegh.

The Iowans also got a glimpse of jet ace, Captain Harold Fischer, who was present for the picnic, as was adjutant general Fred C Tandy.

SOIL BANK

A final count showed that 67,314 soil bank agreements for corn acreage were signed in Iowa this year, with payments to run over 51 million dollars.

The amount of Iowa land involved in the corn acreage agreements was 1,203,651 acres.

In addition, there were 302 agreements to hold 5,203 acres of wheat out of production.

Throughout the nation, some 270,000 agreements were signed on corn, and 162,500 on wheat.

Signers will be eligible for payments if compliance checks showed that they lived up to the agreements.

QUIT MONEY

The Iowa employment security commission was given access to the 'quit money' left on deposit by public employees, to the account of employees who quit their jobs before they qualified for pensions.

The ruling was important to the commission in that it is faced with an additional 7-million dollar pension expenditure, the result of a recent supreme court ruling.

The decision was to the effect that persons given prior service rights under the Iowa public employee pension system could draw benefits under both the original system and the later revised plan.

There's about one million dollars in the "quit" money fund. The attorney general ruled that the employer's money simply becomes a part of the general retirement fund, losing its identity once paid into the fund.

HAIR CUT

Mrs Orpha Hansen of Des Moines has divorced her husband but she won't lose the benefit of his talents as a barber. The divorce agreements provides that the husband, Hale Hansen, will cut his former wife's hair, whenever she requires it.

MONKEYS

There have been 15 cases of human ringworm in Iowa in recent months, all traced to monkeys, the state department of health announced recently. The department suggests that if you want to buy a monkey for a pet, be sure that it has a "physical."

The arrival time at the State Fair is a matter of speculation. The boys will camp there for a few days, if and when they get there.

Pvt Jimmie Thomas, son of Mr and Mrs J C Thomas, came home from El Paso, Texas last Saturday evening to spend a two week's furlough, after which he will report to the west coast for duty in the Pacific area.

Mr and Mrs Gerald Koerner and family and Kermit Koerner returned home Sunday afternoon from their trip to Texas.

Klemme will have quite a representation of students in various colleges and universities this year. Last Sunday evening the Misses Mildred Johnson and Beatrice Busch left for Chicago to attend Northwestern University at Evanston, Illnois. Fred Arnold, Clarence Elder and Adella Schroeder will return to Ames. Maurice Greiman will attend there this year. Mabel Cullinas, Wayne Lemke and Edwin Bock will attend Iowa University at Iowa City. Harl Gimer will enter Morningside College at Sioux City and Mabel Schaefer will attend the State Teachers College at Cedar Falls.

Sumner Trumbell is building an enclosed porch on his house this week.

The Misses Bernice Tanner and Elvira Stille returned home Saturday morning from Cedar Falls where they have been attending summer school. The young ladies have the appearance of full fledged school "marms" now.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

If anyone doubts that the sudden violence of a traffic accident is sometimes enough to jar reason out of the mind, note these incidents reported by highway patrolmen.

One patrolman will never forget the night he stood on a highway by the burning wreckage of a car, and for five minutes, battled wildy with a man who was determined to climb into the flaming car and "get out of here". He had been thrown out of the car when its driver dozed and sideswiped a truck.

In another accident, a drunken driver came over a hill, crowding the center of the highway and waving his arm out of the car window. The arm was cut off and dropped inside the car he met at the crest of the hill.

A patrolman who came by a minute later found the drunken driver, heedless of his severed arm, struggling to drag a case of beer out of his car, trying to hide it in the ditch.

Two patrolmen were called to the scene of a night accident. They found a crushed car with a dead driver and a comparattively uninjured woman passenger. She sat in the front seat holding a baby's rattle.

The patrolmen saw infant's clothes and toys scattered in the back seat of the car. Instantly, they began searching for the baby, tearing out the cushions of the car, running to stop all traffic when they failed to find it, fearing the child was lying somewhere on the highway.

The woman was screaming, "Find by baby. Find my baby." People who stopped ot the scene began searching the ditches on either side of the highway, climbing the fences to look in the fields.

In everyone's mind was the picture of a baby thrown from the car in the accident, perhaps dying somewhere along the dark highway. The search went on for 20 minutes before the woman remembered she had no baby. She had been taking the clothes and toys to a christening as gifts.

EGGS

One of the factors causing the drop in egg prices during the first half of August was the increased number of pullet eggs reaching the market, reports Steve Hiemstra, Iowa State College farm economist. The increase is a result of this year's early chick hatch.

Other factors contributing to the price slump were slow off-farm movement of old hens, a slow demand for stored stocks, and good production weather. Hiemstra says egg production during July exceeded July 1955 by 3 percent.

Because of the production increase, prices through the late fall months should run a few cents lower than a year earlier. A seasonal price rise could occur, though, if yearling hens should begin to move rapidly off the farm. Continued slow movement will prevent a sustained price hike.

Seven percent more chicks were hatched for flock replacement from January through June than during the same period in 1955. However, Hiemstra believes the total effect on egg production will be less than a 7 percent increase because fewer yearling hens are expected to be carried over than a year ago.

Hiemstra also observes that egg profit margins will be further narrowed by feed grain prices, which are expected to remain higher this winter than during 1955.

BROILERS

Broiler producers can expect further price weakness as we move into the late fall months, says Hiemstra. This year's production is expected to be more than 20 percent above last year.

At present, broiler placements are running 15 percent more than a year ago in the 22 leading broiler-producing states. Eggs are being set for broilers at a rate 17 percent greater than last year, and broiler production for the first half of 1956 was 27 percent ahead of 1955.

TURKEYS

Turkey production this year is on its way to setting a record. It is expected to total 15 percent greater than in 1955. Although fewer of the light breeds are being raised, the increase in heavy breeds more than make up for the decrease.

Hiemstra says early storage operations and orderly marketing will help maintain current prices, but that some decline is likely because of the record volume of production.

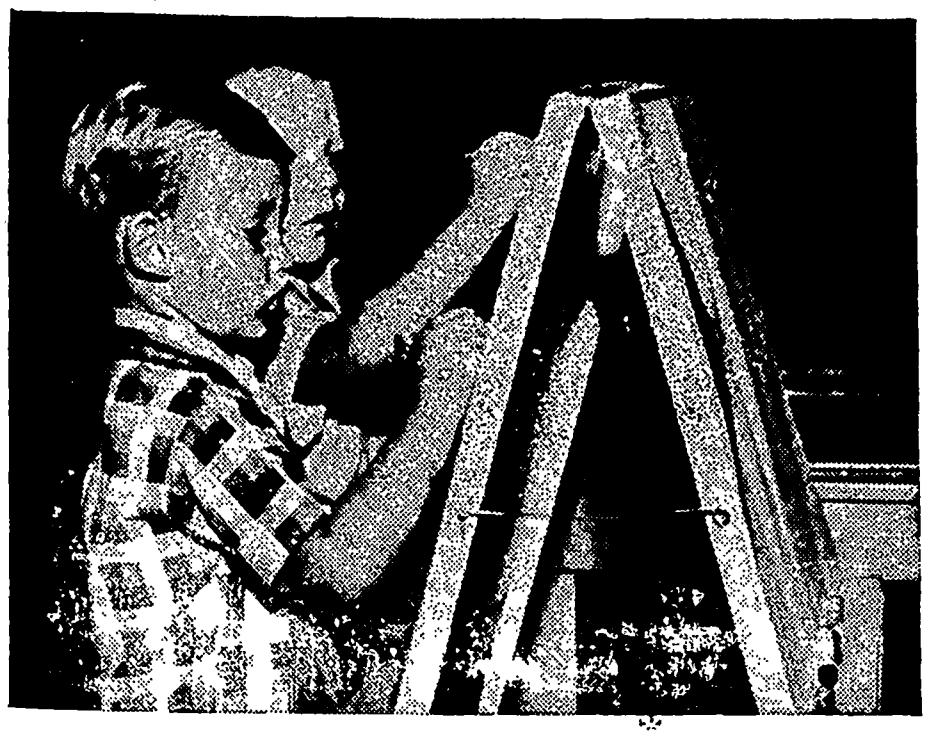
School Days Ahead—

Prepare Your Child for Adventure



A child's new experience in school will be of many kinds, not just reading, writing and 'rithmetic. School will be an adventure in creative living, play and work.

Is your child ready for school? Not just a smallpox vaccination or a new dress or shirt for the first day. These things are important, of course, but even more important is the deeper readiness during the nursery years, though you may not have been consciously aware of it. The first day of school will be a big one for both you and your child. You're happy that you've brought him safely to this point and at the same time you may feel a few pangs when you see your young one going out from your home. To him, going to school means that he's no longer a baby. Share your child's enthusiasm for this new adventure.

School is a strange, new situation, so give your child as much help as you can in adjusting to it. He needs to be prepared physically, mentally, socially and emotionally so that he will get the most out of this new experience.

HEALTH IMPORTANT

First, your child needs a strong, healthy body, says Buena Mockmore, child development specialist at Iowa State College. Be sure he gets a good physical examination. It's surprising how many children are attending school before such defects as poor vision or hearing are discovered. Help him develop his habits and routine, but let him go at his own rate, and allow for personal preferendes and unusal circumstances. It will be worth your time and trouble to help him develop his independence by letting him do things for himself when he shows interest.

The school-age child should be fairly able to take care of himself in routine matters—washing, dressing, eating, toileting, managing some money, keeping track of his possessions and going alone where it seems safe. Don't expect complete independence. You'll need to guide and remind him about some of these different things .

Children have very different mental capacities. You can help your child make the most of his mental ability. Curiosity is the basis of learning. Answer your child's questions without discouraging him, and let him do some experimenting. Enrich his experiences. His own books and pictures will open doors for him. And if you're a reading family, he'll just naturally take the cue from you. Don't worry if he doesn't know his ABC's. The schools have their own methods of teaching ABC's and reading too. Home teaching may only confuse the child.

CREATE SOCIAL EXPERIENCE

Enrich your child's social experiences. Provide opportunity for him to play with other children. Teach him basic principles—that we share, we take turns and we don't hit others. When he starts to school he will be more successful in making friends if he is neither too timid nor a bully, but has learned to play and get along with others.

Emotional preparation for school is very important too. Learning to face new experiences with confidence rather than fear is one of the best assets anyone can have. Help him meet new situations by interrupting normal routine every now and then. He'll learn that security doesn't mean that everything is the same all the time. Give him the experinece of being away from home and mother for all day at a time with friends or other family members.

Build self-confidence in your child with affection and approval. Help him grow toward a self-disciplined person by teaching him to take responsibility for some chores. Give him the security, love. affection and independence he needs.

You can't afford not to save something for yourself. Invest in Savings Bonds regularly.

SHOCK

While at work recently, Lester Doorenbos was killed by an electric shock while working in an elevator at Boyden. When he attempted to plug in an auger, while working on a steel corn bin, the wiring evidently short-circuited and the electricity passed through his body.

The total amount spent by Red Cross for disaster service since 1881, if spread evenly throughout the 75 years would approximate an average expenditure of more than $365 per hour.

This 1956 school transportation map of Hancock County shows all school districts in the county. There are eight school districts whose school buildings are in Hancock County, namely: Britt Community, Corwith Community, Garner Community, Hayfield Consolidated, Kanawha Community, Klemme Community, Woden-Crystal Lake Community and Garfield Township School districts.

The Corwith Community, Kanawha Community, and Woden-Crystal Lake Community school districts are joint districts, having some areas in adjoining counties.

To show the entire area of joint districts the map includes the south four (4) townships of Winnebago, five (5) on the east side of Kossuth County bordering Hancock County, four (4) townships of Wright County bordering Hancock County on the south, and Vernon Township of Humboldt County cornering Hancock County to the southwest. By way of comparison; the July 1, 1953 school transportation map showed twenty-six (26) school districts in the county plus trree point districts with buildings outside the county boundaries.

During the past three years, a total of seventeen (17) elementary school districts (sixteen (16) and Miller Independent) have been reduced to one. All elementary school districts except Garfield Township have been reorganized into Community School Districts.

The latest transportation report from the Department of Public Instruction shows that forty-four (44) buses transported a total of 1,673 pupils to the eight (8) receiving high schools in the countty. The total cost of the transportation program was $83,964.07. The several school districts were reimbursed $31,526.95 for the year from funds appropriated by the State Legislature for that purpose.

The July 1, 1956 adjusted school census shows the following enumerations or school populations for districts in Group I, II and III.

GROUP I (School districts with high schools located in Hancock County.)

Britt Community	1065
Corwith Community	343
Garner Community	751
Hayfield Consolidated	167
Kanawha Community	436
Klemme Community	469
Woden Crystal Lake Community	445

Corwith Community, Kanawha Community, and Woden-Crystal Lake Community have additional pupils in adjoining counties.

GROUP II (Township.)

Garfield Township	148

GROUP III (Joint districts with area and pupils in Hancock County and high schools outside Hancock County.)

Belmond Community	106
Forest City-Leland Community	223
Meservey Consolidated	42
Bocne Valley Community	4
Titonka Consolidated	11
Ventura Community	153
Wesley Independent	41
TOTAL	4404

The Hancock County Annual report for 1945 shows there were 2,397 elementary puplis taught by 144 teachers. The 1956 reports shows there were 2,728 elementary pupils taught by 107 teachers. The teacher - pupil ratio in 1945 was 1 to 16.65 while the 1956 ration is 1 to 25.495, which would be approaching the accepted and ideal situation, if the pupils were evenly distributed. In other words 331 more pupils are being taught by thirty-seven (37) fewer teachers in 1956 than in 1945.

The size of reorganized districts range from approximately 121 section of land for the Britt Community School District to approximately seventy-one (71) sections of land for the Klemme Community School District. Reorganized school enrollments range from 916 pupils to 409 pupils as reported by the community schools for the 1955-56 school year.

A summary report on the school lunch program for 1955-56 shows that lunches were served by eight (8) schools with 1,723 students participating daily.. A total of 299,741 lunches were served at a cost of $95,-959.62. The Federal Government paid $10,100.25 into the lunch program fund and $994.90 in the special milk program fund for Hancock County. It is interesting to note that 558,015 half (½) pints of milk were purchased to serve in both the school lunch and special milk program for the 1955-56 school year.

School district reorganization is usually followed by a building program and Hancock County is no exception. A new school addition is being built at Corwith, which will be occupied this fall. A new high school building with some grade rooms is being built at Kanawha which will be occupied for the first time this fall. A high school building with some grade rooms is being built at Britt which building will not be ready for school purposes before September, 1957. Goodell has a new elementary building which was completed and occupied during the past school year. Goodell and the immediate area around it are part of the Belmond Community School District. Two rural school buildings are being moved into Woden this summer to be used for elementary class rooms this fall.

There were eighty (80) school reorganizations in the State of Iowa between July 1, 1955 and June 30, 1956. This number includes the reorganized districts of Garner, Klemme, and Woden-Crystal Lake in this County. The Woden-Crystal Lake Community School has a joint district having some area in Winnebago County.

The valuation of districts are incomplete at this time, but will be available in the County Auditor's office some time after school reopens this fall.

Reorganization of school districts is not an end in itself, but can make possible a better curriculm for the boys and girls in the district by offering more services at a less per pupil cost than is usually possible in more and smaller schools.

It is interesting to note that in the process of reorganization of school districts during the past four years, the Hancock County Board of Educaton has had more than twenty (20) planning meetings, most of which were held before the first petition for a reorganized school district was filed in the office of the County Superintendent. Approximately seventy (70) board meetings were held acting on some seventeen (17) petitions filed in this county, and by joint districts having area in the county. In addition to the areas voted into several reorganized school districts, the County Board of Education on three occasions has attached, by regulation, several sections of land in eight (8) townships to existing school districts.

Better Farmers Home Administration Credit Services Now Passible

Recent changes in the laws governing the Farmers Home Administration will enable the agency to serve needs of a larger number of farm families, Irwin C Christiansen, County Supervisor, said today.

The new law provides broader authority to assist family type farmers with loans to improve and operate their farms. Included in the broader authority are loans for refinancing existing debts, and an increase in the maximum amount that can be advanced for operating loans.

All of the present loan services of the Farmers Home Administration which include loans for the operation, development and purchase of family-type farms, farm housing, soil and water conservation, and loans to meet emergency credit needs will continue to be available.

Mr Christiansen said the new policies were explained by State officials of the agency at a meeting held in Mason City, Iowa a few days ago.

The loans to refinance existing debts will be available until June 30, 1959 to owners of farms no larger than family-size. These loans will help farmers who have adequate real estate security and who are otherwise in a sound position but who are unable to meet their present credit obligations and need credit on more favorable terms and conditions than is currently available from other lenders.

When debts are refinanced by the Farmers Home Administration the payments will be scheduled according to the ability of the borrower to repay. In the past, the agency has only refinanced existing debts when the refinancing was incidental to the making of a real estate loan for purchase or improvement of family-type farms. Mr Christiansen emphasized that, while the new legislation provides added service in refinancing other debts, the primary objective of real loans will continue to be toward assuring successful ownership under sound systems of management.

Insured loans are made by the Farmers Home Administration from funds provided by private lenders. The loans will bear 3½ percent interest plus a 1 percent insurance charge.

Initial operating loans under the new law may be made in amounts up to $10,000 to one borrower with a limit of $20,000 on the amount any one borrower can owe for this type of credit. In the past the limit on the initial loan was $7,000 with a $10,000 limit on the total amount of debt that could be incurred.

The operating loans are used for the purchase of equipment, livestock, fertilizer, seed and other farm and home operating expenses needed to carry out efficient farming operations on family-type farms. These loans are repayable over periods up to 7 years. The interest rate remains at 5 percent.

The increase in the maximum limits of these loans will enable the agency to serve farmers and ranchers in areas where heavy investments in machinery, livestock and farm operating expenses are necessary.

Provision is also made for reactivating the Farm Housing loan program formerly administered by the agency. Under this program loans will be available to eligible farmers to construct and repair needed buildings on land already owned.

All of the new loans, like the loans already available from the Farmers Home Adminstration, will be made only to applicants who are unable to obtain adequate credit from other sources. With most types of loans supervision in the development and carryingout of balanced systems of farming will be provided. No loan will be made unless certified by the local County FHA Advisory Committee.

Brucellosis Meeting Set For Township Workers

Dr J B Herrick, extension veternarian, will present facts and figures Wednesday, September 5th at the Britt High School auditorium on the control of brucellosis to give the 160 workers who are going to circulate petitions on the voluntary program.

DR. J. B. HERRICK

Dr Herrick has been working with a number of counties where they already circulated the petitions and have an active program working. This is the next step in following the very successful ring testing program in Hancock County.

Keep in mind that this is a voluntary deal. It is much easier to do these things before they become complusory. Help these men when they call on you.

Last year, 20,500 veterans and dependents of veterans gave the American Red Cross power of attorney to represent them before the Veterans Administration.

Information Released on New Social Security Benefits for Women

Retirement age for all women was lowered from 65 to 62 by the 1956 Amendments to the Social Security Act according to Paul George, manager of the Mason City office of the Social Security Administration.

George stated that although the benefits at age 62 is reduced for a wife or female wage earner, a woman waiting until age 65 to file in order to receive the higher benefit will require, on the average, from 12 to 15 years before making up for benefits not filed for at an age under 65. A widow's benefit based on her deceased husband's social security account is not reduced. Those women wishing to file for the redued benefit should do so, as early as possible to avoid delay in the receipt of the first benefit check which will be payable for November.

A woman worker filing on her own social security account should bring her social security card and some evidence as to her date of birth.

Wives should bring (1) evidence of their age, and (2) their own social security number if they have one. Their husband should accompany them if possible.

All widows filing applications should bring with them (1) their marriage certificate, (2) evidence of their age, (3) their deceased husband's social security number and (4) their own social security number if they have one.

Among the volunteers participating during the past year in Red Cross Blood Program activities were 4,000 physicians, 8,000 nurses, 1,000 technicians, and 86,000 other volunteers.

New Buildings Increase Taxable Valuation In Hancock County for '56

Construction of new buildings in 1955 has added a total of $254,864 in taxable valuation to Hancock County tax rolls for 1955. Of this total $103,368 was added in the rural areas and $151,496 in the urban districts. The new buildings added will make the 1956 taxable value on rural real estate approximately $22,900,698 and urban taxable values will be $5,649,687.

While real values have increased by the value of new buildings, personal values in rural areas are approximately $122,337 lower than a year ago due to lower values on livestock. Total personal in 1956 is $4,084,239 as compared to $4,206,576 in 1955. Personal property values in urban centers increased $70,848, due mostly to a large increase in the number of television sets and taxable appliances. Thus the net personal values will be approximately $51,489 less in Hancock County in 1956.

Money and credits have increased $60,390 over 1955 with a total of $2,400,730 in 1956 as compared with $2,340,340 in 1955. Taxpayers have an exemption of $5,000 before the 5 mill levy applies on moneys and credits.

Utilities are assessed by the State Tax Commission and totaled $4,766,480 in 1955. These have not been certified for '56 to the County Auditor to date. It is estimated the value on utilities may have increased slightly and if this is the case, the taxable value of all property in Hancock County could exceed the 1955 total which was $38,284,114.

Personal property values as certified by the County Assessor to the County Auditor for 1956 have been approved by the State Tax Commission as reported according to a recent communication from the tax ommission.

Some Random Thoughts

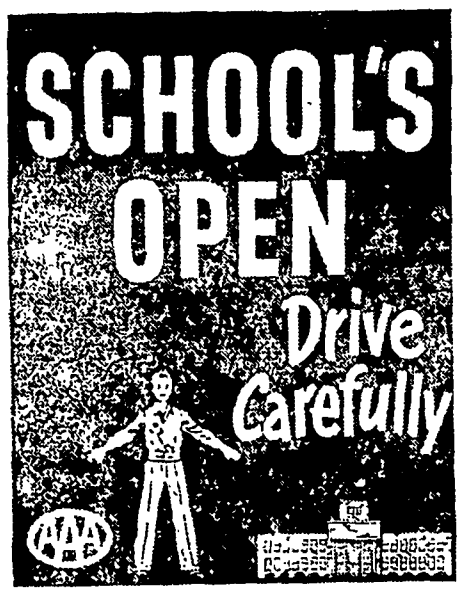
BY L. E. "PETE" K.

The thunder and lightning teamed up Tuesday night to put on quite a noisy and spectacular show here. But the part of the show that drew the most applause was the two inches of rain that fell. There is nothing quite so heartening as a good rain after the parched look of the countryside during a dry spell.

My Neighbors

"WHE-E-W!"

Well, the tots are back in school and the moms can heave a big sigh of relief. The kids will be out from under their feet for the most part throughout the next nine months. Have a sneaking suspition, though, that the moms will be almost as glad as the kids when school is again out in the spring.



While we are on the subject of school kids, don't forget to look out for them when you drive. Give them a brake Don't rely on your horn! It's up to drivers to be on the lookout for the unexpected from kids. After all, they probably have a lot more on their minds than does the average adult. They have a lot of serious playing to do.

Some folks drive as though determined that no accident will be prevented if they can help it.—W E Littler, Adair News.

The word is out that both "Ike" and Adlai will appear at the national plowing contest to be held near Newton later this month. Both, no doubt will have some boosters and some hecklers when they speak, but there is one thing you can be sure of according to D E Carrell of the Keokuk Daily Gate City. That is that politics will improve just as fast as the people who vote.

"The only ones you should ever try to get even with are those who have helped you."

Farm Prices Increase During August Says Crop Reporting Service

Prices received by Iowa farmers for farm products increased generally during the month ending August 15, with the index of all farm prices increasing 16 points (7 percent), according to the Iowa Cooperative Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The mid-August index, at 246 percent of the 1910-14 base, may be compared with the July index of 230 and with the August 15, 1955 index of 228 percent.

The livestock and livestock product index gained 19 points from July 15 to August 15, due to a 25 point increase in the meat animal index. The dairy product and poultry and egg indexes were relatively unchanged. Price increases of $3.00 per cwt. for calves, $2.60 for beef cattle and $1.30 per cwt for hogs led the strong meat animal gains while sheep were up 20c and lambs lost 30c per cwt during the month ending August 15.

At 252 percent of the base period, the crop index for August 15 was 6 points higher than on July 15. Crop prices from mid-July to mid-August registered gains of 3c per bushel for corn, 4c for oats, 15c and 5c respectively, for rye and wheat and 2c per bushel for barley. Soybeans lost 4c per bushel and flaxseed dropped 8c per bushel while baled hay price was unchanged at $19.80 per ton

Will Demonstrate Conservation Practices On Harland Avery Farm

Hancock County Soil Conservation District will hold a terrace building demonstration at the Harland Avery farm on Friday, September 7, starting at 10:00 a. m. The Avery farm is located in section 16 of Avery township, or 2 miles east, 2¾ miles north and ½ east of Goodell, or 1½ miles south, 1 mile east 1¼ miles south and ½ mile east of Klemme.

Terraces will be laid out by Vernon G Moss, Soil Conservation Service Technician. Plans are to build three terraces, each approximately 700 feet long. Implement dealers from nearby towns are furnishing equipment. SCS technicans will be on hand to supervise terrace construction and answer questions.

Other conservation practices to be demonstrated may include land clearing, open ditch construction, waterway construction and contour plowing. Soil and moisture conditions and equipment available will determine extent of practices demonstrated.

The terraces to be built are a part of the conservation farm plan Mr Avery developed for his farm in September, 1955, with the assistance of Vernon Moss. The plan is set up for a four year rotation with terracing and contouring to help control soil and water losses. The field to be terraced was farmed on the contour in 1953.

Legion Meeting

There will be a regular meeting of Adam-Schaefer Post No. 625 of the American Legion at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening, September 11th. The meeting will be in the Legion room in the grade school building. All members are urged to attend.

Squirrel Season Will Open September 15th

With summer tapering off thousands of Iowans are looking to their weapons in preparation for the September 15 opening of Iowa's squirrel season.

The 1956 squirrel season will extend from September 15th through November 15th, with a daily bag limit of 6 and a possession limit of 12.

Conservation officers report a good squirrel crop this year, but believe that it may require some careful hunting to "limit out". Underbrush in many areas is still dry, and walk-hunting will be noisy. Many woods are also reportedly infested with mosquitoes, making still-hunting uncomfortable. Hunters are advised to take along plenty of mosquito dope, for still-hunting is expected to be most productive early in the season.

Prospective deer hunters are also urged by the Conservation Commission to use the squirrel season for practice with hunting bows. Novice archers are cautioned against waiting until a few days before the dee rseason to learn bowhunting. But with almost a month's practice in the squirrel timbers, beginning bowhunters should be prepared for the October 13 opening of the Iowa bow-and-arrow deer season.

Goodwill Truck To Be In Klemme September 17

The Goodwill Truck will be in Klemme on September 17th to pick up the discarded clothing, toys, and shoes for the handicapped workers at Goodwill Industries. These discarded household items are the material worked on by the handicapped as they attempt to help themselves.

The Goodwill Industries operate on the principle that the handicapped person doesn't want Charity, But A Chance. When discarded clothing, toys and shoes are contributed to the Goodwill, the contributor is giving some handicapped person a chance to work his way back to a job in private industries.

Those who have items to contribute, may leave them with Mrs Martha Bredbenner.

County Road Program To Be Discussed By Engineer Here Tuesday

Changes made recently in the Hancock County budget for next year have made necessary some adjustments in the road program. Consequently, county roads are of much interest in this community.

Realizing that this interest exists, officials of the Klemme Commercial Club have called a meeting for next Tuesday night and have invited Charles Paulson, Hancock County Engineer to be present and talk on the county's road program. The meeting will be open to the public and will get underway at 7:30 the evening of Tuesday, September 11th.

The meeting will be held in the grade school basement and local citizens should find Engineer Paulson's comments of interest.

August Near Normal Month In Temperature

August 1956 went into the weather record with temperatures approximately normal and rainfall slightly below normal. The average temperature for the month was 72.11 degrees as compared with 76.57 for the same month last year. The average maximum temperature for the month was 83.48 and the minimum average was 60.74. The highest temperature recorded during the month was 96 degrees recorded on both Sunday, August 26 and again the following day. The low temperature was recorded on the morning of August 20, when the mercury dipped to a cool 42 degrees. The high temperature recorded during August of 1955 was 100 degrees and the low was 48.

Precipitation during the month was 1.81 inches as compared with .91 a year earlier. The heaviest amount recorded during a 24 hour period fell during the 24 hours ending at 7 a. m. on August 28 when .42 of an inch was recorded. While rainfall was somewhat below normal for the month, precipitation fell in measurable amounts on 14 of the 31 days thus distributing the moisture to be most effective. Total rainfall for the first eight months of 1956 was 21.63 inches as compraed with 17.18 for the same period last year. Total rainfall in 1955 was 22.02 inches or just slightly more than the total to date this year.

In spite of moderate temperatures August listed 23 days as fair and eight as cloudy. The abundance of sunshine was ideal for the development of corn and soybeans and except for local drouth areas in the southeast part of the county or the badly hail damaged areas, both crops promise good yields with favorable Sept. weather. Corn is denting rapidly but is about a week later than last year.

School Opens With 399 Enrolled for 1956-57

School got underway Monday in the Klemme Community School District with 399 pupils enrolled for the 1956-57 term. According to figures released by Supt Harlan Schafer there are 99 enrolled in high school; 28 in 9th grade, 22 in 10th, 23 in 11th, and 26 in the 12th. The 300 enrollment in the grade school breaks down as follows:

Kindergarten, 30; 1st grade, 48; 2nd grade, 34; 3rd grade, 35; 4th grade, 36; 5th grade, 36; 6th grade, 30; 7th grade, 28; and 8th grade, 23;

Best part about the opening of school this year is that it opens as a legally formed, uncontested district. The time for legal action to delay formation of the district has passed with no one contesting the validity of the election which was held to form the district or in any other way trying to disrupt the normal functioning of the district. Now school planners can look ahead and make plans for the future without feeling that whatever actions they take may be for naught.

To Discuss Creamery Problems at Mason City

One of a series of nine district creamery meetings sponsored by the Iowa Creameries Association will be held in Hotel Hanford, Mason City, Iowa, on Tuesday evening, September 11, according to Emil Christensen, Director of the State Creameries organization.

Mr Christensen states that the purpose of the meeting is to discuss with the local creamery officials and managers the present day problems confronting the local dairy processing and marketing associations and to formulate recommendations for dealing with these problems.

Some of the topics on the agenda are—higher incomes for the dairy producers, level of support prices on dairy products after March 31, 1957, quality standards required for dairy commodities purchased by the government, dairy legislation needed for Iowa and development in the bulk tank milk handling programs.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

PRESSURE

Some of Iowa's national guardsmen, returning from two weeks encampment in Wisconsin claimed that "pressure" was used to collect donations toward a National Guard Association building fund.

A $1,407,140 building is planned in Washington, D C, by the association next year.

Claims of pressure have been denied.

But guardsmen say that launching the collection drive as the men were being paid didn't hurt the receipts any.

PENALTY

August 31 was the dead-line for destroying crops on acres which were assigned to the soil bank. Exception is in certain disaster areas, where grazing is permitted. Deadline in these areas will be September 15.

Some farmers have indicated they'd like to withdraw some acres from the soil bank program. Apparently, this will not be permitted.

Generally the change of heart occurred in areas which have recovered from early-season predictions of drouth. In some of the counties which were earlier tagged as "disaster" areas, the crop comeback has been tremendous.

THE BIG QUESTION

Every effort is being made to keep politics from becoming a predominating factor in the 1956 National Field Days and State Plowing contests.

Even so, the planners of this event are not overlooking this opportunity to focus national attention upon agriculture through one of the greatest conservation shows and farm events ever to be held. The picture remains as it stood a year ago with the Democrats quite definitely committed, to schedule their presidential candidate for the event, and the Republicans remaining non-committal, but thoughtfully so. Meanwhile the big question continues to be: r'Will Ike be at the Plowing Matches this year?" The stock answer is that both parties have been given equal opportunity to present their presidential candidates.

INCOME UP

Iowa's income from the sale of liquor showed a gain of $236,000 in fiscal 1955, according o a recent report by state auditor C B Akers.

But the state's actual consumption of liquor was down, by a little over 25,000 gallons, and fewer persons took out liquor purchase permits. Total permits issued was 312,448.

The reason for increase in dollar volume, against a decrease in gallonage, is because the 1955 legislature increased prices by five precent.

MERGER?

The Iowa "Little Hoover" indicated recently it may recommend the merger of the National Resources Council and the Soil Conservation committee, due to the fact that the problems are closely connected.

However, the committee has not yet prepared its report to the 1957 legislature.

CRACK DOWN

Safety Commissioner Clinton Moyer, with the backing of Governor Hoegh, is launching a six-point program to reduce the Iowa auto death toll.

Moyer wants strict enforcement of laws prohibiting the sale of intoxicants to minors, stricter prosecution of drunk driving offenses, prompt reporting (to the state safety department) by courts of all convictions, maximum use of county and local police organization in traffic enforcement, and greater effort by parents of teen-agers to supervise teen-age drivers.

Churches and service clubs are being called upon to emphasize the program.

Iowa's death rate is currently running nearly a hundred over the same date a year ago.

If the present rate is maintained, the state may have over 700 fatalities tthis year.

VALUATIONS UP

Taxable valuations of Iowa property owned by utility companies has been increased by about ten million dollars, according to a recent announcement by the Iowa tax commission.

Most of the increase was on power and telephone companies. Railroads, interurbans and Pullman companies were given slightly lower valuations than a year ago.

The valuations are a major factor in determining the tax that will be paid by the companies. The other factor, of course, is the amount of taxes levied in the various counties where the utilities operate.

On Sunday, September 2nd, Mrs Louise Josten, who has lived all her life in this community, celebrated her 80th birthday. Some over 70 relatives and friends called on her during the afternoon to wish her well and visit. Cake and ice cream were served to the visitors.

The following poem was written by Mrs Harry Bell of Clear Lake in Mrs Josten's honor:

You are queen for today, our dear friend Louise,
We have gathered to tell you so,
There are only a few of the real pioneers
Of eighty long years ago.

Your life has been spent in long, busy days,
Many changes you've seen since the time
When the plow-share turned the virgin sod,
What a privilege dear friend was thine.

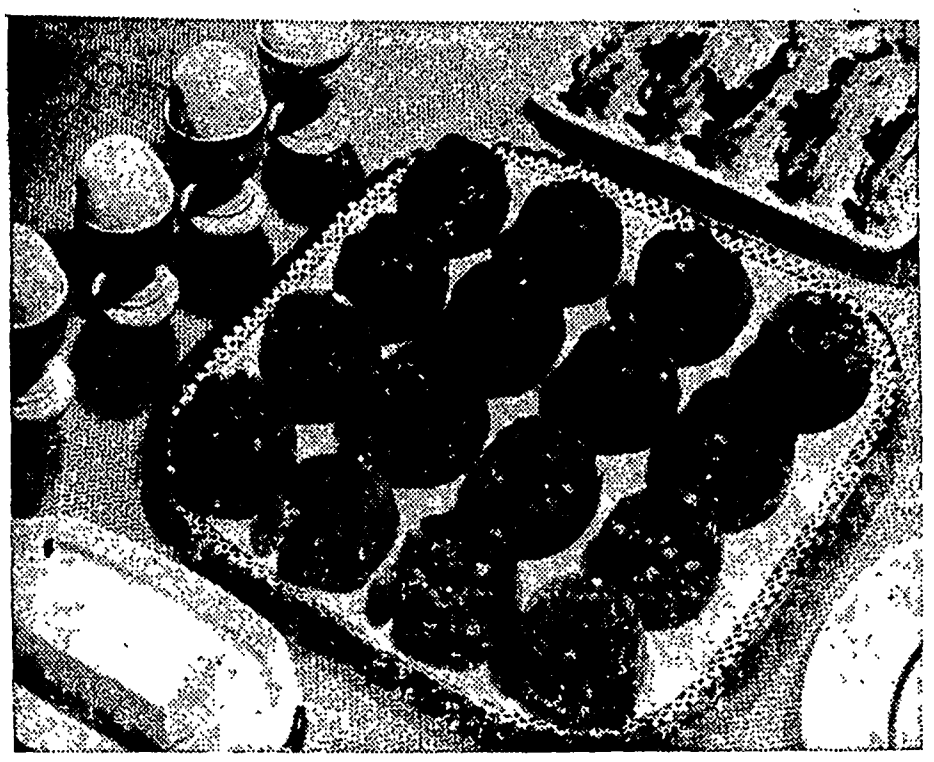
Sidetrack That Midmorning Slump—

Get Aboard the Good Breakfast Special



Want to feel "on top of the world" all morning long? Then give yourself the benefit of a good, well-rounded breakfast whether you are an early-morning starter or sleep late. A good breakfast guarantees your reaction time will be faster, and you'll avoid that listless, tired feeling we call the "11 o'clock slump."

* * *

Lucky you if you look forward each morning to a good breakfast—one with citrus fruit or fruit juice, an egg (possibly bacon too), toast or rolls and butter or margarine, a glass of whole or skimmilk and coffee. You may be a cereal eater, too. You're giving yourself a running start on a good day.

And if you like to pause for a midmorning snack, it's because you enjoy the sociability of that pause rather than trying to lift yourself out of a tired rut.

Better School Work

Lucky are your children, too, if they dash off to school with their tummies filled with a good breakfast. They'll zip into their school work faster; they'll be able to concentrate better, and they and you won't get downright irritable if things don't go right.

Researchers who have studied our ways of eating for years say that "good breakfast" eaters are just being wise, for the human body must keep on operating at high efficiency. And they add that the folks who are too lazy to eat a good breakfast (thinking they can make up for it later) are just fooling themselves. This goes, too, for the no-appetite people. Actually, bacon-and-egg breakfast appetites just "don't happen." They come through making a habit of eating a well-planned breakfast even if the amount isn't great.

Let's take a look at why a good breakfast each morning is so important. Jewel Graham, extension nutritionist at Iowa State College, explains it this way. It used to be thought that if you ate what was good for you sometime during the week, you were doing okay. But researchers now know that the body needs all its working tools—protein, minerals, vitamins, energy factors—operating at once to bring about the maximum nutritional efficiency for physical well-being. This means each meal—and the quality of each meal—is very important.

Need "Lost" Nutrients

Take breakfast, for example. Researchers have found that only one out of every 20 Iowa school children has an unquestionably good breakfast every morning. They have also found that very seldom does the child who goes without a good breakfast ever make up the "lost" minerals, vitamins or proteins during the other meals in the days.

There are three very important foods which our kiddies are missing out on. Two of them are Iowa-produced—milk and eggs. The other is citrus fruit or fruit juice. This is true for adults also. Over a period of time this lack becomes apparent. That buoyant good health of childhood disappears. And early warnings are that tired, listless, irritable feeling so many people experience.

Here's another example along that line. Get that glass of milk for breakfast even if you also drink coffee. Milk for breakfast helps keep that blood sugar level of the body on an even keel during morning hours. That is because milk furnishes complete proteins. They feed slowly into the blood stream and keep the blood sugar level from having severe ups and downs. And that's why you also feel peppy all morning long.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

CATTLE

Feeder cattle shipments boomed during June and July as contrasted with the first 5 months of this year when shipments lagged, reports Francis A Kutish, Iowa Statte College farm economist. Kutish says the main terminal markets shipped nearly twice as many feeders during this July as they did a year ago. As a result, prices of all feeder cattle have risen during the last month. The biggest hike has come in the price of fleshy feeders intended for short feeding.

From this it is evident that a good deal of short-feeding will be done this fall. Kutish says the market for short-feeds beginning the first of 1957 and continuing on into February will probably be weak. This means the feeder who begins short-feeding late this year can be hurt.

Kutish predicts there will be fewer long-fed heavy steers this fall. Last season the market was full of these animals, and this left a good demand for lighter carcasses. Because of this, buyers turned to heifers.

However, this year, the carry-over of long-fed steers will be less, and the demand for heifers will drop. The slaughter heifer price will probably not be as close to that of steers as last year. In the third week of August, wholesale prices for steer beef advanced $2.50 to $4 and the discount on heavy carcasses largely disappeared. Choice and prime beef grades have shown the greatest price advance. Kutish says the price spread between choice and good grades has widened. And prices for good carcasses rose during August, but not as much as expected. At the same time prices for commercial cow beef dropped.

Kutish predicts that the next six weeks will be a strong period in fed cattle prices. This is the period that would normally see the price peak for choice cattle.

LIGHTNING

Judy Ann Mooney of near Monticello had a narrow escape when the bicycle she was holding was hit by lightning. She had gotten off the bicycle due to the storm, and was holding it by the handlebars. Sparks flew from the bike and Judy suffered soreness on the entire right side of her body for a day or two.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

That part of the road looks like a scene on a calender perhaps above the month of August. It is a section of an Iowa country road dropping down a long roll of the prairie.

Summer stands high in the ditches in tall weeds and grass. Here and there the tough grass has crept onto the edges of the road, giving it the ragged look of a path. Beyond the ditches, fields of tall corn flash in the sun.

Add a barefoot boy with a fishing pole to the scene and you have the calender picture of summer along an Iowa country road.

Add the dead bodies of a child and a father, the scattered wreckage of two cars, and you have the real picture.

For, half way down the slope another road comes in behind a screen of weeds and corn and makes a crossing. It is a blind intersection, almost invisible from any approach.

The driver who came down the "calender" road at 60 miles an hour didn't see the intersection and at that speed, apparently wasn't looking for it.

The driver who came out of the side road with his son in the car knew about the intersection, but there was no sign left in the gravel to show that he had put on his brakes to stop and look.

Now, no one from that neighborhood who saw the results of the accident can look down that road, with all its soft spectacle of summer, without remembering the child and the man who were thrown in the gravel, suddenly dead.

The corn is high in Iowa now. Hundreds of country intersections are hidden behind the season. Slow down on country roads. Stop for country intersections.

Change In Social Security Laws May Affect Farm Landlords

A recent change in federal social security laws will allow Hancock County farm landlords to qualify for social security participation without entering into partnership with tenants, says Paul Henderson, Hancock County extension director.

He says I W Arthur, farm economist at Iowa State College, explains that 1956 amendments permit a landlord to come under the social security program if he "participates materially" in the production of crops or livestock on his land. Taking part in the active management of such production will also qualify him.

A precise definition of "material praticipation" hasn't been decided on as yet by social security officials, Arthur says.

Under the old law, he recalls, a landlord wasn't eligible for social security participation from cash or share rent of his land. He had to form a farm partnership in order to qualify.

Before a farm landlord applies for social security coverage under a farm lease agreement, Arthur suggests that he consider this point. For every month in which he makes more than $100 income from such an arrangement after age 65, he will receive no retirement benefit payments.

In a situation like this, Arthur says, it would be possible for a landlord with good farm income to enter the program and make payments regularly until retirement time—but then never qualify for retirement payments. The reason would be that his farm income material participation in farming didn't drop below $100 per month.

Before making a move to get social security coverage, advises Arthur, it might be well to wait until the terms of the recent legislation have been fully interpreted and defined.

KILLED

A rifle accident was fatal to 13 year old Robert Houg, son of Mr and Mrs Richard Houg of Minneapolis, while visiting on the farm home of his uncle, Arthur Helgerson, near Clermont. While playing with a cousin, Robert was killed when the .22 calibre weapon accidentally discharged.

LIGHTNING

15 head of steers were killed on the Clyde Hamilton farm near Earlham recently, when struck by a bolt of lightning. Mr Hamilton had purchased the steers last fall.

CHURCH

At Bussey, the Methodist Church has observed its 75th annniversary. It was built originally at a cost of $1,400 and was dedicated free of debt, in 1881.

HURT

While vacationing in Minnesota, Marion Shane of Iowa Falls was hospitalized when he dived into shallow water, injuring his neck and shoulders.

CHEWED

Trace Pershing, of near Clarinda, was injured recently when a hog got him down, chewing his leg and hip. Thirteen stitches were required.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

We think the Klemme Fire Department deserves a great big bouquet. They worked like beavers helping to bring the big fire under control, at the Wille-Kaduce farm Sunday evening, kept an all night vigil after it was under control, and then made a rush call to the John and Carrol Albers farm to help extinguish a cornfield fire. They were a bunch of sleepy, sad looking characters by Monday noon but they had the satisfaction that comes from a job well done.

Another couple of bouquets go to the good neighbors who pitched in to help during the fires and afterwards, and to the good neighbors who picked corn for Hauko Barkema while he was in the hospital.

We knew that the glow from the fire Sunday night could be seen for a long ways, but we didn't have any idea how far. We heard about one Minnesota car that came off the highway to see what had burned and the driver said that he had seen the glow when he came over the viaduct at Blairsburg, a distance of approximately 40 miles.

So many cars were on the road in the vicinity of the fire Sunday evening that it was hard for the fire trucks to get through. In fact, we are told that they even had to shove some cars into the ditch in order to have room to get through. . . . and one car was left right in one of the driveways to the farm . . . and with no keys. Guess that one was just about picked up and set out of the way.

Anyway, it was a hot time Sunday night and Monday morning for the fire department, and conditions are just right for more of them. It's terribly dry and windy and the least spark can set off a bad blaze. It's a time to use extreme caution with cigarettes, matches, etc. One carelessly tossed cigarette could cause a lot of damage. Best idea is to make sure they are out before you get rid of them.

Got a big kick out of C D Elling, our neighboring editor to the north. He is a member of the Garner Fire Department and was with the Garner truck at the fire Sunday night . . . one of the biggest farm fires to happen around here in some time . . . and him with no camera. Felt so sorry for him that we promised to let him use one of our pictures if we were lucky enough to get any.

Colonel Glenn Bowles, State Director of Selective Service and former Klemme High School Coach, was visiting with friends in this area Thursday. Stopped for a brief visit with us and the the only difference we could see in his appearance now and when he was coach here before WWII, was the Uniform and the Eagles that adorn the shoulders.

Its been dry for so long and we know that it is not good for growing things to go into the winter with so little moisture in the ground. We wish it would rain about six inches between now and freeze-up, and take about four days to do it. Believe it would even make people feel better.

Hot Time at Wille-Kaduce Farm Sunday Night

Although Dad was in some doubt as to whether or not he would get any decent pictures of the fire at the Wille-Kaduce farm Sunday evening, still he did get a couple of good shots. One which was taken at the time when the blaze in the barn was at its peak was more spectacular than the picture printed here, but we felt that this one told more.

This one was taken just before the Garner truck arrived and shows where the fire has taken ahold on the granary roof in a couple of places. Also, through the smoke can be seen the silo which will have to be torn down. The long hay keeper which was destroyed, extended on north from the silo to a cattle shed which was severely damaged.

These buildings all stood on top of a hill and the blaze was plainly visible from Highway 69. We don't know how many cars jammed the road around the farm, but we believe that every car that was in the heavy Sunday night traffic on 69 turned off and came to get a closer look . . . and they were in addition to the people from miles around who saw the glow in the sky and came to investigate.

Flames Destroy Barn Damage Other Buildings

Fire broke out in the hay mow of the barn on the Carl Wille farm a mile and a half south of town Sunday evening and before it was brought under control it had made things hot for several fire departments and had caused damage conservatively estimated at $25,000.

Activites got underway about 6:45 Sunday evening when Terry Kaduce, one of the children of Mr and Mrs Leonard Kaduce, who live on the farm, came in from outdoors and informed his mother that the barn was on fire. When Mrs Kaduce looked out flames were already coming out the north end of the upper part of the barn and her first thoughts were of her husband who was in the lower part of the barn doing chores.

She immediately ran to the barn to tell him the news, and Leonard hurriedly freed what livestock was in the building. He had neither smelled smoke or heard the fire even though he was in the barn. The Klemme Fire Department was called, but the blaze had too good a start and was too much for the local equipment to handle. Fire trucks were soon on hand from Garner, Goodell, Kanawha and Belmond and without their help damage would have been considerably higher.

When the Garner fire department arrived on the scene the Klemme trucks were out of water and fire was beginning to show in patches on the roof of the big double corn crib granary which stood nearby. However, the Garner crew got between the flames and the threatened building and managed to get enough water going to douse the flames already started on the granary and to keep anymore from getting ahold.

When the fire in the barn was at its peak, it looked as though only a miracle would save the granary but as more and more fire trucks appeared on the scene, it became apparent that the building would not be lost. After the fire was well under control, all the trucks but Klemme's left. They kept watch on the blaze all night.

Completely destroyed, though, was the barn, several feed bunks and a long hay keeper which extended from the barn north to a cattle shed. The cattle shed was severely damaged and will take some rebuilding and the silo which stood at the north end of the barn will have to be torn down and a new one built to replace it.

Every bit of hay that Mr Wille and Mr Kaduce had put away for the winter was destroyed by the flames and there was water damage to some of the corn and the oats in the granary.

Insurance will cover most of the building loss, but the feed that was destroyed is gone.

Mr Wille and Mr Kaduce have a large number of cattle on feed and between five and six hundred head of sheep on the place, so they will need both feed and shelter for their stock before winter sets in.

Neighbors and relatives, realizing their predicament, were on hand bright and early Mon-

Good Neighbors Help Hauko Barkema

Hauko Barkema returned home from Mercy Hospital at Mason City, Tuesday to find that a group of his neighbors and relatives had been busy Friday. Hauko entered the hospital some three weeks ago and underwent surgery and the group pictured above picked and cribbed his 70 acres of corn for him.

The group moved into the fields around seven o'clock in the morning and with six pickers in action, had the job completed by four o'clock in the afternoon.

Ray Buckley and Ben Ridder also helped with the days work but had gone home before this picture was taken.

Helping to serve dinner and lunches to the men were Mrs Mervin Barkema, Mrs Howard Spitler, Mrs Arnett Ostendorf, Mrs Ed Stadlander, Mrs Ted Dirks, and Mrs George Nannenga.

Fire In Cornfield At Albers Farm

Both the Klemme and Garner fire departments were called to the John and Carrol Albers farm, Monday morning about 10:30 when fire which apparently started from a spark from a tractor exhaust got away from Carrol Albers.

The fire, driven by a brisk northwest wind, raced across a field of standing corn owned by Elmer Beier and Laurice Lemke, and just missed some of the many thousand turkeys on the Albers farm.

Carrol hooked onto a disk with the tractor, and county road men who were working nearby, came into the burning field with a maintainer, but their combined efforts were not enough to stop the spread of the blaze.

The arrival of the two fire trucks on the scene changed the complexion of the affair, though, and the fire was soon out.

day morning, helping to build feed bunks, begin cleaning up the mess, build fences, etc. Roy Jacobs had 26 acres of alfalfa on his farm and he had planned to plow it under. However, he realized the need for feed and turned the crop over to Mr Wille and Mr Kaduce. Neighbors mowed the hay on Monday, and raked it and baled it Tuesday, so at least there is enough on hand for awhile.

Other neighbors were also busy Tuesday and all the corn that was wet in the crib was shelled, hauled to town and put through the drier and then hauled back to the farm. By Tuesday night, the mess left by the blaze was well cleaned up, fences were rebuilt and things were beginning to look much brighter.

Mr Wille informed us this morning that all the people who have been helping have told him that as soon as their corn is picked they will be more than glad to come back and help to build a new barn before winter. He also said that so far as he was concerned the best part about the whole affair was that no one was hurt. The only stock that was lost in the blaze was a couple of feeder pigs, so both Mr Wille and Mr Kaduce consider that they were lucky.

SHUN ENDORSEMENTS

Two forces in the state political scene, labor and the National Farmers Organization (NFC), have decided against making election year endorsements of candidates.

Ray Mills, president of the labor forces in Iowa, said that while labor will not officially endorse any candidate " we are going to do a lot of work for candidates."

The NFO, a new organization just a year old, said it will not officially recommend any candidate but definitely will be active in behalf of some candidates.

SHOTS FOR ADULTS

Polio shots for adults, right along with the kids, are suggested by state health officials. The number of adults receiving polio shots in Iowa is "quite low" they report.

Complete immunity for a fairly long time especially through the next polio season, cannot be attained without adult participations, the state department reports.

Figures show too that the percentage of youths between the ages of 15 and 19 getting polio shots is below that of younger children.

GOP AIR TOUR

In an effort to encourage greater voter registration, two Republican state party officials took to the air. They used an airplane in a three-day statewide hop to draw attention of voters to registering.

State Chairman Don Pierson and Finance Chairman George Nagle visited briefly with party leaders in all larger cities where registration is necessary.

RECORD EMPLOYMENT

Employment n Iowa reached the highest point of record in August.

That is, there were more persons employed in the state in August than in any other month since 1939—that's when the state employment commission started keeping track.

The Iowa commission said total non-agricultural employment was 650,450. The figures compares with 638,400 jobs filled in the same month of 1955.

SEEK TAX CUT

Iowa's private colleges plan to seek some tax relief from the state. They will ask repeal of the state sales and use taxes as applied to their schools.

Members of the Iowa College Presidents Association have reported they will ask the 1957 legislature to take such action.

President Brooks of Coe College, Cedar Rapids, said:

"We're going to be doing our share to take care of an anticipated enrollment increases at little cost to the state. As long as we are not asking for state support to increase facilities it would be little enough for the state to do."

FAR EAST TRIP

Mrs Raymond Sayre of Ackworth, prominent Iowa farm woman, has left for Tokyo, Japan to attend a food and agriculture conference on home economics. She will attend as a representative of the Associated Country Women of the World.

A member of the President's agricultural advisory commission plans to see U S technical assistance projects in several countries.

THREE WEEKS OFF

City employees of Des Moines have asked the city council to amend its pay plan to permit a three-weeks paid vacation for employees with five years' service.

SOLDIERS RELIEF

More than $1-million in unneeded property taxes was collected in Iowa last year to pay for the soldiers relief program, the Iowa Taxpayers association reports.

The ITA said the extra taxes were levied "simply because of careless budgeting."

The association said its survey of the soldiers relief program shows the estimated dollar outlay next year will be more than $2 and one-half million, or about 67 percent more than was spent in 1952.

HUNTING TAXES

The Iowa tax commission is always hunting folks who fail to pay their taxes but should.

Photostats are being made of 130,000 federal returns filed by self-employed Iowans to determine whether they also owe state income tax.

The procedure, just being started, will cover the last two years returns of farmers, lawyes, physicians, merchants, and others.

The use of photostats of federal records has the approval of the federal internal revenue bureau.

TAX OFFICIAL QUITS

An Iowa tax official has quit his post, upon request, after failing to file state income tax returns.

The official is Louis H Cook, 66, Des Moines, who allegedly didn't file income tax returns in the last four years. He submitted his resignation after the matter was made public by commission officials at the insistance of State Rep Howard Reppert, (D) of Des Moines.

The resignation was requested by Governor Hoegh and the tax commission. Cook has made good on his delinquent payments, the commission reports.

Cook is being replaced as director of the property tax division by Joseph B Wilford,32. Wilford, employed in the department only since September 1, will be acting director.

No one has been named yet to Cook's other job as director of research.

ALSO QUITS

Henry J Schmitz has resigned as secretary of the state tax commission to take a job as superintendent and business manager of the Eldora Memorial hospital.

He had been secretary of the commission since 1951. In addition to serving as secretary he also was presonnel adviser.

Schmitz is a former Hardin county treasurer.

STUDENT RISE

President Virgil Hancher of the University of Iowa advises that Iowa colleges must be prepared to accept a 50 percent increase in the number of students by 1970.

He declared if the percentage of those going to college increases this total will be further increased.

Dr Hancher made his report at a statewide meetng of Iowa college presidents, deans and public relations officials at Spirit Lake.

BORDER CHECKS

State tax officials are making checks at Iowa's borders to determine whether there are persons living in Iowa and working across the border in other states who may not be paying state income taxes.

Community Chest Drive Here To Start October 22

East Hancock Community Chest drive will get underway in this area on Monday, October 22nd, and will continue through November 3rd.

Already in more 1.500 cities, towns, counties, etc., newspaper articles have appeared concerning the United Fund Drive—see the ad in this week's issue.

Call it a Chest, a United Fund, a Community Crusade, each campaign will be a great civic enterprise. Voluntary giving today has been called "big business" but if so, it is the business of all mankind. For it is rooted, not in the profit motive, but in deep religious concepts of brotherhood and service. It deserves the respectful attention of all Americans—and, surely everyone in these eight townships of the East Hancock Community Chest.

With the rise of so many national health agencies, contributors, especially in this community, or this half of the county, have protested vigorously against "too many campaigns", and have pleaded for more order and common sense in planning, and fund raising. As a result,—the East Hancock Community Chest was brought into being.

Again we repeat here that it is NOT the purpose of the Community Chest to attempt to minimize giving to those worthy organizations included in the Chest, but it is the purpose of the Chest to encourage giving to legitimate organizations and agencies through a—United Effort!

This is the third year for the Community Chest in East Hancock County and it is the earnest wish of everyone to make it a very successful one again!

The total campaign goal is $14,000 for this Chest—and all the officers and directors ask is —that each contributor give—give enough for all. You know, everybody benefits when everybody gives enough!

Let's each of us insure the success and continuation of the Community Chest—won't you do your share?

SENIOR INTERVIEW

The camera's at Russell's Studio were standing around talking to each other. Suddenly camera one exclaimed, "Who's this good looking guy coming in now?"

Camera two popped up and said, "Why that's Martin Brinkman, Jr. I took his baby picture back in 1939. I hear he was born on October 8th."

"I've seen him at such odd jobs as painting, working in the hatchery, as a janitor, and as a waiter," said camera three. "I'll bet that's where he got his fondness for shrimp."

The tall black camera then spoke up. "I've been listening through the door, and I heard him say that a perfect movie in his opinion would star Audie Murphy and Sophia Loren and have Elvis Presley singing the theme music while accompanied by Lawrence Welk and his Champagne Music Makers. (What a combination!)

"You can tell by his height that he's good at basketball ,and active in track and baseball. 'Mart' likes to watch professional football on TV, too," another camera added.

The first camera said, "I asked him what he plans to do in the future and he replied that he is likely to take up aeronautical engineering at Iowa State College."

"Well fellas, we'd better be sure his pictures are good," said camera two.

BIG FAMILY

A lady got on a streetcar with nine or ten children.

Said the motorman, "Are these all yours, madam, or is it a picnic?"

"They're all mine," she replied, "and it's no picnic."

SHOP CLASS

As school begins this year, we find that the shop classes have turned a new page in history. The freshmen registered and found that shop was a required subject. The freshmen anticipated to learn how to use and cut wood of different kinds.

Five weeks have now passed. What do they think of it now? It is a drawing course. From the latest note we find the two classes very hard at work drawing figures, numbers and letters and sketching projects.

Keep up the good work, fellows.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

Always, the dead man is a stranger. He waits in the crushed car while the patrol and the sheriff arrive, while the ambulance comes up wailing over the cargo it will carry away, while the crowd gathers to watch silenty over folded arms.

Not until a patrolman reaches through jagged glass to take the registration off the steering post does the man have a name and an address. And not until the body is pried out of the wreck and a worn wallet falls on the grass does the man have any meaning.

Then there is the picture that tells the dead man had a wife and children who went one day to a photographer. The smiles seem almost blinding to the patrolman standing beside the body, checking through the wallet.

Then the snapshot that proves the man once caught a large fish at a northern lake, and the creased sales slip from the time the man bought three pairs of socks, and the cards that show the man was a member, a contributor, a good risk.

Finally the patrolman finds what he was looking for in the wallet—the evidence of religious affiliation. The officer will want to have the Minister, Priest or Rabbi along when he calls to tell the woman she is a widow.

Thus, the meaning of the crumpled, dead stranger begins to fill in, piece by piece. As the ambulance carries him away, the officers know that the man's loss now will begin to spread rapidly to touch a family, a church, clubs, merchants, service groups and on through all the thousand associations of a man alive.

But in the beginning, at the moment of discovery, the dead man on the highway is a stranger. He could be anyone. He could be you.

This is a great automobile, from the large honest dial faces on the instrument panel to the effortless loafing way it cruises.

The new Ford begins with the "Inner Ford." Its new elegance comes from within, from the way its automotive muscles are put together. All the changes are toward more rugged endurance, toward increased power, toward smoother operation. These are the bases for its "Mark of Tomorrow" elegance. This is the one fine car in the low-price field.

There are actually 19 different new kinds of Ford—and no matter which one you choose, it's yours at low Ford prices!

How does it look? It's only fourteen hands high—as tall as a child's pony. You can stand beside it and lean your elbows on its roof. And it's over seventeen feet long . . . 21 inches wider than it is high!

This big new Ford looks like the fun on a travel poster. It's the kind of car that looks sunshiny in the rain.

It looks as fresh as morning.

It looks like tomorrow—like the first thing out of Detroit that symbolizes the new Age of Movement.

See it at your Ford Dealer's. Give it your own Action Test. But you'd better leave a deposit . . . for you won't want to bring it back.

Plow-Down Fertilizer
Proven to be Effective
PLOW-DOWN APPLICATION
These Conditions Fit--

Recent experiments and tests show that fall applications of fertilizer that are plowed down for next year's crop are generally as effective as the same fertilizer applied next spring and disked in.

The conditions where fall application of plowdown fertilizer is best fitted are:

1. Fields where corn will be grown next year.
2. Stalk ground that will go to oats & legumes next year.

Boy Scouts Set for "Good Turn Day"

Hundreds of Cub and Scouts of the Winnebago Council in 9 counties will observe their annual "Good Turn Day" on Saturday, October 27th by conducting a Scout Good Turn clothing drive for the Handicapped at Goodwill Industries. The 117 non-profit Goodwill Industries throughout the Nation employ handicapped men and women whose only income is derived from the work they do in processing clothing and other usable or repairable articles donated by thousands of generous contributors.

Need for material is so great that the Goodwill Industries are now expanding out in the outlying territory. The Boy Scouts in many cities of the nation are playing a vital part in this program by conducting annual Boy Scout "Good Turn Day" clothing drives for the handicapped at Goodwill Industries.

Cub and Boy Scouts will distribute Goodwill clothing bags to every home in Klemme and many other cities of the surrounding territory on Saturday, October 20th. One week later, on "Good Turn Day", Saturday, October 27th, Scouts will return and collect the filled Goodwill clothing bags and take them to designated collection points in their respective towns. Goodwill Industries trucks will pick up filled bags at these collection points during the following week.

The need is particularly great now for such articles as the following: Discarded clothing for men, women and children, unwanted garments which are usable or can be repaired, pieces of cloth, regardless of fabric, shoes, curtains, linens, bedding or anything made of cloth, regardless of age.

Newspapers and magazines are not to be included in this drive at this time because they can very easily become too heavy for little Scouts to carry.

It is hoped that everyone will be a Good Scout and help the local Cubs and Scouts in their "Good Turn Day" effort of providing work for Handicapped men and women who prefer to earn their own living rather than to be supported by charity.

FIVE

Five generations of one family posed for a picture recently at Cresco Mrs James Machovsky, 77,, was the eldest; her great great granddaughter, Monica Marie Malek, was the youngest of the group at three months.

The movement of feeder cattle into the Corn Belt during July and August was up about 375,000 head over a year ago. And some of the heavy feeders shipped out will be slaughtered before the end of the year.

The cow slaughter should also pick up as dry weather in the West causes ranchers to market their stock early. October will probably be the peak month in the western marketing. Lafe fall runs should taper off rapidly.

This time of year is traditionally a weak spot in choice and prime cattle because of the Jewish holidays. But the market is also discounting "in between" grades. The range within choice and good grade steers has widened considerably. At Chicago, choice steers are quoted from $24.25 to $29.75; good steers from $20.50 to $26.00. There are some 80 day, new-crop short-feds being marketed that are bringing $22 to $24.

Meanwhile, says Kutish, feeder cattle prices have weakened somewhat in sympathy with the lower prices on the "in between" grades.

He predicts that by January 1, 1957, we will have as many cattle on hand as on January 1, 1956. More of them will be in feedlots, however, and fewer on the western ranges.

A Pomona, California minister became involved in an accident with a couple of cows near DeWitt recently. H was able to dodge the first one crossing the highway but struck the second one, damaging the right front end of his vehicle extensively.

"Some men have more money than brains—but not for long!"

RATTLERS

A grading crew working on a new primary road near Wadena tore down an old house, uncovering a nest of rattlesnakes. They killed 17.

ONIONS

A semi-trailer truck went off the highway near Dow City recently. About 26,000 pounds of white onions were spilled over the highway.

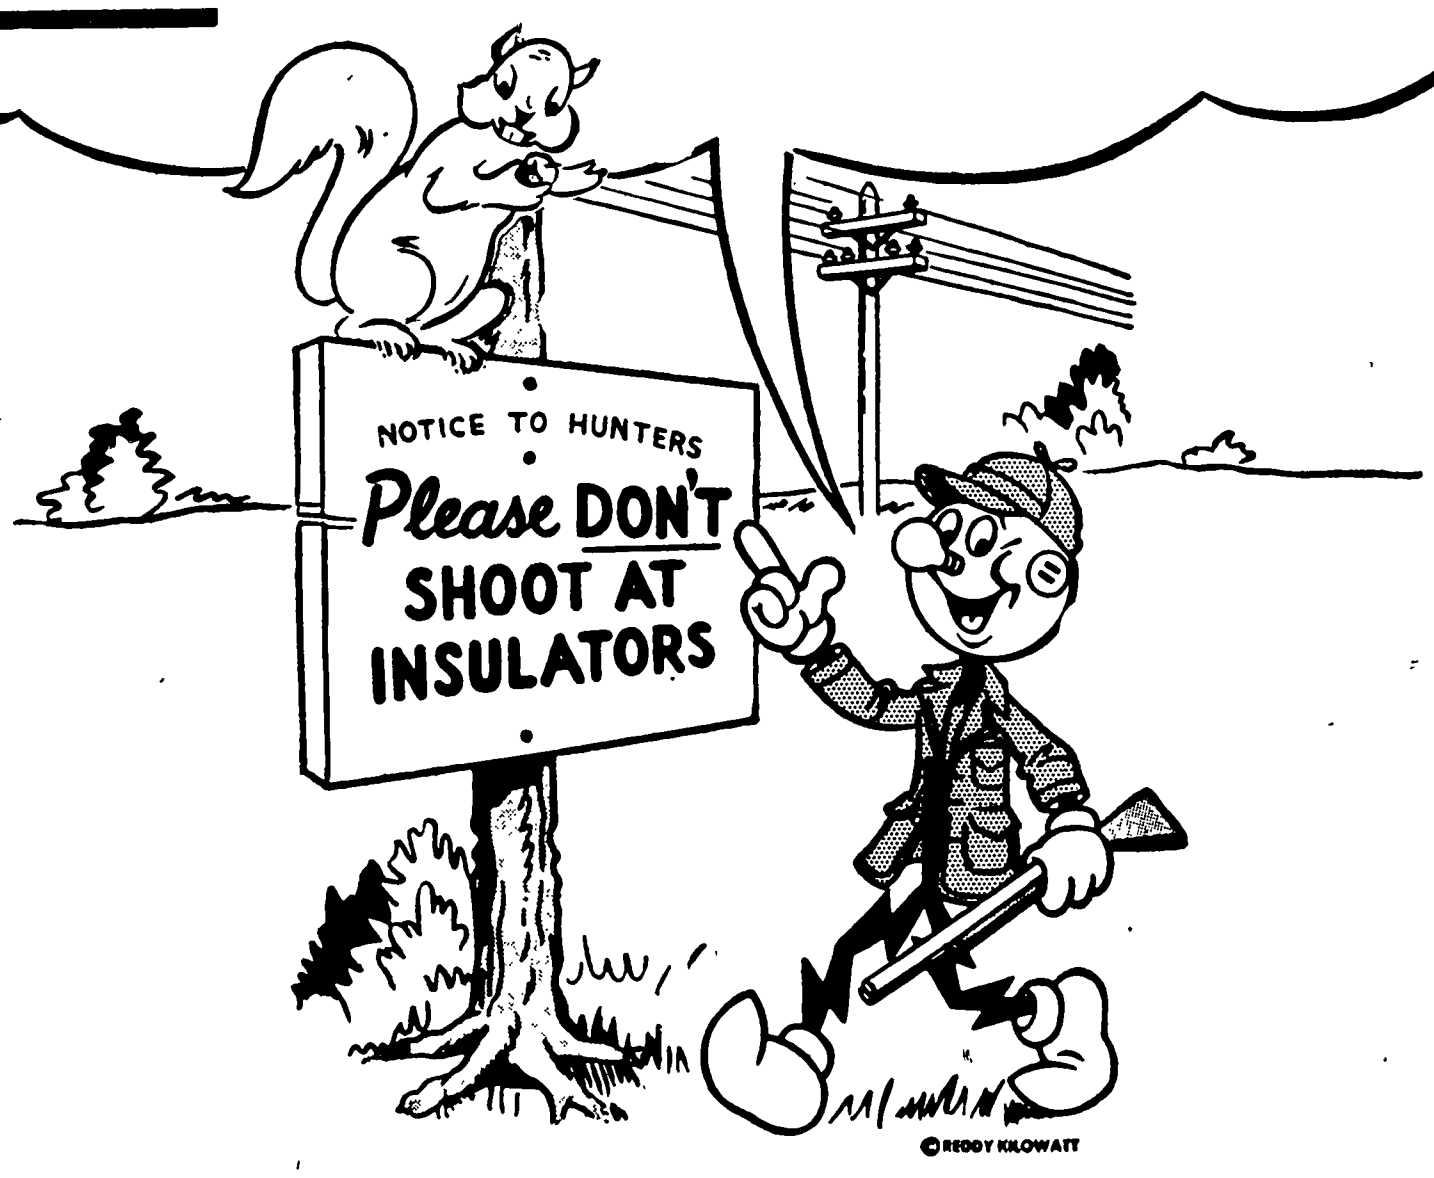
SHOOT THE SQUIRRELS
NOT THE INSULATORS



IT IS A SERIOUS SITUATION WHEN WHOLE COMMUNITIES ARE CUT OFF WITHOUT ELECTRIC SERVICE

● Reddy Kilowatt says: "Have all the fun you want these autumn days — and hunt to your heart's content — but PLEASE — spare the insulators on the electric poles!"

Reddy is so right. Lots of folks get a little reckless when they have a gun in their hands and "blaze away" regardless. Don't do that! Be a real hunter — who goes out after game and doesn't use a gun thoughtlessly.

WHAT ARE INSULATORS?

Folks who use insulators for "target practice" undoubtedly have no realization how important this equipment is. The function of the insulators is so important in delivering electric service that their wanton, thoughtless destruction can cause whole communities to lose their electric service!

IT'S ILLEGAL!

There are laws on the statute books which authorize stiff fines or even a jail sentence for destruction of insulators. Reddy doesn't want that to happen to you! He says: "Go ahead and have fun hunting! But please, DON'T shoot the insulators!"

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

The Community Chest Drive begins here on Monday, Oct. 22nd. When the solicitors call on you, remember that they are your neighbors and are giving their time to this worthy cause. Treat them cordially and give as much as you can. If in the past you have perhaps been in the habit of giving a dollar or two to each drive, remember that here in Klemme, the drive is collecting for nine different and worthwhile causes. Help someone less fortunate than yourself. You won't be sorry!

The Republican rally held at Britt, Monday night was a good one. There was good entertainment and a good speech by Congressman James I Dolliver of Fort Dodge. We took some pictures at the rally, and if they turn out we'll have one or two of them in next weeks issue along with a more complete story on the event.

While we're on the subject of politics, the Mason City Globe Gazette recently carried an editorial under the heading "Hoegh Measures Up". They cited his good record, his integrity, and the efficiency and economy of his administration, summing up their comment with "It can be said with special pertinence, one good term deserves another".

We are in receipt of a letter and a clipping from Karl Kraus of Garner. The clipping is from the Des Moines Register and concerns a "haylift" which was performed for a farmer near Elkader after he lost his barn and hay to fire. The article says that 648 bales of hay were collected from farmers in a six mile area and given to the farmer who had suffered the loss. Karl thought perhaps that the same idea might be applied in the case of Leonard Kaduce and Carl Wille.

We have a letter from Roger Bachman, son of Mr and Mrs Clarence Bachman, thanking us for sending him The Times while he was at Parks Air Force Base, Calif. Roger has been transferred and his new address is as follows A_B Roger A Bachman, AF1747h389, 3454 Student Sturon, Francis E Warren AFB, Wyoming.

The members of the local fire department heaved a big sigh of relief Saturday night when an inch and a half of rain fell here. To add to their comfort and the spirits of everyone in this section of the country, another three_fourths inch fell on Monday morning. It's not quite the six inches of moisture we were wanting in last week's issue of The Times, but it's a good start.

We are being forced to burn a little midnight oil this week. Our linotype operator, Mrs Cliff Montgomery, is taking some treatments for an ailing hip and is off work this week. She won't be back next week either, so guess Iowa Electric Light & Power will make a little extra this month.

Mrs Henrika Dammann, Lyon county's oldest resident, died recently at the age of 95. She had been a resident of Lyon County since 1882.

Fires in Fields Give Firemen Busy Time

Members of the Klemme Fire Department were really beginning to get on edge by the end of last week. A week ago last Sunday night they had to fight the barn fire at the Carl Wille_Leonard Kaduce farm, Monday they had to fight the fire that started in the John and Carrol Albers cornfield, Wednesday night they answered a call to the Amos Brekke farm northeast of town and put out a fire in a stubble field, and Friday afternoon they were called to a fire at the Cecil Bruhl farm and one at the Joe Roul farm. Busy time!

The fire at the Brekke farm Wednesday night burned only the stubble field and was brought under control before it got into a field of beans, but the one at the Cecil Bruhl farm, Friday, was a humdinger.

It burned about eight acres of corn on the Bruhl farm, took off on a strong southwest wind and burned about 22 acres on the adjoining Fred Danger farm. The fire apparently started from a spark thrown by Mr Bruhl's tractor. He was picking corn and stopped to change the sideboards from one side of the wagon to the other. When he started up, the tractor apparently coughed out a spark, for after he had picked for a short distance, he looked back and the flames had a good start just about where he had stopped.

The Klemme Fire Department was called, but the fire which crowned in the corn just like a forest fire, was too fast for them, and the Garner department was called to help. When the call went in for Garner, their truck was already out on a field fire, but they came as soon as they completed that run. In the meantime, the Kanawha department was called. However, by the time they arrived, the fire was pretty well under control.

The Klemme department came very near losing their truck on this call and some of the fellows who were riding it were plenty scared. They were driving into the fire, spraying as they went, when their tank ran out of water. They turned to get out of there and the truck began to cough and sputter and very nearly conked out. Wayne Buseman, who was driving, finally got her revved up again, though, and they got away from the flames.

The corn which was burned was yielding better than 80 bushels to the acre and the above picture will give you an idea of the damage that the flames did. Every stalk was stripped of its ears and most of the ears were partially scorched and charred. The loss is partially covered by insurance, but it is still serious loss enough that when Fred Danger came in from plowing to try and control the blaze, he said, "I'm sick!"

Had the path taken by the flames been another hundred yards or so east they would have threatened the buildings on the Danger farm as well as a considerable amount of baled hay which was stacked at the edge of the field.

The fire at the Joe Roul farm was also in a cornfield, but the Rouls had that one under control by the time the local fire laddies arrived on the scene. Worst part of the whole day as far as the Klemme department is concerned was the ruining of the transmission in their truck on the run to the Joe Roul farm. However, that is now repaired and the truck is again ready for business.

The firemen hope there won't be any more business for them for quite a spell.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

IOWA SAFETY

After a nearly two-year lapse, Iowa has a new statewide safety organization, the Iowa Safety Council. Fifteen years ago the Iowa Safety Council was active in the state and then interest waned. About nine years ago the Iowa Safety Congress was activated. It died out about two years ago.

Now a new state action group has been formed to promote safety on the highways, farms, in industry and in homes.

The new organization came after a statewide meeting called by the Iowa Lay Committee on Traffic Safety.

Final organization plans will be completed at a meeting to be held in Des Moines October 29.

FEWER VOTERS

The U. S. bureau of census estimates the state of Iowa will have about one percent fewer voters this year than in 1952.

The bureau said the state's population of persons 21 and older dropped 14,000 from 1,680,000 in 1952 to 1,666,000 this year.

It said Iowa was one of only six states that had a loss in voting-age residents.

LIQUOR PERMITS

Since July 1, a total of 1,018 federal retail liquor dealer's stamps have been sold in Iowa by the federal internal revenue department. The report was made by the Iowa attorney general's office.

The 1,018 stamps compares with the total of 914 such permits issued in the same period a year ago.

LOSING FACULTY

President J. W. Maucker of Iowa State Teachers College has reported to the Iowa Board of Regents that the school has lost about 14 percent of its faculty in the last nine months.

Maucker said he has had to seek replacements for 42 faculty positions. He said 25 of those resigning did so because of salary competition from other schools

The Regents will ask the legislature to increase the ISTC salary budget by 8 and a half percent for the next biennium.

SEEKS MORE CASH

Iowa State College will ask the state legislature for approximately $17,784,000 for the next biennium, which sum includes some $6-millions for capital improvements at the college.

Merit salary increases for faculty members will be the item most strongly bid for, college officials report.

The latest request, to be presented to the 1957 legislature, is about $3-million more than the last term's grant of $7,900,000.

The capitol improvements desired include a library addition, an increase in power plant facilities, a new classroom building, additional college land, and a food processing and marketing building.

VETS ORGANIZE

An Iowa Veterans for Hoegh group has been organized for Leo A. Hoegh for governor. Edward W. Bird, Des Moines, was named chairman; Edward J. Kelley, Ames, vice-chairman and Keith McWilliams, Des Moines, secretary.

ISEA GOALS

An officers' workshop of the ISEA outlined some of the goals of the teachers' association. Harold W Weber, Clinton, president of ISEA, outlined several projects.

He mentioned: Adoption of the standard state aid plan as proposed by the Iowa taxation study committee, a practical personnel policies program, and the raising of standards for teachers' certificates.

SOIL BANK RATES

Annual payment rates for Iowa cropland placed in the conservation reserve part of the soil bank will range from $10 to $13 per acre.

These rates have been announced by Max Soeth, state ASC chairman.

An index guide has established rate at $13 per acre for 27 counties, $12 for 38 counties, $11 for seven counties and $10 per acre for 27 counties.

Under the reserve plan, farmers enter contracts to divert designated cropland to conservation uses for a period of 3 to 15 years. Farmers will receive an annual per acre payment.

MENTAL HEALTH PLAN

An ex-Iowan, Dr. Charles C. Graves, now affiliated with the New Jersey state hospitals has outlined a mental health program for Iowa. He was a former director of mental health institutions under the Iowa board of control.

His plan, outlined in the Journal of the Iowa State Medical Society, includes a policy-making board and a psychiatric administrator.

He suggests the need for a coordinated approach to Iowa mental health problems, and said the policy-making functions should be placed in the hands of a part-time group consisting of not more than 9 well informed and public spirited citizens.

TAX STUDY UNIT

Two Democratic state senators, Thomas Dailey of Burlington and Edward McManus of Keokuk, have issued a statement contending that the Iowa taxation study committee is not the bipartisan group it is supposed to be. They said the 10 legislators on the committee include 9 Republicans and only 1 Democrat. They said one of the two laymen on the study unit may be a Democrat which gives a 10-2 majority to the Republican administration.

The two also said that if the committee fulfills its purpose it must recommend an increase in taxes. They said if taxes are equalized by the committee "wherever taxes are cut for one person or group, they necessarily must be increased somewhere else to maintain the same amount of state revenue."

RAILROADS

So far this year abandonment of 24 miles of railroads in Iowa has been authorized by the Iowa commerce commission. Last year less than half-a-mile of trackage in the state was lost.

In 1914 Iowa had its longest mileage of railroads, some 10,000 miles.

SEES HEAVY VOTE

A new record vote of about 1,300,000 in the Iowa November elections is predicted by secretary of State Melvin Synhorst. He bases his prediction on the feeling that "issues are becoming lively and people feel that there is a lot at stake" this year.

He also said that his forecast is based on a larger number of residents of the state of voting age, although a bureau of census report from Washington does not agree with this viewpoint.

LEAGUE ELECTS

Newly elected officers of the League of Iowa Municipalities are: Marvin Vedvig, Fort Dodge, president; George Mendon, Mason City, vice president.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

Released through the Hancock County Extension Director

Federally inspected hog slaughter during September totaled about 5.025 million head, 119 thousand less than during September, 1955, reports Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist.

This is the first month this year that hog slaughter has fallen below the 1955 mark for the same month. Wholesale fresh pork prices rose during the last 10 days of September after rather sharp drops during the first part of the month. Kutish thinks the price increase may have been due to the anticipated pork shortage that failed to develop. However, wholesale pork prices have dropped again since October 1st.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson has announced that the government will begin buying lard in an effort to support hog prices. This program should narrow the price spread between light and heavy hogs. And Kutish believes this will encourage farmers to feed their hogs to heavier weights. This in turn, will hold back marketings and help maintain hog prices during October.

However, there will be more hogs on the market during November, December and January, with corresponding lower prices. Kutish again urges farmers not to keep their hogs past the 200-220 pound mark. Records show that hogs topped out during October pay best and provide consumers with highest quality pork.

SOYBEANS

Kutish reports that this year's soybean crop was about 91 million bushels larger than last year. These extra beans should yield about a billion more pounds of oil than we had last year. Since cottonseed oil supplies are down about 200 million pounds from last year, we can produce a net total of 800 million pounds more vegetable oil for export or domestic use this year than last.

Kutish says that stored oil and cottonseed supplies were down on October 1st equivalent to some 165 million pounds of oil. This leaves a potential 635 million pounds of vegetable oil, which should easily offset next year's decreased lard output.

However, Kutish points out, this assumes we will turn all the seed into oil. There is a question as to how much of the crop will go into storage or under loan. If a large amount of the beans go under loan or into storage, Kutish thinks we can expect a market advance high enough to pull beans out of loan.

Current market prices for beans are about esual to what the farmer can get for storing commercially and taking a government loan. In fact, the farmer who chooses to take the loan could net a small gain if the market should rise in the late fall. And farmers who have their own farm storage can earn the storage charges for themselves. Because of this situation, a large share of our soybeans are being stored in this area.

Grandmothers' Club Met

The Grandmothers' Club met Tuesday in the home of Mrs George Schoenwetter with 24 members and one guest present.

Co-hostesses were Mrs Marie Wille, Mrs Edna Thada, and Mrs Emil Patet.

During the business portion of the meeting it was voted to donate $5.00 to the Community Chest. Also, Mrs Carl Wille and Mrs Walter Rosendahl gave a short account of their trip to the National Grandmothers' Club convention at Dayton, Ohio.

"The way taxes are today, you might as well marry for love!"

ATTACKED

Ten year old Johnny Erickson of Lorimor was attacked by several sows when he was thrown from his horse in the pasture. He emerged with several gashes and bruises.

Just how important is it to us as high school students that we tackle each duty as if it were the most important we've ever done?

In our daily assignments we often slack a little but then maybe we can do better tomorrow if we have time. Most likely each day the same thing happens until this has become a steady habit. Then when we reach our senior year or after we've graduated we ask ourselves, "Why didn't I study and make the most of my schooling?" By this time we have learned that we have to do each assignment today because tomorrow is too late.

The same thought applies to the duty of life. How many of us are always willing to do all of life's duties to the best of our ability? Kindness, which is only one of the thousands of little duties, cannot be made up to someone after the scar of unkindness has been left. So you see that life's duties as well as those of school have to be done now.

Remember, from the accomplishments you make on your life's assignments develops that character called "YOU".

Question of the Week

--What would you do if Elvis Presley called and asked you for a date?

Mrs Oberg: - Mr Oberg might not understand!

Beverly C: - I'd tell him to call Sharleen.

Sharleen S. - I'd tell him "No". (I don't know what excuse I'd give but I could think of something-)

Sharon B - I'd hang up the phone and run!

Candace C. - I wouldn't go with him. (I read in an article that he treats his dates to hamburgers for lunch and I get tired of hamburgers!)

Mardell S. - I'd fall over!

Karen C. - I would just flip. Although I'd probably like to go, I wouldn't because -- well, because!

Miriam H. - I'd tell him to call Jo and see if he had any luck.

Janice S. - If I received a phone call stating it was Elvis Presley asking me for a date I'd jump to the conclusion it was one of my classmates playing a joke on me but considering the fact it was supposedly Elvis Presley I would say "No thank you. I'm busy tonight."

Myrna B. - I would tell him to call back later that I would have to ask "Daddy" first!

Joyce T. - I'd tell him I was busy.

Roselea R. - I'd go out to paint the town red. I'd also tell him "Don't Be Cruel" and "Love Me Tender".

Marcella N. - I don't know.

Sherryle C. - I'd accept and tell him thanks for asking me.

Roranne B. - I'd tell him no!

Elaine J. - I'd tell him no because I am afraid I would step on his "Blue Suede Shoes".

Joyce L. - I'd tell him thanks for asking but that I was busy.

Cozette L. - I'd push down the button and get us cut off and when he called back I would have a good excuse ready and waitin'!

Maurine J. - I'd hang up!

TEACHER INTERVIEW

The Klemme High School Home Ec Department is blessed with the presence of Miss Mavis Whitmire who graduated from Grundy Center High School and continued her education by attending Iowa State Teacher's College and Simpson College. Her previous teaching experience was obtained at Kensett, Dunkerton and Chelsea.

Miss Whitmire has traveled to Washington, D C, New York, Chicago, and the state of California. The climate in California was okay for a short time but would soon grow tiresome, Miss Whitmire stated.

It seems the piggies better run, because on the top of Miss Whitmire's list of favorite foods is pork chops. An enjoyable evening would be spent viewing an historical novel in the form of a motion picture while munching on popcorn, or reading a book by Thomas Costain.

As might be gathered by her career, Miss Whitmire enjoys sewing to a great extent and is capable of doing some designing.

When asked about her pet peeve, Miss Whitmire stated she was conscious of many, one being when a waitress fails to serve malts at the same time hamburgers are brought forth.

We decided that all teachers must tire of trying to pound knowledge through iron skulls so we inquired on information pertaining to a secret ambition. Miss Whitmire dreams of the forthcoming day when she can afford to travel on an ocean liner enroute to India or China.

Good luck Miss Whitmire and may your dreams come true.

There's Always a Murder

"We recommend heartily 'There's Always a Murder' for those who like to clutch their seat. We found the play completely absorbing . . . . it held our interest throughout. Based on a real murder case, the story sticks close to facts . . . . with a new ending which is completely ingenious."

Gotham Life, N. Y.

"A psychological murder mystery, 'There's Always a Murder' by Ken Parker . . . . is pleasing. The author succeeds in building up suspense enough to bring you to the edge of your seat . . . . The play is about newlyweds who rent an apartment and then get worried about the previous occupant. There's a sliced cold corpse hidden in a bag to help bring on the chills. The young people discover clues leading to the murder's solution and the plot winds up in a true whodunit fashion."

Wall St. Journal, N. Y.

The Junior Class, Klemme High School, will present "There's Always a Murder" on October 26 at 8:00 p m. Tickets are now on sale for the play. Be sure not to miss "There's Always a Murder".

As we entered KHS this morning, somebody was in the hall with the usual, "What's the trick? . . . What? . . . Come on, cut it out!" We recognized the voice as that of Arthur James Carlson, better known as "Artie Carle" or "Art". Artie was on one of his usual rampages of story telling. We didn't quite recognize it as "Little Bo Peep" or "Ape Call", so we paid close attention and found that it was his life story. This is our interpretation of what he said:

Artie first started using his powerful lungs at Mercy Hospital in Mason City on November 16, 1939. The state of Iowa rejoiced when Art moved to the state of Wisconsin at a very young age.

As the old saying goes, "Turn about is fair play", so when Art moved back to Iowa in the fifth grade, it was Wicsonsin's turn to have a horse laugh.

As the years passed, the Iowa State Board of Education was forced to give Artie his diploma from eighth grade. His high school years have consisted of ridiculing teachers, bothering underclassmen, and being a general all-around nuisance. In his spare time he tries to play first chair trombone in band and small group. Mrs Whitney is constantly trying to keep him quiet in boys' chorus, mixed chorus, and mixed quartet.

By voting for himself, Artie was elected president of his clsss when he was a freshman. He also represented the junior class on the student council, and pushed himself into being editor of the Shamrock in his senior year. When Artie was a sophomore and a junior (probably because the judges were impressed by his jokes) he was selected to play in the All-State band.

Artie tries his best to make his voice sound right in the Methodist Church choir and is an officer in the MYF. We understand he was elected just to keep him from complaining.

As a favorite pastime, Artie says he enjoys listening to his Stan Kenton albums, featuring June Christy on the vocal, but by observing his actions and size, we would say it looks as if he more enjoys eating his favorite foods which are steak, mashed potatoes and gravy.

Next fall, we're afraid the State University of Iowa will have Artie on their hands. He plans to major in music and minor in science or math. The cheering section of SUI basketball team will be trioled in volume when Artie offers his assistance.

Artie's secret ambition is to play trombone for Stan Kenton. Our personal opinion is that this ambition will fall through.

Now that we have looked at Artie's life and his many faults, we are forced to admit that we see a very capable and dependable person. He ranks at the top of his class and is well liked by his fellow students.

As we left Artie, his last comment was "Don't take any wooden nickels!" and then he added, "They might be tender but they aren't legal."

P. S. We might add that Art's most embarassing moment was when he proof read this article.

BACKFIRE

"I have always said the poor were welcome in this church," said the minister, "and I see by the collections the past few Sundays that they have come."

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

The old sheet that draped from his thin shoulders was marked with small black blotches where his tears had touched the cheap dye of the mask he wore.

He was the smallest and youngest of the "older" boys in the block and sometimes the gang came to pick him up and sometimes it didn't. Tonight—Halloween night—the gang hadn't come.

Just then, a thunder of fists at the door made him leap up, his tears forgotten. "The gang's here, Ma," he screamed and raced out of the house.

When his mother came to close the door she knew her "Don't do anything mean" was lost on the small figure in the flopping sheet disappearing into the darkness down the street.

For an hour the small boy worked hard to keep up with the gang that stormed around the neighborhood. He had gone out to scare the world but he was scared himself, sometimes, by the darkness and stories of the night.

He was standing a little to the rear, watching the gang creep up to the windows of a house, when he heard a step behind him. He turned to see the big, black shadow of a man. A gruff voice shouted, the gang yelled and started to run and he ran too, and he was afraid.

The small boy felt the hard street beneath him. He felt the violent tug of the sheet as it caught beneath his feet. A shattering light seemed to break in his head as he fell. He heard a scream that didn't come from the gang. He saw the headlights of the car.

East Hancock Community Chest Campaign For 1956

HOW TO FIGURE YOUR FAIR SHARE

No one can tell you what your fair share is. Only your heart and your conscience can do that. But, here is a test that may be helpful.

Community Chest Arithmetic

Select some amount—tentatively—as a possible gift for the year. Then do these things to see how big—or how small—that contribution really is. Say you select $25. Divide it by 52 and you've got a weekly contribution of 48c. Divide that 48c by nine or eleven as the case may be, representing each of the participating agencies in the community chest. Your pledge thus means approximately a nickel each week for each agency.

THE BUDGET

Each of the nine or eleven member agencies of the Community Chest submits a complete budget of its estimated income and expenses and a request for the amount it will need from the Chest for the coming year, (remember two of these agencies are peculiar to Garner alone — when we refer to eleven agencies). This is studied by a committee of seven representative citizens who know the kind of work the agency does and who are familiar with the community needs. This group recommends the amount of money this agency needs, and sends its report to the Board of Directors of the Community Chest. The allotment of each agency must be approved finally by the Chest's Board of Directors.

All agencies in the Chest are worthy — and that is why they are included, if you have any other solicitations — the Board of Directors of the Chest ask that you request such solicitors to make proper application to the Executive Secretary of the Chest.

Snowsuit Season Ahead—

Look to Wear and Care Features

No matter how hard the kiddies play, or how dirty they get, you can wash their snowsuits of nylon or cotton. Dry right side in automatic dryer, then turn inside out and dry lining. Suit will dry evenly.

* * *

You can save money, time and energy when you buy a snowsuit for your child. Wise buymanship and good laundry practices are the saving devices.

A snowsuit is probably the most expensive garment you'll buy for your child, so of course, you expect him to wear it longer—2 or 3 years—than any other piece of clothing. Then you might expect a younger son or daughter to wear the same suit for awhile longer.

When you shop for a snowsuit, look for "grow features." Clothing specialists at Iowa State College say a two-pieec suit is more practical than a one-peice suit because it's more adjustable to growth. You can interchange two pair of snow pants with a two-piece outfit. The jacket can be worn separately too. Raglan sleeve styling will allow shoulder growth. Also, a jacket with raglan sleeves is easier to put on over a sweater than a jacket having set-in sleeves. It's more comfortable too.

ZIPPER CLOSING BEST

Elasticized waistlines in both jacket and pants will allow for growth. If the jacket or pants have belts, they should be stitched to the garment and have a fastener that your child can manage himself. Loose belts are hard to handle and are often lost.

Your child should be able to get in and out of his snowsuit by himself after he's had a little practice. A zipper center front closing is the easiest for a child to use. And you won't have to worry about which side the buttons are on when it comes time to pass down the suit to the next boy or girl.

Look for knitted wristlets and knitted anklets with zipper closings that keep cold winter air out. You'll find snowsuit care easier if you choose a garment that has the collar made of the same fabric as the suit. Trousers with a bib in front provide extra warmth. Look for adjustable cloth suspenders.

Consider the pros and cons of snowsuit fabrics too. A snowsuit of a wind and water resistant wool having a nylon-wool blend lining is very warm and serviceable. However, wool snowsuits have to be dry-cleaned. This year you'll see more suits of nylon and of cotton. Good-quality wool or nylon suits cost about the same. Cotton suits run slightly lower in price.

Nylon suits of a good quality keep a nice appearance longer than a suit made of cotton poplin. Be sure to check the fiber content of lining and interlining when you buy. They help determine how it will wash. When you buy a nylon suit, look for an all-nylon or Orlon lining and interlining. These fabrics are durable, washable, and dry quickly.

Cotton poplin snowsuits probably won't wear as well as wool or nylon suits. And they are likely to fade a little during washing. You'll find poplin suits that have synthetic blend linings.

TIP FOR DRYING

Nylon and cotton snowsuits are washable. Both require the same amount of washing time to get clean. Wash them in warm water. If you have an automatic dryer, here's a tip on drying them: Dry for 10 minutes at warm setting. Then turn the garment and repeat. Take the suit out of the dryer and place it on a hanger to finish. This vay the garment tends to dry evenly throughout, and of course it needs no ironing.

When you choose a snowsuit of cotton, or nylon or wool, you have to weigh the values of care time against the cost of dry-cleaning, as well as the original purchase price. Don't forget the importance of "grow features". The comfort and convenience of the suit can make a big difference to your child.

What put the magic in the new kind of FORD?

The new Ford Fairlane 500 (118-inch wheelbase). Longer, lower, larger than many medium-priced cars, yet lower in price than most of them!

Here's what put the magic in the new kind of FORD!

It started with the "Inner Ford." When Ford planned this baby, they thought in terms of a car through-and-through new.

The wheels got smaller. This Ford is so new that even the wheels have changed. Now smaller and broader, they help you take off quickly.

The wheelbase got longer . . . so now you can choose between a Ford that's over 16 ft. long—or one over 17 ft. long!

The frame got wider. Side rails bow out to give a more stable, safer riding platform . . . a lower, sleeker silhouette.

The ride got smoother. With new suspension, new springing front and rear, the ride this new Ford gives is the smoothest ever.

The handling got easier. Poised and balanced like a panther, this car has swept-back front suspension that works its magic when you need it most.

The power got hotter. There's a wide range of Silver Anniversary V-8's to fit every horsepower need* . . . plus a new Mileage Maker Six.

"Six or V-8 the going is great"

The roof got lower. And it's designed to let you make the easy entries and graceful exits you've always known.

The body got quieter. It's the strongest body built for a low-priced car. No car in Ford's field has such generous sound-proofing.

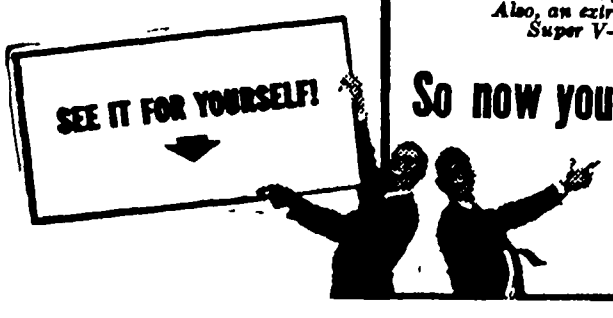
The room got bigger. There's head room to spare for a tycoon-type hat. There's real stretch-out leg room, too.

The lines got sweeter. They have the Touch of Tomorrow. Each graceful contour says, "Let's go!"

The style got smarter. With this new-look Ford you have a car that belongs anywhere! All Fairlane models look like hardtops.

The value got greater . . . the price is still Ford-low.

A Special 270-hp Thunderbird 312 Super V-8 engine available at extra cost. Also, an extra-high-performance Thunderbird 312 Super V-8 engine delivering up to 285 hp.*



So now you know the magic of the '57 FORD!

A REAL BOOST TO FARM INCOME

One of the steady customers of Iowa farmers is the brewing industry, which uses huge amounts of agricultural grains in the making of beer.

In fact, the nation's brewing industry last year spent over $250,000,000 for such farm products. This would fill 47,000 freight cars . . . making a train which would reach from Des Moines well past Indianapolis. And, of all these cereal adjuncts used in beer, corn leads the list . . . which also includes soybeans, wheat, barley, and other grains. Later, many of these brewers' grains benefit Iowa farmers again, coming back as vitamin-enriched cattle feed.

Yes, Iowa farm income receives a real lift from the brewing industry, with a steady volume of purchases that can always be counted on.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

Only sixteen more days in which to make sure that you have a gift for everyone you have on your Christmas gift list!

One of these years we are going to do our Christmas shopping early. Usually we wait until the last minute, get caught in a rush of last minute shoppers, have trouble finding what we want, and find that our enjoyment of the season is somewhat dulled by the last minute pressure.

If we could just think far enough ahead, we could have our shopping completed early in the season, for the local stores constantly carry merchandise on their shelves that would serve admirably for Chrismas gifts. Of course they stock up with extra gift merchandise for the Christmas season, and from our excursions up and down the street in search of ads, we would say that there is a wide selection of gifts available and shopping should be easy right here in the old home. town.

Those who have in the past attended the Legion feather parties will tell you that a real good time is in store for those who attend this year's party. It will be held in the grade school basement at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, December 13th.

Last basketball season, both Iowa U and Iowa State College had extra good basketball teams. This season, it looks as though Iowa State will be fully as good as they were last year . . . . and probably better. They have their whole lineup back,. while poor Iowa U lost it's starting five. Maybe "Bucky" will bring his new team at the University along before the season ends, but judging from the shellacking they took at Nebraska, Monday night, he has quite a ways to bring them.

Too bad that Iowa State is going to be faced with "Wilt the Stilt" Chamberlain in the Big Seven Conference this year. He is just unbelievable, he's so good, and he will probably be good enough to keep Kansas on top in the conference this year, even though Iowa State does have a good team.

We were at the school house Tuesday evening to take pictures of the school board for the school annual. When we put in our appearance, Herman Schmidt informed us that we were no doubt going to have a broken camera before we finished the job. For awhile we thought he was right. We had taken one picture of the group, and when we took the second, the flash bulb exploded. Sounded just as though someone had fired a shotgun in the room.

First one that ever exploded for us, and although we knew it could happen, we were mighty surprised. There were a few surprised expressions on the faces of the board members, too. Five, to be exact.

If you were tuned to WOI TV at Ames last Friday night you would have seen and heard Hancock County Representative Curtis G Riehm taking part in a discussion on the pros and cons

Stress Importance of Voting in Referendum

One of two corn price support and acreage programs will be put into effect next year. That fact makes it important for each Hancock County corn producer to vote in the Corn Referendum, December 11, declares Paul Henderson, county extension director.

There is no third choice, he points out. The referendum is to determine only whether the Soil Bank corn base acreage program or the acreage allotment program will be in force.

For that reason, stresses Henderson, each corn producer should study the proposals, determine which will be more advantageous, and vote for that program December 11.

He adds that anyone who grew or had title to corn grown in 1956, either as a tenant or farm owner, is considered to be a corn producer. As such, he is eligible to vote in the referendum.

Henderson says that Carl Malone, Iowa State College farm economist, reminds farmers that if the Soil Bank corn base program is approved by two-thirds or more of the voters, the corn base in the commercial corn producing counties in the nation in 1956 will be 51 million acres. There will be no corn acreage allotments. Farmers will qualify for price by staying within their share of the national corn base acreage and taking part in the Soil Bank program. The national corn loan rate would average $1.31 per bushel on the 1957 crop. Each year a rate would be determined by the U S Secretary of Agriculture.

If more than ⅔ of those voting, vote for the acreage allotment proposal, that program will be in effect. An allotment of 37.3 million acres will be granted to the total of commercial corn producing counties. The national corn loan rate would be $1.36 per bushel on the 1957 crop.

Malone says that voting itself does not obligate a producer to plant within his allotment or soil bank corn base in 1957. But voting does give the producer a chance to say which of the proposed programs he prefers, emphasizes Malone.

Information concerning details of the two programs being offered in the referendum is available for study at the county extension office, adds Henderson.

Officers Training School at Garner

My function as an officer, parlimentary procedure and recreation were the important points stressed at the officer's training school held in Garner on November 23rd. The information received by these local club officers will enable them to carry out a better local club program.

The boys and girls county 4-H officers: LaVohn Josten, president; Bonnie Eckels and Larry Greiman, vice president; Sharleen Swanson and Dick Christianson, secretary-treasurer; Esther Edwards, historian; Don Kopacek, reporter; and Ilene Rockow and Richard Eliason, recreation, were in charge of the meeting with assistance from the extension personnel.

Local club officers, it is your responsibility to help your club carry out a better 4-H program this year.

Local Post Office To Be Open Extra Hours Before Christmas

Postmaster Franklin Kluckhohn announced today that in order to facilitate the Christmas mailing, the Klemme post office will temporarily discontinue normal closing hours at noon during the period December 15 through December 24, and will remain open all day from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. including Saturday afternoons, December 15 and December 22.

Patrons were urged to make their Christmas mailings early. Cards and parcels for distant states should be deposited well in advance of December 15, to assure delivery before Christmas. "Do not open before Christmas" or similar notation may be placed on the outside of these parcels. It was also suggested that cards and parcels should be deposited as early in the day as possible, preferably during the morning hours

Mr Kluckhohn stated that unsealed Christmas greeting cards that do not contain a personal message are mailable at 2c each. Holiday greeting cards prepaid at 3c an ounce, however. may contain writing, may be sealed and will be forwarded or returned without charge.

Local and out of town labels will again be distributed by the post office requesting the assistance of boxholder patrons to sort and bundle Klemme mail from out of town mail.

In concluding the Postmaster pointed out that other potsal services available were air mail, air mail parcel post, certified mail, special handling; special delivery, registered mail, C O D; insurance and money orders.

KGLO Trip Winners Return from Chicago

4-H members and leaders returned home after spending an enjoyable time in the big city of Chicago. Most of the group was pretty tired out when the train pulled into the station, but general opinion indicated they would like to go again if they had a chance. All had wonderful time.

The biggest share of the time was spent touring the city and other places of interest. Some of the highlights were as follows:

The Board of Trade seemed more like a mad scramble to most of the group. The tour of the city seemed to stir up a lot of conversation. The group saw Skit Row, Maxwell Street, The Gold Coast, China Town and many other interesting places. They also spent a few hours in the Museum of Science and Industry, Shedd Aquarium, Field Museum and the Planetarium. One could go on and on with other places of interest, but it is impossible to even really begin in such an article.

If you wish to know more about the trip, why not corner one of the trip winners. You may want one of them to speak at your club meeting. I am sure they all could come forth with a number of interesting experiences.

CAPITOL LETTER

(Weekly news release of the Iowa Press Association. The material contained herein does not necessarily conform to the editorial policy of this newspaper.)

SURPRISE APPOINTMENT

First appointment for Herschel Loveless, Democratic governor-elect, is the naming of Dr Robert Johnson, associate professor of economics at the University of Iowa, as the governor's executive assistant.

Johnson has been serving on the Iowa Taxation Study Committee for the last two years and helped with most of the writing of the lengthy report of the group. Johnson was named to the committee by Governor Hoegh.

Observers say there is no doubt but what Johnson can be of valuable assistance to Loveless, and his background on taxation and education matters should be most valuable.

Republicans, especially those in the legislature, are distrubed over the appointment. They are wondering whether Johnson will attempt to influence the governor, and others, against some of the recommendations made by the taxation committee.

In the position, Johnson will succeed Paul Parker, who quit the office last week, prior to taking a job with General Mills corporation in Minneapolis. The job pays $9,000 a year. Johnson took a leave of absence from his university chores to serve with Loveless.

LIQUOR DRIVE

Atty Gen Dayton Countryman, with six state agents at his disposal, is scouring the state this month—final in office for Countryman, for liquor law violators.

Countryman got the agents by submitting a formal requisition from them, through a "demand" served by the county sheriff's office, on the commissioner of public safety.

Veteran observers report that Countryman is the first attorney general in many years who has used this method of getting agents.

PAY RAISES

The state executive council has okayed pay raises for engineers on the Iowa highway commission. The request for raises came from the commission. The salary hikes will range from $120 to $1,200 a year.

Biggest increases will go to 17 deputy engineers and division heads. Their maximum salaries were increased to $12,000 a year. The $120 a year boosts will go to those in the lower classifications of engineers.

The highway commission said the raises are needed to keep employees from going to private industry or to other state commissions.

SUPER HIGHWAYS

First stretches of four lane super-highways built in Iowa under the federal program will be built near four large cities—Des Moines, Sioux City, Council Bluffs, Davenport.

The Iowa highway commission reports that 147.6 miles in super-highway contracts will be let as part of the state program next year.

Iowa has 703 miles in the federal interstate system including highway 6, highway 69 and highway 75 and 275.

The 1957 state highway program total $116,545,000—biggest in the state's history.

IN SHORT SUPPLY

While there's been lots of talk about the Iowa Taxation Study Committee report the official printed word on the subject is hard to find. The reports are in short supply.

State Sen X T Prentis said only 150 copies of the bulky report have been printed so far, though plans are in the mill for additional copies.

There have been so many requests for the copies that Prentis has asked members of the tax committee to loan their copies out temporarily to persons who should really have a peek at the material. The governor's own copy is out on loan.

When the supply is adequate the printed copies will be available for $1 each.

WILSON DIES

A veteran state official, William B Wilson, 59, director of the barber division, died. Wilson, who died suddenly of a coronary occlusion, had served under four Republican governors.

Born in Missouri he had lived in Des Moines 37 years.

ASK 5 CHANGES

The Iowa District Court Judges Association at its annual meeting, has recommended five changes in the state's criminal laws. They are:

Persons charged with a criminal offense be given a mental examination if they request it; the dividing line between petty larceny and grand larceny be changed to $50 from $20; elimination of a one-year penitentiary sentence as a penalty for persons convicted of a second offense "driving while intoxicated"; penalty for larceny from a person in robbery be reduced from 15 to 12 years' imprisonment and the penalty for robbery be raised from 10 to 15 years; county jail prisoners serving three month terms be allowed time off for good behavior.

ELECTION PROTEST

Steven B Carter, Leon, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for congress in the fourth district filed a notice of intent to contest the reelection of Karl LeCompte, Corydon Republican incumbent. Carter lost to LeCompte by less than 2,000 votes.

Carter's notice said among other things, that prelminary "investgations have revealed many violations and instances of misconduct and fraud on the part of the election officials.

He contends there are errors in all precincts of all counties in that district.

MAKES INSPECTION

Gov-Elect Herschel Loveless, with an Iowa delegation of about 25 business and profes sional people, made an inspection visit of the U S Air Force Academy at Denver, Colorado.

The air reserve center in Des Moines sponsored the trip in which the men were transported by air force plane.

Nancy Enockson, 13 year old Plover girl, was strangled to death last month when her scarf became entangled in a pump jack.

EDITORIAL

About this time everywhere in the United States the cities become crowded with people hurrying down sidewalks, rushing through stores and running madly around. The streets and store windows take on a new appearance. They become decorated in greens and reds and other bright colors. Fat, jolly Santa Clauses and candy canes hang everywhere. Live Santas inhabit all the department stores. On one corner of a street there is a stand with a little bell ringing, catching the attention of the shopper to csontribute to some worthy cause. Across the street on another corner is a big Christmas tree gaily decorated with bright, shining ornaments.

We see the people pushing, shoving and crowding on and on, looking, choosing and buying. To me these people for the most part, have completely lost the Christmas feeling. Sometimes I wonder if no gifts were exchanged or if no Santa would come down the chimney at night, we all might find true happiness and maybe remember the real meaning of Christmas.

It is getting so that Christmas is a big day for festivities and for gifts. There is no real love in giving a present anymore. It is just a gift for a gift. It seems to be an American novelty to give presents, not out of love or admiration, but just to keep up a social standing.

Think! What would the world be like if there was no love when God gave Christ so many years ago, on the first Christmas night? Think of the change of the first Christmas one thousand nine hundred fifty-six years ago and the first three humble gifts to the bustling Christmas of 1956.

So on this Christmas Day, stop and think. Think what the real meaning of Christmas is and what it should mean to you deep in your heart.

TEACHER INTERVIEW

This week we interviewed the music instructor of Klemme High School, Mr Charles DeForest Whitford.

Mr Whitford was born in Spooner, Wisconsin on September 6, 1923. He attended College at Superior State Teachers College in Wisconsin for two years and then after serving Uncle Sam in the Army Air Corps, he transferred to the University of Minnesota where he finished his college education.

Mr Whitford's favorite song, he told us, is Brahms Symphony No. 4, and his favorite orchestra is the New York Philharmonic. (Just like a music teacher). His favorite food is T-bone steak which he enjoys eating while he is watching his favorite TV program which is "Playhouse 90" Another of his favorite pastimes is going to a movie starring Gary Cooper and Doris Day. His favorite movie is "Battle Cry". Mr Whitford also enjoys playing chess very much. (Any takers?)

For a pet peeve, Mr Whitford say it is people who don't pay attention. His most most embarassing moment is connected with bawling out the wrong person in band. The band members will agree that his favorite saying is, "Will you please keep quiet?"

He also told us that his future plans were to retire on a couple million.

K H S Band News

The month of November has been quite filled with musical events.

On November 7th, the Klemme band under the direction of Mr Whitford, played a concert at Ventura in the morning and a concert at Franklin Consolidated in the afternoon. We had a good time during the day but it was a strenuous day for Mr Whitford. At Ventura we had some extra time so the school let us dance in one of their rooms. After a fine lunch at Ventura we went to Franklin. Since the report cards were to be handed out at Klemme at the end of the last period of school, the bus drivers thought we should return as early as possible after playing the concert at Franklin. That was the climax of a fine day.

On November 21, the Lakeland College Band directed by Professor Thiessen, played a concert for the school. Art Carlson, Virginia Kudje and Val Stromer played one march with the band. The concert was really enjoyed by the school.

November 23 and 24, Arthur Carlson, Virginia Kudje, and Val Stromer went to Des Moines to play in the All-State Band. There were 275 in the band which was made up of students all over Iowa. It was an experience that won't be forgotten. We hope that next year more can go from Klemme's band.

The Ventura band directed by Marion Sherer gave an exchange concert at Klemme, November 28. Their approximately 60 piece band gave a very nice concert which included several selections by their dance band, singing by a double mixed quartet group, and a piano solo played by Linda Coe accompanied by the band.

Franklin Consolidated School band played their exchange concert at Klemme November 29. Directed by Dick Temple, the band numbers near 80 members. They should be congratulated for having such a well balanced band which has a representation of more instruments than many bands of near by schools.

SENIOR INTERVIEW

A noted astronomer decided to survey all persons born March 20, 1940, because according to the stars, this was a lucky day, on which to be born. In Klemme, Elmer John Howard was interviewed.

The astronomer wanted to know what a perfect day would be like for Elmer. He said it would be eating steak and potatoes while watching "The Bob Cummings Show" and "I Love Lucy" and later going to the show "Top Gun" or one which starred Ida Lupino and Alfred Hitchcock. Afterwards he would listen to records by Lawrence Welk and Elvis Presley

On such a perfect day, Elmer would like to avoid his pet peeve which is people who don't mind their own business. He would not want to repeat his most embarassing moment which was when he had a big date and his car wouldn't start. He told the astronomer he wanted to work on the farm and later join the service. That was all the astronomer wanted know. We'll let you decide whether it was a lucky day.

Seniors In Midst Of Work On Annual

If you should wonder what it is that makes some of the seniors bleary eyed and worn out looking, we can answer your question in one word. ANNUAL.

On October 20, pictures were taken of everything from basketball to band, shorthand to Mart playing tiddlely winks.

On Monday, Winola, Sharleen and Mart were gone all day selling advertisements. At present, Bob A, Keith, Marvalyn, Janice, Beverly, Fonda and Jim are working feverishly on the will and prophecy. The rest of us are trying to get them sold. If you would like to buy a '57 annual or even if you wouldn't like to buy one, let one of the seniors try to talk you into it. You will be glad you did. The annual this year sells for $2.25. Pay now and get yours in the spring. This will leave plenty of time for you to have your copy of the annual autographed by your friends, classmates, and teachers. The deadline for ordering annual is December 20, so get yours now!

Sixth Grade News

The sixth grade social studies completed the study of the The Near East last week. We formed eight groups and each group chose a country to tell about. The countries include Iran, Iraq, Israel, Jordon, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia Syria, and Turkey.

We used our bulletin board to exhibit our pictures and other articles, some of which had come directly from these countries.

We choose Mrs Whitney as our guest. She was very interested in our summary of these countries becauses her sister is working in Saudi Arabia at the present time.

By Bob Hullihan

The things a man leaves behind him are usually inherited by those who are close to him. Too many persons have inherited things on our highways that had none of the real or sentimental value the term implies.

Take the case of the motorist who one morning a few winters ago was following a semi-trailer truck approaching an Iowa town. The highway was covered with a thin layer of fresh snow. Beneath the snow were ice patches left by a previous storm.

Though the driver was almost home, he decided to pass the truck. He went around leaving behind him a trail of swirling snow that temporarily blinded the truck driver.

Then our motorist decided—sensibly, but much too late—that he was driving too fast for road conditions. He took his foot off the gas and his car slowed down abruptly.

The big semi came on from behind through the snow cloud. The driver could not see that the car ahead had slowed down so suddenly until he was almost on top of it. He had to hit the air brakes sharply on that snow and ice.

That was enough to jack-knife the truck. The trailer slid across the left side of the highway and an approaching bus hit it head-on. The engine of the bus was driven back even with the front axle.

The driver who created the accident situation was untouched by the violent crash. Those who had been close to him on the highway inherited the tragedy of his mistake. He left behind one man who lost both legs, 12 other injured persons and thousands of dollars in property damage.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

HOGS

Federally inspected hog slaughter continues slightly behind a year ago, following a late summer and early fall period when it was about equal to last year, says Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist.

Kutish predicts that hog slaughter during the next few months will remain lower than last year because of the fewer pigs farrowed late last spring. He believes hog prices aren't too far from their seasonal low. Winter and spring prices, however, should be enough above year ago levels to make hogs a relatively profitable venture.

And, the hog-corn ratio should be good in much of the Corn Belt this winter. In barley areas outside the Corn Belt, it is favorable now. This situation should encourage increased pig farrowings, although the question remains as to how soon the increase will begin. Kutish thinks it will start in late spring or early summer. At any rate, the farmer with the early pigs will do best in 1957, say Kutish.

CATTLE

A brief look at the cattle situation shows that feeder shipments into the Corn Belt continue greater than a year ago. October shipments were up 14 percent over last year, and the total for the 4 months from July through October was up 37 percent.

Good profits this summer and fall, plus lots of low-cost feed in much of the Corn Belt are responsible for this,, says Kutish.

Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

This is one of those times . . . nothing comes to mind to write about in this column for this week . . . a situation that requires that we get our typewriter and start pounding away . . . hoping that something will start the ball to rolling.

Speaking of rolling balls, the one used is the Sheffield game Tuesday evening must have rolled the right way for the Shamrocks . . . and after giving them a terrific scare.

Which reminds us that ice on the roads can give you some real thrills and scare you plenty. If you don't think so, get a little careless with your break pedal when you're driving on ice . . . or be driving along minding your own business and then pop out from behind a grove into a good cross wind . . . or over control a bit with the steering wheel . . . or meet somebody that starts to skid a little just about the time you get to him . . . or do the skidding act yourself.

Best way to drive on ice is don't . . . unless it's absolutely necessary.

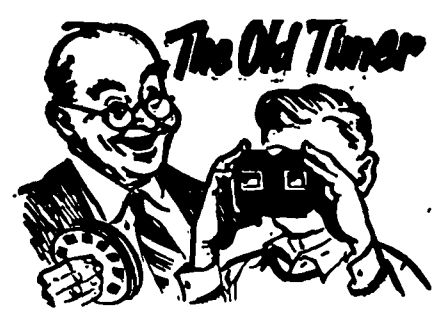
My Neighbors

"Hey, Mom! You remember that pillow that was missing?"

Then there was the army rookie who, while the rest of the boys were happily decorating the barracks for Christmas, said sourly. "Phooey on Santa Claus. Twenty years ago I asked him for a soldier suit—and NOW I get it!"

Now that winter weather has been with us for awhile we can see what Roy Gardner of the Sioux Center News meant when he said, "Fall is that season of the year when tans turn to white the greens to brown, or gold, and the fuel bills red . . . in the family ledger."

If you are worried about having to shovel the snow that is falling today . . . . just think back to last summer when you were furnishing the horse power for that lawn mower on one of those 90 in the shade days. At least when you shovel snow the sweat doesn't gather in your eyebrows and then overflow onto your glasses. Still, think we'd rather mow, try and beat the heat and fight mosquitoes.



"The time to start arranging to have pleasant memories when you're old—is when you're young!"

November Was Dry; Temperatures Normal

November 1956 went into the record as a comparatively dry month with normal temperatures, according to Earl Henschen, custodian at the Hancock county courthouse, who keeps a weather log. The average temperature for the month just ended was 33.69 as compared with 26.74 for the same month last year.The maximum average for the month was 42.27 degrees while the minimum average was 25.10 degrees. The highest temperature recorded during the month was 64 degrees on November 3, and the coldest weather came on November 23 and 24 when the mercury dipped to 8 above on both days. A year earlier the high was 62 and the low was a minus 1.

Precipitation during the month just ended totaled 1.48 inches with the heaviest amount recorded in the twenty four hour period ending at 7 a. m. on the morning of November 21, when .37 of an inch fell. Six inches of snow fell during the month on four different days with a trace recorded on another day. A year ago; November was very dry with only .23 of an inch of precipitation during the entire month.

Fourteen days were listed as cloudy and partly cloudy and sixteen days were listed as fair. The relatively mild temperatures enabled farmers to do much late fall plowing and the precipitation was ideal for meadows and pastures. The snow which fell on November 21; has practically disappeared with the milder temperatures at the end of the month and the first two days of December.

Mrs. Max Goldman Spoke at Methodist WSCS General Meeting

Mrs Max Goldman, Titonka, wife of the Rev Mr Goldman, Methodist pastor. was guest speaker Thursday afternoon at theh W. S. C. S. general meeting in the Methodist Church. Ladies of the Klemme Reformed Church and the Liberty Methodist Church were guests. About 135 women were in attendance.

Mrs Goldman's topic was "Many Rooms in the Inn." She compared the rooms in the inn to the different rooms within our hearts. By opening the doors to these rooms we would be better persons, have a better community and we would all be much happier. It is what is in the hearts of people that counts, so she said, "Do not keep it behind closed doors."

Mrs Goldman is the daughter of an American father, an English professor in Japan, and a Japanese mother. During her childhood she lived in Japan where she was sent to a mission school, but later on she attended high school and college in this country.

She was graduated from Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass. Mrs Goldman met her husband in the United States.

All who were privileged to listen to Mrs Goldman's excellent talk are deeply appreciative of the opportunity and will long remember what they have learned from her.

Since coming to this area, she has addressed church, civic, farm, school and social groups throughout Iowa and southeastern Nebraska.

The Goldmans have three children, Stuar Parker, 7; Candace 4 and Jennifer Sue 1.

Mrs Robert Johnson gave the devotions. The W. S. C. S. chorus under the direction of Mrs Bob Schulz, sang "Little Boy Jesus."

At the close of the program, lunch was served in the dining parlor. Mrs D P Anderson and Mrs Melvin Miller poured. The table was beautifully decorated in the Christmas theme. Everyone enjoyed the meeting and visiting with Mrs Goldman during the social hour.

Shamrocks Win Over Kanawha 77-58; Down Sheffield by One Point

Ventura and Hayfield Will Be Next Foes

After losses to Britt and Garner, the Klemme Shamrocks got back on the winning trail and took the measure of both Kanawha and Sheffield in games played during the past week.

Friday evening, they were hosts to the Kanawha Bulldogs and won going away. They jumped to a 19-7 lead by the end of the first quarter, were out in front 37-23 at the half, held a 59-41 edge at the end of the third period and won by 19 points, 77-58.

Martin Brinkman led the scoring for the locals with 34 points, while Nuehring posted 15, and Bob Larson 10. Hartwig was high for Kanawha with 15.

Tuesday evening, Sheffield furnished the opposition for the Shamrocks on the local floor, and the game was a thriller. Trailing by 13-15 at the end of the first period, the Shamrocks came back to lead 27-21 at the half. By the end of the third period, Sheffield made 21 points, while all that the Shamrocks could muster were five.

It was enough, though, to give the Shamrocks a mighty slim 56-55 victory.

Brinkman again led the scoring for the locals with 22 points while Nuehring had 16 and Larson 10. Rawson was the big gun for Sheffield and for the game with 25 points.

The Little Shamrocks disposed of the Kanawha reserves by a score of 41-35, with Larry Ulrich splitting the net for 14 points, and Chuck Bacon coming through with 10.

Aganist Sheffield, though, they didn't fare so well and lost their first game of the season. Final score was 47-32. Larry Ulrich and Roger Beier each managed 8 points for the local reserves, and Chuck Bacon contributed 7.

Next action for the Shamrocks will be at Ventura Friday night, December 14. Then on Tuesday night, December 18, they will be hosts to the Hayfield quintet.

PATROL SALARIES

An effort will be made in the next legislative session to increase the salaries of Iowa highway patrolmen.

State Safety Commissioner Clinton Moyer, in his budget askings for the next biennium included a $75 a month across the board increase for the patrol.

The legislative budget committee, which has been interviewing patrolmen for the last several weeks, reportedly is convinced salaries must be hiked. This committee, a powerful one in the legislature, may recommend that drivers' licenses be increased to help pay more wages to the patrol.

Hardship stories have been reported to the budget commitee by patrolmen who related financial struggles they are having trying to raise families within their wages. Patrolmen, unlike other state employees, are not permitted to take part-time work in order to bolster sagging salaries.

A starting patrolmen receives $275 a month, less deductions, while the maximum pay for a patrolman is $315.

TAXATION REPORT

Extra copies of the Iowa Taxation Study Committee report will be available later this month through the state Legislative Research Bureau. The two-part report will cost one dollar.

Right now copies of the report are so scarce that Committee Chairman X T Prentis has requested committeemen return their copies to him for loan to other officials.

BIG TURNOUT

Democratic officials were surprised by a whopping turnout of 1,200 persons for a $10-a-plate dinner honoring the party's newly elected governor, Herschel Loveless. It was one of the biggest Democratic turnouts in years.

Day before the dinner only 500 reservations had been made for the event. When the throng showed up all extra dining rooms and eating space in the Hotel Fort Des Moines had to be pressed into service.

LUND TRANSFER

Gerald Bogan, executive secretary of the Iowa Good Roads Association, in a Clarinda speech lauded the recent Iowa Taxation Study Committee report. At the same time he pointed out one major inconsistency in the report.

Bogan declared: "While a case is made for continuing the present level of taxation, the report recommends that the 10 percent of the sales tax currently going to the road use tar fund be transferred to the general fund.

"Such a proposal would hit hardest at the local secondary roads where there still are some 15,000 farm homes not served by an all-weather road as was the goal adopted in 1949. The committee proposed that the secondary fund be trimmed by $3,462,000 and the primary fund by $2,908,000 and the amount going to cities and towns be reduced by $553,930."

FIRE CHIEFS ELECT

Jesse G Hunter, Cedar Rapids fire chief, has been reelected president of the Iowa Fire Chief's Association. Gail Odem, Atlantic, was reelected vice-president and J A McElliott, Ryan, was named to another term as secretary-treasurer.

GUARDSMAN TO RETIRE

One of Iowa's outstanding soldiers—a man who enlisted as a private and rose to the rank of general in the National Guard, has asked retirement after 37 years of military service.

He is Brig Gen Carleton K Smith of Cedar Rapids. Smith is assistant division commander of the 34th Red Bull division of the Iowa-Nebraska National Guard.

General Smith's successor will be an Iowan because the top command position is currently held by a Nebraskan, Maj Gen Warren C Wood.

TRUCK TAXES

An Iowa State senator-elect Carl Ringgenberg, Ames Republican, told 50 highway officials from five midwest states:

"If we (the states) don't solve these (truck tax) problems the federal government is going to step in and take over."

The officials met in Des Moines to discuss the many-sided problem of highway taxation.

Another speaker, State Sen. Archie Miller of Hopkins, Minn., predicted the federal government will encroach on state rights in policing the interstate highways which will be built into the federal highway program, including those in Iowa.

NAVY QUEEN

A former Iowan, JoAnn Larson, 20, a native of Elkader, reigned as queen of the recent Army-Navy football game. She was the first girl to be chosen queen of the annual service game by the navy.

In previous years the Army always selected the presiding beauty.

ENGINERS ELECT

Sherman A Smith of Burlington is the first president of the newly organized Iowa Association of Consulting Engineers. Other officers include: Frank Pulley Des Moines, vice-president; Robert Rosene, Belmond, secretary-treasurer.

Directors are: M L Patzig, Jr, E F Behrens, Eugene H Davis and Paul A Walters, all of Des Moines; Robert Brice of Waterloo; Ralph H Wallace, Mason City.

LOVELESS TO HANDSHAKE

For the first time in years a Democrat will lead the inaugural reception line at the customary inauguration ceremonies next month in the Iowa statehouse.

Gov Elect Herschel Loveless, Ottumwa, said he plans to continue the policy of shaking hands with all those who desire to go through the reception line. There had been suggestions the reception line affair be eliminated. Two years ago Governor Hoegh stood in line some four hours shaking hands and accepting congratulatory greetings.

BETTER FARM OUTLOOK

An Iowa State College expert predicts Iowa farmers will make more money in 1957.

Francis Kutish, farm economist at Iowa State, said he based his prediction on the outlook for better hog prices and on soil bank paymemnts. He said he expects a rise in the national farm income of half a billion dollars, but said he didn't know how much of that would be in Iowa.

Kutish said hog prices will be better because there will be fewer hogs marketed. He said cattle prices would be better in the first half of 1957 but probably not as good the second half.

IOWAN NAMED

Gerald Bogan, executive secretary of the Iowa Good Roads Association, has been reelected secretary-treasurer of the National Good Roads Association, a 12-state organization. Bogan was reelected at the National convention in Atlantic City.

Earl Raun To Meet With 4-H Leaders

Earl Raun, extension entomologist, from Iowa State College will meet with the 4-H leaders of Hancock County on December 20 at 1:30 p. m. in the REA Building at Garner, to give them training in the 4-H special activity.

According to Ed Bruns, Youth assistant, Raun will give the leaders training on the Control of External Parasites of Livestock. Leaders will receive this training and additional material to take back to their local clubs.

Control of External parasites such as flies, lice, grubs, etc is one of definite importance. Some clubs are having "Dad Night" at the time the special activity material is presented so that dads can get some of this valuable information as well as the boys.

FIRE

A $17,000 fire destroyed a double garage and a barn on the Melvin Peterson farm near Forest City recently.

EDITORIAL

Many are the legends and traditions of Christmas around the world, many the quaint customs and beliefs. But through most of them run the spirit of festivity. charity and reverence we know here in America.

HOLLAND: The children wait for the gifts left them by Saint Nicholas early Christmas morn in return for the offerings they leave for him and his white horse.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA: The children wait for gifts from St Nick as he decends from a golden cord, led by an angel.

GERMANY: Toy giving has always been an important part of Christmas here, but the greatest contribution from Germany is the Christmas tree.

CHINA: The faithful, dressed in colorful costumes, parade through the streets, singing carols. Finally a burst of firecrackers announces the start of midnight mass for the faithful.

ENGLAND: The Yule Log is as British as the Union Jack. On Christmas eve, before the log is placed in the fireplace and lighted, each member of the family must sit on it and salute it, to assure good luck for the household during the coming year.

MEXICO: A quaint custom is the game of Pinta for the children. A large bag, filled with fruits and candy, must be broken open by one blindfolded. The children scramble for the gifts, keeping what they manage to get.

There is something fine and inspiring in the thought that we, here in America, observe our favorite customs before going to church for a midnight service, to celebrate the birth of Christ the king.—Sacred Heart High, Halletville, Texas.

SLOGANEERING

Antiseptic: Cleans the dirt and heals the hurt.

Dentifrice: A good paste in the mouth.

Ice: All its cracked up to be.

Fall Guy: Goat Between

Press Club: Where the wheels of the nation's press get oiled

Conceit: Self praiservation

Loan Shark: Let us see you through debt's door.

Plumber: We keep you in hot water.

Race Track: Where the windows clean the people.

Junior Leaguers: Heiresstocracy

Dead Issue

A life insurance company received the following letter from a backwoods woman: "Dere, sirs, Thar ain't no use in you sending any more of them notices to my husband about his life insurance. He cain't pay you. The pore man has been dead 3 months."

Junior English Themes

This week we heard that the juniors have been writing themes (Poor souls), so we decided to poke our noses into them to find some material for the Shamrock. We ran across a cute one by Chuck Bacon, entitled "Fishermen". Here it is:

Fishing is one of my favorite hobby.s Not only do I get a big bang out of catching fish but I also enjoy watching the different kinds of fishermen.

When we were out on the lake fishing a while back we heard a squeaking noise every so often. Sure enough! Here came grandpa rowing his way out to his favorite fishing hole. The boat was a wreck, but he managed to get out to his spot. He carefully crawled up to the front of the boat and dropped the anchor in very carefully so he wouldn't scare the fish. Getting out his old cane pole, putting on a worm and tossing it out in the water, and laying back, he took out a chew of tobacco and started chewing. He fished there the rest of the afternoon, only pausing enough to spit the old tobacco out and get a new chew.

Way off in the distance there was a motor putting along with a lot of yelling and swearing. Sure enough! Here came our old pals. They were feeling fine except for the fact that they had one too many to drink. Luckily they arrived safely, but one man felt adventurous and in trying to get the anchor out, he fell head long into the water. Fortunately, he grabbed the edge of the boat. They all started fishing, hooks and sinkers flying all over, finally settling down to fish, with a can of beer in one hand and a pole in the other.

Soon there was a big roar on the other side of the lake and in no time at all, there was a red and white boat circling in for a landing. Guess who? Our pal the city slicker who has lots of money. Finally he splashed in to a dead stop and looking around he decided to fish. Looking over a group of buttons, he pressed one and the anchor fell into the water. Satisfied, he looked over his fishing equipment which consisted of a twenty-five horse motor, two tackle boxes five fishing poles, sun glasses and all the extras. Time to fish. He got out one of the five fishing poles and put on an artificial crab. He then lit a ten dollar cigar got up and set a TV set in the front of the boat. Now he was ready to fish.

After watching all these fishermen, Dad and I decided to move on to a more quiet spot.

An Editor Speaks

In the past there have been many complaints about errors in the schoel newspare. Studints have griped about mispelled words, and lines out of place. Thehy have the wrong idea. The paper isn't printed to just give people a chance to find erorrs. Some people hunt with a find-tooth comb to spot erors which normally wouldn't be fond ina hundred ers.

Let us develop a better altitude. Don't look for the warst in everything when the good is so apairent. Coonerate with your paper stiff. They work hard We tie to please you. We just ask you to by the paper. So don't read the paper with just the thought in mind of sporting errors.—Tarrant, Ala.

Father, trying to explain to his young son the difference between the ordnary rifle and an automatic one: "It's as if I spoke and then your mother spoke."

Question of the Week

Do you think you should be able to check the new books out more than one week? Why or why not?

Jerry LaFavre: I think you should be able to sign them out as many times as you wish.

Marlin: I think you should be able to check them out two weeks just as the other books.

John A: I think that you should be able to check them out for two weeks.

Ronald B: I think that they should be checked out for two weeks.

Carroll P: Yes, because I think a person can't read them that fast.

Audrey: I think you should be able to read them in 2 weeks.

Lowell: Yes, because I can't read them in one week.

Chuck Bacon: Yes, because I can't read as fast as some of the "A" students.

Donna Carolus: Many people are slow readers but I can read a good book in a day.

Gordon Johnson: Yes, I can't read a book in one week because the teachers are pilin on too much work.

Donald Anderson: Yes, because I can't read a book in a week.

Lynn Huenemann: Yes, because with my few study halls, I can't get a book read in one week.

Candace Carlson: Yes, I don't have very much time with all the work. And I like to read!

Randall Langlitz: Yes, because it usually takes me longer than a week to read them.

Roger Sobek: Yes, because we can't read all the time and we have to work so hard. If the teachers wouldn't give us so much work so we could read, it would be okay for a week!

Art: Yes and no. Yes, because some of these books take more than a week to read with all the work we seniors have to do. No, because all the kids should have a chance to read them.

Beverly: I think the new ones should be only one week but for a slow reader, two weeks would probably be better.

Winola: I think they should be more than one week. Most of us don't have time to read them in a week.

Gary Lenz: I think it should be more than one week at the rate I read, I might have the first chapter done in a week.

Maurine Johnson: I think it should be at least two weeks. It takes me more than a week to get around to reading a book.

Elaine Eenhuis: I think it should be more than one week, because it takes me longer than a week to read a book.

Joann Beier: I think it would be better for me if you could check them out longer because I don't have much time to read.

Lois Hummel: I think we should be able to check them out for more than one week, because we don't have time to read with all our schoolwork.

Letters to Santa

Dear Santa,

I'm in the study hall finding out what the juniors want.

The juniors as a class would like some place to get some good themes so they wouldn't have to write them. They need special tutors for American History.

And now for some individual wants:

Jeanne wants an "A" in typing.

Donne wants her old boy friend back.

Betty wants a new boy friend.

Chuck would just love to have a package of kisses

Richard wants whatever is behind the "Green Door".

Rosalie wants one of Elvis Presley's side burns. She will leave the other one for someone else.

LaVohn wants an "A" in American history. (Doesn't everybody?)

Joyce Lassahnn wants "Nothing but a hound dog."

Mr Butler wants a "Pink Cadillac".

Elaine wants an "A" in shorthand.

Harlan B wants side burns like Elvis Presley.

Jon needs a new bus seat.

Paul G wants energy to type faster with less errors.

Gordon needs the ability to keep quiet in Mrs Oberg's class.

Douglass wants an apple to give to the teachers.

If you think this list is impossible to fill out, wait till you see my list for the sophomores next week.

BOYS' SPORTS NEWS

It seems since we lost 2 games and won 1, that we are working harder at practice. But I think in most minds of the basketball squad, that we have to win the conference again this year. The only way we can accomplish this is to start to think and really get down an play basketball. We think that if we once get on the winning side, we will keep winning. As far as the Britt and Garner games are concerned, they are of no importance to our conference. But they are important to each individual player and we think that we should win our share of the ball games. Come out and support the Shamrocks.

Hancock County Again Outstanding In Tax Collections

Hancock County has again topped the list with tax collections, and on December 1, 1956 we show tax collections amounting to 100.14% of the amount levied for the year.

Total amount to collect, $1,-33,306.25.

Collections to December 1, 1956, $1,936,041.48.

This percentage is explained in the fact that collections were very good and also there has been some added taxes and money and credit taxes not included in the levy.

This means that every school, corporation and township that asked for tax money will be paid the full amount they requested.

With all the collections and money taken in we still have very low balances and some warrants stamped "Not paid for want of funds". This is especially true of the poor fund, which shows $14,668.00 outstanding on which we are paying 4% interest until they can be called after collection of spring taxes in 1957.

This year we had a small number of unpaid taxes that had to be listed for tax sale on December 3rd, however most of them were paid before the date of the sale. This is not true on specials such as street oiling and curb and gutter. Some of these still remain unpaid and will draw penalty and interest until they are paid.

For the year 1955 we have had drainage collections amounting to $125,293.68 and this year has been a short year for drainage.

License fees for automobiles and trucks for the year 1956 amount to $169,210.10. Of this amount the county received $5,926.95 which goes to the County Fund and applies on the cost of operating the office of County Treasurer. The balance is sent to the State of Iowa.

The county in turn received from the State of Iowa $171,422.-00 in road use tax money. This amount goes to the Road Construction Fund for building new roads.

Collections and money handled in the County Treasurer's office have grown each year. It is really in the Big Business class and does require a lot of additional work.

Outlines Rules for Christmas Tree Safety

Don't overlook important steps in fire prevention when bringing your Christmas tree into the home, warns Extension Director Paul Henderson of Garner

Tree moisture evaporates rapidly at indoor temperatures. Consequently, the longer you keep the tree outdoors the longer it will retain its sap and green color. Trees that are kept as fresh and green as possible are not as apt to be set afire.

When the tree is ready to be brought into the home for trimming, Henderson advises cu ting 2 or 3 inches, diagonally, off the butt end and placing the tree in water. The water will partly compensate for increased evaporation at room temperatures.

Tree stands with compartments for providing water can be purchased at most local hardware stores. A homemade stand can be made by anchoring the tree in a waterproof bucket filled with coarse sand or gravel. Enough water should be added daily to keep the filler material saturated.

Henderson says that Norval Wardle extension safety specialist at Iowa State College, reports no reliable tests have been made which show that spray materials will adequately fireproof Christmas trees. Wardle warns that special decorations containing carbon tetrachloride have been sold as readily available fire extinguishers. Applying this liquid to heat or flames produces poisonous fumes which could become concentrated enough to be toxic to humans.

Henderson adds that the tree shouldn't be kept too long after Christmas. When the needles start to drop off, he tree is drying out and should be taken down. Also he advises using only Underwriter's Laboratories approved fixtures and decorations. The "U.L. Approved" seal should appear on both the fixture and the wire.

ward the use of sorghum grains in Iowa. The sorghum acreage could reach more than a million acres in Iowa by 1966, he said.

Dr Earl Heady, farm economist, said it is beginning to appear that a "millrun" type of managers can't make as much in farming, even with plenty of capital, as he can make in work off the farm. This, he said, is the indication of a recent study of farm and non-farm incomes. He suggested, top-flight managers will make a good return operating farms. He spoke of visiting a dairy farm in the Connecticut Valley in the East where dairy operations with 60 cows to one man were making money even on land that was worth $2,000 an acre. "Agriculture in the future will need outstanding managers." He said electronic brains are almost certain to come to the farm in the next 20 years as aids in calculating the best uses of resources on any given farm. As an aside he quipped, "You may need to organize an electronic 4-H club for some of your boys."

Dr George Browning, associate director of the Agricultural Experiment Station. said that in the changing times, it will be wise to contruct farm buildings so they can be readily changed to different uses as occasion requires. We shouldn't build such "monuments" inside our buildings as we find now in the old horse barns. He said that in the field of disease control, we are likely to see disease-control chemicals tailor-made for the job they are to do and used with less danger to man or animals. In the field of management, he said he believed a pilot township or pilot county should be set up soon somewhere in the state to apply the most modern methods of chosing the best use of individual farms' resources. These modern methods are based on a system of calculation known as "linear programming." They make it possible to speed up the calculations either by hand or by use of calculating machines—"electronic brains."

Dr Floyd Andre, dean of the Division of Agriculture at Iowa State College, said one of the facts clearly brought out by the present trends in agriculture, is that agricultural management needs and can reward the country's best brains. "We want to keep the best brains on the farm," he said, "that's where we need them." Throughout the sessions there was the feeling that farming offers a special opportunity in the future for management brains. One speaker referred to the term "Agribusiness" as indicating a coming attitude toward what has been called "agriculture."

We as extension directors got the idea that there is a big future in farming for able young people, but that it is part of our job to help these young folks "find themselves." Those who are best fitted for industry, though they come from the farm may find their future in industry. Those who have the capacity to be outstanding farm managers will find a brilliant future on the farm—but they'll need training and education, just as the top industry managers do.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

County extension directors, home economists and youth assistants from throughout Iowa met last week at Ames for their annual conference. Your Hancock county extension staff was there too. This conference was aimed at the future—the outlook for farming and homemaking for the next 10 years.

We can't put in little space all the things that were said there. But a few highlights can give some ideas of the big changes that seem to be coming for Iowa agriculture.

Dr Leslie Johnson, head of the Animal Husbandry Department at Iowa State College, said livestock men expect to look a lot deeper into what the consumer really wants in the way of meat. He believes there's going to be some change in the way livestock men look at their exhibitions for the fairs. "It is time," he said, "that we recognize the fair as advertising and not as a method of selecting breeding stock." He said breeders of seed stock will become more distinct, in their methods, from commercial breeders. He thinks the seed stock breeders will specialize in seed stock and will operate bigger units.

Dr W H Pierre, head of the Agronomy Department at the college, said the progress of corn breeding for resistance to corn borer is moving ahead. Within 10 years corn borer damage may be materially reduced by inbred resistance. He thinks one of the greatest changes in crops in the next 10 years may be to-

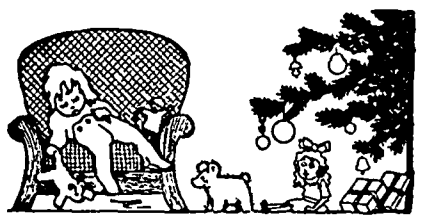
Some Random Thoughts

BY L. E. "PETE" K.

In Denmark it's "Glaedelig Jul!"; in Holland it's "Hartelijke Kerstgroeten!"; in Finland it's "Hauskaa Joulua!"; in France it's "Joyeux Noel!"; in Germany it's "Froehliche Weihnachten!"; in Italy it's 'Bono Natale!"; in Spain it's "Felices Pascuas!" and in Portugol it's "Boas Festas!"—and it's "Merry Christmas!" however you say it!

Why is Santa pictured as coming down the chimney? One story goes back to pre-Christian Germany and Hertha, goddess of the home. At the winter solstice, which is about the time of Christmas, families kindled a fire of fir boughs inside their homes, and the goddess supposedly descended through the smoke to bring them good luck.

The legend carried over into old England, where Santa was credited with coming down the chimney to clean it of soot so good luck could come in.



"Though Christ a thousand times

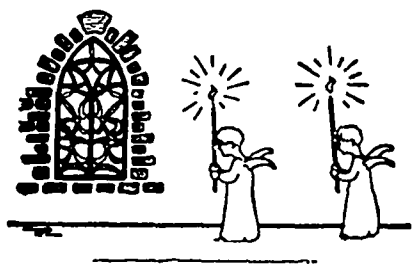
"In Bethlehem be born
"And not within thyself,
'Thy soul will be forlorn."
—Angelus Silesius



Don't let your children forget the annual Christmas party at the high school gym Saturday afternoon. There will be a free movie and treats.

If you are wondering about the durability of a school bus you might get some recently acquired information from Kermie Koerner.

Don't worry kids, Santa will get around. He's one man that gets lots of help.

And a Merry Christmas to all from the gang at The Times office.

The Hancock County Courthouse will be closed all day on Tuesday, December 25, in the annual observance of Christmas, according to an announcement by Audifor Gus Pappas.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

Man and the automobile have joined together to create a new kind of Christmas story. The story has nothing to do with warmth and goodwill and cheery greetings. Any highway patrolman can tell you a Christmas story. Here are three we've heard recently:

"Except for the man who made the call, I was the first one to arrive," the patrolman said. "It was a lonesome spot on a gravel road, and the car was a mess. A young couple was dead in the front seat. They leaned against one another and looked almost as though they were resting easy in all that wreckage.

"Looking through the car with a flashlight, I found one of those red paper Christmas bells hanging from the rear vision mirror. It was blowing back and forth in the wind coming through the broken windshield. That was all the Christmas they had."

Another patrolman told of tending an injured woman who kept asking him to leave her and find her baby. She had been holding it in her arms just before the head-on crash.

"Well, I'd already found the baby," he said. "It had gone through the windshield with a bunch of Christmas packages. I couldn't tell her."

The third patrolman had his story, too. He had helped remove a dead man from a wrecked car one bright cold day in December. Later, he was gathering personal effects from the car when he found a package of Christmas cards.

Each card carried a picture of the dead man smiling in the midst of his family—his wife and three children. He had picked them up in town and was taking them home when the accident happened.

All the patrolmen agreed that the Christmas season is one of the most dangerous of the year. Each one felt it inevitable that he would be called on to officiate at the tragic end of Christmas for some family again this year.

Kramer Plays Well For Junior College

Don Kramer, son of Mr and Mrs Paul Kramer, who last year was one of the leading scorers for the Klemme Shamrock basketball team, is this year leading the way for the Eagle Grove Junior College team.

Don has been high point man in the last five games that his team has been in, and the Eagle Grove quintet has won each of those last five. His highest point contribution was 36 and was made against Fort Dodge Junior College.

Social Security Tax To Be Raised Jan 1.

Starting January 1, 1957, the social security tax will be raised from 2 to 2¼ percent.

The additional tax will be used for the new disability insurance program which provides monthly security payments to qualified workers between the ages of 50 and 65. None of these disability payments will be paid before July 1957 but applications are being accepted now.

The tax on the self employed will rise from 3 to 3⅜ percent effective with tax years ending after 1956.

The tax will be paid only on the first $4200 of wages in a year so the maximum amount in tax an employee would pay each year would be $94.50 or a raise of $10.50 over the previous maximum tax. The employer would pay a like amount. The maximum a self-employed person would pay would be $141.75 or a rise of $15.75 each year.

Besides disability insurance, social security tax contributions also provide for monthly payments to a retired worker and to his dependents, monthly payments to survivors and a lump sum payment in the event of death.

ASC Office to Close

In addition to being closed on Christmas Day, the ASC office at Garner will be closed all day on Monday, December 24th.

Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting of the Hancock County Health Improvement Association will be held at Hull's Cafe in Garner January 9th at 1:30 p. m. [illegible] as deputy sheriff.

Shamrocks Win Over Ventura; Lose Thriller To Hayfield Quintet

In basketball action the past week, the Klemme Shamrocks broke even on a pair of games. Friday night they traveled to Ventura and came home on the long end of a 61-53 score. Tuesday night they were hosts to the Hayfield team and lost a close decision 57-54.

The Shamrocks had trouble getting ahead of Ventura and the end of the first quarter saw them all tied up at 16 apiece. However, by the half the Shamrocks had taken a five point 33-28 lead which they stretched to 51-40 by the end of the third quarter.

Martin Brinkman led the scoring for the locals with 29 points, while Keith Nuehring had 14, Marvin Josten 12, and Bob Larson 6. Molencamp, Bacon and Thiemann looked best for Ventura with 16, 14, and 13, respectively.

The Hayfield game saw the Shamrocks trail all the way, but they were closing the gap when the final whistle put a stop to the game.

Bob Larson led the scoring for the Shamrocks with 13 points, while Martin Brinkman, who was handicapped with a bruised thigh, managed 12, Nuehring got 9 points and Roger Meints 7.

The Little Shamrocks, who did not play Ventura, also lost a tough one to Hayfield. They led 20-17 at the half but couldn't hang onto their lead, and lost out in a thriller 45-44.

Lynn Huenemann and Larry Ulrich led the scoring for the local reserves with 16 and 14 points, respectively.

Next action will be Friday night on the local floor when Franklin comes here, and then there will be no more games until after the holidays.

EDITORIAL

This week we are starting a new column in the Shamrock. It is called "Do You Remember?" (We got the idea from the Garner Checkerboard.)

It really is a lot of fun, helping Bev and Coleen recall some of the mischief that we got into, like when we used to have parties in the eighth grade every Friday afternoon, and when we first got into high school and everything was so new and strange to us.

When we think back we realize how fast these last four years have gone and it makes us rather sad to think that in about six months we will graduate and perhaps never see some of our classmates again.

This should serve to remind us that when we leave here, our education is no longer free. We must pay through the nose for it. The more studying we do now and the harder we work and apply ourselves while in high school, the less we will have to "pay through the nose" later. Take heed! Especially you underclassmen. Take advantage of your free public education. You will be glad you did.

Know Your Town

To help you get a little more acquainted with the business men of our town we decided to interview some of them. For our first interview we approached Wallace Eichorn, owner of the Corner Store.

"Wally" first saw light on a farm near Thompson, Iowa. When he was thirteen years old, Wally's family moved to Forest City.

He graduted from Forest City High School, taking an active part in all activities including football and basketball. Wally played twenty games of football without being substituted. After graduating from high school he continued his education by attending Waldorf College. During his college years, he was elected president of his class for two years, and president of the debating society where he participated in debates with various colleges throughout Minnesota and Iowa. Wally's Wonderings was a column in the paper written by Wally himself.

Preceding graduation, he began to work in Pinckney's Drug where he stayed for twenty years, the last seven as manager. Wally moved to Klemme in 1953 where he has since resided.

Wally enjoys basketball and football and likes to listen to Rosemary Clooney and Malek's Accordion Band. His favorite hobby is reading and going to the movies. "Life is too serious to 'ake seriously" is Wally's favorite saying.

We asked Wally for his opinion of the main thing a high school student should gain from his schooling. He thinks the art of getting along with people and making other people happy is most important. When questioned about the town of Klemme itself, he replied, "I think Klemme is the nicest and cleanest town around atfer viewing many others before moving to his locality."

Letters to Santa

Dear Santa,

After going around to every class I found out that the sophomores and freshman seem to want the impossible, such as:

Ginger wants some new specs.

Joyce wants Don to be home and a camera.

Gaylon wants an initial ring to give to Barbara (from Garner)

Roger wants a record player.

Jerry L wants Cindy S and answers for algebra.

Cozette wants Jerry L to leave her alone.

Randall doesn't want any more casts.

Candace really wants a tennis racket, but the face or throat, or the grip will do!

John A wants a brand new Buick for Sunday and a brand new Chevrolet for week days.

Jerry J wants a doll—5' 2", blue eyes with brown hair.

Velma wants the ability to get better world history and algebra grades.

Craig wants an autographed picture of Elvis Presley.

Mardell and Marlin want people to stop getting their names mixed up.

Miss Whitmire wants some studious sophomores.

Bob T wants a little more height for basketball.

Mariam wants a letter from Paul!

Gordon L wants to be placed around some talkative people in English class.

Mrs Oberg wants the basketball team to stop giving her heart failure.

Barbara C wants the long fingernails back that she chewed off during the last basketball game.

Lynn would like to make 50 points in basketball.

Lois H doesn't want her candle to go out in the candle light procession at church Christmas Eve.

Elaine E wants to remember the words to the song in the candle light procession.

Marguerite wants ten packs of bubble gum.

Roxanne wants records to go with her record player which is 3 years old.

Janis Bier wants her brother and his wife and children to come home.

Joann Beier doesn't want to be sick like she was last year.

James Beier wants some pretty sport shirts and socks.

Roger S wants a happy new year.

Yours truly,
The Christmas Elf

P. S I wish the whole high school a very Merry Christmas.

SENIOR INTERVIEW

As we walked into the theatre we saw LaVohn Josten, who was born July 12, 1939 at Klemme. She was watching Battle Cry, which later we found out was her favorite movie, starring Terry Moore and Aldo Ray, who are her favorite stars.

After the movie was over, we found her sitting at a booth eating her favorite foods, chili and shrimp. (What a combination!) We sat down and talked to her and asked what her future plans were. She said nursing, then later on getting a B S degree. She is well fitted for nursing because she belongs to the North Ell Tip Toppers 4-H club and is club president and county 4-H president.

She is a member of the Evangelical and Reformed Church and sings in the church choir and teaches Sunday School.

She also told us that she was very fond of watching Robin Hood and Bob Cummings on TV.

When she goes to a dance she would rather dance to the music of Bill Haley and his Comets with Perry Como the soloist. She thinks the best band leader around is good old Klemme High School band leader, Mr Whitford.

If LaVohn goes anywhere she has to ride in her favorite make of car, a Ford. Her favorite subject is English and literature and of course her favorite pastime is reading. LaVohn's secret ambition is to get into surgical research and become a doctor. We wish LaVohn the best of luck and many happy returns in her field of work.

Remember When—

Sharleen used to go with Larry?

Lakeland College Band was here?

Mart used to have long curls and ride his tricycle?

Fonda and LaVohn were bashful?

Keith didn't like girls?

Roger J had that Elvis look? Snip, snip)

Art was short and fat?

Bob L had his Ford?

Bev C had long hair?

Kay got a butch?

Val didn't play a cornet?

Juda didn't have red hair? (Neither do we)

Winola went with Merlyn?

Marvin S and Jim weren't in the Reserve?

John D had a "flat top"?

We went to Career Day at Britt?

June, Winola and Pete went to country school?

Coleen jumped out of the swing in P T class?

Marvalyn didn't like boys?

Mr Chadwick taught geography class?

Janice didn't go with Gene?

Marvin J was a human being? (Before he was editor of the annual)

Elmer drove slow?

Bob A didn't like to tease?

Gary wasn't laughing about something?

All Your Dreams Have Meanings

Did you ever stop to think that your dreams have special meanings? Have you ever wondered what dreams mean? Here are the interpretations:

If you dream about a clock ringing, it is a sure sign that you're going to do something—probably get up.

You might dream about scratching. This denotes a visitor. The visitor is usually a mosquito—try some DDT.

Perhaps you dream you are very tired. This indicates you didn't go to bed early enough.

To dream of a pain-in-the-neck is a sure sign somebody's swiped your pillow!

The Nicest Gift

It's not the gift that's wrapped and tied
In ribbons bright and gay.
It's not the most expensive one,
That folks might give away.
However much the gift might cost,
However big or small,
It's those right from the heart
That are nicest of em all.
That little package tucked away
Behind the Christmas tree,
That someone placed so lovingly
Where others mightn't see—
Who cares the worth of what's inside;
The value of the style?
Becauses there's something greater there,
It holds a friendly smile!
It's not the gift that's bought in haste,
However fine the store,
But those somebody took the time
And trouble looking for.
It's love and smiles that go along
We never count them small.
No matter what
That package brings,
The niceest gift of all.
—Tiger Roar, Strasburg.O. High

BEAVER

There's lots of beaver activity reported in Iowa's lakes and rivers. Near Cascade, Don Coohey recently trapped a 55 pound beaver in the Maquoketa river. The beaver measured 43 inches from nose to tail tip.

DEER

The deer season has brought worries to the Paul Nicolai family of near Hancock. Last summer Mr Nicolai rescued two fawn just as they were about to be run over by a sickle blade. They've become attached to the family and won't go away.

Liberty Go Getters

The regular meeting of the Liberty Go Getters was held on December 3rd at the home of Alan Jass. The meeting was called to order by the President, Maynard Weisbrod. It was decided to have a family 4-H boys and girls Christmas Party at the Liberty community school house, Monday, December 10 at 7:30. There is to be a $1 grab bag for 4-H boys and under 4-H age a 25c gift.

Members are to weigh their calves December 29th from 10 a m to 12 noon.

Garold Lenz presented a talk on his Chicago trip. Jorn Farquhar and Allen Greiman gave a talk on starting feeder cattle.

Reporter, Garold Lenz

Liberty Busy Bees

The Libery Busy Bees had their mothers as guests at the November 26th meeting held at the home of Joyce and Nancy Hueneman. Mary Ellen Ausenhus showed us the posture film. Carolyn Jass and Nancy Farquhar gave us some very interesting suggestions they had learned at the better grooming training school. Sharon Ward gave us some helpful pointers on hair care. We made plans for a Christmas party with the 4-H boys and all our parents. Marian Stromer, Winola Zwald and Carolyn Jass and Mrs Upmeyer were appointed to be on the game committee and Nancy Huneman and Mary Kern on the gift committee.

Deadline For Getting Baby Beeves in Jan. 1

All 4-H club members that are having a baby beef as a 4-H project must have the beef before January 1st. These calves must also be weighed and marked on or before January 1. At this time they are not allowed to weigh over 650 pounds.

The leaders of each 4-H club take the responsibility of getting a central location and a date when all members can get together to have their calves weighed and marked. The baby beeves that aren't on full feed at this time shou'd be put on full feed as soon as possible in order to get a good finish on the animal by fair time.

It is also time to be thinking of getting your dairy heifers, hogs, sheep or whatever livestock project you plan on having.

FINGER

Cloyd Dolley of near Freeport was the victim of a corn picker accident recently. He lost one finger and several others were mangled.

Christmas Tree Carol

In glistening splendor now the Tree
Bursts magically on children's eyes
And every shining ball reflects
Their joyous wonder and surprise.

Beneath its branches gifts are spread—
But what beribboned box can hold
A Christmas-kiss! And happiness
Defies a tissue-paper mold!

As 'round this fragrant pyramid
Our families gather joyfully,
Lord, may it ever point the way
Beyond its tinsel star to Thee!

OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER | KLEMME, IOWA, DECEMBER 26, 1956 | VOLUME 62 | NUMBER 6

Some Random Thoughts

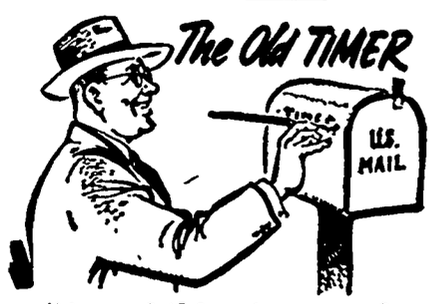
BY L. E. "PETE" K.

The Christmas weekend proved to be the worst one for highway deaths in the history of the nation. Seven hundred and five people (more than live in Klemme) met their deaths in traffic accidents. And goodness knows how many non-fatal mishaps occurred.

Now the New Year's weekend is almost here, and safety officials are predicting a traffic toll of 490. That's putting too many people out of the picture in just a few short days.

Traffic laws are clear . . . and if followed, work. Accidents caused by mechanical failure in today's cars are rare. Highways are becoming wider and better. And yet, the bad accidents continue to happen. Must be that the fault in most cases is with the driver of one vehicle or the other . . . or both.

Consequently, we think that constant attention to the road and the traffic on it (including your own vehicle) is absolutely essential. We all have caught ourselves in little careless acts while at the wheel, and it only takes one of these little slips at the right time to start the ball rolling toward catastrophe.



"A good thing to remember is that you can't save face if you lose your head!"

If you're driving over the New Year's weekend, for goodness sake, drive with care . . . and look out for the other guy. He might possibly be under the influence of something stronger than soda water.

My Neighbors

"Every New Year it's the same thing—wives screaming ...snow screeching...curtains banging and cats stamping around!"

That light, fluffy snow that fell Christmas morning was in our opinion the prettiest of the season. It covered all the old dirty snow, and when the sun came out it sparkled like a million jewels.

See you all in 1957, and we hope it will be a year that will bring you much happiness.

Mrs Helen Stevens of Clear Lake was hurt in a freak auto accident near there recently. Her car stalled on a hill. The emergency brake failed just as she was re-entering the car and she was thrown under the car when her clothing caught on the door. She received three broken ribs.

Services Held for Mrs. Fred A. Arnold

Funeral services for Mrs Fred A Arnold, 78, were held at two o'clock Monday afternoon, December 24th from the Klemme Methodist Church with Rev Melvin Miller in charge.

Interment was in Ell Township Cemetery at Klemme and Mrs Arnold was carried to her final resting place by Asa Gibbs, Ronald Gibbs, Donald Gibbs, Virgil Bridgeford, Roy Arnold, and Wilbur Arnold.

Osman Funeral Service was in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Fred A. Arnold, age 78, passed away suddenly on Friday, December 21, at Mercy Hospital in Mason City, following a brief illness.

She was the daughter of the late Asa and Isabelle Gibbs. She was born in Delhi, Ohio, on September 15, 1878, the third of seven children.

At the age of two, she moved with her family, to the Klemme community, where she resided until her death.

On November 26, 1902, she was united in marriage to Fred A. Arnold of Klemme. To this union were born two sons, Fred J., and Asa R.

Mrs. Arnold leaves to mourn her passing, her two sons, six grandchildren, a sister, Miss Anna Gibbs, and a brother, Harry Gibbs, all of Klemme.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Fred, who died on January 16, 1950.

Mrs. Arnold was a life-time member of the Methodist Church.

Tax Return Time Points Out Value Of Good Tax Management

Farm income tax return time points out each year the value of good year-long tax management, declares Paul Henderson, Hancock County extension director.

Good tax management and good records take much of the work out of preparing tax returns and may help reduce farm income taxes he says. Poor management and poor records make the job difficult and may cost a farmer money.

For example, he says that Herb Howell, Iowa State College farm management specialist, points out that each dollar of deductible expense missed increases a farmer's income tax by at least 20 cents.

End-of-the-year planning is not an efficient means of tax management, Howell emphasizes. He says a farmer should "think taxes" all year.

It's not necessary for a farmer to be a tax expert. However, Howell says he should know enough about taxes to recognize the income tax aspects of a farm business decision.

Henderson advises Hancock County farm operators to begin now to set up permanent tax management and record systems. He adds that booklet, "Income Tax Management for Farmers," and record books are available from the extension office. The booklet is free; the record books can be obtained at cost.

Shamrocks Win 73-55 Over Franklin Cons.

In a game on the local floor last Friday night, the Klemme Shamrocks came on strong to take a 73-55 North Star Conference win from Franklin Consolidated.

The Shamrocks had a 16-14 lead at the end of the first quarter and by half time were out in front 34-31. By the end of the third period their lead had gone and Franklin was out in front 44-43.

The final quarter saw the Shamrocks come to file and make 30 points while their opponents could manage only 11.

The victory leaves the Shamrocks in first place in the conference standings with three wins and no defeats.

Brinkman led the scoring for the locals with 34 points while Bob Larson was good for 19.

DeBoer led the way for Franklin with 16 while Sprau contributed 14.

The Little Shamrocks faltered somewhat in the final period of their game with the Franklin reserves but hung on to win 54-47. Huenemann was the big gun in the scoring for the local reserves with 19 points while Bacon scored 13.

Next action for the Shamrocks will be a conference game at Sheffield on Friday, Jan. 4th.

Patch of Ice Ends Christmas Trip

Mr and Mrs C A Larsen and Mr and Mrs Benn Coobs had their Christmas trip to Chicago halted rather abruptly Friday morning when the car in which they were riding struck a patch of ice near Hampton, went out of control, and crashed into a rather substantial stone or concrete mail box post.

All four were taken to a Hampton Hospital and treated. None of them were seriously injured and they are all now at home. Mr Larsen, who was driving, and Mrs Coobs were hurt more than the other two, but should be up and around again soon.

The car was damaged beyond repair, so the foursome feels pretty fortunate to get off as easily as they did.

Assessors to Spend Two Days In Each Township

Forms are being mailed to Hancock County taxpayers for the 1957 property assessment.

Fieldmen from the Assessor's office will spend two days in each township and rural taxpayers are urged to have their 1956 crop report and personal property list ready for the fieldmen.

1957 is also real estate assessment year, and rolls will be mailed to all taxpayers. 1957 values will remain about the same as for 1953 with the new buildings added to the rolls .

Iowa law provides that all property shall be assessed at 60% of actual value. In recent years of inflated values this rule has not been rigidly adhered to and present assessments are not 60% of present day values.

Field assessors will begin their duties on January 2 at the Community Hall in Ellinghton Township. They will be at locations and days specified below from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. on each of those dates.

January 25; Twin Lake (South Half) City Hall in Goodell; January 26; Avery Township (South Half) City Hall Goodell; January 28, Twin Lake Township (North Half) City Hall in Klemme, January 29; Avery Township (North Half) City Hall in Klemme; February 1 & 2, Liberty Township; Courthouse in Garner; February 4 & 5 Ell Township, Courthouse in Garner.

Farmers' Tax Guides Available at County Extension Office

A new publication "1956 Farmer's Tax Guides," is now available to Hancock County farmers at the extension office in Garner, says Paul Henderson, county extension director.

The "Tax Guides" is especially designed to aid farmers who make out their own income tax and social security reports, says Henderson. He adds that the publication will also be useful to tax service men who work with farmers' income tax and social security reports.

The booklet is written especially for farmers, Henderosn emphasizes. Most of the income tax rules which cover farming are explained. And numerous examples are used to show how the rules apply to actual situations.

Henderson stresses that the "Tax Guide" is not designed to replace the instructions received with tax forms, but is intended to supplement them.

He says that Iowa State College Economist Herb Howell reports that the publication was prepared by the Internal Revenue Service with the assistance of state and federal extension services, regional farm management extension committees and the U S Department of Agriculture.

Copies can be picked up now at the extension office Henderson says. There is no charge for the booklet.

Biggest Cut In Road Funds

Hancock County Auditor, Gus Pappas and his staff have completed the task of spreading the 1956 tax levies to be collected in 1957 on the tax rolls.

A comparison of levies in 1956 with those of 1955 collected this year indicate a decrease of some $154,106.14 in taxes to be collected in 1957. This is due in part to a drastic reduction in road funds and a larger agricultural land credit.

School taxes will be higher as a general rule with some districts showing a marked increase and others a decrease. The average school levy for all districts is 28.447 mills in 1956 as compared to 27.015 mills in 1955.

Total state levies in 1956 are .750 mills for Service Compensation and Korean bonus bonds. In 1955 the levy was .450 for Service Compensation bonds. The amount added this year for Korean bonus is .310 mills and one mill on taxable moneys and credits. This will raise approximately $11,800 from property tax and $2,397.00 from moneys and credits tax.

The total county levy for 1956 is 10.239 mills while in 1955 the levy totaled 10.440, a decrease of .201 mills for 1956.

All school districts in Hancock County are now community or consolidated districts with the exception of Garfield townshp which still maintains its rural schools.

Following is a list of total school levies for the various community and consolidated school districts in the county for 1955 and 1956:

	1955	1956

Klemme Corp.	49.919	51.290
Woden Corp.	56.470	49.376

Towns in Hancock County showed increase in levies for town purposes in all towns except Klemme and Woden where there was a slight drop. Britt had the largest increase and Woden showed the largest decrease.

Following is a list of corporation levies for the past two years:

NEW YEAR'S DAY

New Year's Day is one of the oldest and most universal holidays throughout the world. The festivities began when the Romans adopted the Julian calender in 46 B. C. They changed the first month of the year from March to January. The Romans offered sacrifices to their god Janus on New Year's Day with the belief that this sacrifice would assure them of a successful year and they exchanged greetings with friends, neighbors and relatives. In the Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches New Year's Day is the feast of the Circumcision of Jesus Christ.

In the United States, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day are times of social entertainment. Many churches hold watch night services on New Year's Eve. Horns are blown, bells are rung, and whistles announce the arrival of the new year at 12:00 o'clock midnight.

George Washington, while he was president, inaugurated the custom of holding a New Year's reception which has been observed by all his successors except Roosevelt.

Two of our American cities have gained fame from their manner of celebrating the New Year's Day.

Philadelphia has a Mummers Parade which began in 1876 with Philadelphia's early English and Swedish residents. Masqueraders roamed the city for a week after Christmas. There now are more than 10,000 persons participating in the Mummers Parade with prizes for the best costumes, comics, etc.

Pasedena has the Tournament of Roses which was first held January 1, 1886. The first parade consisted of a few flower-decorated carriages and is now one of the most elaborate float parades in the United States.

What's Wrong

How quickly can you find out what is so unusual about this paragraph? It looks so ordinary that you would think not a thing was wrong with it; in fact, nothing is at all. But it is unusal. Why? If you study it and think about it you might find out. but I am not going to assist you in any way. You must do it without coaching. No doubt, if you work at it for a long span, it will dawn on you. Who knows? Go to work and try your skill at it.

(Although "E" is the most used letter in the English language, here is a paragraph without a single "E".)

Know Your Town

This week Ron and I are to interview the Kluckhohn brothers. As we enter this familiar establishment, we are given a cheery greeting by Fred Kluckhohn or "Buck" as he is known to most of the community.

"Buck was born July 29, 1888 on a farm 3 miles north and 2 miles east of Klemme.

Clarence was born December 29, 1891 in the building where Larsen's is now located.

Kluckhohns have been in the grocery business for sixty-five years. Their father started a meat market, where Larsen's is now located, in 1891. He sold that building in 1893 and built the building where Gerardi's is now located, in 1891. He sold that here.

In 1919, the Kluckhohns entered into business for themselves in their present establishment.

The Kluckhohn brothers were very active in baseball. Frank was a pitcher, Clarence was a short stop and Fred preferred to play first base.

Clarence and Fred like to watch television and play cards as a pastime.

SENIOR INTERVIEW

COOK UP A SENIOR

Take a blonde curly haired boy who was born August 26, 1939 in Klemme. Add to him a friendly smile and his favorite sport which is basketball.

Blend him with physics. After this is done, give him a shiny '57 Ford so he can drive to the nearest theartre showing "Battle Cry". Then he will enjoy listening to records by Lawrence Welk or the McGuire sisters. He also likes the song "In the Mood."

Pour in an evening of skating now and then. When he is asleep he dreams about his ideal girl If you could see his ideal girl, she would be a blonde, 5' 2". eyes of blue, with a pleasant smile and a nice personality.

Next shake him up a little and get into his mind a farming career and a bright future. Garnish him with a joke and place him in a cool oven of seniors.

Now that we have finished you will find we have reproduced Marvin Josten, better known as "Mary".

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

Next Tuesday ends the worst year for traffic deaths in the history of Iowa and the nation. Ironically, the staggering fatality blow hit Iowa during a year when there was stronger activity in enforcemen, licensing and education than ever before.

A National Safety Council representative visiting the state recently I said, privately, that Iowa's over-all traffic safety activity record for 1956 will rank higher than in any previous year.

Asked why, in the face of this, Iowa's death record is so bad, he pointed out that states with miles-per-hour speed limits all have better recoords than Iowa this year.

The safety council representative emphasized that a speed limit is not the entire answer to Iowa's problem, by all means.

He seemed to feel that lack of a strong citizen's public support group for safety activity is one of the states greatest single deficiencies.

In other word's there's more than a slight inclination for most of us to dismiss the safety problem as something someone else should solve.

Who that someone else is, beyond the uniformed officer, and what tools and help he has to try to do the job are things we seldom consider.

This attitude is a deadly contradiction. Individually, each one of us is under daily threat of death or injury on the streets or highways. Yet, we seem to have no enthusiasium for organizing a collective defense.

Well, good luck in 1597.

What this country needs is a good five second TV commercial.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

General Economic Outlook

American consumers spent more money during 1956 than during 1955, but their rate of spending didn't increase as much as their incomes, says Francis A Kutish, Iowa State College economist. As a result, they saved a little more money than in 1955, when we were rebounding from the recession of 1954.

Kutish breaks national expenditures into three divisions: The amount of goods and services bought by consumers, the amount of goods and services bought by the government, and the amount of investment in business.

Taken as a whole, these three areas increased their expenditures at about the normal rate during 1956, with consumer expenditures making up about half the total. Expenditures for nondurable goods (including food) and for services rose in proportion with consumer income, although automobile spending was down about 20 percent from 1955.

Investment spending also contributed much to this year's economic expansion. Fewer new homes were built, but spending for new factories and equipment expanded sharply.

Government spending for goods and services showed the first notable increase in 3 years. Most of this increase came from state and local governments which financed schools, highways, and water and sewage systems.

Looking Ahead

The 1957 economy should increase at the same rate as in 1956. But because of the tight manpower, materials and facilities situation in some areas, more of the increase may be in the form of higher prices, rather than in additional goods and services.

Kutish says the consumer will make more money in 1957, but he will spend more and save less than in 1956. Barring a change in the situation in 1957, there should be a slight increase in government spending. State and local governments will again contribute much to the increase by building more schools, roads and water and sewage plants.

Although private investment spending will be greater in '57, investments in new plants and equipment may decrease, with residential construction maintaining present levels.

Prices

Kutish says prices of farm products and foods are presently a bit higher than a year ago. Retail consumer prices and prices paid by farmers have risen 2% and other prices have continued upward, too. Wholesale prices of all commodities have increased 3½ percent over a year ago, and industrial product prices have risen about 4 percent. Kutish says there should be further wholesale and retail price rises in 1957.
